Was a Day Of Three Debates.

Seek No U.S. Trade Concessions to Adjust Waterways.

Premier Makes Important Announcement During Discussion On Niagara Waters Apportionment--Would Like All Disputes Settled on Quid Pro Quo Basis —N.S. Coasting Privileges Are Criticized.

Ottawa, Jan. 15.—The House accomplished no less than three debates yesterday. One dealt with the Ross Rifle Co., another with the coasting trade of the Maritime Provinces, and another with the apportionment of Niagara power.

The Niagara debate for a time raged about the disappearance of a report by D. R. Spencer, formerly in the Canadian civil service, but now a citizen of the United States. It appeared, however, that no such report was on file, or, indeed, had ever been written.

Premier's Protection Drift.

The significant events of the day were the declarations by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, showing his rapid drift to the doctrine of protection. He disclaimed any desire for reciprocity with the United States, and strongly intimated that all foreign vessels should be excluded from the coasting trade, and reproached the Conservative Government as having been recreant to protection when it accorded these coasting privileges. Finally he acquiesced by his silence, at least, in the strong intimations let drop by Ministers Fielding and Emmerson, to the effect that bounties might soon be accorded to shipbuilders.

It "Will Out."

In response to a question, Mr. Emmerson stated that the Beauharnois Canal water-power had been granted to McIntyre & Robert, and that the Department of Justice was preparing the lease. It is said to be a fair surmise that its ultimate destination is the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co.

The Waterways' Report.

Mr. Lancaster (Lincoln and Niagara) moved for a copy of all orders in council, reports, correspondence and telegrams, since the first of January, 1901, to the present time, touching the interests of Canada in the boundary line between Canada and the United States at Niagara Falls, and also with respect to the waters of the Niagara River, which have been confided under any order-in-council or otherwise, to the determination or report of International Waterways Commission."

Mr. Lancaster said that the report of the Waterways Commission had recommended a treaty by which the United States should take 28,500 cubic feet per second, and Canada 36,000 cubic feet a second. This was not a fair division in view of the greater volume of water on the Canadian side. Instead of getting 9-16, Canada should get 75 or 80 per cent. He complained of the fact that a report made by Dr. J. W. Spencer as to the international boundary had never come before the House.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier explained that the conclusions of the Waterways Commission did not constitute a treaty. They were recommendations for a treaty, "but there can be no question," he continued, "as to the attention that we should give to the commission, whether we should agree with them or differ from them, to decide upon the merits of that appointment. My honorable friend (Mr. Lancaster) stated that in his opinion the apportionment is not fair to Canada, that we do not receive, under the recommendations of the commission, the amount of power to which we are entitled, according to the amount of water which flows on our side of the boundary line, with the amount as compared with the amount flowing on the American side.

A Time for Settlement.

"In my estimation this is not the way we should proceed upon this. I am strongly of the opinion, and I have entertained that opinion for a long time, that we ought apart from the action of this commission or that commission, to endeavor at the present time to settle permanently the question of the division of waters between Canada and the United States from Puget Sound to the St. John River.

"There are many and many places where the interest of Canada and the interest of the United States come into conflict. On the Soo, for instance, on the Rainy River, on the Fraser River, on the St. John River, in all these localities we have vast interests which at the present time are in conflict between Canadians on one side and Americans on the other side. If we can in connection with this present commission settle all these differences, for my part I would not be adverse to trying to get a quid pro quo here and a quid pro quo there.

"It seems to me to be the best way to settle this question, and I invite the serious consideration of my hon. friend (Mr. Lancaster) to this view of the subject.

No Trade Concessions.

"I do not think it would be possible to obtain from the United States at the present time or at any time any pro quid quo in the way of trade concessions.

"We have been looking for trade concessions for a long time, but we do not look for them any more now; we have abandoned that idea long ago. We do not care any more to have these trade concessions. There was a time when we would have given a great deal to have trade concessions from our American neighbors; they chose in their own way to refuse these; we have done pretty well without them, and at the present time we do not expect anything of that nature. I do not expect that we can receive any concession in the way of sums of money going out to the New York brokers and nothing appeared to be coming in. They were not in a position to ascertain whether Mr. McGill had securities for the cash, though the accounts appeared to be dead ones. In August last, Mr. Pope took action and brought the matter to the attention of the board. Even then however, he could not be certain that no securities existed. Investigation was necessary to find out how things stood.

Mr. Bayley asked if the defendant received a salary and Mr. Chenoweth said that he did.

"What was the amount of it?" A.—"$4,000."

"That may be important in considering the legal aspect of the case," remarked Mr. Bayley.

The acting Crown Attorney said that he had no further witnesses in court. He would have to bring Caldwell, the bank inspector, from Ottawa, and also wished to call G. W. Yarker. He might require a Government official to identify the reports.

Mr. Frank Arnoldi expressed himself as willing to admit the reports, so as to prevent further delay. Col. Denison allowed the case to stand over until this morning. He said that after hearing the other witnesses it would be necessary to go very carefully into the law bearing on the matter and consider the legal aspects of the case.

TRAIN WRECKS.

Major Archibald, Dominion Parole Officer, Badly Shaken Up.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—W. T. Archibald of Ottawa, the Government parole officer, was a passenger on a train that was crashed into from the rear a few miles east of Chicago Sunday morning, resulting in injuries to two or more of the occupants of the sleepers. Mr. Archibald was projected through the partition wall of his compartment and his side was severely strained.

One Killed; One Dying.

Pittsburg, Jan. 15.—Chicago express No. 6, eastbound, on the Pittsburg and Western branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was in collision at Allison Park, Pa., yesterday with a heavy shifting engine. The passenger train was wrecked and C. W. Meyer of Chicago Junction, engineer, killed. Fireman H. C. Lewis, also of Chicago Junction, was fatally hurt.

Engineer Killed.

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 15.—Passenger train No. 1, west bound on the Southern Pacific, was wrecked 15 miles west of Montello early yesterday: Engineer Frank Noesley was killed and several passengers were injured.

Seven Dead In Mine.

Clinton, Ind., Jan. 15.—Seven dead and three injured miners, victims of an explosion, were taken from Mine No. 7 here yesterday. It is believed a miner set fire to a keg of powder by a spark from his lighted lamp.

Another Wreck At Sea.

Hamburg, Jan. 15.—The officials of the Woormann Line yesterday received a cable despatch announcing that the Lucie Woormann had been wrecked near Lome, the chief port of German Togoland. Her passengers and mail were saved.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—The Government will appeal the succession duties decision in connection with the Woodruff estate at St. Catharines. In the inventory the executors failed to include the homestead at St. Catharines, and $600,000 worth of stocks and bonds held in New York. Justice Falconbridge decided against the estate in respect of the homestead and against the Government in respect of the New York securities. The Government will test the latter point.

His Lonely End.

Winnipeg, Jan. 15.—An old man named Harris, who, although worth $30,000, has been living a lonely farm life, was found dead Sunday. A widow and family survive.

The question of teachers' salaries is a timely one throughout Ontario to-day. In this connection it may be noted that the salary of the Hamilton teachers, hitherto, has been from $300 minimum to $650 maximum, the latter to be reached in thirteen years' service. At the last meeting of the Board of Education the minimum was raised to $350, and the maximum to $750, to be reached in ten years. The Spectator says; "The board need make no excuse for their action in increasing the pay of the teachers. Those who work for stated salaries are hit very hard by these "prosperous" times, and pay that was good a few years ago, is now small. The ladies were fully entitled to the increase they have received."

The "Laurier Club," composed of "young Liberals," some with bald heads and others with grey hairs, of Toronto, have been discussing the Fielding tariff. The question asked, "Is the present tariff consistent with the Liberal platform of 1893, and with Liberal principles?" This was opened by a paper by Mr. B. Hamilton, expressing the opinion that the present tariff was, indeed a desertion of Liberal principles, and that the Dominion Government had forgotten its duty. Some dozen members spoke on the subject in turn, agreeing with the sentiments expressed in the paper."

The company denied all liability on the ground of an earthquake clause in its policies and paid no claims. The suit in the German court was to test the validity of this clause. It is understood that the decision hinged upon the position of a comma or semi-colon.

It seems to be the same everywhere, the people as a rule don't want higher taxes, and that explains why so many money by-laws were turned down in Ontario at the recent municipal elections. As the Stratford Beacon expresses it;

The price is 25c. per bottle, and all dealers in medicine sell 324

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Important Legislation Foreshadowed.

Among the important measures which will be considered at the forthcoming session of the Ontario Legislature is the Act introduced and read for the first time last session, consolidating and amending the Companies Act. Advance copies have been sent to the judges, the legal profession and commercial men, and every opportunity given to canvass the merits of the bill. All are requested to scrutinize carefully the copies sent to them, and are invited to suggest such alterations as they think necessary for the improvement of the measure. This preliminary reference of the bill to scores of men prominent as representatives of each of the interests concerned is highly commendable, and it is hoped that everybody receiving a copy will give it his best consideration and indicate in what respect he thinks it could be brought nearer to perfection. Especially is it desirable that the sense of laymen most interested in the legislation should be signified. Investors, bankers, trustees, fiduciary companies and agents of all kinds, commercial corporations and municipalities ought to make a study of the bill and contribute to its improvement as liberally as the lawyers. Whatever changes may be recommended by persons into whose hands it will fall, praise cannot be withheld for the work of the Provincial Secretary, who has aimed at embodying real reforms in compact provisions.

Part 8, which relates to companies offering shares for public subscription, is taken almost wholly from the Imperial Act of 1900. As pointed out in one of the explanatory notes inserted in the text of the bill, the object of this part is to prevent a company's capital being impaired or swallowed up by preliminary expenses. Many people have been victims of the present law's laxness in this respect. Companies are allowed to begin business before sufficient capital has been subscribed, and those shareholders who have paid in what money there is lose it. This bill calls for a fixed minimum subscription and prevents the company going into business until that is paid. No company can begin operation until it obtains a certificate from the Provincial Secretary. Under the existing law the auditing of a company's accounts is not obligatory. But Mr. Hanna's bill requires every annual statement to be audited, if not by an appointee of the shareholders, then by one of the Provincial Secretary. The provisions of the existing law excepting directors from liability for the consequences of action taken on the strength of expert reports or official documents are not continued in the bill. It gives directors no escape from their responsibility. The Winding-up Act, under which the proceedings can be made most vexations and very costly, will cease to trouble after this measure becomes law, and the assets of a company whose existence is being terminated will no longer be the prey of lawyers. Six or eight Acts relating to franchise corporations are drawn into the new bill. Expropriation, now provided for in four separate Acts, is referred to the provisions of the Ontario Railway Act in that behalf.

A Landmark Gone.

One of the old landmarks of the Tweed and Belleville gravel road, the residence of Mr. Alex. Wright, near Chapman, was, says the Tweed News, totally destroyed by fire at an early hour on Saturday morning last. Shortly after two o'clock the occupants of the house, who were all sleeping down stairs, were awakened by the smell of smoke and on investigation found that fire had started upstairs. For some time they fought the fire with water, but seeing that it was getting beyond their control they devoted their efforts towards saving the contents and they were successful in getting out a good portion, although a great deal was burned. The house itself, which was a wooden structure and had stood for probably half a century, was burned to the ground. Fortunately a slight change in the wind just as the roof was about to collapse saved the barn from destruction. Mr. Wright feels his loss keenly as there was no insurance.

Mr. Wright's grandson, who had his hand amputated by a straw cutter the day before and was taken to his grandfather's, after he had been attended to by a physician, was one of the occupants of the house when the fire occurred. The little boy's father, Mr. W. G. Wright, fortunately was there also, having been persuaded to remain over night instead of returning to his home in Tyendinaga as he had intended. The latter on his arrival at Tweed the day before had telephoned Mrs. Wright to come to his father's to remain with the little boy, and she too was in the house when the fire occurred as well as the young man who accompanied her. With this extra help at hand Mr. and Mrs. Wright, sr., were able to save a great deal more of the contents than they otherwise would.

"GOOD GROWING WEATHER."

When the New Scalp Antiseptic is Used.

A good head of hair is as much a "crown of glroy," for man as it is for woman, notwithstanding all the poetry on the subject applied to the female sex exclusively. In the season when flies bite, the bald-headed man can sympathize with the Egyptians who were so sorely plagued on account of the children of Israel. Why not try Newbro's Herpicide? Others have been benefited and are loud in its praise. It cleanses the scalp, kills the germ at the root of the hair and by keeping the scalp sweet, pure and wholesome, the hair is bound to grow as nature intended, regardless of the temperature. Try it and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

Permits Only For Qualified Teachers

Toronto, Jan. 11.—At a meeting of the Windsor and Walkerville Teachers' Association, held at the former place, a resolution in regard to the changes in the educational regulations was passed, and a copy ordered to be forwarded to the Minister of Education and to the secretaries of all the teachers' associations throughout the Province.

The resolution endorses the changes and commends the Minister and his colleagues of the Cabinet for adopting them. It then proceeds to protest against the statement in the annual report of the Minister that there is a scarcity of teachers.

"There may be," the resolution says, "a scarcity of one-dollar-a-day teachers," but there are thousands of capable and qualified persons in the province who have been driven into other callings by the low salaries of the teaching profession, and who would return to it for an adequate remuneration. In view of that fact, it is unfair to the parents of the children and to the teaching profession to grant permits to those who are not qualified.

The department in granting such permits, the resolution proceeds, have broken faith with those who, believing in the sincerity of the regulations, have complied with them.

"A person not legally qualified," it concludes, "has no more right to practice teaching than to practice medicine."

Former Belleville Man Sold Some Valuable Canines.

Toronto Telegram: It was Mr. Untermeyer who paid Mr. H. B. Hungerford, now of Chicago, but late of Belleville, Ont., $1,000 for 'Mountaineer Magistrate,' before he was twelve years old. Mr. Hungerford has now sold the dog's little brother for nearly as high a figure to the Glen Tana kennels, in Spokane, Washington. This is another illustration of the fact that buyers are beginning to appreciate merit in a dog, no matter where he is bred.

The American Stockkeeper commenting upon the above sale, says: "It is interesting to remark that within the last six months three American-breds have been sold for $1,000 or thereabouts. The famous fox-terrier, Warren Blue Blood, was the first to tip the beam, then Magistrate, and then the brother Marmion. As Charlie Lyndon is a Canuck, and Mr. Hungerford is also a son of the Dominion, it looks very much as if Mr. Hungerford's remark that "the Canuckians are fit" is true. Still there is a saving grace that all three animals were bred on United States soil and from parents that had no connection with Canada." The "saving grace," however, is lessened by the fact that the sire of Warren Blue Blood was Norfolk Dark Blue, that first saw the light of day at Mr. George Gooderham's kennels at Scarboro.

FISHERMEN.

There Are Two Classes, the Genuine and the Pretenders.

It has sometimes been said that fishermen cannot be manufactured. This is true to the extent that nothing can supply the lack of certain inherent, constitutional and inborn qualities or traits which are absolutely necessary to a fisherman's makeup. Of course there are many who call themselves fishermen and who insist upon their membership in the fraternity who have not in their veins a drop of legitimate fisherman blood. Their self asserted relationship is nevertheless sometimes seized upon by malicious or ignorant critics as permitting the assumption that the weaknesses and sins of these pretenders are the weaknesses and sins of genuine fishermen. But in truth these pretenders are only interlopers who have learned a little fish language, who love to fish only "when they bite," who whine at bad luck, who betray incredulity when they hear a rousing fish story and who do or leave undone many other things fatal to good and regular standing. They are like certain whites called squaw men who hang about Indian reservations and gain certain advantages in the tribes by marrying full blooded Indian women. Surely no just person would for a moment suppose that genuine Indians could be treated fairly by measuring them according to a squaw man standard. Neither can genuine fishermen be fairly treated by judging them according to the standards presented by squaw fishermen.—From "Fishing and Shooting Sketches," by Grover Cleveland.

FORCE OF WATER.

The Great Power That Is Exerted by a Six Inch Stream.

The effect of the hydraulic motor, which is now used for the purpose of removing masses of earth, well nigh passes belief. A stream of water issuing from a pipe six inches in diameter, with a fall behind it of 375 feet, will carry away a solid rock weighing a ton or more to a distance of fifty or a hundred feet. The velocity of the stream is terrific, and the column of water projected is so solid that if a crowbar or other heavy object be thrust against it the impinging object will be hurled a considerable distance. By this stream of water a man would be instantly killed if he came in contact with it even at a distance of a couple of hundred feet. At 200 feet from the nozzle a six inch stream, with a 375 foot fall, projected momentarily against the trunk of a tree will in a second denude it of the heaviest bark as cleanly as if it had been cut with an ax. Whenever such a stream is turned against a bank it cuts and burrows it in every direction, hollowing out great caves and causing tons of earth to melt and fall and be washed away in the sluices.

The Eye of a Child.

Who can explain or fathom the wondrous instinct of the child? Lying in the arms of its nurse, in its carriage or elsewhere, its large, round, wondering eyes roam over a sea of faces till suddenly its features break into a sweet smile, a baby laugh dances in its eyes, perhaps the tiny hands are extended, and the little body gives a bound as though it would throw itself through space. What has happened? It has recognized a friend, nothing more and no less. It makes no mistake. Wiser, perchance, in that moment of inexperienced helplessness than it will be years afterward, when the world and its inmates have been studied in the light of instruction and experience, its love offering is seldom if ever mistakenly presented. By what power is this child love directed? By what subtle influence does it see and know what in after years it may strive in vain to discern?

Carlyle and the Ax.

Carlyle as a schoolmaster was a terror to evildoers. Even the biggest and boldest boys wilted when he growled out "dunce" or "blockhead." He did not thrash often, as his scowl was enough to hush a whole school, but when he did thrash he meant business. One day a joiner passing along the road heard the most piteous howls and cries for mercy and help coming from the schoolhouse. Rushing in and handing his ax to Carlyle, he exclaimed:

"Jist doo't ootricht, mon, and ne mince maiters."

Ingratitude.

"Were you ever really glad to hang a man?"

"Only once," answered the sheriff. "I had prepared him a hearty breakfast of steak, eggs, potatoes, waffles and coffee."

"Yes?"

"And the infernal ingrate demanded stewed oats instead."

It is well for one to know more than he says.—Plautus.

BE YOUR OWN WIRELESS

PHONES WITHOUT WIRES AND THE END OF OCEAN CABLES.

Prof. Ayrton's Prophecy Not Yet Come True, But Some Progress Has Been Made—Valdemar Poulsen, of Copenhagen, Has Produced Vibrations With Simple Apparatus—Takes Scientific World By Storm.

"There's no doubt the day will come, maybe when you and I are forgotten, when copper wires, gutta percha coverings and iron sheathings will be relegated to the Museum of Antiquities. Then, when a person wants to telegraph to a friend he knows not where, he will call in an electro magnetic voice which will be heard loud by him who has the electro magnetic ear, but will be silent to everyone else. He will call:—'Where are you?' and the reply will come:—'I'm at the bottom of the coal mine,' or 'Crossing the Andes,' or, 'In the middle of the Pacific'; or perhaps no reply will come at all, and he may then conclude the friend is dead."

Thus spake Professor Ayrton, of London, soon after Guglielmo Marconi had demonstrated that wireless telegraphy was more than a laboratory experiment, and the prophecy was widely circulated by ardent supporters of the new system of telegraphy. To be sure, Marconi had at this time been able to communicate telegraphic clicks (not speech) over a distance of only two miles. However, this achievement was such a long step in advance that many otherwise sober minded, practical electricians were carried away by their enthusiasm into the rashest of statements. However, as Professor Ayrton set no date for the fulfilment of his prophecy, it may yet come true.

The New Poulsen System.

Indeed, authentic reports have just come from Copenhagen that the eminent Danish genius, Valdemar Poulsen, who recently invented the telegraphone, or magnetic phonograph, has succeeded in producing persistent and practically continuous vibrations of the ether with a very simple apparatus.

Several years ago it was discovered that if an arc light of the ordinary kind were connected up with certain coils and plates (the office of which it would be difficult to explain in nontechnical language) the arc would vibrate so rapidly as to produce a singing noise. This same arrangement Poulsen uses, but he has found that by enveloping the arc in hydrogen gas it will vibrate far more rapidly than the highest audible sound. This apparatus he uses to keep the electric charge bouncing up and down the antennae. By this means the Danish inventor says he has obtained almost perfect attunement. At one time he received messages simultaneously without the slightest interference on two receiving instruments, placed side by side, one of which was tuned to respond to Hertzian waves 660 yards long and the other to waves 653 yards long. Poulsen claims that his apparatus is capable of producing waves ranging all the way from 300 to 3,000 yards in length, from which it is inferred that nearly four hundred different stations could be operated at the same time without disturbing one another. The new system has been successfully used between Copenhagen and Newcastle on Tyne, England, a distance of nearly five hundred miles, and there seems to be no apparent reason why the same results should not attend experiments over far greater distances, in which case a new chapter will have been opened in the history of wireless telegraphy.

Takes Scientific World By Storm.

The Poulsen system of wireless telegraphy has taken the scientific world by storm. Lord Armstrong assured the London Daily Mirror that in less than twelve months the new system will be in active competition with ordinary telegraphy.

"This system will revolutionize the world's telegraphy," he said, and emphatically asserted that ordinary telegraphy would become a thing of the past in a very short time.

"Within twelve months we shall see a great chance when our system is in proper working order.

"I cannot say what immediate progress will be made in Transatlantic telegraph, but it is certain that cables in the near future will be entirely superseded.

"Another marvel of the system is being brought to perfection will be the wireless telephone. It will entirely oust the present system when it comes upon the market, but as all the details are now being worked out by Mr. Poulsen and his clever helpers, little can be said about it at present.

Men of Genius.

"Personally I think the public will benefit greatly by the greater facilities afforded by the new system. They will be able to send messages much cheaper than by the present method, because the cost of cables and wire installations will be reduced very considerably."

Lord Armstrong regards the inventor of this system as a man of genius, who had secured the majority of the best brains to help him in his researches.

There is Peterson, the greatest mathematician in Denmark; Drs. Rosenthal and Seipt, in Germany; and the highest scientific authorities in this country.

Already an installation is working between Cullercoats (Northumberland) and Copenhagen, and between Hunstanton and Skegness.

The Government have taken it up keenly in connection with the postoffice system, and it has been brought to the notice of the Admiralty.

So that, when the new system comes in, and telegrams are sent for something like 2d. each, the art of letter-writing will fall into complete decay—we shall make appointments, give orders to the butcher, and do everything else of the kind, all by wireless telegrams.

The Postmaster-General has a staff of nearly 180,000 persons under him, or more than the standing British army.

THE MAKERS.

(Life.)

O! the baker's making bread and the tailor's making clothes,
And the gardener's making desert spots to blossom like the rose,
The preacher's making sermons on
Adam and the fall,
The banker's making money — he's the silliest of all.
The poet's making poems, but I'm doing better still—
For I'm making love to Eloise who dwells upon the hill.

The silly folks are passing by; they're going up and down,
Their heads and tongues are wagging fast, their clamor fills the town.
"Why don't you make a living now?
Why don't you make a fame?"
O! silly folks, to think that you could e'er be known to fame!
You'll lie forgotten while my name will be remembered still
For making love to Eloise who dwells upon the hill.

The silly folks are hurrying by—the baker, the tailor man,
The gard'ner who rakes the earth and fills the watering can,
The poet who was once so wise—but now he's getting old—
Ah! poor old foolish man who's writing rhymes for gold!
You're making wondrous things, no doubt, but I am wiser still,
For I'm making love to Eloise who
dwells upon the hill.

A stirring address was delivered by Mr. T. I. Thomson, ex-M.P., in the West the other day, and dealt with the entrenchment of the Laurier Government behind the most corrupt Administration the country had ever known. True.

* * *

Legislation in Australia is in the right direction. "A Licensing Bill just passed by the Victoria Legislature, provides for raising a compensation fund by an assessment of 3 per cent. on the cost of all liquors purchased by holders of licenses, the owners paying two-thirds and the hotelkeepers one-third. The measure also provides for the regulation of clubs, and prohibits the employment of barmaids under the age of 21, present employees excepted."

* * *

The French Government does not appear to be satisfied with abolishing Church and State and setting the authority of the Pope at defiance, but seems to aim at doing away with the recognition of a deity also. Instead of 'God Protect France," French coins are hereafter to bear the device, "Liberte, Fraternite, Egalite." As far as the coin goes one phrase is as effective as the other. The significance is in the fact that one was given up for the other.

* * *

Here is another hit at the church: Ordained priests as well as seminarists studying for the service of the Catholic Church are being compelled to join the French army in connection with the conscription now going on. The situation is one to make more than Catholics wonder. It looks as if the French people had put their religion in a position quite secondary to their politics and were determined to leave it there.

* * *

Edmund Storie, secretary of the Central Emigration Board of London, who is in St. John, N.B., has telegraphed Sir Wilfrid Laurier that if 50,000 navvies are needed on Canadian railways the board can provide selected British navvies if a rate of £5 is made from Liverpool to the place where the work is in progress, thus shutting out aliens such as Galicians, Hindoos, etc. Surely this offer should be accepted without a moment's delay. Most of these 50,000 men would become permanent settlers.

Another editor is trouble. Joseph U. Begin, editor and proprietor of the French religious weekly, La Croix published in Montreal, has been arrested at the instance of Mr. L. J. Tarte, manager of La Patrie Publishing Co., and arraigned before Judge Choquet in the Police Court.

* * *

This unfortunate Begin is charged with having been publishing a series of articles against the attitude taken by La Patrie on various matters, viz., that La Patrie attributed the separation of the Church and State in France to the Pope's own rashness; that La Patrie was the organ of Free Masonry, and had published immoral serials of a dangerous character, and finally, that La Patrie was subsidized by powerful corporations, in return for which the paper had agreed to be neutral on religious questions. Mr. Tarte claims that the issues of La Croix since November last contain no less than twenty libellous statements against the paper which he represents. This was too much for young Tarte—to be called the organ of Free Masonry was, no doubt, to him, an unpardonable offence.

The Darwinites can now rejoice. An interesting discovery, says a telegram from Berlin, of the 11th inst., has been made by the well-known Heidelberg scientist, Professor Klaatsch, who is now pursuing anthropological studies in Australia.

* * *

Writing in the Poelner Zeitung, the professor says that while examining some Australasian natives arrested for killing a white man in Port Arthur he found that one of the men had feet and hands of exactly the same shape and appearance as those of monkeys. The natives, on his enquiries, stated that in the hitherto unexplored regions between the Rivers Daly and Victoria numerous people have similar hands and feet, and otherwise bear a strong resemblance to large monkeys. This is the first time that these characteristics have been discovered in a human being.

* * *

Prof. Klaatsch is now starting for the region where these natives are to be found, in order to verify the above statement. The discovery has awakened great interest in the German scientific world, as it is a striking testimony in favor of the Darwinian theory of the missing link.

* * *

The alleged discoveries have often in the past, appeared in public journals, but have never yet materialized.

HIT CHILDREN WITH HATCHET.

Woodstock Woman's Strange Assault —Mind Will Be Examined.

Woodstock, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Elmira Bates, a washerwoman, was in the police court yesterday morning charged with assaulting with intent to kill her two children, Hattie and William, both in their teens.

According to the story, told by the children, the mother made an attempt upon their lives early Sunday morning. The mother arose and securing a hatchet struck her sleeping daughter on the head. The girl was not rendered unconscious, and when she taxed her mother with striking her the mother denied it, although she had the hatchet in her hand. The girl went into another room and found her brother unconscious with a gash on the head.

In the morning a doctor was called in and dressed the wounds of both. Yesterday the doctor swore that the blows were inflicted, probably by a hatchet, and the blows came very near being sufficient to cause death. The children declared they were unable to say what caused the mother to make the attempt upon their lives.

Mrs. Bates was remanded to jail for examination as to her sanity. The daughter is employed at the Hotel Oxford.

Great crises affect people differently. With some the hair turns white; with others emotion expresses itself in inconsequent speech. CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—Cattle and Hogs Lower at Chicago.

London, Jan. 14.—Liverpool and London cables are higher at 10½c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9c to 9¼c per lb.

TORONTO JUNCTION LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Jan. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 119 carloads, composed of 2541 cattle, 78 hogs, 201 sheep and 21 calves. The quality of fat cattle was fair to medium.

Exporters.

Prices ranged from $4.75 to $5.20, but not many at the latter price, the bulk going at $4.85 to $5.10 per cwt.; bulls, $3.65 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Picked lots of prime, ripe cattle, which were scarce, sold at $4.50 to $4.75; fair to good loads at $4.10 to $4.40; common, mixed loads, $3.75 to $4; cows at $3 to $3.85; rough and canners, $1 to $2.75 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

None offered, altho a few of good quality would find a ready market.

Milch Cows.

A few milkers and springers sold at $40 to $45 each.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade in sheep and lambs was brisk, with prices higher. Export ewes, $4.75 to $5 per cwt.; rams and culls at $3 to $4 per cwt.; lambs at $6 to $7 per cwt.

Hogs.

Not many on sale, with prices still higher. H. P. Kennedy reports selects at $6.90 and lights and fats at $6.65 per cwt., fed and watered basis.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Cables from Liverpool and London on Canadian cattle were firmer at 11½c to 12c. Exports last week from Portland and St. John were 1330 cattle and 242 sheep. Demand for ocean freight space is very limited, which is offering freely at 25s to Liverpool, 30s to London, 35s to Glasgow, and 25s to Manchester. Receipts to-day were 1300 cattle, 25 milch cows, 50 calves, 200 sheep and lambs and 1400 hogs.

There continues to be a very strong undertone to the market for hogs, and prices have scored a further advance of 15c to 25c per 100 lbs. This is due to the fact that supplies coming forward are not sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the trade, and in consequence the competition between buyers for what stock is arising is very keen, and sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars. European advices on Canadian bacon continue strong, and cables from Liverpool, London and Bristol note an advance of 1s to 2s, but they will have to go still higher in order to let shippers out with any margin at the present cost of hogs here.

The butchers were out strong, and trade was good, with prices about the same as on last week's markets. Prime beeves sold at 4¾c to 5¼c per lb.; pretty good cattle at 3¾c to 4½c, and the common stock at 2¼c to 3½c. Milch cows sold at from $30 to $60 each. Three very fine calves were sold for $10, and several other good veals sold at from $8 to $15 each or 5c to 5½c per lb. The young veals sold at 4c per lb. Sheep sold at 4c to 4½c, and lambs at 5¼c to 6c per lb.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 5250 head; active and steady to 10c lower; prime steers, $5.50 to $6; shipping, $5 to $5.50; butchers', $4.40 to $5.30; heifers, $3.25 to $5; cows, $3 to $4.50; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; stockers and feeders, $2.75 to $4.25; stock heifers, $2.50 to $3; fresh cows and springers, steady to strong, $20 to $50.

Veals—Receipts, 1200 head; active and 25c lower, $4.25 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 19,000 head; fairly active; pigs, steady, others 10c lower; heavy, $6.65 to $6.70; mixed and yorkers, $6.70 to $6.75; pigs, $6.90 to $7; roughs, $5.90 to $6; stags, $4.25 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 27,000 head; active; sheep, steady; lambs, 25c lower; lambs, $5 to $7.90; yearlings, $6.00 to $6.75; wethers, $5.50 to $5.75; ewes, $4.75 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $3 to $5.50.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Jan. 14.—Beeves—Receipts, 4636; steers, slow and 10c lower; bulls, steady; cows, steady to 20c lower; medium and good cows, 10c to 20c off; steers, $4.50 to $5.90; bulls, $3.40 to $4.20; cows, $1.65 to $3.90; fat heifers, $5.25. Exports tomorrow, 100 cattle.

Calves—Receipts, 1792; veals steady; barnyard calves, firm; western calves, 25c lower; veals, $5.50 to $10; culls, $4 to $5; barnyard calves, $3.75 to $4.12½; westerns, $3.75 to $4; Indiana calves, $1.65.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,067; sheep, dull and easier; lambs, slow; top grades, 15c to 25c lower; others, 25c to 40c lower; sheep, $3.50 to $5.30; culls, $3; lambs, $6.50 to $8.25; culls, $5 to $6.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,293; hogs, steady; pigs, firm; whole range, $6.90 to $7.15.

No man finds salvation until he finds himself.

AT FIRST SIGHT

By EDITH M. DOANE

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

To begin with, she was easily the prettiest girl at Lake Wabconset inn.

Then, again, she was Mrs. Baker's niece, and Jimmy Marshall had known Mrs. Baker since he was a little boy, for she and his mother were old friends. So it became the natural thing for him to row with her and dance with her and take her on long drives in his touring car; not that he particularly admired her, he assured himself, but he liked to row and dance and motor, and she was company. Besides, she was a nice enough little thing, and it was less trouble to ask her than to hunt up another girl; then, too, it probably pleased Mrs. Baker to have him pay her niece some little attention.

So, considering that all girls bored him and he had no inclination to pay serious attentions to any of them, it is not to be wondered at that he was first amused, then annoyed, when Mrs. Baker, who was a simple, lovable soul, cornered him on the wide porch one morning and asked him if he were in love with Priscilla.

"Certainly not," he answered decidedly. "She's a mighty nice girl, and of course I like her immensely, but as far as being in love with her is concerned I most certainly am not."

He glanced at Mrs. Baker's plump, troubled features. "Whatever put such an idea in your head?" he demanded. "Surely there has been nothing in my actions"—

"No, I suppose not—that is, as young people act nowadays. And of course I don't mean to meddle—but I couldn't help thinking"—

"Don't think any more," he said gayly, "for such an idea has never entered my head—nor Priscilla's either."

"No, I suppose not," returned Mrs. Baker doubtfully. There was a perplexed frown on her usually placid face. He glanced at her sharply. Was it possible that Priscilla attached more importance to their friendship than he did? That was the worst of girls—they were always expecting a fellow to fall in love with them. Still, Priscilla hadn't seemed that kind. Perhaps she had grown to care for him before she realized it. She couldn't help it, of course, poor little girl! She must never know that he suspected her feelings. It would be hard enough for her when she found how indifferent he was without that. And with a troubled face and hands thrust deep in the pockets of his flannels Jimmy Marshall betook himself to the lake.

"SHALL WE TRY TENNIS OR THE CANOE THIS MORNING?"

Mrs. Baker also was troubled. In the workings of her simple mind two and two made four. Jimmy had devoted himself unceasingly to Priscilla. Why should he have done so unless he were in love with her? Besides, young men were always in love with Priscilla. He was proud and would naturally deny it—dear boy! She would speak to Priscilla. Jimmy was the son of her old friend, and Priscilla should not flirt with him so outrageously.

So it was that Priscilla, stopping to speak to her en route to the lake, found her distinctly aggrieved.

"Priscilla," she began, with as near an approach to dignified severity as her 200 pounds would allow, "I desire you to stop flirting with Jimmy Marshall."

"Nonsense!" returned Priscilla.

"You needn't speak to me like that, Priscilla. He is entirely too nice a fellow for you to treat as you do unless—of course if you like him it's different," Mrs. Baker ended mysteriously.

"I suppose I like him well enough," returned Priscilla carelessly. "I never thought much about it. Why, what's the matter?"

"He was just telling me—I don't know that I should repeat it to you," said Mrs. Baker conscientiously.

"Tell me. What did he say?" Priscilla was becoming interested.

"Well, I don't know that he said it in so many words; but, Priscilla, he is in love with you."

"In love with me!" gasped Priscilla, divided between gratification and dismay.

"Yes, and it's too bad," continued Mrs. Baker, with rising indignation. "Really, Priscilla, it's a shame. It will break his heart, and his mother will blame me, and it's dreadful."

"I don't see what I have done," returned Priscilla crossly. It was a pity that a girl couldn't be decently polite to a man without his going and falling in love with her, spoiling everything! Of course everybody would blame her, she reflected in annoyance as she continued her interrupted way to the lake.

Jimmy Marshall saw her coming and went up the path to meet her. With troubled mind he had thought the matter over and decided it must be broken off at once; not so suddenly as to arouse her suspicions, of course, but gently. He would make a casual remark or so about business, then in a couple of days pretend a sudden business call and leave. Of course she would feel terrible, but it would be easier for her in the end. Dear little girl! He was surprised at the wave of tenderness that swept over him.

"Shall we try tennis or the canoe this morning?" In spite of himself his voice sounded forced and unnatural.

"Whichever you prefer. Suppose we say tennis," returned Priscilla, trying to meet his eyes carelessly. Then to her dismay she blushed scarlet while he grew unaccountably red.

How plainly he showed it. How blind she had been, thought Priscilla contritely.

How heartless in him to want to leave her, thought Jimmy, not daring to look at the lovely flushed face.

Jimmy looked very grave during the next few days. It was no little thing to have blighted a young girl's affections, even unconsciously, and when she was such a dainty little thing as Priscilla—so sweet, so sensible, so far above the average in every way—it became a pretty grave proposition. Indeed, he sometimes wondered if he were not in honor bound to marry her anyway.

In the meantime Priscilla, under Mrs. Baker's accusing eye, wilted perceptibly. Probably everybody thought she was glad she had wrought so much mischief. Well, she wasn't. She never dreamed he would take it so to heart. And he was such a big, lovable fellow. Mrs. Baker was right. He was too good to be treated so shabbily.

Jimmy had marshaled his casual remarks about business through two days of painstaking effort and arranged his departure for the third. In order to avoid hurting Priscilla's feelings he asked her to go for a farewell ride on the lake. He would be very friendly, he resolved, and gentle, but he must contrive to let her see that this was the end.

It was while he was wondering just how he should manage it that the accident happened.

They had almost reached the wooded shore opposite when there was a quiver of the boat—a startled cry from Priscilla—an overturned canoe drifting idly on the face of the lake.

"Don't be frightened! We're near shore!" cried Jimmy, shaking the water from his eyes and striking out in her direction. Somehow they reached the opposite bank, he holding her close, while she clung to him half wildly for protection.

"I—I was so frightened!" she said in a wabbly, half hysterical voice, shivering in his arms.

Suddenly at touch of her a strange, sweet madness seized him, and he covered her face with kisses, holding her tight, while she, bewildered by a new, shy happiness, lay passive in his arms.

It was some months later that a matron said in Mrs. Baker's hearing, "Jimmy Marshall and his wife seem desperately in love with each other."

"Yes," responded that lady placidly, "it was a case of love at first sight. I know of what I speak, because I was with them when they met. Indeed, I may say that I saw it from the first," she added, with bland conviction.

Power of Imagination.

It is conceded by scientists that imagination has much power as a curative agent. A concrete example occurred in the experience of Sir Humphry Davy. A man went to him suffering from paralysis to be treated by electricity. When the patient had seated himself Davy, as a preliminary, placed a small glass thermometer beneath his tongue to take his temperature. The sick man thought that this was the instrument for curing him and declared that he felt it run through all his system. Davy, curious to see what lasting effect the imagination would exert, did not undeceive the man, but sent him away, telling him to return daily to have the treatment repeated. The man did as he was told and returned daily to sit in a chair with the end of a little thermometer tucked beneath his tongue. In a few days the paralysis was completely cured by the patient's own imagination.

A Floating Furnace.

Many a mysterious disappearance at sea is believed to have been caused by fire in the coal bunkers, the discovery coming too late to admit of the fire being mastered. For instance, fire broke out on the Ada Iredale, a vessel engaged in the China trade, which many years ago set sail from a Scottish port for San Francisco, carrying a cargo of coal. When the vessel was some 2,000 miles from the Marquesas islands, in the Pacific ocean, the cargo was found to be on fire. All efforts to extinguish the conflagration were fruitless, and the crew was driven to the boats. The ship, by this time a floating furnace, was left to its fate and drifted, still burning, a distance of 2,420 miles, to Tahiti. Finally taken in tow, she was convoyed safely into port, where for more than a year her cargo still smoldered.

Luck and a Woman

...By FRED MEERS...

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

"Close it up soon if you can," said the manager. "We have put some of our best men on the matter, but they can tell us nothing. If we do not manage to locate the cause of these robberies we might as well go out of business."

"I'll do what I can," promised Danvers, "but if Symes and Taylor have given up the case I don't see where I get off."

"Neither do I," admitted the manager frankly, "except that you seem to have fools' luck, and sometimes that is better than good detective instinct."

Danvers bowed at the doubtful compliment and took himself off. There might be something in that luck theory. Since going to work for the burglary insurance people he had more than once stumbled against a clew that developed into a conviction.

But this promised to be a harder case than usual, and after he had interviewed the watchmen who were on the night job and the men who had been working on the case it seemed hopeless.

THE PAIR RETURNED, PUSHING BEFORE THEM A WHEELBARROW.

The burglary insurance included the services of a night watchman and a burglar alarm system. Nothing seemed to be the matter with either of these, and yet the block on Seaton place had been repeatedly robbed.

Of late a special patrolman had been assigned to the block, and all night long he had tramped from one end of the short street to the other. Seaton place was only a block long, a fashionable residence block that offered rich returns to the men who had systematically looted the houses.

None had seen them go in or out, though strict watch had been kept. Once they had even placed a man in each back yard to make certain that no one could enter through the rear, and yet during that week of special precaution three of the houses had been robbed.

The owners were of the ultra English set, who seldom came to town from their country places until after the opera season set in, and already the company stood to lose the better part of its capital in paying off its losses.

Danvers, looking about for a coign of vantage, hit upon a theatrical boarding house at the rear of the block. Here he obtained a rear room, and for several nights he kept vigil. The moon was in its last quarter, and it was not always easy to keep watch, but he sat peering into the dusk, looking to see some one jump the line of fences and attack the houses from the rear. That entrance was effected from the rear he was certain, because the watch from the front was too strict to be evaded.

It was the fifth night that, happening to look up, he perceived a shadow crossing the sky line of the houses. He rubbed his eyes that were drooping with sleep, but he still saw the shadow advancing toward the opposite roof.

"They can't have a flying machine," he muttered to himself. "If they have it's no wonder the boys couldn't locate them. I guess I'll go up on the roof and have a better look."

He stole out of the room and up the stairs to the roof. The trap was left open in pleasant weather to ventilate the stuffy halls, and as he climbed softly through the scuttle hole he almost lost his balance.

Standing on the edge of the roof was a second man, and even as Danvers looked he stepped out over the edge of the roof and glided toward the opposite side.

There was a third figure, a woman's, and Danvers waited a moment to see if she, too, would essay walking upon the air, but she made no effort to follow her companion's example, and at last the detective slipped through the opening and crept softly behind her.

With a bound he was upon her and had clapped his hand over her mouth before she could make outcry. Even in the dim light he could recognize her as one of a trio of acrobats he had noticed at the tables. More than once he had sought to attract her attention, for she was a remarkably pretty girl, but the two men with her resented even a look and kept such close guard over her that there had been no chance to make her acquaintance.

"What are you up to?" he demanded roughly. "I am a detective."

"They thought you were," she gasped as he raised his hand to permit her to reply. "Don't let them catch me, will you? They have gone to rob the houses."

"But how?" he asked curiously. "They seem to walk on air."

"They used to be wire walkers," she explained, "but they tried tumbling afterward. They are walking on the telegraph wires."

"They won't hold up," he scoffed.

"Yes, they will," she persisted. "Over here they have fastened them, and they are strong on the other side. It's easier to walk on a slack wire than on a tight one, you know. This gives just the right sag."

"But how do they bring the stuff back?" he persisted.

"Wait and you will see," she cautioned.

Danvers slipped behind a chimney, and presently the pair returned, pushing before them a wheelbarrow with a grooved wheel. One of them carried a Japanese umbrella painted black, with which he preserved their balance while the other pushed. They dumped their load on the roof and turned back. When they had disappeared down one of the scuttles on the other side Danvers stepped out again.

"How long have you been with these men?" he demanded. "You don't look like their sort."

"They were with a circus," she explained. "I ran away with Jim; that's the smaller one. He watches me so that I do not have a chance to get away from him."

"Is this a regular trick?" he demanded. She shook her head.

"Business is bad this year. The boys can't get work. They were fooling one night on the roof and found that the wire was strong enough to bear them. They used to carry me in the wheelbarrow in the show, and they got the idea of robbing the houses. They cut the alarm wire and can come and go as they please. When the men were watching they walked right over their heads."

"I'd like to get after them," he said. "I could drive them down to the street where the watchman is."

"If you won't tell I'll take you," she volunteered. "Don't be afraid. I can do it."

She caught up another parasol from the roof and spread it. "Ride pickaback," she commanded.

Danvers put his arms about her shoulders and raised his feet clear. Slowly she adjusted her weight to the wire and began to make her way across. Somewhere he had read that it would not do to look down, so he shut his eyes and hung on.

Once or twice the girl seemed to lose her balance and for a moment worked the parasol violently while she regained it. Then she pressed on again, and at last, with a sigh, she stepped off the wire, and Danvers opened his eyes.

They were on the farther side, and just beyond was the open scuttle.

"Let me go back," pleaded the girl. "They must not know that I helped you or they would kill me when you got out. You must never tell how you made the trip. Pretend that you saw them and climbed a fire escape. I am going to be gone by the time you get back to the house."

"But how can I reward you?" he questioned.

She threw a glance at h[illegible]

"I can get a divorce if [illegible] is convicted. My freedom is a r[illegible] reward."

She kissed her hand to him in imitation of the circus ring, and he watched with admiration as her lithe figure sped across the open. Then he dropped through the scuttle.

"Bull luck, I suppose," laughed the manager when Danvers reported the next morning.

"Just that," assented Danvers, "bull luck—and a woman."

But he would not explain the latter part, and the manager imagined it to be the girl he married on the strength of his increased pay.

The First Photography.

It was in 1842 that John Draper, then a professor in the University of New York, made the first portrait photograph. The subject was Elizabeth Draper, his sister. Professor Draper had the idea that in order to produce distinct facial outlines in photography it would be necessary to cover the countenance of the person photographed with flour. This seems a strange notion now, and it proved not to be a good one then, for all of Professor Draper's early attempts were failures. Finally he left off the flour and then was quite successful. This so delighted him that he sent the picture to Sir William Herschel, the eminent English astronomer. Sir William was in turn delighted and made known Professor Draper's success to the scientific men of Europe. He also sent Professor Draper a letter of acknowledgment and congratulation, which has been carefully preserved in the archives of the Draper family.

Testing Eggs For Freshness.

Dissolve two ounces of salt in a pint of water and then place the egg to be tested in this liquid. A new laid egg will at once sink to the bottom; an egg three days old will remain suspended about midway, and an egg that is five days old or more will float on the top of the solution. The vacuum in the shell is the explanation of the varying actions of the egg. The larger it becomes owing to the evaporation of the contents through the shell the more easily the egg floats.

FORGAVE MRS. SIDDONS.

She Did Not, According to Her Father, Marry an Actor.

Mrs. Siddons, the actress, was born in 1755 at the Shoulder of Mutton inn, Brecon, south Wales, of parents connected with the theater, her father Roger Kemble, being a strolling manager. The child Sarah was reared in a theatrical atmosphere, and at ten she was playing Ariel.

As she grew up she became very beautiful and had many admirers, among whom was Henry Siddons, a young actor in her father's company, who had little difficulty in winning the girl's heart. Mr. and Mrs. Kemble had made up their minds that Sarah should not marry in the profession, in consequence of which they strenuously opposed the marriage, and young Siddons in a fit of retaliatory humor composed a song detailing their opposition and his trials, which brought about his speedy dismissal from the company. Sarah left the company, too, and hired out as lady's maid in Warwickshire for two years.

During this time the lovers carried on a lively correspondence and finally, gaining the reluctant consent of the Kembles, were married at Trinity church, Coventry, in 1773, when Sarah was eighteen.

It is said that Mr. Kemble told her if she ever married an actor it would make him discard her forever. After her marriage he said, "I may forgive you without breaking my word, for you have certainly not married 'an actor,' whatever the gentleman himself may think is his vocation." This is on authority of Lady Eleanor Butler, who knew the persons.

JAPANESE SAINTS.

The One Most Beloved by the People Is Binzuru.

Among the many Buddhist-Shinto saints, whose quaint effigies set up in every conceivable nook and corner of Japan make it a "country of graven images," one of the most impressive and interesting is the pathetic person called Binzuru. He was once upon a time a member of that strange company of Buddhist disciples known as the "Sixteen Rakkan." But one day he fell from grace by remarking upon the attractions of a woman, and he was expelled from the society of chaste brethren. The great Buddha gave him, in return for all that his worldliness had cost him, power to heal human ills and to grant the prayers of childless women who longed for motherhood. But he was put outside the temples. He must henceforth sit without, in the midst of the passing throng, and submit himself to personal contact with all that was unclean and healthless. The simple hearted people love him, I think, above all saints. His wooden images in the temple porches are the strangest objects in all Japan. They give him soft cushions to sit upon, and he is always clothed in quaint little cotton stuff collars and mufflers in all sorts of soiled looking colors, and on his head his devotees usually keep a curious little cotton cap.—Eleanor Franklin in Leslie's Weekly.

The Young Member.

Grantley Berkeley tells in his "Life and Recollections" how a member for Ludlow in the last parliament of William IV. "tried to make a maiden speech, and, rising in his place, with a very bald head, known, too, as he was to everybody as one of the oldest stagers in all the ways of the world, he began, with great affectation of inexperience and with an exceedingly mild voice, 'Mr. Speaker, I am but a young member.' On hearing this assertion from so well known and crafty a man, possessing so venerable a pate, the entire house roared with laughter. Twice he stopped, and three times he commenced with these words, but it was useless. The house would not listen, and he never to my knowledge essayed to speak again, or if he did the sight of his bald head set his audience in a roar."

A Stupid Lady Bountiful.

I once showed an old lady much given to good works of the Lady Bountiful order how some proteges of hers who were constantly on the verge of starvation might be placed in possession of a small but regular and sufficient income. "My dear," she said, "I don't think it is a good plan. They would get too independent. I like them to come to me when they are in difficulties and ask for what they want."—"Rich and Poor," by Mrs. Bosanquet.

If You Wore Them Last Winter This Is No News to You—

"Klingsole" Made for Men and Women

People who wore "Daisy" Rubbers last winter will wear them again this winter, even without reading our ads. For no amount of talk about "Daisy" Rubbers tells so much as a season's wear of the rubbers themselves. The good service they give under the test of every day ruff-scuff hard usage, in all kinds of bad weather,—that's what shows the honesty that backs "Our Daisy" advertising. But even that test doesn't tell why there's double wear in every pair—though it proves there is. It's a simple matter of using toughened honest rubber in the right way, in a factory that's as modern as the idea of honest quality is ancient.

You'll hardly know you've got rubbers on when you wear the Klingsole,—they are so light in weight. But they will outwear common rubbers that are twice as heavy. Klingsole Rubbers don't heat the feet; they can't slip off until you want them off—and then a touch removes them. Made in the right toe shape for the shoes you wear

FARM AND FIRESIDE

Useful Hints Which Will be Appreciated by the Progressive Farmer and His Housekeeper.

AGRICULTURAL.

Ventilating the Cow Stable.

The stable should be made as tight as possible, ceiling it overhead and on the sides, constructing the walls of wood and not stone. A wooden wall with three to four dead air spaces is much cheaper than the average stone wall, and it is very much warmer and drier. The following is a good way to construct the walls: On the outside have 2x4 studding on which the clapboards are nailed. On the inside over them spread a layer of building paper. Then spike a 2x2 stud to each of the 2x4 uprights over the paper, and go over with another layer of paper. Then spike on another 2x2 stud, and another layer of paper and finish by ceiling inside with ship lap. Make the fresh air intakes by setting an 8x10 iron register in the clapboarding on the outside, down near the sill, and between the studding, which constitutes the air duct. Then at the top, even with the inside ceiling, cut out of the building paper walls an 8x10 passage to permit the air to come into the stable. Place an iron register in the ceiling wall. The register should be made to open or close, as necessary. For a herd of fifty or more there should be thirty registers on the inside and the same number on the outside.

The fresh air is constantly rising and flowing into the stables through the layer of warm air that rises and remains at the top of the stable rooms. This warm air cannot flow out of the registers and down because it is too light. In this way a constant supply of fresh air is introduced into the stable, then the warm air, which remains warm provided all the hay and silo chutes are closed when not being used. The tighter the stable is closed the better will this system of ventilation operate.

To take the foul air out, one or more air shafts must be constructed. For a herd of fifty animals it should no be less than three feet square, and lined with tin or zinc on the inside to make it air tight, so that the draught may be strong enough to take up the foul air, which is fifteen per cent. heavier than common air. The shaft should rise well above the ridge of the roof. A large iron register 2x2 feet should be set in at the bottom of the shaft even with the floor. At the top of the room another register, same size as the lower one, may be set into the shaft to let off the warm air if the temperature rises too high.

It is now out of the question to think of erecting a stable without providing a system with which to ventilate it, and so far as experience has gone the outlay for this system will be one of the most profitable of all the expenses incurred in constructing the stable.

Improving the Herd.

We will suppose a dairyman possesses a herd of, say, ten cows, that are each returning a profit, but only a small one. He gets an average of 200 pounds of butter annually, which is above the average of most herds, and with the skimmilk and manure he finds the business fairly profitable. But he finds that other dairymen are doing better than he is, through getting more butter from their cows, while not spending much more for feed.

He concludes that the weak spot is in his cows, and decides to improve his herd by breeding some cows that will be better than those he now has. He knows, however, that it will take some time to do this, yet in the end it is the surest way of getting what he wants. So he buys a first-rate dairy bull, or makes use of one possessed by his neighbor. The heifer calves are kept and raised, and when they come in milk he finds that a yield of over five thousand pounds of milk annually is possible, and that he can make an average of 250 pounds of butter, and that of higher quality. The additional 50 pounds is gained at the cost of a well-bred bull, and a very slight addition to the cost of feed. The cows that are returning a small profit, or barely paying the market price for the feed they consume, are soon replaced by those that will give an annual profit.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS.

Electricity Aids Plant Growth.

Prof. Guerini, a Belgian scientist, has given a number of lectures under government auspices at the Agricultural Institute at Genbloux and his views are startling to Canadians. Electricity passing through a plant from air to earth or vice versa decomposes carbonic acid gas in the chlorophyl, which is essential to plant growth. Soil chemicals are likewise decomposed by passing currents and nourishing elements are rents and nourishing elements are readily assimilated. Circulation of the sap is increased by electro capillary effect by which water and other nourishing materials are drawn up into the plant, tree or vine. In some of the experiments conducted abroad galvanized iron rods were set about a growing field of grain, vegetables or berries as distributers of current. The galvanized iron conductors were connected by wires with the source of current and the supply regulated by conditions of the atmosphere, the soil and amount of water in the ground. Field experiments in electrifying grain have shown as high as 85 per cent. increase in growth over grain not so treated. Other experiments frequently showed 45 and 55 per cent. increase for grain and 95 per cent. for raspberries. This is explained by saying that the accelerated digestive powers of the plants "require more food and drink."

Molasses As a Horse Feed.

On the basis of data gathered from a large number of Louisiana planters, an author states that molasses is widely used as a feeding stuff for plantation horses and mules, the average consumption on 42 plantations in the sugar belt being 9.5 pounds per head per day. The fact is also brought out that molasses is most successful as a feed when mixed with some absorbent material, such as ground unhusked corn.

Trees in Cold Storage.

Cold storage has become a permanently established feature of the nursery business. From his own investigations, and the results of experimental work by others, a recent writer concludes that the best results in such houses will be obtained if they are maintained at a uniform temperature of 28 degrees to 30 degrees. At this temperature very little ventilation will be necessary; the loss of vitality through drying out or shrivelling is slight; and there is a minimum tendency to mould and mildew. Packing material around the roots and spraying with water would be unnecessary.

From Cow to Consumer.

An enterprising milkman in a suburban district of England has hit upon a novel way of attracting trade. He and his assistants, armed with a milking stool, make the round of a populous neighborhood driving before them a herd of five or six cows. Arriving at a convenient spot they commence milking the cows, and sell the liquid straight to the amused and interested crowd which always gathers round them.

Profitable Bearing Age of Apples.

In a discussion at a Connecticut fruit meeting with regard to the age when an apple orchard becomes commercially profitable the period was placed at 8 to 10 years.

NOTES.

Feed well and be well fed.

So much of the present help is unskilled, that it would be a great boon to the untutored immigrant when he lands to have a short session at a model farm where he could be taught in a few days many things that he would otherwise require months to learn.

Wages will probably rise; but they cannot go much higher or farmers will have to abandon a portion of their land to grazing, milk fewer cows and do with less help.

Men work on a farm until they get a dollar or so ahead, then loaf until it is gone.

Potatoes which are damaged by rot or other causes may be fed to pigs with good results. The pig, so far as its relish for the potato is concerned, seems indifferent as to whether it is diseased or not, and experience shows that swine thrive well on potatoes showing considerable disease and without injury to the health of the animals. The best plan is to boil the potatoes and mix with corn meal.

A discovery which may be classed as important if true, is the new form of artificial albumen brought forward by a German chemist. It is claimed that this new product possesses the qualities of natural albumen, which is the nourishing principle of meat, eggs, milk, etc., and with its introduction may bring about a change in the present system of nourishing the human body. The producers of the present line of foods are not likely to go into a panic over a reported discovery of this kind, although a chemical achievement of this kind may some time be possible.

A suggestion from an authority that witch grass would help to renovate old pastures does not seem to be a very promising idea. Witch grass, while a very active plant in cultivated ground, does not thrive in hard soil, and one of the best ways to kill out a badly infested patch is to pasture it closely for a few years, during which period other grasses will gradually take the space, and on plowing the field again the witch grass will nearly all have disappeared. The witch grass is of no particular use in any location. When grown as a hay crop it makes a coarse hay and rapidly falls off in yield after the first year, while on plowing the land again the remaining roots of the witch-grass prove an endless nuisance.

FEEDING FOR EGGS.

Generally speaking, the feed value of food stuffs is not so well understood by the average poultry raisers and farmers as they should be for the largest profit. I have found that low-priced food stuffs, as a rule, are the most costly feed in the end.

Food stuffs to have a practical value must be sweet and clean, and be of a variety that will furnish the poultry just the nutriment required to develop whatever particular product having to digest a lot of waste material that they have no immediate use for. As the old saying goes, "It's just what you put into a thing as to what you take out." This saying is certainly true in the poultry industry, as hens are only capable of developing eggs or meat to that capacity in accordance with the material they have to work with. Nature has not given them the power of converting what they eat into any element different from the element the feed actually contains.

To illustrate the matter in a plain way, supposing that 160 hens were fed one bushel of corn, which is a fair day's ration for that number. The bushel of corn alone does not contain lime or protein enough to develop over thirty-two eggs, which would only be seventy-three eggs per hen in a year, but it contains fat-forming material enough for 320 hens for one day, or as much again as 160 hens should have for best results. Now as the whole food stuff must be digested before the egg-producing material is available for the development of the eggs, it is plain to be seen that the energy of the digestive organs when fed on a corn ration entirely is taxed to about double the capacity they should be, which means a loss to the raiser of no less than fifty cents per hen in a year.

A ration for the winter months that will be found very satisfactory is as follows: Morning feed, kaffir corn one part, oats nineteen parts, one quart to fifteen hens, fed in a deep litter. Noon feed, wheat bran three parts, clover or alfalfa meal one part, corn meal one part, ground beef scrap two parts, one quart to fifteen hens, fed dry in troughs. Night feed, wheat and yellow corn equal parts, 1 1-4 quarts to fifteen hens, fed in litter. My reasons for feeding dry feed and feeding it at noon-day are, as the middle of the day is generally the most comfortable part of the day, feed that does not require much exercise to eat should be fed at that time. The feed being dry they cannot be greedy in eating it, they have to eat it slow. This develops a power of digestion that cannot be reached in any other way.

By feeding the whole grains morning and night in the litter, they have to work hard to find it. This particular exercise develops heat and muscle, two important qualities that must be reached before they are in condition to produce eggs. Hens standing around idle in the cold are living at the expense of the owner, when if they were given the proper conditions and plenty of work to do, they are more productive than any other animal on the farm.

A practical ration for young chicks should be similar to that for laying hens, except the beef scraps which should be fed sparingly until the chicks are six weeks old. The grains should be cracked fine and all mixed together and fed dry. There are several brands of poultry foods on the market to-day that are a correct balanced ration, and if fed according to the directions that come with them will be found a very profitable investment.

THE HORSE.

Shedding the Winter Coat.

Horses should receive some little extra care and attention, both in and out of the stable, during the time that they are shedding their winter coat and the summer coat is being produced, as the process of changing the coat has a more or less debilitating effect upon them. While this process lasts, and for a short time afterwards, a horse is not quite up to the usual mark as regards fitness and capacity for work. Some care should, on this account, be exercised not to tax the powers of the horses too severely at this period, but they should be saved as much as is practicable and compatible with the requirements of work. Colds and chills are comparatively easily caught by horses while they are shedding their coat, and for this reason it is advisable to be particularly careful not to let them stand in drafts, more especially when they are in a heated condition or when their coat is saturated with moisture. They must be kept sufficiently warm in the stable, and if they have to stand about a great deal in the open when it is wet or cold, the advisability of putting a rug over the back and loins must be borne in mind. The usual daily allowance of grain may with advantage be increased by a pound or two of oats until the change of coat has been completed, and the feeding of a small daily allowance of linseed meal or of good linseed cake is also very beneficial in its effect. From half a pound to one pound of linseed meal is a suitable quantity to feed every day, while in the case of linseed cake, a daily ration of two or 2 1-2 pounds can be given. Linseed cake is especially suitable for feeding to work horses, while linseed meal is preferable to the cake in the case of light horses required to perform work at fast paces. The oil in both these foodstuffs has a very beneficial effect upon the digestive system of horses, while it also improves the looks of the coat. Both linseed meal and linseed cake are very useful foods to use when horses require feeding up in a special way for some reason or other.

Good Stock Pays.

One of the greatest mistakes, and the most common, among our farmers is the notion that because they have an inferior mare they should breed her to some common scrub horse because the service fee is low. In this way you are sure to get an inferior colt. But if you pay $5 or $10 more and breed to a first-class horse you stand a show of getting a colt that will develop into a horse that will sell for double what you would get for your scrub. The difference in service fee is a small matter, and it costs no more to raise a good colt than a poor one.

When you find a stallion whose breeding and qualities suit you, look him over carefully to see whether he has any hereditary unsoundness or not. If he has, don't patronize him. A very safe rule to go by in the choice of a stallion is this: If he would not make a first-class gelding he cannot well be a first-class stallion. It is not reasonable to expect a horse to transmit qualities which he does not possess himself.

DOMESTIC HINTS.

Myrtle Soup.

Fry three chopped onions in a little beef dripping until they are a golden brown; stir in one-fourth of a pound of ground oatmeal; fry that brown; add one quart of water, a half-dozen potatoes cut in thin slices; salt and pepper and boil until the potatoes are soft, then strain, set on the stove again to boil for five minutes and serve.

Half Moons.

Four eggs, one cupful of powdered sugar, one cupful of rice flour, one teaspoonful of vanilla and the juice and rind of one lemon. Beat the butter to a cream, then add the sugar gradually, beating all the while. Add the yolks of the eggs, beat again, then add the whites beaten to a stiff froth and, gradually, the rice flour. Flavor, beat until fine and light, and pour into small patty pans which have been well buttered. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Cabbage Salad.

The following rule for cabbage salad is a good old "standby" and excellent on the country supper table: Chop a head of cabbage very fine, using the regular meat chopper, which will cut it up into fine pieces of equal size. Soak the cabbage two hours in salt and water, then drain. Beat thoroughly four eggs, add one pint of vinegar and half a cup of butter. Let it come to the boiling point, stirring it carefully to prevent the eggs from curdling. Then add a scant tablespoonful of pepper, a heaping one of mustard and sugar to taste. Some housewives do not like as much sugar as others.

MANY FORGED CHEQUES.

Union Bank At Winnipeg Deluged With Forged Paper.

Winnipeg, Jan. 15.—Mysterious drafts and cheques drawn by George Blake and Charles Love and aggregating $50,000, have been pouring in on the Winnipeg branch of the Union Bank during the past six weeks from various parts of Canada.

Both signatures are apparently in the same handwriting, and the bank officials believe the forgeries are the work of one daring criminal.

Some of the paper has been cashed, but the bulk of it has not, so far as is known here.

One cheque was dated from Lenore, Man., and another from Frobisher, Sask. The police have the matter in hand now.

CLEANING CARPETS.

A Method Which It Is Claimed Has Been Well Tested.

The following method of cleaning carpets, according to the Housekeeper, has been thoroughly tested and was secured from a professional source: First have the carpet cleaned in the usual manner and tacked down on the floor where it is to remain permanently, and it is ready for the cleansing process. Take one and a half pounds of the best white laundry soap, one-half pound of white oak bark, three-fourths pound of borax, one-fourth pound of fuller's earth, one-half pint of wood alcohol, one-half pint of ammonia, one-half ounce of chloroform and four gallons of water. Tie up the bark in a piece of thin material and boil in two gallons of water for four hours. Keep boiling water at hand to replace that lost by evaporation. Now remove the bag, add the soap, shaved fine, the borax and the fuller's earth and let simmer until all are dissolved. Then add the other two gallons of water, which should be boiling hot, and when partly cool add the alcohol, ammonia and chloroform. This quantity will clean thirty yards of carpet.

To clean, dip out a cupful of the preparation, put it on the carpet, spread it and scrub with an ordinary bristle scrubbing brush. The spot scrubbed will be covered with lather, but the carpet will not be wet through. When all the dirt has been removed, scrape the lather up into a heap and take it up with a scraper, which can be had of any house furnishing store, or a shingle with a smooth edge will answer very well. When the lather has been removed, go over the carpet with a sponge wrung out of clean water and dry with a cloth.

LEAKY GAS PIPES.

They Are Responsible For a Great Deal of Illness.

If you do not feel well, do not jump to the conclusion that the drains are out of order. Perhaps it is the gas pipes. In a majority of houses the gas pipes leak and let out one of the most deadly poisons known—carbonic oxide—which remains in the system for days, weeks and even months.

Of late years leaky pipes are more dangerous than ever, for water gas is now largely mixed with coal gas. Water gas has no odor whatever, and at the same time it is a deadly poison. Hence a very faint odor of gas in the house should be taken as a danger signal. Indeed, there may be sufficient gas in a room to undermine the health without any smell being perceived.

Gas has an extraordinary power of passing through walls. On many occasions people have been poisoned to death by gas which came through the wall from the next house.

Headache, noises in the ears, throbbing of the arteries, sleeplessness and utter inability to do mental work are some of the symptoms of chronic gas poisoning. Any one who suffers from these and is unable to account for them should have the gas pipes examined.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Varnished Wall Papers.

Varnished wall papers may be wiped with a mixture of paraffin and warm water, half a pint of paraffin to a bucket of water. Use a soft flannel cloth wrung fairly dry, and afterward polish with a piece of cheesecloth.

Four hours is the longest interval during which children should go without food in the daytime, and something, if only a drink of milk and a biscuit, should be given them before going to bed.

In mending household linen the most satisfactory way to do is to mend it before it is sent to the laundry, not when it returns, starched and ready for use once more.

THE HEADLESS BANDIT.

Queer Story From the Archives of the Vienna Courts.

Dr. Loye, a French physician, who greatly interested himself in the question, "What passes in the head of a decapitated human being?" related the following remarkable story, which he stated was taken from the archives of the Vienna courts: It was in the year —— that Schoenenburg, a well known bandit, and four of his associates were caught and condemned to death. They were already on their knees ready to pay the penalty of their bloody deeds by submitting to the awful fate of decapitation when Schoenenburg addressed the judge, asking that his four companions might be pardoned on certain conditions. "If," asked the bandit, "after I am beheaded I get up and walk to the first of my comrades, will you pardon him?" The judge thought that he was pretty safe in complying with the request. "Then," continued Schoenenburg, "if I walk to the second, the third and the fourth, will you pardon them also?" The judge replied that if such a miraculous feat could be performed he would obtain pardons for the other three also. The bandit was now satisfied, and, bending his head, he received the fatal blow. Instantly the head rolled down in the sand, but to the surprise and horror of all present the headless trunk arose and walked alone. Aimlessly, it appeared, the body walked around until it passed the first, the second, the third and the fourth condemned bandit, when it fell down and became motionless. Query, "How could a headless body think?"

Evening Gowns.

In selecting a gown to be worn in the evening it is advisable to find out if the shade is becoming before purchasing. Frequently colors show an entirely different effect by artificial light. In matching the new colors, too, some care is necessary to make sure that they correspond in daylight, for the degrees in shading are so slight that colors matched by electric light are entirely different when exposed to the sun.

For the Complexion.

One writer on the care of the complexion says that no astringent tonic surpasses cold rain or distilled water. Dip a soft linen rag into the water, slap the face gently with it for five minutes every morning and see what happens. It stimulates the circulation, she says, and the activity of the circulation is precisely that which produces the clearness and brilliancy of skin so much desired.

In the case of a tiled floor a little linseed oil rubbed in and the tiles subsequently polished brings up the colors wonderfully.

A pine floor washed with a solution of a pound of copperas in a gallon of strong lye will take on the color of oak.

BILEANS
WORK A WONDERFUL CURE
CONSTIPATION & INDIGESTION ENDED

Are you a sufferer from Liver Complaint, Constipation or Indigestion? Do you have frequent Headaches, Dizziness, Pains in the Chest or Wind Spasms? If you do, depend upon it, these ailments will not "get better of themselves." Nature has provided a remedy in Bileans, and on every hand proofs are forthcoming of the power of this herbal remedy. Just note the experience of Mrs. F. Greene, of Kingston (Ont.), she says:—A sluggish liver in my case led to acute Indigestion and Constipation. I felt dull and sleepy, had no energy whatever for work and every now and again had a bad attack of biliousness. The food I ate seemed to lie heavy on my stomach and caused wind and cramps in stomach and bowels by its decomposing. The constipation was so bad that my bowels had to be forced at each passage. All kinds of medicines, I tried, but nothing did me any lasting good until I got Bileans. I have never found anything to equal them for constipation, liver and stomach troubles. They soon began to do me good and in the end cured me completely. Since then I have felt like a different woman. I am bright and buoyant in spirits, not dull and sleepy as I used to be, I have got back my energy and activity; and, in fact, seem re-made by Bileans."

Is Your Ailment In This List?

Bileans are a herbal cure for Indigestion, Biliousness, Wind, Belching, Headache, Constipation, Piles, Female Ailments and Irregularities, Anæmia, Dizziness, Rheumatism, Blood Impurities, Colds and Chills, Loss of Tone, Debility and all Liver and Stomach disorders.

All druggists sell at 50c a box, or from Bilean Co., Toronto, by sending price. 6 boxes for $2.50. Send one cent stamp for sample box.

Mrs. M.S.W. Aged 35

Presented the following history:—Since childhood she has been subject to periodical headaches, which she regarded as hereditary, as her mother and aunt had suffered similarly without relief. During the past few years she has complained of heart trouble, dyspepsia, constipation, and periods of extreme nervousness; while suffering the attacks of headache she had nausea and vomiting, so she often had to keep her bed for days. Several physicians had been consulted, but no permanent relief was obtained. Finally she was led to have her eyes examined, when a bad form of astigmatism was discovered with oblique axis (which is always a source of eyestrain): the correct glasses were given, to be worn constantly. She began to improve at once, the headaches, and all the other distressing symptoms entirely disappeared. Consultation free. —ALEX. RAY.

Quinte Musical Club's Officers.

The annual meeting of the Quinte Musical Club was held last evening, for the purpose of electing the officers for the ensuing year. A goodly number of the members were present, and the financial statement showed that the club was in a first-class condition. Ald. Ackerman, President, occupied the chair. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—J. H. Mills.
Vice-President—Chief Newton.
Treasurer—W. S. Clarke.
Secretary—P. Harrison.
Executive Committee—S. W. Vermilyea, W. B. Deacon, H. F. Ketcheson, F. C. Clarke and Mayor Sulman.

At the conclusion of the business refreshments were partaken of.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE VILLAGE PARSON" TO-MORROW NIGHT.

"The Village Parson" is expected to draw largely at the opera house on Wednesday, January 16, as it is claimed to be one of the strongest and best plays seen at this theatre this season. The story of the play is one of considerable power, in which the sorrows and contemplations of a village minister are detailed. He is subjected to strong trials through the supposed faults of his wife and her father, who are really innocent. The good man goes from bad to worse, and the wrongs are corrected in the orthodox fashion. The cast is made up of many prominent dramatic players, and new and superb scenery is employed.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Several missed it. Then again a number were present and heard Rev. A. H. Drumm's Baseball talk, Sunday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. His subject was "The Curved Ball." He described the curve, the inshoot, the drop and the "spit" ball. Then, after explaining how the curved ball symbolized deception, he said the pitchers in demand must have an assortment of deliveries. Deception caught people because the straight and swift delivery which meant the truth was invariably mixed with it or given occasionally. The strength of politics to-day is that its roguery is made up of deception as well as the truth. The speaker then went over the diamond and in finishing at the home plate said many of us are pitchers in life's game. Don't hand up deceptions to God—for you can't fool Him

PICTON MAN'S LUCK.

Picton, Jan. 14.—The Cobalt has "come home" in earnest to a man, well known about town. Some time ago this Pictonian, whose name for the present is known only to a "chosen few," did a "charitable" act to a veteran in sore need. Having nothing to give in return, the soldier gave him his deed to his Fenian raid grant of land in the Cobalt. "It may never be worth anything, but if it is, it's yours," was the spirit of the veteran. Time passed—as it inevitably does!—but time spelt money. Now it is rumored on pretty authoritative grounds that this charitable citizen has just received an offer of several thousand dollars from mining promoters, for the Cobalt property. For the present, it is understood, the offer has been refused, but the chances are a Pictonian may yet figure in a handsome deal.

A Recount Demanded.

In the municipal election for Reeve of the Township of Marmora and Lake, Messrs. W. Bonter and W. Hilton were the candidates. The result was that the former, according to the returns furnished the Township Clerk, received 178 votes and the latter 177 votes. Mr. Hilton has demanded a recount of the votes, and this will take place on Friday of this week, at Marmora village, before His Honor Judge Fraleck. We are informed that Mr. Hilton claims that at least two votes which were intended for him were rejected, hence his claim for a recount. Much interest is manifested in the result.

Bellevilles Lost in Kingston.

The local O.H.A. juniors went to Kingston last night and were walloped to the tune of 8—4. At the end of the first half it was anybody's game, the score standing Frontenacs 3, Belleville 2, but in the last half the Bellevilles blew up, while the Kingstons came strong. The Kingstons will be here next Friday, when the locals will have their revenge. A despatch from Kingston thus describes the match:

Kingston, Jan. 14.—"Chaucer" Elliott refereed the junior O. H. A. game here to-night between the Frontenacs and Belleville to general satisfaction. It was a good keen game and pleased the spectators. At half-time the score stood, Frontenacs 3, Belleville 2. The final score was, Frontenacs 8, Belleville 4. The teams lined up:

Frontenacs—Goal, Lumb; point, Lemmon; cover-point, Dowsley; centre, Ainsley; rover, Crawford; wings, Cook and Gravelle.

The Stanley Cup Games.

The great event of the Canadian hockey season takes place this week, when on Thursday night the Kenora Thistles meet the Montreal Wanderers for the Stanley Cup. If the Thistles are ever going to land the cup they should do so this year, as the team which will represent them in this, their third attempt to lift the much-sought trophy, is the strongest that ever represented Kenora, and one of the strongest, if not actually the strongest, team that ever come out of the west. The regular team has been strengthened by the addition of Art Ross, the crack cover-point of the Brandon team, and the best player in the position in the Manitoba league, while Joe Hall, the pugnacious and hard-checking forward of the same team, will act as spare man. Ross will play cover-point, the Thistle team being changed around for the series. This is the way the Thistles will line up in the cup matches:

Players and position.	Age.	Wgt.
Si. Griffis, point	23	185
Eddie Giroux, goal	23	150
Art. Ross, cover-point	23	183
Tom Hooper, rover	23	175
Will McGimsie, center	23	140
Tom Phillips, left wing	23	155
R. Beaudro, right wing	23	153
Joe Hall, spare	24	165
Russell Phillips, spare	19	170

Captain Tom Phillips speaks of his team's chances as follows:

"The team is back in its old-time form," said he. "The new arrangement of the players, with Griffis at point and Ross at cover, gives the strongest defence we ever had, and as the forwards are working together nicely I cannot see it any other way but a win for us. The boys are confident, and that will count for a lot in the series. Personally, I am convinced that we will win; in fact, it looks like a cinch to me. I may be wrong, but I will be very much disappointed if we fail to bring the cup back. The team now is a very different aggregation to that which played Ottawa last month. I never felt more confident in my life than I do in connection with these coming games. So, just keep your eyes on us next Thursday night."

CURLING.

Belleville Colts Won.

On Saturday evening two rinks of the local Curling Club went to Napanee and played a match with two rinks of that town. It was the first game of the season in what is known as the Colts' series. The result was a victory for the Belleville Colts, whose total was 31 points to Napanee's 25. It was throughout an interesting game and at the conclusion our boys were entertained. Those composing the rinks and the scores made were as follows:

SPORTING NOTES.

Soo, Ont., Star: John Marks, a crack player from the New Glasgow team, is expected here on Saturday. His transportation and contract have been sent him, and he will probably take part in the next games on home ice. He is reported to be an exceptionally fast player, and will be an acquisition to the local line up. His team mate Williams may come also.

The Fruit and Vinegar Factory.

A special meeting of the directors and shareholders of the Fruit, Vinegar and Cider Factory, was held in the Company's office, in the factory, on the 14th inst., for the purpose of receiving a report of what had been done and what its prospects for the future success are.

A statement was read by the President, Mr. Robert J. Graham, showing that the entire cost of the property up to the present time had been some $12,000; that the stock on hand was between $7,000 and $8,000, and that the amount of stock subscribed and mostly paid, was between $9,000 and $10,000.

On the whole, considering the short time the factory has been in operation, the showing was remarkably satisfactory.

It were well if those interested in the city's welfare and who desire to see prosperous industries established here were to pay a visit to this new enterprise, examine the premises and test the quality of the goods manufactured, which have been by competent experts pronounced of the best quality. We venture the opinion they will come away surprised at what has been accomplished at so small an outlay, and with so small a capital.

Like the Belleville Hardware Company it has been organized and managed without a dollar's "promotion" expenses, those connected with it having given their time and money without seeking remuneration, and like the Belleville Hardware enterprise at its inception, wants additional capital. Realizing this fact, those present at the meeting, having confidence in the enterprise, suggested and adopted the policy pursued under similar circumstances, by the first shareholders in the Hardware Company, namely, doubled the amount of their stock already invested, to the extent of about $4,000.

$6,000 additional capital is required to enable the directors to push business and put the factory financially on a solid foundation.

There are millions of dollars laying idle in our banks drawing but 3 per cent. Let's have some of it invested in industries, and make the city what it ought to be, a manufacturing centre.

Work, confidence and money, and not talk, are what is required, if Belleville is to become a live manufacturing city.

The Public Library

The annual meeting of the Public Library Board was held yesterday afternoon in the Library building, Front street. A number were in attendance. Mayor Sulman occupied the chair. The only business transacted was the election of directors for the year, which resulted as follows:

Messrs. J. Williams, A. McGinnis, F. D. Diamond, H. J. Clarke, S. A. Gardner, J. J. B. Flint, Drs. Yeomans, MacColl and Dolan.

The meeting then adjourned for one week, when the remainder of the officers will be elected.

G.R.R.COCKBURN'S TRIAL

Bank President Cannot Verify Official Reports.

Witness In Toronto Police Court Trial Expresses Opinion That Mr. Cockburn Had to Trust Largely to the Honesty of His General Manager—Received $4,000 Salary and This May Have Legal Bearing.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—The trial of George R. R. Cockburn, former president of the Ontario Bank, charged with signing false returns to the Government, began yesterday morning before Colonel Denison.

Colonel Denison read the information alleging that the defendant, G. R. R. Cockburn, did "wilfully sign false monthly returns of the Bank of Ontario for the use of the department at Ottawa." Mr. Cockburn elected to be tried summarily and pleaded not guilty.

"Of course I may send the case for trial," said Colonel Denison. "I am not bound to decide upon the evidence."

The first witness called was Frank H. Pope, who drew up some of the statements for the department at Ottawa. He told Acting Crown Attorney Bayley that he made up the Government returns in some of the months last year.

The magistrate had in his possession the statements signed by the defendant, during 1906, which were sent to Ottawa. His Worship asked the Crown Attorney how many would be used, and Mr. Bayley replied that he wished to have them all put in.

The witness identified the signature of G. R. R. Cockburn on the Government report of January last. He went over the report with Colonel Denison and pointed out that the item entered "current loans in Canada" contained moneys which should not have been placed under that heading. His evidence was largely a rehash of that given in the McGill case. He said that the sums sent to the brokers in New York were included under the "current loans" in the report. All the reports sent in to the Government last year contained the same error. The amount of the lost money sent to brokers and covered by that method in the statements grew steadily every month last year until the failure of the bank took place. The defendant signed all the reports.

"The deception was that the amounts were entered as current loans when they were really lost money," was the magistrate's summing up of the situation.

"When the president signed the statements, did he make any enquiries into them?" asked Mr. Bayley.

"He asked questions about the amounts which showed great differences."

"Could he have examined the books carefully and checked the inaccuracies?"

"He might have done so by examining the books thoroughly at the end of each month," replied Mr. Pope.

"Could he have assured himself that the statements were correct?"

"Not unless he was thoroughly conversant with banking systems."

"Could he have discovered those errors if he had desired to make sure that the report was correct?"

The witness said that the question was an involved one. He thought, however, that it would take an expert many days of careful enquiry to be sure that the figures were not false in some particular.

Mr. Pope said that there were only three men in the bank who could have told Mr. Cockburn that the entries were false. They were the witness, Mr. W. Chenoweth and Charles McGill, the general manager. Mr. Pope added, "Mr. Chenoweth and I knew that large items were being added to the current loans, but it took us some time to find if they represented anything."

"Have you any evidence that the defendant had any reason to suspect that the statements were incorrect?" enquired Col. Denison, and Mr. Pope replied in the negative.

To Mr. Frank Arnoldi, the witness said that the report was signed by the general manager and Mr. Chenoweth before being presented to Mr. Cockburn. The general manager could have no reason to refuse his signature.

Mr. Walter Chenoweth corroborated the evidence of the previous witness. He said that all the moneys sent to the New York brokers were bulked and placed under the heading, "Current accounts in Canada."

"Was that the easiest heading under which to work the accounts?" enquired the magistrate, and when the witness seemed to doubt, changed the form of the question. "Wouldn't it have been more difficult to find the error under that heading?"

Mr. Chenoweth thought that was the case. He also was of the opinion that it would be difficult for Mr. Cockburn to verify the amounts in the reports. He would have had to write to the various firms mentioned in the accounts in order to be absolutely sure that all the figures were correct.

"Then you think it is an impossibility for any one man going over the statement to be sure that it contained no false entries?" enquired the magistrate. The winess said that was his opinion.

"So the man who put in the incorrect returns was the only one in a position to know the Government would be deceived?" A.—"Yes."

The witness told Mr. Arnoldi that the general manager could be the only one aware that the reports were not correct.

"So the general manager must be absolutely trustworthy?" A.—"Yes."

"If the general manager has absolute responsibility, what is the value of the board of directors?" enquired Mr. Bayley.

The counsel for the defence objected to this question, and suggested that the acting Crown Attorney was making light of an important matter.

Col. Denison took the witness again and asked when he suspected that things were not right. Mr. Chenoweth replied that he and Mr. Pope were anxious regarding the affairs of the bank for about a year. They saw large land, but if it were possible at this moment to settle all these differences we have at the Sault St. Marie River, the Rainy River, the Fraser River, the Niagara River, and also the St. John River, we should be doing as much as we can do for Canada under existing circumstances."

R. L. Borden: I do not rise to discuss the general subject in connection with which some additional papers will perhaps be brought down, and, indeed, I thought there had been a very recent report of the Waterways Commission laid on the table of the House.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: There is one that has come recently.

Report Should Be Given.

Mr. Borden: It does not cover the Niagara River. I merely rise to suggest that if there is a report of D. R. Spencer, to the effect mentioned by the hon. member for Lincoln and Niagara (Mr. Lancaster), and that report has been made by D. R. Spencer as an officer of this Government, and if it is based upon the careful research and enquiry and investigation which have been indicated here this evening, it does not seem to me that in justice to this country and friction between D. R. Spencer and his superior officer, should for one moment be permitted to keep that report back from the House and the country.

Mr. Templeman said that D. R. Spencer had not filed his report. The Government therefore had nothing to lay before the House. There was some dispute about what money was due D. R. Spencer for his labor. No money would be paid him till it was completed. The report, however, would be largely of a geological character. It would only deal incidentally with the location of the volume of water passing over the falls.

Dr. Stockton (Conservative, New Brunswick) insisted that it was important to have definitely fixed the boundary line between Canada and the United States.

Coasting Privileges.

Dr. Black (Liberal, Nova Scotia) introduced a resolution declaring "that in the opinion of this House the Government of Canada should take such steps as will secure for Canada the cancellation of existing coasting privileges enjoyed by foreign countries under imperial treaties, and to that end should open negotiations with the Imperial Government with a view to the abrogation or amendment of such treaties."

Dr. Black stated that the coasting privileges enjoyed by foreign nations did not depend upon treaty rights, but that the matter was regulated by orders-in-council. He would, therefore, insist all the more strongly upon his resolution. But a few years ago the shipping of Canada was fourth among the nations, and Nova Scotia as a province led all the world. Now Canada's rank was eleventh, and the glory of Nova Scotia had largely departed.

Mr. Lawrence (Liberal, Nova Scotia) supported the contention of his colleague.

Mr. Patterson was of the opinion that the matter might be complicated by treaties of the Imperial Government. It might be that the matter could be dealt with by the Canadian Government. In any event, the matter should receive careful consideration. He therefore hoped that the motion would be withdrawn.

No Treaty With Norway.

R. L. Borden suggested that this luminous and definite statement from the Government would certainly justify the gentleman in withdrawing his motion, and would no doubt be regarded as a great triumph for the people of Nova Scotia. He pointed out that the competition complained of was from Norwegian vessels, but on December last Mr. Patterson stated that there was no treaty with Norway. Why did not the Government rescind the order in council giving coasting privileges to Norway?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier pointed out that it was during the Conservative regime that orders in council were passed admitting the Norwegians and other foreigners to the privileges of the coasting trade. He felt that at this time the competition was not desirable. The Government should not, however, move to rapidly. It was, however, considering the matter, and he asked Dr. Black to withdraw his motion.

Dr. Black did so, of course, amid Conservative laughter and Liberal applause.

The Ross Rifle.

Col. Worthington (Con., Quebec) moved for an order of the House for a return showing "reports of commissions, boards of enquiry, inspections, reports of individual officers to the Government or any member thereof, including reports from the comptroller, commissioner or any officer or member of the Northwest mounted police, the Dominion Rifle Association or any member thereof, or the commandant or any member of the Bisley team, regarding the efficiency of the Ross rifle."

Mr. Worthington criticized the Ross rifle. It was the most expensive in the world, but was it efficient? The tests showed it lacked endurance. The Northwest mounted police had ceased using it and the team at Bisley had abandoned it. People generally had no faith in the Ross rifle. He suggested that the Government conduct some searching public tests.

Sir Frederick Borden explained that there was no Ross Rifle Co. As to the Ross rifle, it had been thoroughly tested by a commission, headed by Col. (now general) Otter. Some few defects had been pointed out, but they had since been corrected.

The resolution carried.

LABOR AND WAR.

General Arbitration Treaty and Other Peace Reforms Wanted.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 15.—A move for a general arbitration treaty, a periodic world assembly, impartial investigation of all difficulties before hostilities are engaged in by nations, and the immunity of private property at sea in time of war was initiated by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor yesterday.

Following a resolution adopted by the federation recently he submitted to all branches of the organization an urgent request to secure from the local Congressmen immediate expression as to their sympathy with this movement.

"The trade union movement from its inception," declared President Gompers, "has been opposed to war, its brunt falling upon the working people. While it may not be practical to ask immediate disarmament of all countries, the time demands that the extraordinary increase in armed naval and military forces be restricted."

Fraud Is Alleged.

Toronto, Jan. 15.—Alfred Howarth, who hails from Great Britain, has been arrested on the charge of attempting to obtain money by fraud. He is said to have received over 300 answers to an advertisement for a position he assumed to fill, to which he in turn replied requesting 50 cents for a booking fee.

Simple Remedy Given Away.

TO ALL PILE SUFFERERS WE WILL SEND FREE A TRIAL PACKAGE OF THE PYRAMID PILE CURE.

In order to prove to you that our remedy is not to be classed with the many concoctions advertised as cures for this dread disease, we make this liberal offer.

We leave it to your own judgment to decide whether or not you can afford to do without this long tried remedy. We know of no case where the Pyramid Pile Cure has not brought relief, when it has been used according to directions. It has saved thousands from the operating table and endless torture. You owe it to yourself to give it a fair trial especially since it costs you nothing.

"I write to thank you and also praise you for the good your medicine has done me. Oh, I can't find words to express my thanks to you all for such a wonderful and speedy cure. I felt relieved after using your sample, so I sent right on to a druggist and bought a 50c box, which I believe has cured me entirely. I feel more myself now than I have felt in over a year, for I have been bothered about that long with the piles. I have told all my friends about this wonderful discovery and will recommend it whenever I can. You can use my name anywhere you choose. Respectfully, Mrs. Chas. L. Coleman, Tullahoma, Tenn."

There is surely no good reason why any sufferer from piles should continue in agony. If you are tortured with this disease, we will send to your address in a plain sealed wrapper a sufficient quantity of the Pyramid Pile Cure to show what relief it brings. Many have been practically cured by this amount of the remedy alone. The sample package which we will send you contains the identical remedy sold in all drug stores at 50 cts. per box. Write to-day and prove to your own satisfaction that you can be cured. Pyramid Drug Co., 77 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

RUSSIA'S BIG BUDGET

New Loan Necessary to Balance Deficit of $120,100,000.

Attacked By Russian Press—Bourse Gazette's Strong Critique Declares Real Deficit Is $250,000,000—Contrasts Increased Receipts From Vodka Monopoly, $52,000,000, With Grant of $2,750,000 For Education.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 15.—The provisional budget for 1907, showing that it will again be necessary to resort to credit operations to balance the deficit of $120,100,000 between the estimated receipts and expenditures, is attacked by the Russian press on all sides. Only The Novoe Vremya is silent. Radical papers devote their attention to the political features.

The Bourse Gazette strongly criticizes the budget's figures, declaring that the deficit is almost $250,000,000, adding that reliance on the old system of "debauching the people with alcohol instead of developing the economic resources of the country" is the chief characteristic of the new budget.

Continuing, the newspaper points out that the only good showing made is in the increase of the revenue from the Vodka monopoly, from which $52,000,000 more than in 1906 is expected, and contrasts this sum with the $2,750,000 appropriated for the institution of universal education, appearing for the first time in a Russian budget. The slight excess of the ordinary income over the expenditures is unsatisfactory because of the always expectable unforeseen expenses.

"Provisions for the payment of the war expenses and famine relief," the newspaper adds, "cannot be avoided, but Parliament must use the pruning shears remorselessly on other items and cut every possible copeck in order to reduce the loan.

"The published statements include two distinct sets of figures: First, the yearly calculation of expenditures based on the preceding budget, in addition to the unavoidable new expenditures, for which temporary monthly credits are assigned until the convocation of Parliament; second, the preliminary estimates to regulate the budget of 1907, which will be effective after the approval of Parliament, with retroactive effect for the elapsed months. Parliament has the power to modify the various items. The Liberals certainly will attempt to cut the increased sums assigned for the maintenance of the police and other instruments of repression."

The statement regarding the necessity for a new loan caused surprise on account of the repeated semi-official declarations that a deficit was not contemplated in the new budget, but it is now explained that this referred to the regular and not to the extraordinary receipts and expenditure. The deficit is almost exactly half that foreseen in 1906, amounting to $240,500,000.

The full estimates of the regular budget are not published, but among credits is $1,500,000 for the construction of the first section of the Amur Railroad, from Stretinsk to Pokrovsk, which is considered to be an immediate strategic necessity in view of the situation in the far east.

The Emperor's rescript to Premier Stolypin thanking him and the members of his ministry for their services, is designed to settle definitely the periodically revived rumors of the Premier's removal before the assembling of the new Parliament.

Police Battles Nightly.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 15.—The police are having almost nightly battles with terrorists and fighting legion organizations of the revolutionists.

Sunday night there were two affrays, in which the police had one man killed and a lieutenant, a sergeant and a patrolman wounded. Ten members of the fighting legion were captured.

The most serious affair occurred in the centre of the respectable residence quarter on Basil Island. A detachment of police, which attempted to storm a suspected dwelling, was met with continuous volleys from revolvers and rifles, and was finally compelled to withdraw with the loss of three men. A force of infantry was summoned, and after several volleys the revolutionists surrendered.

An attack on a house occupied by revolutionists on St. Petersburg Island was repulsed. A policeman was wounded, and the garrison escaped in the darkness before the arrival of the troops, which had been summoned.

Kingston Ruined By Earthquake.

Terrible Disaster Overtakes Capital City Of Jamaica.

Occurred Without Warning—Many Buildings Destroyed--Fire Adds to the Horror Of Situation--Sir James Ferguson and Prominent Citizens Among the Dead--British Notables Visiting Kingston For Cotton Conference Escape Injury.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Western Union Telegraph Co. are in receipt of advices reporting that Kingston, Jamaica, has been destroyed by an earthquake, with much loss of life.

The announcement issued by the Western Union follows:—

"The Western Union Telegraph Co. has received advices that communication with Kingston, Jamaica, is interrupted, also to the Isthmus via Jamaica, caused apparently by earthquake, and that later advices say, "land line communication is restored to within five miles of Kingston. Traffic may be accepted at sender's risk, subject to heavy delay." It is reported that Kingston was destroyed by earthquake, with much loss of life."

The report reached here through the cable manager at St. Thomas.

OCCURRED WITHOUT WARNING.

Hamar Greenwood, M.P., Sends Despatch to Colonial Office.

London, Jan. 16.—The Colonial Office last night received confirmation of the terrible disaster which has overtaken Kingston, Jamaica, in a despatch from Hamar Greenwood, M.P., sent from Holland Bay, at the east end of the island.

The telegram says that Kingston has been ruined by an earthquake which occurred without warning Monday afternoon at 3.30.

A great number of buildings and dwellings were destroyed, either by the earthquake or by the consequent fire.

The military hospital was burned and forty soldiers are reported to have been killed, together with several prominent citizens and many other of the inhabitants of the city.

Sir James Fergusson Killed.

Sir James Fergusson is reported to have been instantly killed, but no other Englishmen, Canadians or Americans are missing.

The city is quiet, but disciplined workers are needed.

The governor of the colony, Sir Alexander Swettenham, assisted by Sir Alfred Jones, is directing affairs.

The steamer Port Kingston will leave Thursday with most of the members of the party who went out with Sir Alfred Jones to attend the agricultural conference.

Breakdown of Cable.

The foregoing is the most complete despatch regarding the Kingston disaster that has been received here. The absence of details is accounted for by the breakdown in cable communication, but the announcement that no Englishmen, Canadians or Americans are missing will greatly reassure the public concerning the fate of the unusual number of tourists and others who are spending the winter in Jamaica, or who were attracted there by the agricultural and cotton conference.

The party on board the Port Kingston only arrived at Kingston on Friday last. The Port Kingston, in addition to the members of Sir Alfred Jones' party, had other guests and passengers on board which gave her a total passenger list of more than 100 persons. Among those in the company were: Hall Caine, the novelist; Viscount Montmorres, H. O. Arnold Forster, M.P.; Sir Thomas Hughes, Sir Thomas Shannan, the Earl and Countess of Dudley and others of equal prominence.

Will Cause a Shock.

The news of the disaster arrived in London too late last night to be generally known to the public, but it is certain to cause widespread consternation and anxiety, and will bring home to the imagination of the British people the terrors of an earthquake in a way that even the San Francisco catastrophe failed to do.

Owing to the active efforts in recent years of Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Alfred Jones, the commercial development of Jamaica has made the island much better known, and it has been greatly in favor as a winter resort.

Details of the disaster are lacking as direct communication with the stricken city has been cut off, though the land lines had been reconstructed to within five miles of Kingston Tuesday evening.

So far as the reports indicate, the fatalities number less than 100, though the hospitals are filled with injured, and the list of victims may be materially increased.

Extent of Destruction.

The first great shock was felt about 3.30 o'clock Monday afternoon, and, as in the San Franciscan and Valparaiso disasters, flames immediately sprung from the wreckage to carry on the work of destruction. Tuesday afternoon the fire was still burning, although it was believed to be under control.

The Myrtle Bank Hotel, the principal hotel at Kingston, which probably sheltered the great bulk of visitors on the island, is reported destroyed.

The extent of the destruction which has been wrought in Kingston, a city which already bears the scars of a number of disastrous visitations of fire, earthquake and cyclone in years gone by, is still left largely to the imagination. The city is one of the low-lying buildings clustered along the shores of one of the finest and most securely landlocked harbors in the West Indies. The population, which numbers 50,000, is largely made up of native blacks.

Many steamers carrying tourists to Jamaica were en route to the island when the earthquake occurred, but it so happens that, according to schedules, none of the ships from New York or Boston were in Kingston harbor Monday afternoon.

Career of Dead Baronet.

Sir James Ferguson, who is reported killed at Kingston, Jamaica, left London for Jamaica the middle of December. The Right Hon. Sir James Ferguson, P.C., LL.D., D.L.J.P., M.P., succeeded his father as sixth baronet in 1849. Born at Edinburgh in 1832 and received his early education at Rugby, afterwards entering University College, Oxford. In 1857 he entered the army, and in the same year was appointed ensign lieutenant of the Grenadier Guards. He served through the whole of the Crimean campaign, including the battles of Alma and Inkerman, and the siege of Sebastopol. At the battle of Inkerman he was shot through the leg. Whilst in the Crimea he was elected M.P. for Ayrshire in place of Col. Hunter Blair of the Scots' Guards, who was killed at Inkerman. He retired from the army in 1856 with the rank of captain. His whole attention was then directed to politics. In 1857 he was defeated at the bye-election and lost his seat. In 1859 he contested Sandwich, but was defeated. In the following year he was re-elected for Ayrshire. He was appointed lieutenant-colonel commanding the Royal Ayrshire Militia in 1858, and in 1868 he succeeded as governor and commander-in-chief of South Australia. From 1873 to 1875 he commanded the troops in New Zealand, but resigned the latter to re-enter the political arena. In this year he contested Frome and afterwards in 1878 Greenock, and was defeated on both occasions.

He was appointed governor of Bombay in 1880. He held this office until 1885, when he was elected to the Foreign Office. He afterwards became Postmaster-General.

Injured Fill the Hospitals.

St. Thomas, B. W. I., Jan. 16.—According to further, though still meagre details of the Kingston earthquake, received here, it would appear that the first report that the city had been "destroyed" was exaggerated. The fire which followed the shock was still burning Tuesday morning, although it had been confined to certain limits.

A first count gives the number of dead at less than 100, and the number of wounded at several hundred. The hospitals are filled with injured persons.

The principal hotel of Kingston (probably the Myrtle Bank) and the other important buildings, have been destroyed, and other houses in Kingston sustained considerable damage.

The flames apparently were confined to the docks and the warehouse district. If this is so, only a small portion of the city has been burned over.

No mention is made of the continuance of earthquake shocks.

Canadians at Kingston.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—The first word of the Kingston disaster caused considerable excitement in the city. As a popular winter resort for Canadians during the past few years, Jamaica has probably had more tourists than any other watering place, and the fact that several prominent citizens with their families had sailed this month for the south caused anxious enquiries and grave concern. The papers here give a list of about 50 persons from Toronto and Ontario known to be on the island.

The City of Kingston.

Kingston is the capital of the Island of Jamaica and the principal seaport and commercial city of that island. It is situated on the south coast and on the north side of a fine harbor. The latter is a land-locked basin, available for the largest ships, and is enclosed on the south by a long tongue of land at the extremity of which is Port Royal. The population of Kingston is about 50,000.

The only volcano formation on the island is that at the Low, Layton and Retreat estates in the Parish of Portland, a mile from the sea, in the Wouldn't it be just perfectly lovely if other change came as readily as a change in the weather?

We beg to respectfully point out to Ald. Burrows that the sun has not shone very much since he has been chairman of Light. An oversight, probably, but we thought we'd mention it.

Cheer up, girls. The ice harvest will be all right, and the ice cream stands will be in line again next summer, providing, of course, that Willie has the price.

A citizen dropped in to ask why it was that the annual meeting of the Public Library Association, which was held on Monday afternoon, was not more properly advertised. Directors of the Library, he says, were not even notified of the meeting. There may be an explanation to this, but it looks like a hole-and-corner way of doing business. The Library is a public institution, and its regular annual meeting should have been advertised through the press.

"Taxpayer" writes: "If a man breaks a city by-law, and the police see him doing it, are they supposed to see that he is punished, or is it their duty to wait till some other citizen complains? If so, what is the use of the Council passing by-laws? Do they expect citizens to turn informers before the by-laws can be enforced?"

• • •

It seems to be taken as a matter of course that certain city by-laws are dead letters. We don't know why they should be. Perhaps if our correspondent interviewed the Police Magistrate he might obtain some light on his question.

• • •

Thank goodness, nobody can say such a thing as this about Belleville aldermen, some of whom are so weighty that the only place they can be properly weighed is on the hay scales. The Peterboro Review man dips his pen in gall and writes, "Peterboro's new inspector of weights and measures should test the new chairmen of the civic committees. Some of them are hardly weighty enough for their jobs and do not measure up to the necessary requirements of first class presiding officers."

It may interest Belleville electors to see the oath which civic representatives in Belleville had to take before they took their seats in the Council chamber last Monday. Nobody, of course, will insinuate that a solitary one of them will fail to live up to it. Here it is: "I .... do solemnly promise and declare, that I will truly, faithfully and impartially, to the best of my knowledge and ability, execute the office of .... to which I have been .... in the city of Belleville of the county of Hastings, and that I have not received and will not receive any payment or reward, or promise of such for the exercise of any impartiality or malversation or any other undue execution of the said office, and that I have not by myself or partner, either directly or indirectly, any interest in any contract with or on behalf of the said corporation. Signed ...."

It is not generally known that the original New England was on the Pacific coast. In 1579, at the close of a month's stay, Francis Drake took possession of the country for his sovereign, Elizabeth, and named the new acquisition Nouva Albion (New England), because he thought the white cliffs near what is now Point Reyes resembled the chalk cliffs near Dover.

Well, sir, the longer we live the more it becomes apparent to us that there are a lot of extremely rude people in this world. Just listen to the following, from the Peterboro Review: Four of the Senate vacancies have been filled and the name of Mr. Nathaniel Vermilyea, of Belleville, who has long been fencing for an opening in the Upper Chamber, does not appear. He evidently has grown tired of waiting year in and year out and decided to re-enter municipal politics by contesting the reeveship in Thurlow township. This is about Mr. Vermilyea's limit. There is no more danger of his being created a Senator than there is of his being called upon to form a Cabinet.

Old man Hicks, the weather sharp, has been calling the turn with considerable exactness lately, and the fact that he prophecied the earthquake is likely to send his stock away up. The old chap may not be a sure-enough prophet, but no one can deny that he is all to the good as a guesser sometimes.

By the way, our old friend Mr. John Williams, clerk of the court, is visiting in Jamaica just now, accompanied by his estimable wife. Postal cards were yesterday received in this city from Mr. Williams, dated Kingston, Jamaica. It is to be hoped that our estimable fellow-citizens have been fortunate enough to escape injury. By Toronto papers we see that a large number of Canadians are at present visiting Jamaica, among them Mr. Hamar Greenwood, member of the British House of Commons.

HOCKEY AS IT IS PLAYED.

(Montreal Witness.)

On Saturday night, in Montreal nearly seven thousand people assembled to see a hockey match. What they actually saw was a compound of ruffianism and blackguardism, from the effects of which three men required surgical treatment and many more will carry marks for days. One might have expected civilized people to have risen from their seats and left the building at the first incident. But they did not. Ladies sat on and took their chance of seeing more blood spilled. Possibly, after all, our civilization is not so very deep.

Budding Paderewski's in this city may read the following with interest:—"Lhevinne, the Russian, who has proven the new piano sensation of the season in the east, has this to say in regard to the unapparent labors of a musician: "I usually practice about seven hours a day. Work? Yes, it is hard work. Those who imagine that a musician's life is simply sitting down and pouring out his feelings through the keys of the instrument are greatly in error. There must be years of hard work first to acquire technique, and a musician can never let up on the work."

However, let us rejoice that it was not Kingston, Ont., which was hit by an earthquake.

It will be seen that Mr. Porter, M.P., has been asking the Government some exceedingly pertinent questions about the drill shed and other matters. The answers to his questions re the drill shed show the shuffling character of the men who are at the head of public affairs. Belleville, with a fine city regiment and a company of another regiment, has been for years without an armoury, while Woodstock, without even a corporal's guard of militiamen within its boundaries, has had a $71,000 armoury erected. Thus do the Laurier bunch of incapables practice "fair play!"

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Team Ran Away

A team of horses attached to a sleigh, and belonging to Mr. R. H. Vandewaters, who resides on Octavia street, ran away shortly before noon this morning. The frightened animals started to run on Bridge street, near the post office, and, turning westward, ran over the lower bridge and up Bridge street west. After traversing several streets they were finally captured before doing much damage.

Teachers' Salaries

The amended school law has been the point of considerable discussion in the school districts at the late elections.

That part of the Act which establishes the minimum salary to be paid to rural teachers is the subject of a vigorous protest from the Township of Brooke, Lambton.

The ground of objection is that it takes away the freedom of contract under threat of cancelling the certificate, and that this puts too much power in the hands of one man.

The amendment in question was made as the only feasible means of raising the standard of education and providing the requisite supply of teachers.

When men were found leaving the profession by wholesale, and few entering it as a career, something had to be done, says a contemporary, if the schools were to be maintained at all. When the flower of the teaching profession, both male and female was being drafted to the Northwest and to other countries because of the miserable pay allowed them by rural trustees, it became a serious question with the educational department, and had to be considered with a view to a radical departure.

Under whatever provisions of the School Act, the people chiefly concerned must face this difficulty, or their children cannot continue to receive the education to which they are entitled and which the school law is meant to assure to them.

They cannot expect to be able to employ competent teachers unless they are prepared to pay a living salary. And this has not been the case in many instances where trustees in a spirit of parsimony have habitually advertised for teachers "by tender" and accept the lowest regardless of qualification.

It is possible that the provisions of the amended Act may be thought by certain school ratepayers more drastic than pleasant. It may be felt as a hardship, for instance, to be assessed for what is regarded as a high salary where the pupils are few. These are no doubt exceptional cases, and some way may be found of meeting them.

But in general it may as well be accepted that if the schools are to be carried on efficiently, a higher scale of payment to teachers is not only desirable, but absolutely necessary to attract fit persons to the profession.

Protection and the Farmer

That the farming interests of Canada would be benefited by a larger measure of protection was strongly emphasized in the debate in Parliament on Friday last.

The Canadian tariff is one half that of the Dingley tariff. Our cheese, for instance, is met at the United States border with a duty of six cents a pound. This duty is intended to be prohibitory. Our barley is met by an equally prohibitory impost of 30 cents a bushel. Our eggs encounter a duty of five cents a dozen. It might as well be fifteen cents. The hindrance to international commerce is the same. Our canned meats are excluded by a duty of five cents a pound.

Why should the Dominion tariff be so low as to facilitate intercourse from across the boundary, while so many of our products are excluded?

Western corn is on the Canadian free list. This is for the protection of those who feed cattle for the home or foreign market. But it is destruction to the grower of the coarser grains. Free American corn not only discourages the growth of that grain in the "corn counties" of Western Ontario, but displaces the peas, oats and barley grown all over the country, and which are its equivalent in food value.

Our tariff of three cents on cheese was condemned by opposition members, as favoring the importation of inferior American cheese made of skimmed milk, and of second and inferior quality. It was properly asked why the cheesemakers of Canada should be exposed to this form of competition.

Mr. Fielding's reply to this question was in flat contradiction of the argument used by his colleague, Mr. Fisher, for appointing inspectors of canned meats for export. He said the quality of Canadian cheese was sufficient protection. If quality determines the status of Canadian products in competition with other countries, what becomes of Mr. Fisher's plea for a government label on the class of goods which he admits to be of the best quality as uniformly turned out of the packing houses? If the quality of Canadian cheese is a sufficient protection in commerce, the quality of Canadian meats should be equally effective in the consuming markets, without the need of a government label, put on at a cost to the taxpayers of 860,000 a year.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

HOCKEY.

Wanderers Beat Rolling Mills.

Last evening a hockey match took place at the rink, being one of the series for the possession of the Corby Cup. The teams competing were the Wanderers and the Rolling Mills. A goodly number of spectators were present and seemed to enjoy the game, which was by no means onesided. In the first half of the match all the scoring was done, by both teams. The Wanderers secured three goals, whilst the Rolling Mills team found the net twice. In the second half both teams made a determined effort to score, but were unable to do so. Mr. K. Taylor was referee and performed his duties in an impartial manner. The line-up was as follows:

Rolling Mills.		Wanderers.
Goldie	Goal	Ormond
Caton	Point	Malyea
Weldon	Cover-point	Barrett
Moore	Rover	Hunter
Cordon	Centre	Symons
W. Carter	Right	Bergoyne
H. Carter	Left	Rowe

CURLING.

Belleville Beat Campbellford.

A friendly curling match took place here last evening between two rinks from Campbellford and two local rinks. Owing to the fact that for the past five years the Campbellford players have been without a rink, they showed lack of practice. As a consequence the local rinks scored a decided victory over their competitors. Considering the circumstances, some of the visitors played a good game, and although defeated were by no means disgraced. At the conclusion of the game, which was witnessed by many spectators, refreshments were served. The following was the composition of the rinks, but the score was not obtainable:

Belleville.	Campbellford.
S. Robertson	D. W. Douglas
F. Quick	E. W. Boyer
M. Wright	T. S. Tait
J. D. Clarke, Skip.	R. Cumming, Skip.
A. E. Lewis	D. Waters
A. McGie	J. Hamilton
J. A. McFee	J. Benor
F. Dolan Skip.	J. C. Fowlds, Skip.

SPORTING NOTES.

Little Mercer, last season with Port Hope, is doing great work for the Guelph juniors this season. He's the makings of a star senior some day.

The Pea Canners beat Brockville on their own ice last night, by the topheavy score of 11-3. Judging by the form shown here by the two teams, hardly anybody would have predicted such a result as that. The Pictons are the first team in the district to win a match away from home, and you can wager your last dollar that flags are flying from every canning factory in Picton to-day.

The match here on Friday night should be a corker. Kingston is said to have a lightning forward line, and there are said to be many Kingston men who are loaded up with all sorts of money which they are willing to bet that Belleville will not win by three goals, which, by the way, might be a good bet, and then again, it might not.

The receipts of the Ottawa-Wanderer match Saturday night were $3,000 of which the Wanderers received $1,200 for the fun of being chopped at by the Ottawas.

Yesterday's hockey results: St. George's 11, Newmarket 9; Berlin 2, Stratford 1; Lindsay juniors 12, Port Hope 1.

The Lindsay juniors have won their district, and, being very speedy, are picked for the junior O. H. A. championship by some of the Toronto wise ones. Wait till they bump up against the winners of this group.

The Brockville Crescents must have blown up badly. Picton plastered them in the most approved style last night. Lack of patronage is said to have taken the heart out of the eastern boys.

George Towns, of Sydney, and Ed. Durnan, of Toronto, have signed articles for a race for the world's sculling championship on the Nepean River for £500 a side, to take place on March 2.

Cobourg sent a team to Trenton last night, and was beaten by 12 to 4. A junior Trenton team won a close game at Picton last night by 7 to 5.

INJUNCTION MADE PERPETUAL

Copeland-Chatterson Company Wins Its Suit.

JUDGE FINDS A CONSPIRACY.

Judgment in the action brought by the Copeland-Chatterson Company against the Business Systems, Limited, composed of Henry J. King, Daniel S. Baird, Frederick Harcourt, William E. Trout, W. T. Archibald and J. Morgan Hoose, for conspiracy to fraudulently obtain the business of the plaintiffs, was given out at Osgoode Hall by Justice Clute Saturday. The plaintiffs' action was practically sustained, and they were given costs. The master-in-ordinary will assess the damages.

It was found that 88 tools recovered from defendant Hoose and brought into court were the property of the plaintiffs, and from the evidence it was inferred and found as a fact that they were used by Hoose in the defendants' employ, and they had been improperly taken from the plaintiffs' factory, and that the object in inducing Hoose to leave the plaintiffs' employ was to obtain the use of the said tools.

The justice was satisfied that the confidential information secured by the defendants while in the employ of the plaintiffs was wholly appropriated by them to carry out their schemes.

It was also found as a fact that the defendants other than Hoose conspired together while still in the plaintiffs' employ to leave, and they endeavored both before and after they quit the plaintiffs' service to induce other employees to leave. The parent conspiracy was to operate the plaintiffs' business by illegal means, and all the illegal acts resorted to from an early date were contemplated by the conspirators.

"Here we are dealing with a flagrant breach of trust during service with intent to reap the advantage contemplated afterwards," says the finding. "In such a case the fraud in service with intent to use afterwards and the use afterwards are both discountenanced by law. The utilization of the fraud cannot be legalized by the fact that, though that utilization was contemplated when the fraud was committed, the relation of master and servant had terminated before it was arrived at. The incorporation of the name Business Systems was itself one of the acts done for the purpose of carrying out the conspiracy to fraudulently obtain the plaintiffs' business."

The injunction should be made perpetual and relief granted.

There will be a reference to the master-in-ordinary to take the accounts of profits, or assess the damages or both as the plaintiffs may elect on the different claims. Costs of this action, inclusive of the entry of judgment, go to the plaintiffs; further directions and costs reserved.—Toronto Sunday World.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE VILLAGE PARSON" TO-NIGHT.

A new and intelligent play, "The Village Parson," will be presented at the opera house to-night. This piece comes highly endorsed as one of the strongest dramas produced in years. Care and skill has been exercised in construction of the plot, and the author has done his work well. The play deals with the affections of the heart, and holds the closest attention of the audience from start to finish. The company will be found fully equal in their respective roles, the management having used excellent judgment in selecting the players.

COLE & JOHNSON IN THE "SHOO-FLY REGIMENT."

Cole and Johnson, the authors and comedians, star in musical comedy. The first production will be their own original creation, "The Shoo-Fly Regiment," presented by a cast of all-star Afro-American players, including Tom Brown, Bob Kelly, Sam Lucas, A. Talbort, Andrew Tribble, Siren Navarro, Inez Clough, Anna Cook, Mollie Dill, Elizabeth Williams, and a selected chorus of forty. A car load of scenery and elegant costumes. At the Carman next Monday.

BLUECOATS' BUSY LIVES.

17,000 London "Cops" Cover a Beat of 699 Square Miles, and Make 127,-317 Arrests In One Year.

The many and varied duties which fall to the lot of the London policeman and the vast interests which he has to protect form the subject of a blue-book issued containing the annual report of the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police.

The total strength of the force at the end of last year was 17,210, and their "beat" extended over an area, excepting the city, included in a radius of fifteen miles from Charing Cross. This gives a total area of 699.-43 square miles.

The population of this wide district is 7,086,638, or, roughly speaking, about 412 persons to every policeman. The rateable value of the district is £50,959,879, but of the enormous total value of the property in charge of the police it is impossible to form any estimate.

Police Were Busy.

The principal duty of this large army of policemen was, of course, the prevention and detection of crime. The following table gives an idea of the extent of their work in this direction:

	1905.
Number of persons arrested	127,317
Convicted by magistrates	103,362
Convicted at sessions	3,176
Discharged by magistrates	20,068
Acquitted at sessions	631
Criminal offences reported	21,176
Persons arrested	15,474
Number of thefts of property	18,515
Persons arrested	12,850
Persons convicted	9,865
Persons acquitted	2,962
Summonses issued by police	32,469
Persons convicted	20,209
Persons discharged	2,260

It was not only in obtaining the conviction of offenders that the police were busy, however, for not only did they succeed in capturing the 9,865 thieves mentioned above, but of the £181,018 worth of property stolen by these light-fingered persons, they restored £32,915 worth to the owners.

Work Is Varied.

In many other ways, too, the police were busy, as the following record of a portion of their work during the year shows:—

	1905.
Lost people found	13,814

Courage is a necessity in a policeman, judging by the records found in the report. It is stated that special commendation was given to policemen in 279 cases for the display of exceptional bravery, varying from the stopping of a runaway horse to rescuing a man from a cellar in which he had been overcome by fumes. In forty of these cases the policemen received serious injuries.

Sore Feet.

Among other interesting facts contained in the report are the following:—

Sixty per cent. of the force are on duty at night.

The withdrawals from the men on duty owing to sick leave during the year average 423 daily.

The wage bill of the force amounts to £1,483,676 yearly, and the total cost is £1,903,430.

The number of motor-omnibuses in London, which at the end of 1904 was thirty-one, had risen by the end of 1905 to 241.

There were 6,996 hansoms, 3,935 four-wheelers, and nineteen motorcabs in London at the end of 1905.

There were 213 policemen off duty during the year owing to "sore feet."

Four policemen committed suicide during the year.

Two policemen were specially commended by magistrates for "humane treatment of destitute families."

Plated Farthings.

What a Scotland Yard detective described as "quite a new departure in counterfeiting" was revealed at Old street the other evening, when William Coates and John Martin, two working class men of about 25, were remanded on the dual charge of manufacturing counterfeit sixpences by electroplating farthings, and "defacing the current coin of the realm."

Detective-Sergeant Burnham on searching the prisoners' house found two small vices nailed on to a chest of drawers, some plating mixture in a saucer, a number of files, and thirteen or fourteen farthings.

Some of these had been plated after the reverse side had been filed off to erase the word farthing.

A Good Reason.

A certain colonel, elderly, irascible, and Irish, is extremely jealous of his property, which he has placarded with notice to trespassers. A few days ago he was startled to find a young fellow and his sweetheart enjoying an evening stroll through his grounds. Purple with rage he rushed at the pair, and shaking his stick ferociously in their faces, exclaimed: "What d'ye mean by coming here, ye young villains? Can ye not read?" "Yes," answered the youth, unabashed. "Then what did ye read on the notice at the gate? Eh! answer me that." "Well, sir," was the cool reply, "it said 'Private'—that's why we came."

Dear Lily Roots.

Forty years ago the Marquis of Bath paid $7 for three water lily roots to place in the lake at Longleat. They have run riot to such an extent that the present marquis has decided that next year the lake will be cleared of its vegetation. The water stretches for three-quarters of a mile, and to rid the lake of the tenacious plant it will have to be drained and dredged. The late marquis once said he would give £1,000 to get rid of the growth.

VARICOCELE CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $22 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

NAVAL RATINGS: THE STOKER.

(The Speaker.)

Twenty knots, and a call for more,
And the ladders ring to the running feet—
Down, down, down to the black iron floor,
Down to the world of furious heat
Where nothing matters but coal and steam,
And men who work for a spell and swoon,
Think of the cool night wind and the gleam
On the deck of a pale half moon.

Slice and feed, and climb to the main
For a minute's smoke and a glimpse of the stars,
Then four hours sleep and back again
To clear the clinkered furnace bars—
Back again to the cones of light,
The flying shovels, the white hot glare,
And if a stoker faints to-night—
Well, the Admiral, he won't care.

Below the glistening water line
He works in a heat that blights and slings,
But he sometimes shouts a joke to his mate,
And sometimes, even sings:
And if one day his heart gives out,
Pulling and pushing the slicing rod,
Three round of blank, and a prayer or two,
And a quiet grave, thank God.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie gave away eleven millions in charity last year, and Mr. Rockefeller seven. And one is again forcibly reminded of those popular banditti of the Middle Ages who took from those who could afford it to give to those who could not. It may be that the American people would never have supported these charities if Messrs. Rockefeller and Carnegie had not done the collecting; but it may be again that the American people would never have needed them.

Sir Victor Horsley, the famous London specialist, addressing the medical men of Sheffield recently, paid a high compliment to his professional colleagues in the Dominion. Referring to the recent visit of members of the British Medical Council to Canada, he dwelt on the impression which had been made on him and his associates by their reception in the Dominion, and suggested that the British Medical Association, with which he was so closely identified, might, after what they had seen on that visit, be much more truly called the Medical Association of the British Empire.

3 In One Family.

CURED OF SKIN DISEASE BY ZAM-BUK.

Once more Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm, has been proved vastly superior to ordinary remedies, and has cured where other preparations had signally failed. Three children in one family have been healed by it. This not only shows the power of Zam-Buk, but goes to prove how beneficial its pure herbal ingredients are to the delicate skin of children.

Mr. J. C. Bates, of Burk's Falls, reports the case referred to. He says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Zam-Buk as a cure for skin disease. My three children were all broken out with sores on face, hands and feet. Their condition was pitiable, and although I tried various ointments and salves, they did not seem to be able to get at the root of the evil, and the sores continued to spread. One day I saw a report in a local newspaper telling how beneficial Zam-Buk was for skin disease, ulcers, etc. I got a supply of the balm and applied it to the children's sores. Almost immediately they got relief, and the sores began to heal. Although the skin diseases had defied all the salves I had previously tried, in one week Zam-Buk overcame the trouble, and to-day the children have not a pimple or spot or mark of disease on their skin. For this grand result I have Zam-Buk to thank. It is a splendid healer."

Zam-Buk is thus shown to be altogether different and superior to ordinary remedies. It is a healing balm compounded from saps and essences of the finest known medicinal herbs. It has high antiseptic power, killing disease germs, which settle on sores and eruptions, etc., and which set up festering, blood poison and suppuration. It cures eczema, skin rashes, cuts, burns, bruises, abscesses, ulcers, acne, blackheads, ringworm, blood poison, etc. It heals cracked and chapped hands, cold sores, etc. As an embrocation it is also widely used, and gives speedy relief in cases of muscular rheumatism, sciatica, etc. Rubbed on the chest in cases of colds, it relieves the tightness and aching. All druggists sell at 50c a box, or may be obtained post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50. Send one cent stamp for dainty trial box.

F. S. Spence Resigns.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—The resignation of F. S. Spence as secretary of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance was accepted by the executive board yesterday. It takes effect at once. In the interim between now and the annual meeting (Feb. 21 and 22) the secretary's brother, Rev. Ben. H. Spence, has been appointed to act as secretary. Mr. Spence resigns because of ill-health. A committee was appointed to place on record the committee's appreciation of the work done by their secretary during the 23 years of his service.

SHAH'S SON TRIES SUICIDE.

Young Man In Huff Over Succession to Throne.

Paris, Jan. 16.—A special despatch received here from Teheran says that Malik Manseur Mirza, the second son of the late Shah, made an unsuccessful attempt Monday to commit suicide by taking opium.

Malik Manseur Mirza, according to recent advices from Teheran, created a scene in the death chamber of his father and was ordered out of the room by his brother, the present Shah. There has been considerable speculation concerning the ultimate fate of Malik. Two other brothers have not been on good terms for a long time past.

Another Girl In the Case

By OTHO B. SENGA

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

The fireman jerked open his flannel shirt a button lower and glared resentfully at the two well dressed young men who were examining with amused interest the small drivers and cylinders of his engine.

"Not a Pegasus, evidently," remarked one.

"No, nor yet a Hebe," laughed the other.

"If you two mutts are kicking against old 18 you'd better cut it out," interposed the fireman angrily.

"We meant no disrespect," answered the older of the two courteously. "Our attention was attracted because we'd never seen one like it before."

"The old girl is no beaut," continued the fireman, softening somewhat, "but she jumped from here to Boston at a mile a minute clip one day last month."

"That's a mighty good record. We felt there must be something remarkable about her," returned one appeasingly.

"If you've got a story, and I'm sure you have, come down and give it to us," urged the other, smiling winningly.

"She was a warm baby in her day," began the mollified fireman, "but she's shed her cow knocker, and for a good many years she's been doing nothing better than poking box cars and flats around here in the yard. But she got her dander up that day and yanked us over the rails in great shape."

"Something special, I suppose," encouraged the elder man, passing his cigar case.

"Something special! Well, I should say," emphasized the fireman, "we was the special—three of us—and old 18."

He rounded his lips and allowed the cigar smoke to escape in a long, vaporous cylinder.

"It was Sunday afternoon," reminiscently, "and about 3 o'clock when a young feller jumped off the trolley up there," indicating the street where the trolley cars ran to Andover, "and came slamming down into the station as red in the face as if he had buttoned a nest of hornets in with his vest. He bumped into old Buster—that's the station agent—and howled for a special.

"DASHED DOWN THE LINE AS IF SHE'D BEEN ON HER TRIAL TRIP."

"Buster told him he wa'n't running specials as a side line, and there wa'n't nothing about the yard anyway but old 18, and an old shifter like that was hardly the thing for a special.

"Well, the young feller talked all kinds of languages and showed all kinds of money. He wanted to go to New Haven. He'd got a telegram, but it didn't reach him until after 2 o'clock, and he'd got to be in Boston in time to catch the 4 p. m. Shore line express from the South station. There was no connections anyway from here, and the special he must have. It seems he was a student at the Phillips academy in Andover, and a rattling good feller he was too."

The fireman, artful story teller, paused to whet the interest of his listeners and puffed his cigar enjoyably.

"I'll bet there's a girl at the other end of the line!" cried the man who was looking for stories.

"Or a fortune," hazarded the other.

The fireman grinned at both impartially.

"The young feller's name was Hart, and he had a mighty convincing tongue in him, and the way he slung his argyments at old Buster showed he knew the way to a man's inside heart. He roped in Engineer Dan Duffy, too, and Dan said old 18 would do the trick if he could have the road.

"Old Buster kept the key tapping, and Conductor Tom Collins picked out the 'short end' for the train. Then Buster got the word back from Boston: 'All right. Give you the road.' And in just twenty-three minutes from the time young Hart had blew in with his roll and his convincing eloquence Duffy throwed the throttle wide open, and the old hooker dashed down the line as if she'd been on her trial trip. I jammed her with pine knots soaked in karesene, and Duffy never took his eyes off the rails.

"Old 18 soon showed her mettle, and no big engine passed us that Duffy didn't get a hand from the cab. Hart was game. We couldn't go too fast for him, and at easy stretches we must have struck a mile a minute. It was just 2:45 to a dot when we plunged into the long train house at the north station, old 18 snorting and humping like she understood she was a special.

"All the way from Reading to Boston in just fifteen minutes and thirty seconds, and we reckon the run at just about thirteen miles. I could almost see old 18 winking her weather eye at some of them big six wheelers, and the kind of a you've-did-well-Sissy air that they seemed to have as they looked down at her was enough to make a man laugh—a man who can see them things, you know."

The fireman paused and anxiously regarded his dead cigar.

"Young Hart made his train, of course?"

"Oh, yes; he had plenty of time. He jumped over to the other station on the 'L,' and we let old 18 cool off a little, and then she hitched back to Reading. But I've kinder noticed a new pitch to her whistle ever since, and I reckon the old girl knows she done a big thing that day."

"Light up again," urged the seeker after stories, handing the cigar case. "That isn't all?" suggestively.

"No. About two weeks after that young Hart run over from Andover one day and give one of these ere things to old Buster, one to Tom Collins, one to Dan Duffy and one to me, and mine," triumphantly, "is as big a Jim Dandy as the others. They're all just alike."

He took a small velvet case from his pocket, handling it gingerly with his grimy fingers.

One of his companions took it and pressed the spring, disclosing a small scarfpin—a knot of gold with a tiny diamond point.

"That ere little stone's a real di'mond," said the fireman proudly. "No ground glass about that. I wear it when I dress up and go some places."

"It's all right—a fine thing," admired his new friends.

"Well, goodby—them's good cigars—see you again some time, maybe," dropping the velvet case into his pocket and turning toward his cab.

"Hold on," cried the story gatherer, catching him by the arm, "that isn't all! What about the girl in New Haven?"

The fireman grinned tantalizing; then his face sobered.

"I'm afraid you two gents is going to be disappointed. There ain't no girl in this story—only the woman that every man owes his best to. A man may have half a dozen sweethearts if he's lucky, but he never can have but one mother," raising his greasy cap reverently. "Hart's mother was dying, they thought, that day when old 18 humped herself over the rails with the boy, but she got well, and it was her that sent us the pins. So long, gents. Put the story in the paper if you like. It's worth printing, dead sure!"

The Poor Child's Advantages.

"My most serious problem is how I can give my children the advantage of the poor man's," McClure's Magazine quotes a rich man as saying and makes this comment: The modern system of education employed by the rich and well to do and secured often at infinite self sacrifice even by those of very moderate means obscures rather than brings into light the realities. No material provision, however ample and intelligent, can alone make for verity. No amount of "opportunities" or "advantages," however unusual, are sufficient to awaken the soul. Indeed in the very multiplying of material advantages the spirit of the child is more often than not smothered and distorted. Too many masters, too many toys, too many tasks. The poor little head and heart have neither strength nor time for brooding and dreaming in the forest and field, as young Schurz had. He has no long evenings for sitting around a family table or before a fire reading and talking, no spur to find things to do and to find things to think about. The attention continually distracted, the imagination burdened, the sense of pleasure overfed, what time, what strength, is there for the child of the very rich, brought up in the usual way, to develop?

Mathematical Love.

"Do you love me as much as I love you?"

The Barnard college girl smiled. "Do you wish me to prove it?" she said.

For answer he bent forward, expecting to receive the usual binding of the promise.

"I mean mathematically," she continued, drawing her face back. "Now, don't be cross. Listen! We belong to a certain circle. We are the radii of that circle. Two radii of a circle are equal to a third radius of the same circle."

He wasn't good at mathematics, but he conceded the point.

"Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Well, supposing that you and I are equal to X, an unknown quantity."

He was perfectly willing to suppose anything.

"X is our love for each other. We are equal to X. Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Therefore I must love you in the same ratio that you love me!"

He didn't wait for any more mathematics. The "X" became X'tasy!—New York Press.

An Insinuation.

"I have no earthly use for swift young men," said the spinster who was beginning to carry weight for age.

"No, I suppose not," rejoined the pretty widow. "They are awfully hard to catch."—Pick-Me-Up.

HUMOR

STORY WITH A MORAL.

Two Fleas That Didn't Know When to Let Well Enough Alone.

Two fleas were sitting on a dog who was wandering about the streets when one of them said: "Brother, what a degraded, half starved lot is ours. Here we have chosen to unite ourselves to a common street cur, who wanders from alley to alley. We see nothing but the most dismal sights. We hear no elevating conversation or delightful small talk. Surely there ought to be something better in store for us than this."

"You are right," said the second flea. "Look, my brother! Here is a carriage approaching. It is evidently some highborn lady bent on a charitable enterprise. In her lap sits such a beautiful little terrier. Let us therefore make an effort to better ourselves."

"Splendid!" said the first flea. "We will live amid the most luxurious surroundings. We will feed on the fat of the land. We will sleep at night in a clean bed."

And so in a few bold but successful jumps as the carriage stopped they both landed simultaneously on the back of the terrier. In a short time they were driven to their new home.

So delighted were they with their new life that the two fleas could scarcely contain themselves for joy.

Their manifestations, however, were so unusual that the terrier frantically scratched himself, which attracted the attention of his mistress, who immediately sent for a physician, who at once gave the dog such a radical treatment that the two fleas were slowly drowned in a horrible fluid that came like a flood and surprised them before they were able to get away.

"Alas, brother!" said the first flea as he gave a dying gasp, "Why could we not have been satisfied with our humble lot?"

A Misunderstanding.

At the breakfast table in one of the mining towns the landlady gave Mr. Muggins a severe look and said:

"Mr. Muggins, I understand that you have been circulating injurious reports about my house."

"How, madam?"

"I understand that you said you had used better butter than I have here to grease wagons with."

"I did say so, madam, but not to injure your house. I have used better butter, madam, to grease wagons, but I wouldn't do it again. I'd sell it to you."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Process of Elimination.

"What became of the four act play you were writing last summer?" they asked her at the high tea.

"I took it to a playwright," she replied, "who kept it four months, then gave it back to me, saying it was no earthly good as a four act play, but would make a very strong one act curtain raiser.

"I made a one act play of it and took it to a manager. I suppose he will give it back to me in another four months and tell me to cut it out altogether."—New York Press.

In One Braid.

"She has grown to be a very beautiful girl," said Jigley. "Her hair is positively golden."

"Indeed! That's odd," said Kidder. "I knew her when she was a little girl."

"Well?"

"Well, it was merely plaited then."—Philadelphia Press.

NOTICE.

J. S. McKeown, Our well Known Druggist Makes a Proposition to the People of Belleville.

ALL INTERESTED ARE ADVISED TO ACCEPT.

Know, therefore, that I, J. S. McKeown, druggist, of this city, do hereby agree to furnish all the medicine necessary to restore to health any sick persons in Belleville. Should the medicine fail to accomplish what I guarantee, it will be absolutely free.

Let every person who is run down, weakened from any cause, sickness, or pulmonary disease — old people—nursing mothers—pale, debilitated women and children, or those troubled with hard colds, hacking coughs, or incipient consumption, come to my store, and get a bottle of Vinol, yes, two or three bottles, and if it does not accomplish what I guarantee it will, I will without question refund every dollar they pay me for it. I have seen such wonderful results from Vinol and have received so many unsolicited testimonials that I know what it will do.

This is a fair and square offer, honorably made, and with the expectation that it will be accepted by all people in ill health in Belleville.

If you don't already know what Vinol is let me tell you. Vinol is the modernized preparation of cod liver oil. It does not contain a drop of oil, yet it positively does—mind you I give you my word for this—it positively does contain every one of the fifty odd medicinal curative elements which are taken from fresh cods' livers. We have now been selling and recommending Vinol for some time, and without hesitation we say it is the grandest and best rebuilder of bodily strength and health we ever had in our store.

Don't you think you had better accept my offer? J. S. McKeown, druggist.

CUTTLEFISH FARMS.

Where the Queer Creatures Are Cultivated to Be Milked.

Does any one know that cuttlefish are cultivated on farms to be milked? These cuttlefish farms are located on the coasts of Great Britain, and the cuttlefish are kept in tanks or ponds to be milked of their ink. The pond or tank is connected with the sea by a pipe, and a thousand or more cuttles are kept in a single one.

They form a most curious sight as they move about, trailing their long arms and staring out of their bulging eyes. They are guarded by screens which prevent them from being scared, for if they are suddenly frightened they will squirt their milk into the water, and it would therefore be lost. This fluid or milk is very valuable, and a cuttle will yield about $3 worth a year. It is secreted in a bag which can be opened and closed at will, the cuttle ejecting the fluid to darken the water so that it may escape unseen when attacked.

The best cuttlefish are procured in China, where for some reason or other they produce the best quality of milk. When the farmer considers it opportune to milk the cuttles he proceeds by opening the sluices of the pond and gently agitating the water. The cuttles then swim around the pond, and as soon as one passes through the sluice is closed. The cuttle passes down a small channel into a basin or metal receptacle, and as soon as it is securely there the water is drained off. It is then frightened and at once squirts the fluid from the bag. When it is exhausted it is lifted out, the milk is collected and the basin prepared for another.

MODERN CIVILIZATION.

Its Complexity, Hurry and Worry Shortening Our Lives.

Not long ago while traveling I chanced to stop at a village on the river Rhine, where I found an astonishing number of old people. There were a dozen over a hundred years of age and many from eighty years old up to the century mark, yet straight and vigorous. One woman nearly a hundred years old was earning her living by picking hops. Her grandchildren were middle aged. It was quite wonderful. But there was no mystery about it. It was merely the effect of a simple life spent largely in the fields, with plain diet, consisting of a few vegetables and fruits, little meat, and native beer and wine for beverages.

Nothing can be more obvious than that the very complexity of our modern civilization is shortening our lives. But of all the evils that afflict us the worst and most destructive are hurry and worry. Hurry drives the body machine beyond its capacity, while worry racks it inwardly. Of the two worry is probably the worse. This might indeed be called the age of worry. Because of the intense nervous strain to which we are subjected we do vastly more worrying than did our forbears. The average man of today is continually surrounded and pursued by phantom troubles, which, though few of them ever materialize into realities, haunt him continually, ruining his peace of mind and injuring his health.

Getting Married.

I don't know myself what getting married feels like, but it cannot be much more exciting than watching other people getting married. Indeed, I always get something like palpitation of the heart just before the priest utters the final fateful words, "I declare you man and wife." Half a second before you were still free. Half a second after you were bound for the term of your natural life. Half a second before you had only to dash the book from the priest's hands and put your hands over his mouth, and, though thus giddily swinging on to the brink of the precipice, you are saved. Half a second after—

All the king's horses and all the king's men
Cannot make you a bachelor again.

It is the knife edge moment betwixt time and eternity.—From Le Gallienne's "His Quest of the Golden Girl."

The Name "Fife."

The origin of the name Fife is not known. One historian tries to show that it comes from the Celtic word veach, a Pict, and means that the district was inhabited by Picts, but that is obviously absurd, as Fife was not specially the home of any of the Pictish nations. The tradition that finds greatest favor is related by a monk, who states that the first known possessor of the district which has since grown into the kingdom of Fife was one Fifus Duffus, a famous chieftain whose date is lost in the mists of antiquity.

He Cheapened Pens.

Sir Josiah Mason was, according to his biography, walking in Bull street, Birmingham, in the year 1828 when he saw some steel pens, price 3s. 6d. each. Josiah was a hard up maker of split rings. No sooner had he seen the pens than he went home, made some better than those in the shop, sent them up to London and got a large order by return. At thirty years of age Mason's capital was 30 shillings. At sixty he had given away £400,000.

Hard Luck.

"Why does Baron Hoffman look so dejected lately?"

"Haven't you heard? He married a rich widow not long ago, and now a banker has absconded with all her money."

In Egypt the cat was sacred to the moon, and when a cat died its master shaved off his eyebrows in sign of mourning.

The Influence of the Farm.

The farm is the best security we have for our social well being, and whatever promotes interest there, whatever raises it in intelligence and scientific spirit, is one of the most comforting influences of our civilization. And so to have our young men imbued with the true agricultural spirit, to turn away from the adventures of the commercial life and the allurements of mere money making to the simple, productive, independent life on the farm, is one of the richest promises in our educational system. For there is where it belongs—to the expanding mind force of the nation. The finest triumphs of the next fifty years, results that will go further than all other enterprise in blessing men, will be won on the farm. There is a science of soil culture, and the art that is to be based upon it will open wide the door to men of thought and refinement. The answer of the old artist that he mixed his paint with brains is akin to the experience in the farming of the future, which will mix brains with the soil.

He Knew Them.

"What's up, Tommy?" said a good natured London coster, who was passing, to a small boy who was sobbing bitterly.

"Oh, me farden! Hi've lorst me brite farden!" wailed the little lad, continuing his search.

"'Ere, mates," said the man to some others standing near, "let's help the pore kid find 'is farden." And the company set to work.

In a few moments one of them picked up the missing coin.

"'Ere y'are, Tommy," he said; "'ere's yer farden."

Then, looking at it in the light of a street lamp, "W'y, it ain't a farden at all; it's a 'arf quid."

"Garn!" said the boy as he snatched away the coin. "D'ye think Hi was goin' to let yew blokes know hit was a 'arf thick 'un? W'y, wun of yer would 'a' 'ad 'is foot on it afore Hi'd 'ad time ter turn rahnd."

And he vanished round the corner like a streak of lightning.—London Answers.

Hunting the Bird of Paradise.

Inside a queer, birdcage-like wicker contrivance built high up in a tree the Aru Islander will watch patiently for days to get a shot at a bird of paradise, perhaps the loveliest of nature's creations. His food is supplied every morning by another native, who remains at the foot of the tree during the day to secure any bird which may fall, killed or stunned. Only the adult males, with long plumes, are sought after, for were not this the case this beautiful species would long ago have become extinct. To secure living specimens the natives employ an arrow having three prongs at the end. These prongs are barbed on the inside, and the object is to shoot at the legs of the bird, which, when hit, flutters helplessly to the ground.—A. E. Pratt in Wide World Magazine.

Matter of Fact Lovemaking.

For downright prose Dr. Johnson's offer of hand and heart to his second wife would be hard to beat. "My dear woman," said Johnson, "I am a hardworking man and withal something of a philosopher. I am, as you know, very poor. I have always been respectable myself, but I grieve to tell you that one of my uncles was hung." "I have less money than you, doctor," demurely answered the lady, "but I shall try to be philosophical too. None of my relatives have ever been hung, but I have several who ought to be." "Providence and philosophy have evidently mated us, my good woman," said the doctor as he pressed a chaste salute on the lady's brow.

Defrauding the Waiter.

In a Parisian cafe an American ordered a hors d'oeuvre, sole, agneau pre sale, artichoke salad, peche Melba, and so on, and when the waiter brought him a bill of 20 francs he paid it like a man. After his change was brought he counted it and pushed a franc toward the waiter for a tip. But the man, pushing back the franc, said in gentle reproach:

"Pardon, monsieur, but that is the counterfeit franc."—Argonaut.

His Income.

"They say you get 250 marks a month. I can't believe it. Tell me how."

"I get 110 marks salary; then I don't pay my rent, 40 marks; that's 150 marks; I owe the milkman 30 marks; that's 180 marks; my butcher 40 marks, 220 marks, and every month I raise 30 marks out of my friends, making an income of 250 marks a month!"

For a Slender Silver Ring

...By...
M. MAUDE WRIGHT

"'I never will marry a man who does not think enough of me to give me anything less than a diamond ring.' Those are the very words I used," said Amelia Jones as she flashed a diamond before Mrs. Berkley's astonished eyes.

"And Bob?"

"Oh, he first looked surprised, then angry; muttered something about the ring being set with my birthday stone and that it was the best he could afford. Then he walked off without another word."

"Of course he came back or you would not be wearing the ring."

"I must confess that I was a little bit frightened, for I do think a heap of Bob, and you never know what a man will do, but he came back the very next day and brought me this beautiful diamond ring. You see, he really cares for me," said Amelia.

"Well," said Mrs. Berkley, "I don't see how he could afford it, for he is not as well off as Joe was before we were married."

A sudden thought struck her, for she slyly concealed her left hand, but not before Amelia had noticed the action.

"Oh, Mrs. Berkley," she said impulsively, "do let me see your wedding ring. I do not remember noticing it. I know it must be something fine, for they do say that Joe Berkley was heels over head in love with you before you were married."

A flush spread over Mrs. Berkley's face.

"It is not a diamond," she faltered.

"I am sure—then, it is something equally nice. Now, Mrs. Berkley, please don't be so modest," said Amelia as she wickedly pulled the hand from its hiding place, revealing a very slender band of silver.

"Oh!" Perhaps Amelia put more meaning into this exclamation than she intended, but there certainly was scorn. "Is this the kind of a ring Mr. Berkley gave you? He should be ashamed of himself, and he could have afforded to give you a diamond ring better than Bob could afford to give me one. Of course he cared for you, but men have strange ways of showing their love sometimes."

The flush on Mrs. Berkley's face grew deeper as she pulled her hand away.

"It was made out of a dime." There was no further explanation. "I left some beans in the oven and must go," said she and left.

When she reached her home she went up to her room and snatched the ring from her finger as if it burned and threw it into a bureau drawer out of sight.

"I never will wear it again—never!" She stamped her foot angrily on the carpet. "He didn't care for me or he never would have given me a ring that would hold me up to scorn. Oh, yes; he has been good to me, but then he is good to his clerks, his dog and everything else." Her pride had been wounded sorely.

She hoped her husband would miss the ring and thus give her a chance to say something, but if he did not miss the ring he missed something else—her usual cheery chat.

"Are you ill, Frances?" he asked, with real concern in his voice.

"No," she answered curtly.

"Has anything happened, then?"

"Oh, enough has happened," she said coldly.

Her tones caused him apprehension.

"Amelia Jones and Bob Dalesford are engaged," she said finally, not knowing just how to begin.

"Is that all?" he laughed.

Mrs. Berkley did not smile.

"Bob gave Amelia a beautiful diamond ring, which showed that he cared something for her."

Something in her tone made him look down at the finger that should have worn the wedding ring.

She noticed his glance and answered it. "I never will wear it again, for you did not care anything for me when you gave me such a ring as that—a paltry ten cent ring, a target for ridicule! You could have afforded to have given me a diamond ring better than Bob Dalesford could afford to give Amelia one, yet you did not even give me a gold one—and—and—and you pretended to love me! I was a fool. I know better now."

Mr. Berkley winced as if he had been struck. He rose and left the room, and Mrs. Berkley noticed with a pang at her heart that his usually straight shoulders were bent as from age, yet she did not call him back.

Nothing more was said about the ring, and things went on much as usual, only instead of cheer, sunshine and a sympathy there were silence, gloom and misunderstanding. Mrs. Berkley could not help noticing the haggard look that had settled down on her husband's face, and when she looked into the glass she knew that her own face was getting pale.

Several days had passed thus when another diamond was flashed before Mrs. Berkley's eyes; this time the ring was in the hand of her husband.

"I have brought you a diamond to show that I care for you—yes, I care very much indeed," he said earnestly. "Give me your hand, and we will see how it will fit." He tried to speak playfully.

"I don't want the diamond. How can I wear two wedding rings?"

Then he noticed the slender silver band on her finger. A happy light lit up his face.

"I want you to wear the diamond ring anyway. Give me the silver ring, and I will wear it next my heart out of sight."

"I am going to wear the silver ring always!" said Mrs. Berkley determinedly. Then, suddenly and severely, "Joe Berkley, how much did you pay for that diamond?"

"Three hundred dollars."

"Where did you get the money? You told me when you bought that last lot of goods that you only had $50 left in the bank." A frightened look came into her face. "You didn't"—

"No, I did not borrow or steal it. I sold the store, and tomorrow I take my old place as clerk in it, just where I was when we were married."

"Joe Berkley, I had just come to the conclusion that I was a fool, but I never dreamed you were one too!"

"I thought a diamond was necessary to show that I loved you."

"Well, if you care for me now you will take that ring back to the jewelers, and then you will march right down the street and buy back the store. Make whatever explanations you wish, but buy back the store."

The very next day Mrs. Berkley went to call on Amelia Jones.

"Oh, Mrs. Berkley, how glad I am to see you. I used you so horrid the other day. Can you ever forgive me?" exclaimed Amelia as she drew her into the room.

"Certainly. There was a little bit of romance in connection with the ring made out of a dime that I thought you would be interested in," began Mrs. Berkley without any preliminaries as soon as she was seated. "I first met Mr. Berkley on a street car. I pulled out a dime to pay the conductor when it slipped from my fingers and fell to the floor. Joe Berkley, who was sitting near, sprang up to search for it, but just then the car stopped at my destination, and I had no time to wait for the lost coin. Mr. Berkley slipped a nickel into my hand, saying he would pay my fare and keep the dime when he found it. I thanked him and left the car. The next day we met on the car again, and of course it was natural that I should ask him if he had found the dime. He had, and this opened the way for further conversation. We met often after this, and—well, you know the rest. Mr. Berkley had the dime made into a ring, and he asked me to wear it always.

"You see why I prize it above any diamond ring he could give me." Her voice was full of feeling as she finished.

"How fine!" Amelia's eyes were shining with a new light. "No, the kind of a ring does not matter, after all," she added softly as if to herself. "I believe I will tell Bob that I prefer the ring set with my birthday stone; he really could not afford the diamond anyway."

We Would All Like It.

A $75,000 automobile rolled through the $60,000 bronze gates and up the $35,000 winding avenue to the $20,000 marble steps. Descending from the machine, the billionaire paused a moment to view the smiling $500,000 landscape. Across the $90,000 lawn a $125,000 silver lake lay sleeping in the shades of early summer evening, and beyond it rose a lordly $80,000 hill, whose crest, cloaked with forest at an expense of $200,000, glowed in the last golden rays of the setting sun. The billionaire sank luxuriously into a $2,000 ivory porch chair and rested his feet on the rosewood railing of the $160,000 veranda. "It is pleasant," he observed, "to get back to nature once in awhile. After the cares and the worries of the business day I certainly love to run out to this quiet little $00,000,000 country club of ours and taste a bit of simple life. It is good to keep in touch with the soil, for what is man but dust after all?" Feeling restored, he passed in through the $400,000 doorway to his $1,500 dinner.—Newark News.

Munchausen.

Many a reader of the fictitious adventures of the famous hero of the "Munchausenaid" (which was first published in English at Oxford during the lifetime of this prince of all liars) has no conception that the hero was a real person. Baron Hieronymus Karl Freidrich von Munchausen was a Hanoverian nobleman, a subject of the first three Georges. He was born in 1720 and died in 1797. He took service in a Russian cavalry regiment, but retired in old age to his ancestral estate at Bodenwerder, in Hanover, where he became notorious for the magnificent lies about his military adventures with which he used to entertain his neighbors at his hospitable board. A collection of these stories, entitled "Vade-mecum fur lustige Leute," was published at Berlin in 1781 without the baron's permission. The English work, "Baron Munchausen's Narrative of His Marvelous Travels and Campaigns In Russia," was an expansion and improvement of the Berlin collection.

Attending to the Ears.

It is specially needful to daily remove the wax at the entrance of the ear, or it will harden and become most unsightly. This wax must never be removed by a sharp instrument, or the delicate membrane inside the ears will be injured, and inflammation may ensue, which might eventually cause deafness. If the ears irritate, gently rub them with the fingers. Do not allow anything else to be used. Warm water is better to use to wash them with than cold, and unscented soap is preferable to scented. If the wax becomes very hard, it can be easily softened by pouring in a few drops of tepid olive oil at night. Then plug the ear with cotton wool and sleep with that ear uppermost. In the morning gently syringe it out with soap and warm water, using an ear syringe for the purpose. If you cannot get pure olive oil, warmed glycerin will answer the purpose equally well.

SIDNEY COUNCIL.

Town Hall, Sidney,
Jan. 14, 1907.

The following, duly elected, filed their declarations of qualification and declarations of office with the Clerk and took their seats: Stanley T. Vandervoort, Reeve; Charles Ketcheson, Deputy Reeve; John Alexander Nugent, Fred R. Mallory, Richard Newton Bird, Councillors.

A communication was read from J. Ross Robertson, Toronto, asking aid for the Hospital for Sick Children.

Moved by Mr. Nugent, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that Council make the usual grant, $5.—Carried.

A communication was read from the Ontario Municipal Association, asking Legislature to amend clause 606 Con. Mun. Act re liability of corporations as to damages on highway.

Moved by Mr. Ketcheson, seconded by Mr. Nugent, that the above petition be signed on behalf of council and forwarded to M. B. Morrison, M.P.P.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Mallory, seconded by Mr. Nugent, that the following accounts be paid: Election expenses, $94.57; F. M. Clarke, Division Court Clerk (balance of costs, Hogle vs. Township of Sidney), $7.25; witness fees (defence), Hogle vs. Township of Sidney, $21.10.—Carried.

A communication was read from Mr. S. Howell, agent for the Molsons Bank, Frankford, soliciting the township account for the Frankford branch of the above bank.

Moved by Mr. Nugent, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that the funds of the township be deposited in Frankford branch of the Molsons Bank, and that the Treasurer be instructed to have all moneys transferred to the above bank.—Carried.

All Township of Sidney cheques to be payable at par at Belleville, Trenton and Frankford, and any other points where the Molsons Bank has special arrangements.

The following by-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered 533, 534 and 535 consecutively:

A by-law to appoint a Medical Health Officer, members of the Board of Health and Sanitary Inspector.

The blanks were filled in as follows:

M.H.O.—Dr. J. C. Simmons.

Members of Board of Health—Stanley T. Vandervoort, Wm. Griffin, Harry Ketcheson and A. M. Chapman.

Sanitary Inspector—W. W. Pettet.

A by-law appointing Assessors for 1907.

The blanks were filled in with the names of Wm. A. Shaw and James Harry.

A by-law to appoint Auditors.

The blanks were filled in with the names of E. F. Turley and Clement H. Ketcheson.

Moved by Mr. Bird, seconded by Mr. Mallory, that the Road Surveyor be instructed to notify the various foremen who have been in his employ for the past year to attend to the clearing of snow from the township roads wherever necessary, and that no snow shovelling be paid unless so ordered.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Mallory, seconded by Mr. Nugent, that this Council urge our County Councillors to use all their influence to induce the County Gravel Roads Committee to drain the north side of Mill street in the Village of Frankford, from Geo. Weston's corner proceeding westward, to take in all that part of Mill street which is now troubled with stagnant water.—Carried.

Moved by S. Vandervoort, seconded by A. Nugent, that this Council now adjourn until Monday, 25th day of March, at 10 a.m.—Carried.

MELVILLE.

Mr. R. Eaton has returned from the Northwest.

A number of our young folks spent Friday evening at Allisonville, the guest of Miss Ida Boyd.

Mrs. S. Weeks is spending the winter in Napanee.

Mr. Freeman French is repairing his house.

Mrs. John Kinnear, who has been sick for some time, is somewhat better.

Miss Mina French has been for the past week visiting Mr. G. Murphy's.

Miss Lizzie Morton, of Tweed, is visiting friends here.

FULLER.

The recent snowfall has accommodated us with fairly good sleighing of which many of our young people are taking advantage.

Mr. David McCumber of this place, is very ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. M. J. Hallett, of Thomasburg, entertained a few of her friends from th's place on Tuesday evening last. Among the guests was Mrs. Frederick Goodman, of Picton.

Mrs. Albert Geen, of Tweed, is the guest of Mrs. John Geen for a few days.

Miss Branon, of Strathroy, started on Monday morning to teach school in this place. We wish her good success.

Miss Gladys Geen is ill with bronchitis.

Address & Presentation.

A very pleasing event occurred at an entertainment recently given in Wes[illegible] Church, Plainfield, when Mrs. E. Outwater, organist of that church, was presented with a magnificent silver tea seat and tray, and also a beautifully carved handkerchief box, and silk handkerchief, from her Sunday school class. Mrs. Outwater made a feeling reply.

Cut this out and take it to R. Templeton & Co's drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For biliousness and constipation they are unequalled. They improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels.

CHATTERTON.

The mild weather has robbed us of our beautiful sleighing.

La grippe is visiting a number of old friends again.

Mrs. Charles Dafoe spent Sunday last in Belleville.

Going to sales is the order of the day.

Mrs. S. Morden has returned home after spending her holidays in Bancroft.

Miss Ruth Lancaster is spending her holidays visiting friends in Belleville.

Mr. A. Frederick is still very ill; also Mr. Dean Sine.

Our teacher, Miss L. Johnson, received the sad intelligence of the death of her youngest sister on Thursday last. We extend to Miss Johnson our heartfelt sympathy.

The Eclipse cheese factory is being rapidly rebuilt.

Miss Lena Smith entertained friends one day lately.

Mr. Ed. Sine, wife and family spent Tuesday evening the guests of Mr. Wm. Smith.

Mr. Perry Sine intends leaving shortly for the great Northwest. We join in wishing him bon voyage.

Now that the elections are over the men have quieted down again. We congratulate Mr. Bird on his success.

SECOND LINE THURLOW.

Mr. J. C. Sutton, Colebrook, is visiting his father, Mr. Jas. Sutton.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson, Guelph, are the guests of Mrs. T. Stickney.

Mr. John Kelly spent one evening of last week with his sister, Mrs. McHenry, Point Ann.

Mr. Wesley Henderson has bought a farm from Mrs. Forgia on the second line.

Mr. Noble Brown, who for the past year has been with Mr. D. McDonald, has renewed his contract again for the present year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, of Trenton, were guests of her sister, Mrs. S. Sutton, one day last week.

A number from this place attended the week of prayer at Shannonville.

THE KING'S FOOD.

Explanation of the Ancient Board of Green Cloth.

With regard to the board of green cloth it is one of the most ancient institutions of the English court, is composed of the lord steward, of the treasurer, and of the controller of the household, as well as of several minor officials, and derives its name from the green cloth on the table at which the officials sit on the occasion of their meetings. It has charge not only of the accounts and of the victualing of the royal household, but likewise of the exercise of a number of legal prerogatives and immunities pertaining to the residences of the sovereign. The board of green cloth is, in fact, the council of the lord high steward, who in ancient days bore the title of seneschal, and who, subject of course, to the sovereign, enjoys jurisdiction, independent of the ordinary tribunals of the land, over all the inmates of the royal palaces and royal parks, and over the people connected therewith. Indeed, the lord steward, in conjunction with his board of green cloth, has the rights of life and death over offenders, and the power of selecting a jury from among the servants of the sovereign.

In these modern times it is doubtful whether the lord high steward would be willing to exercise his prerogative of sitting in judgment upon a case of felony, such as, for instance, a murder committed within the precincts of Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle, and he would probably delegate his authority to one of the judges of the High Court of Justice to deal with the case. In fact, he does something of the kind at the Ascot races. The Ascot race course, as everybody knows, forms part of the royal domain of Windsor, and since it has become so popular as a race meeting during the Ascot week in midsummer, it has been found necessary to devise some means of administering summary justice on the spot.

Powers of the Lord Steward.

Accordingly the lord steward of the household each year secures the services of the senior police magistrate of the metropolis for the Ascot week, and the magistrate in question, by virtue of the authority delegated to him by the lord steward, holds court in his name in a room provided for the purpose beneath the grandstand and inflicts penalties on the thieves and toughs who are brought before him charged with offenses committed upon the racecourse.

The last occasion on which the lord steward dealt with a case of homicide was when the mysterious murder of Senlis, the Swiss valet of the Duke of Cumberland, afterward first King of Hanover, took place in St. James' Palace. The duke was the subject of such general execration that popular sentiment did not hesitate to lay the crime at the door of this son of George III. But the coroner's jury, recruited by the lord steward and by the board of green cloth from among the King's servants, absolved the duke of all responsibility and rendered a verdict of murder by unknown persons.

The lord high steward receives his charge immediately from the sovereign, and by virtue of his office takes precedence of all dukes who do not happen to be princes of the reigning house. The immediate direction of the royal household "below stairs," that is, the kitchens, the domestic servants, etc., is in his hands, and in those of the board of green cloth. He and the latter are responsible for the expenditures and for the supplies. But virtually his authority extends over the entire court, even the chamber, the chapel, and the stables. The lord steward's insignia of office is a white wand or staff, which he carries in the presence of the sovereign, but which on state occasions, when the monarch is not present, is borne before him by a footman, bareheaded. On the death of the sovereign from whom he has received the white staff he breaks it over the royal bier at the close of the obsequies to indicate that his office has ceased and that there is no longer any board of green cloth.

Fate of Sunken Ships.

What becomes of the ship that sinks in midocean? If it is of wood it takes in the first place, considerable time for it to reach the bottom. In a hundred or more fathoms of water a quarter of an hour will elapse before the ship reaches the bottom. It sinks slowly, and when the bottom is reached, it falls gently into the soft, cozy bed, with no crash or breaking.

Of course, if it is laden with pig iron or corresponding substances, or if it is an iron ship, it sinks rapidly and sometimes strikes the bottom with such force as to smash in pieces. Once sunken a ship becomes the prey of the countless inhabitants of the ocean.

They swarm over and through the great boat and make it their home. Besides this, they cover every inch of the boat with a thick layer of lime. This takes time, of course, and when one generation dies another continues the work, until finally the ship is so laden with heavy incrustations, corals, sponges and barnacles that, if wood, the creaking timbers fall apart and slowly but surely are absorbed in the waste at the sea bottom.

Cabby and His Fare.

"Dear me, cabby," said an old lady, as she lighted from a fourwheeler at Liverpool Street Station, "your horse's knees are bad."

"Don't you go and think it's becos 'e's got into a silly 'abit of tryin' to stand on 'is 'ead in the street, ma'am, 'cos it ain't," was the reply. "That there 'oss is a serious thinkin' 'oss, 'e is, ma'am; a werry prayerful animile 'e is, too. 'E's been praying this last six year as 'ow 'is pore old master'll one o' these days come across a kind-'carted party what'll give 'im a copper or two over 'is bare fare, but, Lor' bless yer, ma'am," he added, as he looked at the shilling the old lady had handed him, "'e's losin' faith fast, and unless something soon 'appens 'e'll die a bloomin' hinfidel."

MRS. MARY QUACKENBOS.

She Is a Special Assistant United States District Attorney.

Mrs. Mary Grace Quackenbos, one of New York's best known woman lawyers, holds the responsible position of special assistant United States district attorney, to which she was appointed by Henry L. Stimson, United States district attorney.

Mrs. Quackenbos is the first woman who has attained so important a position in the legal profession. Her energy and thoroughness in investigating peonage cases in the lumber and turpentine camps of the south, which had come to her notice as representative of the People's Law firm, brought to her the recognition of the United States district attorney.

Mrs. Quackenbos' rise in the profession of law has been remarkable. Admitted to the bar in July, 1904, she has in the short space of time since then figured in several celebrated cases. Perhaps the best known of these was the case of Mrs. Antoinette Tolla, murderess, of Kingsland, N. J., whom she saved from the gallows. On March 9, 1905, three days before Mrs. Tolla was to hang, Mrs. Quackenbos, after an untiring week's effort, induced the board of pardons of New Jersey to commute this death penalty to seven and a half years' imprisonment.

MRS. MARY GRACE QUACKENBOS.

Mrs. Quackenbos has devoted her attention chiefly to the philanthropic side of the law, having been first connected with the Legal Aid society and later with the People's Law firm, a concern interested in the securing of legal rights for the unfortunate. Because of her humane and unselfish work there are many among the unfortunate poor who have cause to remember Mrs. Quackenbos with great gratitude for the generous services she has rendered both as attorney and as friend.—New York World.

Treatment of Clothes.

A bit of real lace often will contribute greatly to the style of a frock, and it is an excellent plan to rip any lace trimming from garments before they are thrown aside.

No matter how badly soiled, every scrap of lace is worth saving. And this applies to the imitation as well as to the real, for if there is only sufficient to trim a stock collar it may be used for that purpose very conveniently and effectively on some future occasion, and as lace does not occupy a great deal of space and is not so popular with moths as are many other materials it may be easily preserved.

You ought to save all the pieces of velvet, if they are not hopelessly soiled, always remembering, however, to brush them thoroughly first and then roll them around a cylinder.

This same treatment should be accorded to ribbons, silks or satin as well, for if they are worth keeping at all they are worth keeping in good condition.

Eternal vigilance is the only salvation of gloves. Never wear a pair that has even the smallest tear or lacks a single button. In their most decrepit days they must neither be rolled into a ball nor squeezed into a shapeless wad, and be sure to give a sufficiently large size, for not only does a glove that is too small disfigure the hand, but its period of usefulness is certain to be brief.

A net veil that has the misfortune to get caught out of doors in a storm is not necessarily a ruined veil, for by carefully detaching it from the hat, in order not to tear the mesh, and then pinning it over a pillow the impromptu bath will sometimes prove rather a blessing than otherwise, and the original stiffness will be renewed.

Chiffon veils stand considerable rough usage, and the black ones will sometimes survive a season of almost continuous wear if only they are not folded over when damp.—New York American.

The Wife's Influence.

Every married woman, no matter how limited her life may seem, no matter how shut up she may be in the nursery or the kitchen, has a means of contact with the great world in the man who goes out into it—has a means of influence on it through him. Seen or unseen, it is there. The man who is happy in his home carries the atmosphere of it with him. He is himself more in touch with others because of it. In this day and age, when so many women are seeking scope for their powers in arts and professions and business careers, there are some who realize that in their marriage there is the very widest scope—women who put the enthusiasm, the brain power, the artistic perception, the clear sighted effort into their profession as wives and mothers, mistresses of households. These are the women who use their brains and their souls to love with, as well as their hearts, and who wield an extraordinarily far reaching power, all the greater because that power is the last thing they are thinking of or seek to attain. That intangible thing that we call the spirit of the home walks abroad with every member of it. The "nice" children in school gravitate instantly toward the children of that household, gravitate toward the house itself, because there is something there that they need.—Mary Stewart Cutting in Harper's Bazar.

The Dishcloth.

The dishcloth in many homes is a breeding place for microbes and contains more disease germs than almost anything else of the same size. Many diseases are in a large measure caused by filthy dish rags, contaminated water and impure air. The cheesecloth bags that sugar is sold in make good dishcloths and towels for wiping dishes. It is a good plan to have two sets for constant use. Those in use should be washed every morning in warm water, with soda, ammonia or washing powder, then rinsed and hung in the air to dry while the other set is in use. Besides this, it is well to wash each time after using and to boil them once a week. Keep your dish rags clean, sunned and aired if you value the health of your family.

Putting In Sleeves.

To sew in sleeves take your tape measure and measure one inch back of shoulder seam, fold the arm scye together at this point and place inside sleeve seam at the opposite point of fold. After the sleeves of a waist are sewed in and the seam bound or finished in some way, turn the seam so it rests up against the waist instead of down on the sleeve and tack it to the shoulder seam to keep it in this position. You will be surprised to notice what an improvement this makes in the set of the upper part of your sleeves.

The Dado Is Economical.

Nothing is more economical in wall decoration than a dado, according to Wall Paper News. As the lower part of the walls become soiled more quickly than the upper, a room can often be freshened simply by renewing the dado without touching the upper walls. Another advantage of the dado is that it gives a room a comfortable and furnished appearance without the addition of a lot of furniture. This is particularly true of a hall or stairway where there is a lot of space that needs breaking up.

Bags For Clothes.

When you are making dust bags to slip over your prettiest dresses, make blue ones for your white things. White will yellow. There's no denying that. Many a pretty party dress, hung away for a little while, has yellowed on the hooks until it is a far cry from the pretty, fresh bit of daintiness it was at first. But a blue bag—one of the deeper china blues is a good depth of color to get—makes a mighty good ounce of prevention.

Gathers.

In putting in gathered sleeves, sunbonnet crowns or any work you wish gathers to be even use two threads, one where the seam will be and the other one-fourth of an inch inside first. Remove second thread after sewing, or you can use machine to gather by making tension very loose and drawing up threads. By using second thread it does away with the ugly little plaits so often seen in gathers.

Moods.

Can one help having the "blues?" Can one help having a bad temper? Certainly. Moods are as subject to the will as any mental faculty, asserts a woman writer. The difference between the successful, popular woman and the woman who by her disagreeableness drives every one from her is simply the power of the former to control her moods and her temper.

To Keep Washing Soda.

It is advisable to keep soda in a jar covered with a lid, especially if the atmosphere of the room is dry, as soda exposed to dry air effloresces, yields some of its water to crystallization, leaving a white powder, which is therefore stronger than washing soda and is injurious to certain kinds of clothes.

Cheap Silence Cloth.

An economical yet serviceable silence cloth, without which no dining room is complete, is made from two or more thicknesses of old sheeting quilted together and bound with wide tape. A sheet of wadding may be added to give greater thickness.

If one knows how to crochet, it is much better to make a rug for the bathroom than to buy one. These rugs are much liked, maybe made to match the room, wash splendidly and are not difficult to make.

Every woman is at heart the happier for a pocket. A pocket is a woman's right. She has as much reason to demand it as a vote, and it would be far more useful to most of us.—Lady's Pictorial.

The butter with the least amount of water in it is the most economical to buy. More money is paid for it, but it goes further.

She is a very wise girl who knows enough not to pretend to know too much.—Chicago News.

CARMEL.

Mrs. R. Clarke entertained a number of her friends from Belleville one evening last week.

Mr. Harvey Homan and family have been confined to the house for several days with a severe attack of la grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Vandewater were visiting friends at Bloomfield and Wellington during the holidays.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. J. Pitman, who was called to the deathbed of his brother's wife on Monday, and on the following Thursday Mr. A. Pitman also passed away at Belleville. Quite a number from here attended the funerals of both, and their remains were brought to Elmwood cemetery for interment.

Miss Moore, of Campbellford, was visiting her niece, Miss Nicol, school teacher, at Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Ross, of Belleville were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Gilbert on Friday of last week.

Mrs. Frank Benedict has been ill with la grippe, but is on the mend.

Miss Frank Simmons is attending college in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrough, of Picton, were the guests of her father, Mr. Wm. Brown, a few days ago.

Mrs. J. Homan has returned home after spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Amy, of Yarker.

All liver and stomach troubles cured by Miller's Granules. Sold by J. S. McKeown.

TURIFF.

The snow is not very deep, and it is a good winter for lumbermen. The Rathbun Co. have about 90 men at work in the bush south of here.

Mrs. Munroe is better again, after a severe illness.

Miss Nellie Lowe is able to be out again after an extended illness.

Mr. Towes is laid up with a lame leg, caused by a kick from a horse.

Mr. McPhee is very sick at Mr. Woods'.

Mrs. Towes, who was visiting in Monteagle, is home again.

Fifty doses for a quarter! The best of all tonics. Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by J. S. McKeown.

THIRD LINE.

Another snow flurry, but not enough for sleighing.

A great deal of interest was taken in our municipal elections.

Quite a number of our farmers are getting the material on hand for building.

Mr. Geo. Beer will erect a new dwelling.

Mr. Ernest Hall has moved on the farm owned by Benson Haight, and R. McPherson has come back upon his own farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Weaver are visiting her parents at Stirling.

Mr. Fred Foster has bought the Vankleek farm, 4th Con. Thurlow.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

A Factory With A Promising Future.

VISIT TO THE PREMISES OF THE BELLEVILLE FRUIT, VINEGAR AND CIDER COMPANY—CLEANLY AND UP-TO-DATE EQUIPMENT — NOTES OF AN INDUSTRY WHICH MAY LOOM LARGE BEFORE LONG.

Belleville generally, and residents of West Belleville in particular, will recollect what a dismal and forlorn-looking place the "old Severn brewery," situated at the head of Henry St., used to be. For years the big stone building was unused; boys broke the windows, and the premises which would cost to-day at least $10,000 to construct, were going from bad to worse, when certain local gentlemen, imbued with the laudable idea that the premises afforded an excellent site for a new industry, purchased the property (for a little more than the proverbial song) and fitted it up for the purposes of the Belleville Fruit and Vinegar Company, which company, as its name implies, is incorporated for the purpose of carrying on the business of manufacturers of jam jellies, canned, dried and evaporated fruits, cider vinegar and other fruit products, and its charter confers very broad privileges for the extension and development of the business.

The officials of the company at present are:

R. J. Graham—President.

W. B. Robinson—Vice-President.

E. P. Frederick—Manager and Sec.-Treas.

Directors—Sir Mackenzie Bowell, R. J. Graham, S. Burrows, W. C. Springer, Chas. N. Sulman, Francis Dolan, John Taylor, H. C. Hunt, W. B. Robinson.

Bankers — The Dominion Bank, Belleville.

Solicitors—Clute & Murden, Belleville.

Auditors — H. W. Ackerman and R. W. Adams.

The company has an authorized capital stock of $40,000.

An Intelligencer representative yesterday visited the factory, and was shown over the premises by Mr. Frederick, the urbane manager.

One very agreeable feature of the factory was the absolute cleanliness which prevails in all departments.

It was learned that the factory has been in operation since Sept. 1st, 1906, and has a plant valued at over $10,000. A staff of fifteen has been the maximum so far, and already the company has paid out between three and four thousand dollars in wages.

One thing which strikes a visitor is the automatic equipment of the factory, which, together with the fact that gravity plays no small part, greatly reduced the amount of manual labor necessary. For instance, the weigh scales, with a capacity of four tons, is equipped for unloading from the platform.

The building has seven floors, the first floor being devoted to immense storage tanks, with a capacity of 2,000 barrels. On the second floor the vinegar processing is done. The vinegar generators, which have a capacity of 400 gallons a day — which amount can be increased—were manufactured in this city. On the third are the storage tanks for apple juice, which have a capacity of 3,000 barrels.

The jam plant is in the annex, and is thoroughly up-to-date and equipped with the latest steam jacket kettles.

All the processing is done by steam, and the company is fortunate in having the finest of living streams on the premises.

The company has now sufficient stock on hand to supply all demands in the principal branches.

Having tasted the products of the company, the writer is able to pronounce them A1.

One interesting feature in connection with the fuel question is that the fact that the pomace, or refuse of the apples after the juice has been extracted, is used as fuel, and furnishes two-thirds of the fuel used in the factory.

The press, a 100-ton hydraulic affair, deserves a word of mention. It does its work very thoroughly.

The premises are fitted throughout with electric light and power, and will interest as well as open the eyes of all who visit them.

That the Wide-awake stockholders of the company have faith in its future success was evidenced by the fact that they, at a recent meeting decided to double their stock subscriptions.

The fact that the goods manufactured by the company are always in demand, and the additional fact that it has extraordinary facilities for manufacturing them cheaply, should appeal strongly to those of our citizens who are looking for investments which, while returning a good profit will at the same time build up the city.

Bellevillians May Be In Earthquake City.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN WILLIAMS, OF THIS CITY, ARE SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN IN KINGSTON WHEN THE SHOCK CAME.

Belleville has a peculiar interest in the Jamaica disaster, owing to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, who reside on Charles St., left this city a few days ago for a visit to Jamaica. Postcards from them were received in this city yesterday, dated Kingston, Jamaica, which show that, even if they were not in Kingston when the awful disaster happened, they were there not very long ago.

However, the news conveyed in our despatches to-day, that no Canadians are missing or injured, will be welcome to the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Williams in this city.

Relatives here know no more about their whereabouts than is outlined above, and say it is possible they are en route home.

The Latest News

New York, Jan. 16.—(Special)—Few additional details of the earthquake disaster at Kingston, Jamaica, reached this city during the night.

The brief messages that came from Holland Bay, the cable station, located forty miles from Kingston, brought reports that the disaster was not so great as had been at first feared.

Only a part of the town was ruined by the earthquake shocks, and the loss of life is placed at thirty, while three hundred persons are reported injured.

The fire, which had started after the tremor, is said to have been brought under control late on Monday night.

The panic in Kingston was apparently short lived, as it was stated that the work of rescuing and caring for the injured was under way.

Many persons, however, fled from the city and took refuge in the surrounding country, fearing a recurrence of the shocks.

An official despatch received in the Colonial Office, in London, today, confirms the reports that the destruction wrought by earthquake and fire was not so widespread as first reports indicates. The despatch states that while the total number of killed and wounded had not been definitely ascertained, it was apparently not large, and the greatest number of casualties occurred in the camp hospital, where thirty colored soldiers were killed.

Mr. Porter Asks Pertinent Questions

ABOUT THE BELLEVILLE DRILL SHED AND OTHER MATTERS OF INTEREST TO OUR CITIZENS.

"Hansard" of Monday, Jan. 14, contains the following, which will be read with interest by many Bellevillians:

BELLEVILLE DRILL HALL.

Mr. Porter asked:

1. With what object did the Government acquire land on Bridge and Pinnacle streets in Belleville?

2. What, if anything, has been done, other than acquiring such land, toward carrying out such object?

3. Why has the object not been proceeded with more speedily?

4. Is the Dept. of Militia aware that in Belleville there is an old established city battalion, and part of another, both of which have served their country in active service with marked distinction, that have been for some years without quarters in the matter of a drill hall?

5. What reason can be given for thus treating these militiamen?

6. Has the Government since the destruction of the drill hall of the 15th Battalion, Argyll Light Infantry, built any drill halls in other cities where there was no organised battalion then in existence?

7. Has a drill hall been built in Woodstock? If so, when, at what cost, and for what purpose?

8. Is there a battalion of militia there?

9. If there has been discrimination between Woodstock and Belleville in this matter of accommodation for the militia, what is the reason for it?

Hon Sir Frederick Borden (Minister of Militia and Defence). I am informed by the Department of Public Works in reply to questions 1, 2 and 3:

1. For the purpose of erecting thereon a drill shed.

2. Specifications are in the hands of printers and plans will be completed in a couple of weeks.

3. Delay was mostly due to the securing of land titles; to the lateness of last session, and to the large number of plans for buildings which had to be put in hand at the same time.

4. No. The officers' quarters of the old armoury are still being used as such. Accommodation for clothing is being provided in another building, also for arms in a third building.

5. Answered by reply to question No. 3.

6. A drill hall has recently been constructed at Woodstock, the headquarters of the 22nd Regiment — a rural regiment. This regiment, through the inefficiency of its senior officers, became disorganized in 1904, but recently its reorganization, as a city corps, has been decided upon.

The reply to question No. 7 furnished by Public Works Department—

7. Yes. In 1904-5, cost to date, $71,721.20.

8. A city corps is in progress of formation and the headquarters of two cavalry squadrons may, also be located there.

9. Circumstances have prevented the erection of an armoury at Belleville as expeditiously as at Woodstock.

BELLEVILLE HARBOR DREDGING.

Mr. Porter asked:

1. Was the dredging done in Belleville harbour during the year 1906 done under the direction of the Government or of the Harbour Commissioners of Belleville?

2. Who has the contract for such dredging, and at what prices?

3. What amount of dredging was done, and what the total cost?

4. What disposal was made of the material dredged?

5. Is the work of dredging and disposal of the material being carried on with a view to any particular plan of improvement of the harbour? If so, what is the particular plan?

Hon. Sydney Fisher (Acting Minister of Public Works):

1. Under Government direction.

2. Done by departmental dredge.

3. 90,400 cubic yards. Cost, $5,579.06.

4. Some was taken away in scows, some cast over as filling behind revetment wall.

5. The work consisted in deepening the channel along the south wall, near the bay bridge.

BELLEVILLE HARBOR REVETMENT WALL.

Mr. Porter asked:

1. Under what control was the revetment wall built along the east side of the River Moira and Belleville harbour?

2. Was the work done under contract and under plan and specification?

3. Who had the contract?

4. What has been the cost?

5. Was there an inspector or other officer employed to see that the work was performed according to plan and specification?

6. Has the work been passed by such inspector or other person?

7. Was any claim made for extras? If so, what? Was such claim or any part thereof, and if so, what part allowed?

Hon. Sydney Fisher (Acting Minister of Public Works). Work under control of Harbour Commissioners.

Fine Specimens Of Hastings Co. Marble.

A number of fine samples of marble and sodalite, taken from properties situated near Bancroft and belonging to Messrs. T. Morrison and A. Riddell are to be seen at Col. Ponton's office. These samples have been polished upon one side and from appearance are equal to some of the best imported marble. The shading in some of the specimens is delicate and definitely outlined. The marble colors are green, pink, white and of a yellowish hue. The sodalite samples are of a light and very dark blue. A number of parties have already examined the samples, and men who have some knowledge of marble have pronounced them to be of excellent quality. The marble will, probably, be quarried quite extensively, as the market, we are informed, is good for such material. It is evident that Hastings County is possessed of another asset that is of much value.

Died In Thurlow.

Mrs. Sarah A. Kimmerley, aged 78 years, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. Badgley, township of Thurlow. Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Jones, was born in the township of Sidney. She had always resided in this vicinity. Mrs. Kimmerley had been for many years a member of the Methodist church, and was a Christian lady, respected by all who knew her. Her husband preceded her to the tomb some years ago. Only one child, Mrs. R. Badgley, survives. Mrs. Kimmerley had been in failing health for some time.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE.

Lieut.-Governor Wants More Land and More Subsidy For Province.

Quebec, Jan. 16.—The third session of the eleventh Parliament of the Province of Quebec was opened yesterday afternoon with the usual ceremonies.

In his speech from the throne, Lieutenant-Governor Jette commented upon the favorable result of the efforts of the representatives of Canada and the provinces, to consider and settle the important question of the federal subsidy, and that the Government succeeded in having the justice of its claims acknowledged.

A reference was made to the proposal to annex the country lying between the northern boundary of Quebec and Hudson Straits, and the Lieutenant-Governor says that "my Government is still well disposed to come to an understanding with the Newfoundland authorities with respect to the defining of the boundary between that country and our own, but it will neglect nothing to protect our interests."

Measures for the foundation of three institutions—a technical school in Quebec, a superior commercial school, and a technical school in Montreal will be submitted during the session.

The Lieutenant-Governor comments on the satisfactory progress of the dairy industry; refers to the improvement of the roads of the province and notes the satisfactory condition of the finances of the province.

RETAIL BOOKSELLERS.

Minister of Education Tells Them He Favors Free School Books.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—A delegation of the retail booksellers of the province waited on Hon. Dr. Pyne yesterday in anticipation of an expected change in the policy of the Education Department with regard to school books. There were 25 gentlemen composing an influential and representative deputation from the trade. W. K. McNaught, M. P. P., introduced them to the Minister.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, in reply to the representations of the delegations, said that the Government's intention was to get all views before the Text Book Commission. He had nothing to say of the policy of the Government. Personally, he favored free text books, but he was unable to state that the Government would go that far. He and his colleagues must conserve the interests of the people. The Government would be glad to hear from the dealers again when a policy had been prepared for announcement.

Very Cold In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 16.—Monday and yesterday were the two coldest days in Winnipeg for seven years. The observatory thermometer went to 41 below zero yesterday morning, while other thermometers went to 50 below. The highest point reached here yesterday was 20 below at noon. In addition to the cold, there was a biting wind. All through the west the same is reported, and at many points the suffering, where fuel is scarce, is intense. Thousands of cattle in Alberta are reported to be dying from starvation and cold and the loss to ranchers will, in many cases, be ruinous.

His Back Is Broken.

Toronto Junction, Jan. 16.—Peter Pilkey is probably fatally hurt as a result of an accident. Pilkey was removing a chicken coop on his sleigh. He had stopped to unload it and was standing in rear of the vehicle when the coop slipped. He could not get out of the way in time and the ton weight fell on him. He was held fast to the ground until assistance arrived. Dr. Perfect was called and ascertained that his back is broken. There are also several broken ribs and serious ruptures. He was removed to his home, on Vine street, and at a late hour last night he was reported to be in a critical condition.

M'GILL AS AN EXECUTOR

Scrutiny of His Administration of Late Mrs. Nicholls' Estate.

Ontario Government Commission Lawyer to Make An Investigation Into Certain Rumors—The Case Against ex-President Cockburn—Manager of the Toronto Clearing House Gives Evidence.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—A lawyer, under instructions from the Government, is looking into the administration of the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls of Peterboro. The estate was worth about $1,000,000, and was largely bequeathed to charities and works of public benefit.

One of the executors was Charles McGill, the ex-manager of the Ontario Bank, and it appears that allegations have gained currency that the bequests have not been distributed with that promptness which might have been expected in the public interest. It is stated that at least one-half of the estate is still unaccounted for, and the complaints reached such proportions that the Government deemed it wise to take some action.

The department is exceedingly reticent in the matter, but a report will shortly be forthcoming.

In the Police Court.

Frank Arnoldi, K.C., counsel for G. R. R. Cockburn of the Ontario Bank, is making strenuous efforts to have the case against his client, in police court, closed at once. Crown Attorney Corley is opposing this movement. Mr. Corley, who is ill with grip, was in court yesterday morning. He told Magistrate Denison he had some important evidence to introduce, but he could not possibly do it for some days.

It is understood that Hon. A. B. Morine, who is to examine McGill in the civil suit instituted by the Bankers' Association, expects to secure admissions which will help the crown's case against the ex-president.

The principal witness yesterday was G. W. Yarker, manager of the Toronto Clearing House. In a conversation with Cockburn some time ago, he mentioned to him that it was street talk that McGill was known to be dealing in stocks. Cockburn subsequently told witness he had spoken to McGill about it.

McGill's Excuse.

McGill made the excuse that he was executor for a large estate in Peterboro and found it necessary to change securities from time to time.

Continuing, Mr. Yarker testified that it was not an uncommon thing for a bank to have a "ticker" in the office. The presence of the "tape" there would not necessarily indicate that a bank was playing the stock market. It was necessary that a bank should obtain information and as quickly as possible, about all standard securities. It was not a common thing for the president of a bank to see that there was a competent audit of every book in the bank. Unless loans were purposely hidden a president should know about them, when made from the head office. Mr. Cockburn was always very proud of the bank.

Loans On New York Stocks.

"Are there not constantly in large banks, large loans to brokers and private individuals upon the security of stock on which these people have to pay up considerable margin?" asked the magistrate.

"There are in most banks, but only on select standard stocks."

"Did you ever have reason to advise your employes against dabbling in New York stocks?" asked the crown attorney.

"I have spoken to them on the matter, pointing out the advisability of leaving it alone."

Inspector Caldwell will give evidence to-day.

KNOCK ON BLACKSOD SCHEME.

Dundee Advertiser Fears It Will Be Hard to Get Money.

London, Jan. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Dundee Advertiser, regarding the proposed new fast Canadian mail service, says, with a port on this side of the Atlantic at Blacksod Bay, there would be no coal for liners at hand, and little cargo could be obtained. With the memory of an unsuccessful attempt to establish a fast mail service to Galway forty-eight years ago, capitalists would require to be certain success was within reach before they ventured money in an enterprise in which they were certain from the first to encounter most bitter opposition from the existing lines.

KINGSTON RUINED BY AN EARTHQUAKE

County of Surrey, in which Kingston is situated.

In 1692 a great earthquake destroyed Port Royal, of whose 3,000 houses only 200 remained standing. It was this catastrophe which led to the founding of Kingston.

In 1782 a severe conflagration visited Kingston, destroying property valued at $2,500,000, and in 1843 another fire caused damage of about $15,000,000.

In August, 1880, a cyclone destroyed nearly all the wharves in Kingston harbor and damaged shipping.

There was a double earthquake at Kingston on Dec. 7, 1880. A tremendous hurricane visited Jamaica in 1815. The island was deluged, hundreds of houses were washed away, vessels wrecked and about 1,000 persons drowned.

Half Million Loss.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Half a million dollars worth of property was destroyed yesterday by a fire which partially burned an eight-storey building in Dearborn street, occupied principally by M. A. Donohue & Co., printers and publishers. The fire is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

Japan Favors Disarmament.

Tokio, Jan. 16.—In accordance with the indications shown in the budget for the next fiscal year, the Government's desire for economic and peaceful development, it is now declared that Japan favors the submission of the question of disarmament to The Hague peace conference.

Fractured His Skull.

Toronto, Jan. 16.—William Johnstone, aged 65, of 7 Lima place, called on his friend the watchman at the St. Lawrence Foundry last night. While on his way home he fell into an excavation at Berkeley and Front streets and fractured his skull. He was taken to St. Michael's.

Hon. W. T. Hamley Dead.

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 16.—District Attorney Jerome's race track bills were introduced yesterday in the Senate by Senator Agnew; in the assembly by Assemblyman Stanley.

From Chicken-Pox To Cholera.

CURE-ALLS NO LONGER TOLERATED.

In early days every barber shop was an operating room and the town physician resorted to bleeding as the sure cure for all ailments from chicken-pox to cholera. As a result, many, including the first U.S. President, died prematurely.

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known.

There is no disease more common among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it half unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition.

There is a remedy for dyspepsia, and only one, recommended and endorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmental analyses in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which Nature has put into the stomach for digestion—pepsin, diastase and other ferments.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active principle of these Tablets being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and other foods. They are not cathartic pills—their action is simply that of a digestive.

We will gladly send you a trial package to prove the truth of our claims. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be gotten of all druggists at 50 cents. F. A. Stuart Co., 69 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

A MINISTER OF LABOR

And Other Things Asked For by the Labor Congress.

Delegation Meets Ministers and Premier and Hon. Mr. Lemieux Express Some Views—Hindu Question Has Been Laid Before the Imperial Authorities — Mounted Police on Duty In Strikes.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—Alphonse Verville, M. P., president; James Simpson, Toronto, vice-president, and P. W. Draper, Ottawa, secretary, representing the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, waited on Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux yesterday morning and presented the resolutions agreed on by that body.

They asked for a Minister of Labor and a commission on technical education. They protested against the use of the N. W. M. P. in the interests of the capitalistic class in labor disputes when there is no danger to property or life, and condemned Senator McMullen's bill putting an embargo on international officers. They commended the Lord's Day Act.

The Government was also asked to father Mr. Verville's eight-hour day bill, which applies to public works.

The Minister's Query.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux wanted to know if the delegation would approve of extending his bill now before Parliament to every industry. In regard to the eight-hour day on Government contracts, he was in favor of the principle. He favored the bill introduced by Mr. Verville, but he did not think that it should be pressed this session. The Government had been investigating the Hindu question and had laid the matter before the imperial authorities. He intended giving an increase to the letter-carriers and also to some of the other officers in his Department. As to the fair wages resolution he thought that could be arranged.

In reply to Mr. Lemieux, Mr. Verville said that he would like to see Mr. Lemieux's bill applied to all industries. Mr. Simpson and Mr. Draper thought the bill went far enough at present. In the opinion of Mr. Simpson, it would never require to be extended to private industries; at any rate, they should give it a trial as it was.

The Premier's Word.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier wanted to add a word to what Mr. Lemieux said. He referred to the resolution in regard to immigration and the arrival of Hindus. The delegation ought to be very positive of their facts before making serious charges against these people, who were British subjects. There was no evidence in the possession of the Government which would justify any such charges, and if the resolution was pressed he would like these facts to go to the public. Some of the Hindus were old soldiers and had medals for meritorious services.

As to the number of police being used in connection with strikes the local Government of Saskatchewan and Alberta paid part of the cost, and when the municipalities ask for protection the Dominion could not enquire into the circumstances and had to grant it.

There would have been no shooting at Buckingham if the police had been there.

He did not think they should press for any amendments to the Sunday bill, as it was a good one and ought to get a chance. To this the delegates replied that later on they would ask for the amendments mentioned in the resolutions.

IN THE HOUSE.

I. C. R. Old Age Pension Bill Meets With Universal Approval.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—There was no little laughter and applause in the House last night when Dr. Sproule, Col. Sam Hughes and other old-line Tories ranged themselves under the banner of Bourassa and demanded more consideration for the French language than Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Louis Phillippe Brodeur and Alphonse Verville were willing to grant. The Bourassa proposition was to delay bringing the revised statutes of 1906 into effect until the French version was ready for distribution, but it was defeated on a vote of 31 yeas to 84 nays.

It was a good-natured debate, however, and incidentally brought to his feet the new member from Nicolet, Mr. Devlin.

An old-age pension or retiring allowance for employes of the Intercolonial Railway was presented by Mr. Emmerson and met with approval on both sides.

The Japanese Treaty Act brought a phillipic from Mr. Kennedy of Westminster, B. C., against Asiatic cheap labor. The Premier intimated that the House would soon be called upon to deal with Hindu immigration.

Charles R. Devlin, the new member from Nicolet, was presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Lemieux.

An enquiry by R. L. Borden drew from the Premier the usual answer that nothing had been heard from Mr. Hyman.

Manitoba Municipal Union.

Winnipeg, Jan. 16.—The executive of the Municipal Union has recommended to the Government certain amendments which it desires to be made during the present session in connection with the telephone legislation. Its reports was passed unanimously, not one dissenting voice being registered.

Probe Detective Agencies.

Ottawa, Jan. 16.—The Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, says P. M. Draper, will make application to Parliament to have a commission appointed to investigate the methods of the American detective agencies, which have branches in Canada.

Safest Medicine for Women's Complaints

Women certainly do neglect themselves. They work too hard—over-tax their strength—and then wonder why they suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex.

Most cases of female trouble start when the bowels become inactive—the kidneys strained—and the skin not cared for. Poisons, which should leave the system by these organs, are taken up by the blood and inflame the delicate female organs.

Fruit-a-tives

OR (FRUIT LIVER TABLETS.)

remove the CAUSE of these diseases. "Fruit-a-tives" sweeten the stomach—make the bowels move regularly every day—strengthen the kidneys—improve the action of the skin—and thus purify the blood.

"Fruit-a-tives" take away those distressing headaches, backaches and bearing-down pains, and make women well and strong. "Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices, intensified, with tonics and antiseptics added, 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all druggists—or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL — LIBERALITY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL — CHARITY IN ALL.

VOL. 40 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY. JANUARY 17, 1907. NO. 205

Details Lacking Of Kingston Calamity

One Report Says 1,000 Killed and 90,000 Injured.

Misery Is Indescribable—Famine Is Imminent and Rich and Poor Alike Are Homeless--Dead Being Buried Among Smoldering Ruins--Negroes Looting in the Ruins--Shops All Destroyed--Area Ten Miles Stricken.

St. Thomas, D.W.I., Jan. 16.—(Night).—Reports received here from Jamaica say it is estimated that 1,000 persons have been killed by the earthquake and fire, and that 90,000 persons are homeless.

The damage to Kingston alone is placed at fully $10,000,000.

Misery Indescribable.

St. Thomas, D.W.I., Jan. 16.—(Noon)—Later advices received here from Jamaica declare that all people have been warned to keep away from Kingston.

The stench there is described as awful.

There is no fodder for animals, and famine is imminent.

Money is useless.

The banks have been burned, but the vaults are supposed to be safe.

The misery on all sides is indescribable.

Rich and poor alike are homeless.

Provisions of all kinds are urgently needed.

It is impossible to say where anybody can be found.

Sir James Fergusson, vice-chairman of the Royal Mail Steamship Co., is among the killed.

The loss of life is very great, but the exact numbers are not yet known.

Dead In Smoldering Ruins.

The dead are being buried under smoldering ruins.

The mercantile community suffered most severely, warehouses falling upon them.

Many professional men are dead or injured.

The negroes are looting.

Ghastly scenes are being witnessed.

All the shops have been destroyed, and buildings in and around Kingston are in ruins. Very few of them are safe to live in.

The governor and his party are safe.

It is reported that an extinct volcano in the parish of Portland is showing signs of activity, but this has not been verified.

No news has yet been received from other parts of the island of Jamaica, communication being very difficult, but it is believed that the territory for at least ten miles in the vicinity of the stricken ciy has suffered severely.

Royalty Is Shocked.

London, Jan. 17.—The King and the Queen, and also the Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, have hastened to telegraph expressions of the country's sympathy and horror at the terrible calamity, and public bodies are arranging to hold meetings to express their sympathy and afford relief to the victims.

Sir Alfred Jones' Message.

A message from Sir Alfred Jones confirms the worst fears. This message is addressed to Elder, Dempster & Co., and is as follows:

"Kingston was overwhelmed by an earthquake Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. All the houses within a radius of 10 miles have been damaged and almost every house in the city is destroyed. Fire broke out after the earthquake and completed the work of destruction. It is estimated that 100 persons have been killed and 1,000 injured. The public offices ad hospitals are in ruins. Among the killed are Sir James Fergusson, many prominent merchants and professional men, and a great many natives. There were no fatalities at the Constant Springs Hotel. The business quarter of Kingston is now a heap of smouldering ashes. We are thankful that our party is all right."

Relief Measures.

The Colonial Office has instructed the Government authorities in Jamaica to take all the necessary steps to relieve the distress among the earthquake and fire sufferers, and the Admiralty has ordered the cruiser Brilliant, now at Bermuda, and the cruiser Indefatigable, at present at Trinidad, to proceed forthwith to Jamaica and assist in the relief work. They are both vessels of 3,600 tons, and their combined crews number about 500 men, which will enable them to land strong detachments for police and other duty in the devastated city.

Camping Out.

The West Indian and Panama Cable Co.'s office at Bull Bay cable that all the people in Kingston are camping in the open, and that the earthquake extended so far as Holland Bay, where the West Indian and Panama Cable Co.'s station is seriously damagod.

"Between Bull Bay and Kingston," the message said, "that is not a safe house. Ruin and desolation are everywhere."

Negroes Looting.

The following cable despatch has been received from a press representative, who accompanied Sir Alfred Jones and his party to Jamaica: Fires broke out again to-night. The negroes are looting the rum shops. At least 500 persons have been killed. There are weird and terrible scenes. Forty-five invalid soldiers were burned to death in the military hospital. Several shocks were felt to-day." The despatch is not dated.

Measures of Relief.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The serious despatches received to-day were regarded as warranting instant measures for relief. Indeed, the navy department had anticipated this need, for Admiral Evans had started on a torpedo boat destroyer, the swiftest vessel in the American fleet, for Kington, ordering two battleships to follow as soon as possible.

Recorded In Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—The earth tremors from the Jamaica earthquake were recorded at Toronto observatory on Monday afternoon as follows: Preliminary tremors, 3 hours 48 minutes 6 seconds; large earth waves, 3 hours 53 minutes 3 seconds. The seismograph pendulum vibrated at intervals for one hour. The disturbance as recorded in Toronto was by no means as pronounced as either that from the San Francisco or the Chilian quake.

H. C. McLeod, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, received a cablegram from Jamaica, announcing that his wife and family were unharmed by the earthquake and were all well.

THE CHINESE FAMINE.

Thousands of the Refugees Now In Danger of Smallpox.

Shanghai, Jan. 17.—To the horrors of famine have been added an outbreak of smallpox among the refugees at Singkiang, necessitating the demolition of the mat sheds used to shelter thousands who have arrived there in search of food.

Capt. Kirton, who was sent out by the relief committee to investigate the situation, reports that 300,000 destitute persons have been driven back towards their homes, and that terrible scenes are being enacted along the line of retreat.

He estimates that a quarter of a million persons are likely to be doomed at Singkiang alone, and 400,000 at Antung, where small relief works have been started. But official records are generally puerile and amateurish.

TYPHOON SWEEPS ISLANDS.

A Hundred Lives Lost In One of the Philippines.

Manila, Jan. 17.—The Islands of Leyte and Samar were swept by a typhoon Jan. 10. One hundred lives were lost in Leyte.

The barracks and officers' quarters on the east coast of Samar were detroyed.

No estimate of the damage to property has yet been made. No damage to shipping is reported.

EXPLOSION ON LOCOMOTIVE.

Fireman On First Run Seriously Injured—Brakeman Also Hurt.

St. Catharines, Jan. 17.—The fast stock train going east (engine No. 600) while passing Jorden at 7.20 yesterday morning exploded an arch in her boilerplate.

Fireman R. Currey of Point Edward was thrown out of the engine by the force of the explosion and landed on the bridge. He is badly scalded and had a narrow escape from going over the side of the bridge and dropping a distance of 65 feet to the ice below. Currey is unmarried. He was removed to the St. Catharines Hospital. This was his first run.

The brakeman of the same engine was also scalded and his clothing set on fire, but he escaped serious injury. The driver of the engine escaped uninjured.

This One Killed Five.

Morristown, Pa., Jan. 17.—Five men were killed yesterday, when a locomotive boiler exploded. The engineer of the train, J. D. Black, escaped. He was stunned by the explosion, but walked to Bridgeport station and boarded a train for Reading. The train had come from Allentown and was bound for Philadelphia. The explosion is thought to have been due to low water in the boiler. All the men killed were on the engine.

The rear portion of the boiler was hurled about 150 yards, while the wheels of the engine remained on the track. One man was torn to pieces. The others were shocked and scalded to death.

Girouard to Nigeria.

London, Jan. 17.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Percy Girouard has been temporarily appointed high commissioner to Northern Nigeria.

WAITING.

(With apologies to the Toronto News.)

A Lib'ral politician sat
In high and solemn state.
He wore his elegant frock coat,
Which cost ten ninety-eight.

Unto his gentle wife he said:
"If any one should call
Just send him up immediately,
I shall not mind at all.

For there are several vacancies
In the Senate, don't you see,

A good deal of nonsense is being written in the United States newspapers and also Canadian, about the object of Mr. Root, a United States statesman's visit to the Governor-General of Canada. It would appear, judging by the following from the Kingston Whig, that Hawkey, the wrestler, who, according to sworn testimony, operated one of the bogus ballot-boxes in Frontenac county after Messrs. Lott and Shibley had imported them from Watertown has visited Canada lately and has not been molested by the law. The Whig says:

Joseph Hawkey, Glenvale, is in Watertown, N. Y. He and his brother, Michael, are cleaning up everything in their respective weights at wrestling. The brothers were home last week, but returned to the American side on Saturday. They find it hard to secure matches in Canada. Joseph said as Queen's had a new gymnasium, he would be willing to back his brother against anything near his weight."

The following, from the military column of the Toronto Telegram, will be read with interest by many militia officers, who will agree that the suggestion contained is a good one:

"The vexed question to all commanding officers, that of 'shortages,' is again being very much discussed in military circles in Toronto, possibly owing a good deal to the fact that it has cropped up incidentally in connection with the Toronto Light Horse. A well-informed military authority urges that something should be done to lessen the amount charged to officers for these shortages, while he makes the very reasonable suggestion that as every article issued has a pretty well ascertained 'life,' the Ordnance Stores Corps should fix a length of time as the reasonable 'life' of an article. Then it would be easy to fix a fair charge upon the captain who lost one of these articles. The records show just when each article was first issued out of stores for use. Suppose then that the 'life' of a haversack had been fixed at six years, and that a captain lost one which had been in use for three. He would be charged for this half-worn-out article, 50 per cent. of its original cost, instead of, as at present, the full price of a new article. This would be fair, but the present system is not so."

It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning.

It is safer, too.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States to-day are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shiloh's Consumption Cure is without doubt the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will buy no other.—L. Elder, Nanagawaya, Ont."

If it were anything but the best would this be so? Try it in your own family. If it does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? 25c. is the price. All dealers in medicine sell

Our New Senators.

Those who have watched the policy and tactics of the Toronto Globe, cannot but be amused at the fulsome adulation which it now heaps upon the Hon. Geo. W. Ross on his elevation to the Senate. At present he is, and in the past was, a model of political sagacity and purity, but no regret is expressed at his leaving the political arena of Ontario. No journal in Ontario knows better than the Globe that the more politically respectable of the Liberal party rejoice at his removal from the leadership of their party, they looking upon him, after years of experience, as an incubus, who could never lead them back to power.

The insincerity of the Globe is too transparent to deceive the most casual reader of its editorials during the latter days of the Ross Government's existence, when it used to call upon the party to have the "barnacles" removed. It did more, because of its influence and circulation, to bring the Ross Cabinet and its toodling hangers-on, into disrepute than all the other Grit sheets in Ontario. It is now doing penance by trying to humbug and deceive the people.

The Toronto News, edited, as is well known, by a former editor of the Globe, deals trenchantly with the Ross appointment, it says: "Mr. Ross "made an irreparable mistake in "1902 when he did not resign office, "but gave himself absolutely into "the hands of an unscrupulous and "desperate party machine. • • He "took counsel with the machine, "held office by every desperate device which could be employed, and "so shocked and outraged public "opinion that when at last he had "to face the people his Government "was utterly overwhelmed. He goes "to Ottawa with diminished authority, with impaired reputation and "with a career almost closed in comparative impotence."

* * *

Commenting upon the new appointments the Montreal Gazette says: "Mr. Ross, the best known of "the lot, was head of the Liberal "Government of Ontario when it "was at its rottenest, and, with his "chosen colleagues, was literally "spewed out by the people."

"Mr. Beith held a seat in the House "of Commons with a cloud on his "title.' It will be remembered a majority of the votes were cast against him, but the Grit returning officer refused to declare the Conservative elected on the ground that he deposited a certified cheque by a solvent bank for $200 instead of money. Yet in a minority Beith held the seat.

* * *

"Mr. Gilmore was only defeated in an effort to retain a seat, which experience has been undergone by many a man before him."

* * *

"Mr. Costigan was a leader of the Conservative party till the day it went out of power, and almost immediately thereafter gave evidence of seeing reasons for being friendly with the Liberals."

And now he has his reward.

DISEASE MADE BONES SNAP LIKE GLASS.

Frank L. Wellington has died at his home in Trinity Avenue, New York, the victim of a disease which caused his bones to snap like glass. One day while holding a strap in a street car his arm snapped off. A short time later a leg bone snapped. According to his physician this terrible condition was brought about by taking medicine which contained a certain mineral poison.

Again and again has it been demonstrated that mineral medicines are harmful. It is because Bileans, while so effective for all liver and digestive disorders, yet contain no trace of any mineral, but are, on the contrary, purely herbal, that they have won the praise of medical men, trained nurses and scientists all the world over. Bileans differ from pretty nearly every other liver medicine in containing no mercury, and from pretty nearly every other stomach medicine in being free from bismuth. They are also free from alcohol. They are compounded from the finest known medicinal herbs and roots, and are thus the best family medicine that can be obtained. They operate gently on the bowels, curing constipation and piles. They correct acidity of the stomach, stimulate the digestion, tone up the liver, and correct the secretion of bile. Their general action is at the same time corrective and tonic—correcting faulty secretion, toning up weak and debilitated organs. They thus cure anaemia, green sickness, female ailments and irregularities, blood impurities, rheumatism, etc. For nausea, headache, gas, pain in the chest and between the shoulders they are also very effective. Their operation is mild, yet effective. In curing constipation they do not cause after-constipation, nor do they ever cause griping. Mothers will find them beneficial in the many little ailments to which children are subject. All druggists sell Bileans at fifty cents a box, or they may be obtained post free from the Bilean Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. For $2.50 a parcel of six boxes will be mailed. This is the most economical form for family use.

Europe Will Quake Inside Of a Week.

STARTLING PREDICTION OF LONDON METEOROLOGIST, WHO FORETOLD UPHEAVAL FOR AMERICA FOR JAN. 12.

London, Eng., Jan. 16.—"It is all the effect of the sun and the moon," said Hugh Clements, the meteorologist, to-day. Prof. Clements on Jan. 9 predicted earthquakes to take place in America Jan. 12.

"The sun and moon," he continued, "cause all earthquakes and every other natural disturbance. They produce atmospheric and lithospheric as well as hydrospheric tides. The only difference is that the denser the medium is the faster is the movement.

"The waves of the air, which are the least dense of the three media, have the slowest tides. Water is next, and the earth is the most rapid. When the earth tides reach water they are blocked and force accumulated until an explosion results and all the earthquakes.

"The next earthquake will occur in Europe on Jan. 21 or thereabouts. It will be a repetition of the volcanic disturbance in Italy. No more earthquakes need be feared in the western hemisphere in the immediate future."

A Pleasing Concert

There was a fair attendance at the concert given by the Tabernacle orchestra in the Sunday School room of that church last night. Rev. Mr. Brown was chairman. The orchestra, led by Prof. Denmark, played some pleasing selections; Miss Essie Price and Mr. Jas. Dyer contributed solos, a fine quartette was given by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, Miss Price and Mr. Douglas Leitch; Miss Higgs pleased the audience greatly with violin solos, and Miss Ada Greenleaf, in readings, was heartily applauded. The concert, all through, was an artistic success.

It's a good, old world after all,
If you have no friends or money,
In the river you can fall;
Marriages are quite common and,
More people there will be,
Provided you take Rocky Mountain Tea. —D. M. Waters.

The Professor's Loss

Canadian Mute: Mr. Denys had a very unfortunate experience on the 4th inst. While he was out spending the evening at a small social gathering the beautiful Hotel Quinte, where he boarded, caught fire and was totally consumed. Of course everything he had except the clothes he was wearing was destroyed. The financial loss was considerable, but what he feels most keenly is the loss of other things that cannot be replaced, such as some valuable documents, mementoes of friends, marginal notes on favorite books, the result of years of study and thought, etc. We all deeply sympathize with him in his misfortune.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now, "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

HOCKEY.

Counter Jumpers Beat Pill Mixers.

From 7 to 8 o'clock last evening a hockey match took place between teams representing the shoe clerks and the drug clerks. As was to be expected the shoe clerks won as they stuck to the game to the last. They succeeded in securing three goals to the pill compounders two. A number of spectators were present to witness the game the rules of which were strictly Queensberry. Mr. Geo. Dulmage was referee, and was kept busy, but he performed his duties all right. The score at the finish was 3 to 2 in favor of the shoe clerks. The line-up was as follows:

Drug Clerks.		Shoe Clerks.
Boyle	Goal	Brower
Butler	Point	Vandervoort
Clifford	Cover-point	Adams
Peppin	Rover	McPherson
Geen	Centre	Barber
Sills	Right	Wilson

SPORTING NOTES.

Hockey results last night: Peterboro 10, Marlboros 6; Midland 14, Argonauts 6; Cobourg 8, Whitby 4.

The Toronto hockey clubs are all weak this season, and can hardly make it interesting for the "country" clubs which play with them.

The Brockville Crescents had a "gate" of 250 on Tuesday night—probably $70. They had to pay Picton about $100, which put them about $30 "in the hole." It was hard on the boys, but the O.H.A. was to blame. No such long jumps as that should ever have been arranged in junior hockey. There is not enough in it to pay expenses, especially in a town like Brockville, which has an intermediate team to take most of the spare change the enthusiasts have.

Speaking of the match the Brockville Times says: "To describe the match in detail would make wearisome reading. The Crescents proved a sore disappointment. After holding Belleville down to 4-2, and Belleville defeating Picton 7-1, it is hard to understand how Picton scored a victory last night by a majority of eight goals. The local lads were strictly off color. This, with an air of over-confidence, possibly worked their downfall. They could neither skate, shoot or handle themselves in a manner expected of hockeyists; played with no system and were constantly in the way of each other. The most apparent weakness was in shooting. After carrying the puck to their opponents' nets the easiest kind of chances were missed for lack of judgment."

A curling match between teams representing the Colts of Belleville and Napanee will take place here this evening. Two rinks from each club will compete.

The match between Belleville and Kingston, to-morrow night, should be the fastest of the season. The team that loses may as well give up hopes of the championship—but the locals don't intend to lose.

All over Canada lovers of sport will to-night have their ears to the telephone, waiting for the result of the Wanderers-Kenora match for the Stanley Cup. The westerners are said to be greased lightning, and are confident of carrying back the mug with them. The Wanderers are handicapped by the loss of one of their best men, Blatchford, who was cut down by the Ottawas on Monday, and is still in the hospital. Many people think that the Ottawas tried their hardest to "do up" the Montrealers, in order to handicap them and thus make them lose the cup. They came very near doing it.

The western cup hunters have completed their long journey in safety, says the Montreal Herald, and every man of them is feeling in fine condition, both of body and mind. The Thistles feel particularly cheerful because they were not killed in a railway wreck on the way east, which is certainly a good reason for being happy. At St. Paul they missed connections and also missed a train wreck. They figure it out that as they were not killed in the wreck they are destined to lift the cup. Perhaps had they been scheduled to play Ottawa their escape would not have seemed so fortunate. It would appear much pleasanter to be killed in a train wreck than to be hammered to death with a hockey stick.

PORT O' MANY SHIPS.

It's a sunny, pleasant anchorage, is Kingdom Come,
Where crews is always layin' aft for double-tots o' rum.
'N' there's dancin' 'n' fiddlin' of ev'ry kind o' sort—
It's a fine place for sailor-men is that there port.
'N' I wish—I wish as I was there.

The wind is never nothin' more than jest light airs,
'N' no one ever gets belaying'-pinned 'n no one ever swears;
Yer free to loaf an' laze around, yer pipe atween yer lips,
Lollin' on the fo'c's'le, sonny, lookin' at the ships.
'N' I wish—I wish as I was there.

For ridin' in the anchor the ships of all the world
Have got one anchor down 'n' all sails furled.
All the sunken hookers 'n' the crews as took 'n' died,
They lays there merry, sonny, swingin' to the tide.
'N' I wish—I wish as I was there.

Drowned old wooden hookers, green wi' drippin' wrack,
Ships as never fetched to port, as never come back,
Swingin' to the blushin' tide, dippin' te the swell,
'N' the crews all singin', sonny, beatin' on the bell.

Within two years, M. Metchnikoff, of the Institute Pasteur, in Paris perhaps the most eminent biologist of the time, has come forward with the startling statement that the infirmities of age are not natural phenomena, not compulsory, that "old age" is in reality a disease, and that a hundred years from now physicians will treat it and cure it as they now successfully cope with typhoid or whooping cough. The result of this new attitude and the accumulation of medical skill through the years will be to increase materially the average length of life.

Charles M. Schwab, of the great American steel trust, became a millionaire because he was able to play the piano and lilt a song inoffensively if not artistically. Mr. Carnegie's attention was brought to Schwab when the latter was but a lad of eighteen years. The lad had come to Carnegie's house with a daily report and looked longingly at a piano. The steel king asked if he could play, whereupon the young fellow sat down and sang some simple songs. Schwab's fortune was made right there, for the great man took an interest in him and saw that he was pushed forward in accordance with his merits.

NO DIFFERENCE

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid cures any form of Piles. Internal, External, Bleeding, Blind, Itching, Suppurating, etc., are simply names of the stages through which every case will pass if it continues.

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal remedy to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally, and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure. Money back if it does fail.

SELL GIRLS TO HIGHEST BIDDER

Wisconsin Authorities Investigating Conditions In Syrian Colony.

Lacrosse, Wis., Jan. 17.—The county authorities have begun official investigation of the charges that girls under the age of consent, which, in Wisconsin, if fourteen years, are being sold to the highest bidders in the Syrian colony at North Lacrosse.

The investigation was ordered as the result of an attempt to secure a marriage license for a girl 13 years old. Evidence was then submitted that the girl had been bid in for $300 in behalf of the prospective groom, and that her parents, on receiving a bid of $450 in a later mail from a Syrian at Oshkosh, were attempting to repudiate the first sale.

WESTERN DAIRYMEN

M. L. Haley of Springford Wins Prize For Best Money-Making Cow.

London, Jan. 17.—The Western Ontario Dairymen's Association in session here awarded M. L. Haley of Springford the prize offered by the association to the man who received the largest returns in money per cow during the period from May 1 to Oct. 31. Mr. Haley keeps eleven Holstein cows on a 90-acre farm. The returns were taken from the cheese factory, where the milk was sold. The eleven cows gave a total of 71.701 pounds of milk, and a money return of $687.49, or an average per cow return of $62.50 during this time.

The opening meetings in the theatre of the Y.M.C.A. were largely attended.

President Ballantyne gave an address optimistic of the Canadian cheese industry.

G. H. Barr presented the financial statement, showing a balance on hand of $1,120.43. The receipts were $5,855.84.

Prof. S. F. Edwards of the Ontario Agricultural College followed with an address on the influence of bacteria in connection with the milking machine.

Prof. Dean of the O. A. C. said that by careful selection and liberal feeding the cows of Canada could produce fully $30,000,000 more per year.

The City of London extended a hearty welcome to the delegates last evening, when President White of the Board of Trade and Mayor Judd welcomed the dairymen.

The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Nelson Monteith, congratulated the western farmers on the fairly high standard of the cheese. Increased quality made increased consumption, and more consumption meant better times. The department had the expenditure of nearly half a million dollars for the farmers. The dairy industry was receiving a large part of that sum. He did not favor the plan to make all instructors sanitary inspectors, and was of the opinion that one winter fair was sufficient.

Precedent Affecting Canada.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Secretary of State Root and Senor Davalos, the Mexican charge of embassy, yesterday signed a treaty regulating the disposition of the water of the Rio Grande. The precedent set will, it is understood, have an important bearing on negotiations concerning the vexed questions of international rights to the use of streams of the Canadian border.

Will build You up

A run down condition of the system is due to improper nourishment.

What you need is a food, not a tonic.

Beef is the most nourishing food there is and therefore the best for building up a run down condition.

But the difficulty with beef is that many people fine it hard to digest.

BOVRIL contains all the nourishing properties of beef in a highly concentrated form, easily assimilated by the most delicate stomach.

The New Minister

By Frank H. Sweet

Copyright, 1906, by Frank H. Sweet

“HE'S come,” said old Herkamer as he came into the kitchen and began to unload himself of the packages which he had brought from the trading post ten miles away, “an' now I reckon the next thing will be for him to go. We ain't waited five years for a meetin' house jest to carry it on as a nursery now we've got it. I don't see what Dr. Brown was thinkin' on.”

“Is he very young?” asked Mrs. Herkamer, transferring the packages to a small cupboard fastened against the logs of the cabin wall.

“Young!” and old Herkamer's grim face seemed yet grimmer as it peered out through the small triangle formed by his down drawn cap and big, upturned collar. “He's younger'n our Seth, an' he couldn't speak ten words to folks lookin' at him to save his life. What we want is a tough, hard headed man who knows our ways an' can put up with 'em. This feller's store made an' soft. I could see that soon's the doctor introduced him. I wouldn't be s'prised if he shaved every day, an' cleaned his nails an' ba-th-ed,” drawing out the word derisively. “Huh! What can a feller like that do with our young men? S'pose he had to tramp ten miles through a Dakota blizzard to say pra'rs over a remains; s'pose he'd meet a fightin' grizzly in the forest; s'pose some of our high speerited boys got to chaffin' him in their b'ar cub way! Say, what'd he do then?” And without waiting for what he thought an impossible answer to his comments old Herkamer turned back to care for his team and to hasten his evening chores in anticipation of a gathering storm.

When he again appeared and had emerged from the depths of his greatcoat his mind still seemed to be harking back to his day's discontent, for he went on:

“Ain't old's our Seth, no; an' ain't more'n five feet four an' has hands soft's a ba-by. Huh! Our old minister where we come from had hands like the bark of an old hick'ry an' could chaw terbaccy an' wrestle with a grizzly an' pitch a man through a winder when he got sassed. That's the sort we need here. Hoss sense comes 'fore book sense, an' hard hands 'fore p'liteness. That's my idee.”

He drew a stool to the fireplace and spread his hands out over the blaze with thawing satisfaction. One by one the grim lines of his face softened and mellowed under the fire's influence, and presently he turned half round toward his wife, who was preparing supper.

“Of course we needn't say anything like this outside,” he observed, half apologetically. “The boy ain't to blame for what he is, an' the doctor got him here. An' furder,” still mellowing, “we won't be hard on the doctor either. He's our nearest neighbor an' gener'ly does things pretty sensible. We can pass over a slip now an' then. An' that reminds me,” turning entirely round, “the doctor said he'd bring him over this evenin' if it didn't storm too hard, an' if it did they'd likely be round tomorrer. The boy seemed spry an' good natered an' said he wanted to visit everybody an' get acquainted. We'll treat him right's we can, for he won't be here many days. Poor little feller! He don't realize how soon the boys'll run him out. You might save the wild turkey I shot yesterday, Liza, an' thar's plenty of venison. We'll treat him right.”

Outside they could hear the sounds of the approaching storm, and Herkamer went to the windows and door and fastened them more securely.

“The doctor won't bring him out tonight,” he said as he resumed his stool by the fire, “an' I don't reckon Seth an' the half breed will come in either. Leastway, I hope not. It'll be safer in the gulch than finding one's way through this snow.”

But he was mistaken, for presently there came a tramping and stamping outside, and as the cabin door was thrown open a tall, white haired old man stepped in, accompanied by a boyish figure of slight but compact build. The old man was Dr. Brown, the neighborhood autocrat, and in his companion Herkamer recognized the new minister. But he was no longer the fashionably dressed figure which had alighted from the train at Minot, but rather a trim frontiersman in appropriate costume. Old Herkamer's eyes darkened a little as they rested upon him. He did not approve of ministers in masquerade.

“I hardly thought you'd get over tonight,” he said rather shortly, “the storm”—

“That's just why we came,” the doctor interrupted genially. “The storm is likely to be a long one, and we can get back before it becomes severe. By tomorrow even the mile between our homes may be difficult to make. You are one of our prominent members,” frankly, “and I wanted you to see more of Mr. Irwin before hearing him in the pulpit. We are apt to be prejudiced against strangers.”

Herkamer's grimness increased. He was not prejudiced, he told himself, only conservative and steadfast. The man was all right, of course, but he was in the wrong place. It was a manifest duty to discountenance the mistake.

And yet there was something in the clear earnest gaze of the young minister, in his frank smile and warm, sympathetic eyes that somehow thrilled the cynical old heart. If only the boy had been content with his professional costume, well, who knew but in time— But this outfit, so ridiculously new! Probably the boy had never had on such clothes before in his life. It was masquerading, trying to appear what he was not.

At this moment came a stumbling outside and an ineffectual groping for the latch string, then an “Open de do'! I sa-say, open de do'!”

Herkamer sprung forward to comply, and as the door swung back a short, squatty figure half fell into the room.

“The half breed!” ejaculated Herkamer, forgetting to shut the door in his consternation. “What's up, Baptiste? Where's Seth?”

“Not dead!” gasped Mrs. Herkamer, her face whitening. “Seth ain't dead?”

This brought the half breed to his senses.

“Non, on'y jes' busted,” he reassured her. “Leg hurt so can't walk. Me—Ba'tiste—busted, too; finger broke. Come for med'cine—rub on. Ain't busted bad, non.”

With trembling hands Mrs. Herkamer produced some bottles and bandages from the cupboard; her husband reached for his greatcoat.

“We must hurry back to him,” he cried. “If his leg's broke it must be attended to at once. You'll have to excuse me,” to his guests.

Baptiste raised his squatty figure to its full height.

“No good you go,” he declared sturdily, “bad way t'rou' ravine. Fo'teen mile me come, all time fallin' an' climbin'; take five, six hour. You no strong like young man. Better me go 'lone. Go two time quick. Leg broke, want look out for soon. Me fix him, den we stay two t'ree day an' come home all right. Bes' way.”

“The half breed's right,” said Dr. Brown. “If the leg's broken it needs looking after at once, and Baptiste is just as good at that work as I am. Two old fellows like us, Herkamer, would only be a drag on Baptiste's progress.”

But old Herkamer paid not the least notice. He was resolutely humping his shoulders into his greatcoat when he felt a light touch upon his arm.

“You had better stay here, Mr. Herkamer,” the young minister said quietly. “Your son is in need of help which should reach him just as speedily as possible. I am used to this sort of thing and am young and strong; besides I have some little knowledge of medicine. Mr. Baptiste and I can do all that is necessary.” He buttoned his coat and turned to the half breed, who had been listening with open derision. But somehow, when Baptiste met the straight gaze of this young fellow, the contempt faded from his face. Like those who live close to nature, he was accustomed to look into eyes, and these eyes were strangely legible.

He strode out into the gathering darkness.

“Well, I guess mebbe you go 'long,” he acquiesced graciously, “dat is, if you t'ink you good for tough job.”

Old Herkamer stared. That soft handed boy “used to this sort of thing,” and Baptiste accepting him in preference to himself. What was the world coming to?

“Why, the boy can't get through that ravine to save his life,” he blurted out.

Herkamer snorted, but slowly removed his coat.

“Well, young feller,” ignoring Baptiste and speaking to the minister, “you'd better put on my big coat an' all the other warm stuff we can scare up. Better freeze comfortable long's you're bound to freeze. An' don't let that half breed push you on too fast. We don't want no remains on our hands even if Seth has broke his leg.”

The young minister smiled.

“This costume is all I need, thank you, Mr. Herkamer,” he said reassuringly. “I had it made especially for this sort of work, and it is very warm. I do not like heavy wraps for hard walking; the exercise is better. If the wind is hard or the cold becomes very severe I have a hood which I can draw over my head and shoulders. Now, Baptiste, about the route. Is this ravine you speak of a plain trail? Would a greenhorn like me be likely to lose his way?”

“Non; it be narrow, an' dere be rocks high on bot' sides, an' de camp be right in de middle. It can't be miss if one go dat fur. But we ain't goin' in de ravine, non. We go roun' by de hill. De ravine no let us out, mebbe, an' him berry dark now.”

“Well, we must remember that a man is waiting in urgent need of help and that a barrier is liable to block any trail. We must take no chances. You go round by the hill, and I will take the ravine with a lantern. I am used to climbing and can probably get through without any trouble.”

Baptiste raised his hands as though to protest, but no words came from his lips. Those straight glances were controlling him, and his hands fell to his side. The minister was a leader; he was to obey.

When they turned toward the door the rest accompanied them. Baptiste bent his head to the storm and plunged stolidly away to the hill route; the minister waited for a few directions from Herkamer, then he strode out into the gathering darkness toward the ravine.

“Do you think there's any chance at all of his making it?” asked Herkamer in a troubled voice as they turned back into the cabin.

“Chance,” echoed the doctor, with a curious ring in his voice, “of course I do. That young fellow is small only in size. Why, he's climbed half the mountains in Europe and likes nothing better than a tough wrestle like this to help somebody. It's the best job I ever did for the neighborhood, getting him here. I was afraid I couldn't, for he has plenty of money and only took to the ministry through love for the work. I thought he'd want a softer place; but, no, he actually seemed pleased when I asked him to come out to our wild country. Of course he'll make it.”

And he did, but with a sheer force of will that made it linger for many a long year about the neighborhood firesides as a story of pluck and endurance, and when he stood in the pulpit the next Sabbath, with one arm in a sling and his face still pale from the journey, there was not one in the rough audience but listened with respectful and earnest attention. And later, when they crowded about him to shake hands after service, it was not an effeminate, boyish figure they saw, but a brave, strong man to whom all were more than pleased to pay homage.

Grateful Snakes.

That hoop snakes roll up hill I can vouch for on the authority of a man by the name of Bell, whom I knew in Ohio and whose statements were accepted as gospel truth, says Ananias Junior in the Chicago Inter Ocean. Out on his farm he had four hoop snakes that were as tame as kittens and seemed to understand everything he said to them. On one occasion Bell started at cider making, and after the press was started and the cider began to fill the first barrel it was found that the juice began to run out of the barrel joints because the hoops had not been tightened. The tools necessary to drive in the hoops were some distance away at the house, and it began to look as if the entire barrel of cider would be lost. But the pet hoop snakes took in the situation and two of them voluntarily surrounded the barrel and held it tight until the hired man came with the necessary tools.

Bell told me that it was a custom of the snakes in cider making time to imbibe cider until they became frisky and then start to run races. They had a favorite course down a hill for some 200 yards and in returning always came back in hoop shape.

The Flight of Birds.

The course of flight is a distinguishing characteristic of many birds. The grouse rises gradually while flying in a straight course; the woodcock rises to a height of several feet or even yards, then flies straight away; the cuckoo's flight is also in a straight line, but peculiarly arrow-like, being graceful and silent, the long slender tail and body of the bird still further suggesting an arrow. A number of the birds, notably the brown thrasher and the song sparrow, progress in short flights, as from bush to bush, with a queer eccentric or bobbing motion, as if their flapping tails were a great hindrance. A Wilson snipe flies in a zigzag line, a goldfinch in long undulations or bounds. All of these and many other ways of flying can be indicated by dotted lines in the notebook, supplemented by such words as “sailing,” “rapid,” “slow,” “heavy” or “graceful” flight and “rapid,” “slow,” “silent” or “clattering” wing beats; the wings of the grouse hum, those of the woodcock and the mourning dove whistle.—St. Nicholas.

CHICKEN A LA KING.

Recipe From One of New York's Big Popular Hotels.

A favorite dish served in one of the big popular hotels of New York is chicken a la king. The recipe, as given by the chef of the fashionable establishment, is as follows: Cut into small pieces the white meat of a cold roast chicken. Make a sauce with two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan over the fire. When the butter melts stir in two heaping tablespoonfuls of flour which has been well sifted. When the flour and butter are mixed to a cream pour in slowly a pint of hot milk, stirring constantly to keep from lumping. Allow the sauce to boil up once, then add a teaspoonful of grated onion, a saltspoonful of salt and the yolks of two eggs. Stir them briskly through the sauce, add two truffles and two mushrooms cut in small pieces and fried lightly in butter, one sweet green pepper cut in shreds after seeds have been removed and a generous tablespoonful of capers chopped and just a suggestion of grated nutmeg. Last of all, add the chicken, stir all together and allow it to cook a minute. Chicken a la king is usually served in a chafing dish.—New York Post.

WEALTH IN BRITAIN

GREAT IN AGGREGATE, BUT INDIVIDUAL ESTATES SMALL.

Some Modest Fortunes Owned by British—Receipts of Death Duties—During 1902 Reports Were Published of Estates Which Aggregated £58,045,142—Over One-Fourth of the Deceased Had Lived Over 80 Years.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer in his budget speech estimated the yield of the death duties for the financial year ending March 31, 1903, at a million less than in the year ended March 31, 1902, when the revenue from this source—the largest ever obtained—was £18,513,714. The amount received in the financial year 1900-1901 was £17,032,512, and to the extent of about £1,200,000 the excess in the following year was due to the payment of duty on Baron de Hirsch's shares in the Jewish Colonization Society—in respect of which there had been prolonged litigation—and to the arrangement which the Chancellor of the Exchequer explained that he had made “to clear up a good many outstanding arrears for the benefit not only of the Exchequer, but also of the parties concerned.” This arrangement appears to be still in force. The receipts from the death duties up to the present time are nearly as much as in the corresponding period of last year; and it seems probable that instead of a decrease of a million, which the late Chancellor of the Exchequer estimated, his successor will have to report a gain on the estimate of three-quarters of a million, or perhaps even a million.

During that year reports have been published of estates over £100,000 each, with an aggregate gross value of £58,045,148, upon which death duties have been levied, including:

	No. of Estates.	Gross Value.
Over £1,000,000 each	5	£10,073,278
From £500,000 to £1,000,000 each	17	11,673,585
From £300,000 to £500,000 each	24	9,473,596
From £200,000 to £300,000 each	30	9,400,790
From £150,000 to £200,000 each	41	6,919,532
From £100,000 to £150,000 each	89	10,504,381
Total	206	£58,045,142

Wealth Slowly Gained.

For the most part this wealth has been slowly gained by people who were careful in their investments and lived long. Of fortunes quickly acquired by speculation little trace is to be found in the calendars of the probate registries. The average of the age at death of the persons who had at their disposition these fifty-eight millions is nearly seventy-three years. One-fourth of them had lived for eighty years and upward, and of these six had passed their ninetieth year.

Mr. Benjamin Buck Greene, a director of the Bank of England, was ninety-three; Mr. Benjamin Weir, formerly chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works, who left the greater part of his wealth to found a hospital, was ninety-four; Mr. Thomas Kingston of Cambridge, ninety-six, and the Rev. Samuel Hopper Powell, of Sharon Lodge, Ripon, had lived for ninety-seven years; but no centenarian has been noted among the persons whose estates have been charged with duty on more than £100,000 each. The real age of such people is usually known.

Among the estates reported during the year 1902 have been those of:

Earl Fitz William, K. G., aged 77	£2,949,830
Panaghi Athanasius Vagliano, 87, Greek merchant	2,888,095
William Richard Sutton of Golden Lane, carrier	2,089,795
James Dick, 70, of Glasgow, rubber merchant	1,077,034
Stephen Augustus Ralli, 73, Greek merchant	1,068,524
Robert Arthington, 77, the Leeds recluse	993,565
Charles Gassiot, 76, of London and Oporto, wine shipper	813,219
Mrs. Emma Montefiore, 82, daughter of Sir Isaac Lyon Goldsmid, ex-M.P.	813,253
John Corbett, 84, of Droitwich, salt merchant	768,834
Mrs. Anne Turner, 82, of Liverpool, widow of Mr. Charles Turner, M. P.	633,305

The estate of Mr. J. W. Mackay, of the Commercial Cable Co., which was expected to be at least £2,500,000, was sworn for probate at £1,537 gross in the United Kingdom and £70, real and personal in the United States. The remainder of his estate was stated in his will to be the community property of Mrs. Mackay and himself. Mr. W. R. Sutton died in 1900, but his estate, then sworn at £8,675, was resworn in July last (and thus yields duty to the current financial year on more than £2,000,000). Additional duty has also been received during the year on the estates, which have been the subject of litigation, of Mr. Arthington, provisionally sworn at £430,358, and Mr. Corbett, sworn, under administration pendente lite, at £412,972.

Large Estates—1887-1901.

The estates of nearly or more than £2,000,000 each upon which the death duties have been levied in this country during the past fifteen years have been few in number, as will be seen by the following list of those who have been reported:

1887—Baron Hermann de Stern	3,544,978
1887—Hugh McCalmont, aged 78	3,121,931
1887—George Grenfell, second Baron Wolverton, 63	1,824,338
1888—John Rylands, 87, of Manchester	2,574,922
1890—Junius Spencer Morgan, 76	2,022,054
1892—F. Clarke Hills, 85, of Deptford, chemist	1,941,715
1892—Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M. P., 66, newsvendor	1,764,460
1893—Sir Andrew Barclay Walker, Bart., 69, brewer	2,874,130
1893—Edward, Hy., 15th Earl of Derby, 67	1,802,204
1895—Andrew Montagu, 80, of Ingmanthorpe, Yorks	1,992,658
1896—Sir Charles Booth, 84, distiller	1,927,107
1897—William Louis Winans, 75	2,403,587
1897—James Bibby, 83, of Liverpool, shipowner	1,776,432
1899—John Gretton, 68, of Bass & Co., brewer	2,714,043
1900—George Smith, 91, of Elgin and Chicago	5,000,000
1900—W. O. Foster, 85, ironmaster	2,587,631
1900—Baron A. C. de Rothschild, 77, Paris	2,257,979
1901—Marquis of Bute, K. T., 53	1,864,310
	£43,994,477

The average is under two and a half millions each; it is to be borne in mind, however, that these are sworn valuations upon which duty has been levied and paid, and that the valuations do not usually include settled estates in which the deceased had only a life interest. Thus Sir Robert Loder, whose own estate was under £20,000, had power of appointment of £1,500,000, and the late Duke of Westminster's own estate was under a million, although the settled estate which passed on his death was probably worth ten or twelve times as much. We hear from time to time from the United States of persons whose wealth is “estimated” to be ten twenty, or fifty millions each. It is probable that there may be two or three very rich men in the United States who have the disposal of greater fortunes than any individual in this country has at his own absolute disposition. Trustworthy statistics of private wealth in America are not, however, easily accessible. Common report about other people's money is curiously untrustworthy. The credulity of people generally about stories of wealth is unbounded. So far as a careful student of wealth statistics can form an opinion, the number of people in the United States worth $500,000 each is not likely to be greater than the number of those in the United Kingdom worth £100,000 each. But an “estimate” of $500,000 on the other side often gets changed in £500,000 in the course of transmission to this country.—London Telegraph.

DRESSING FOR DINNER.

Change of Clothes Almost as Bracing as a Bath, Says Lancet.

The London Lancet advocates the custom of dressing for dinner, and, going even further, declares that every worker should change his clothes before the evening meal, even if he does not possess evening clothes.

“The bracing effect of a change of clothes is well known,” says the Lancet. “Many a man feeling almost too fatigued after an arduous day's work to change his clothes finds himself considerably refreshed when the change is accomplished, and at the same time he experiences a feeling of cleanliness and preparedness for his dinner, and good digestion invariably waits on healthy appetite. The changing of clothes may even thus favorably affect nutrition.

“Nor need the changing of clothes be the exclusive luxury of the persons who dress for dinner. The hardworked clerk, the shopkeeper, and the working man would all be better if they would cast off their work-a-day clothes and put on clean clothes for the evening meal after the day of toil is over.

“The effect of a change of clothes after a day's toil is in some respects similar to that of a bath, mildly stimulating, bracing, dispelling the feeling of tiredness and fatigue so commonly experienced.

“The explanation most likely is that the clothes after they have been worn all day get more or less clogged and lose temporarily their ventilating properties, so that the emanations of the body do not escape freely.”

Passing of Euclid.

It may perhaps be news to many of our readers that geometry is now imparted to the youthful mind without the assistance of the great geometrician of Alexandria, and that the familiar formula “first four books of Euclid” has now no meaning in examinations at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. For some time past we have been the only European nation that has preserved Euclid as a school book, or condemned the rising generation to learn geometry from a work which, as has been well said, was written for Greek men, not British boys. His antiquated methods, the ruthless adherence to the strict letter of his theorems and problems which was exacted from the neophant, have at last broken down, and so geometry is now taught as a living and applied science, which meets us in all daily emergencies, instead of as an old Greek book, and arithmetic and algebra are being humanized also; the young engineer, with his manifold requirements and limited time, has set the pace. Some of us will say, in parody of Byron, “Then farewell, Euclid, whom I hated so.” But others will remember that with all the old gentleman's faults he provided a splendid mental training in deductive logic, and that Sir Alexander Cockburn, before delivering judgment in an intricate case, used to brace his faculties by working through the forty-seventh proposition of the first book.—London Globe.

The Shape of the Wrist.

To improve the shape of the wrist when it is too slender and the bones are too prominent begin treating with daily massage. As a cream to use for the purpose the following is good: Two ounces sweet oil of almonds, two ounces orange flower water, two drams white wax, one dram oil of sweet orange, two drams spermaceti. Melt the wax and spermaceti in a jar set in boiling water. Heat the almond oil and add it to the wax. Heat the orange flower water; add it, half a teaspoonful at a time, stirring the mixture quickly. Remove the vessel from the water and beat the contents. Heat again and add the oil of sweet orange. Beat until it is cold. Put away in pots and cover with parchment. Cocoa butter and olive oil are also excellent flesh builders. Rub them well into the skin.

A WISE HOUSEKEEPER.

She Mixes Brains With Humanity In Dealing With Her Servant.

Brains and humanity—those are two qualities every man and woman needs to possess before it is given to either of them to have supervision over others.

The wise housekeeper starts out with a servant in perfect understanding.

She lets the girl know what is expected of her, and she keeps faith with that girl in any promises she may make.

She does not begin by saying, “It's just nothing at all to do the work here,” and then bring four women in to luncheon on ironing day.

She realizes that the kitchen is the most important room in her house and that when she has everything there running smoothly the rest of housekeeping is a sweet and simple dream.

She realizes that the person who feeds a family acceptably and keeps it comfortable 365 days in the year is entitled to some consideration.

Therefore she sees that there is a comfortable room, with plenty of air, a good bed, a cheery, pleasant, homelike place, ready for the girl when her work is done.

She arranges her work systematically.

It is a woman like this that keeps the same help in her home for years and makes them say of her, “She's a real lady, she is.”

The girls say that lack of consideration on the part of the women who employ them is the reason for the revolt against unspecialized housework.

They say that the general housework girl is supposed to combine the duties of cook, waitress, chambermaid, parlor maid, laundress, lady's maid, nursemaid, bellboy and errand girl.

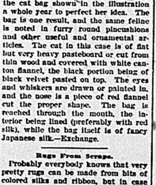
She is never supposed to be too tired to respond to the buzz of a bell, and she is expected to put up with whatever accommodations are left after the rest of the family is comfortably provided for.

And I believe there is a fairly good foundation for her complaints. A whole lot of incompetent, selfish, inconsiderate women are so placed in the scale of fortune that they can keep house and “have a girl.” Women of this type have the idea that the placing of a girl in the kitchen and paying her so much a week end their responsibility as far as housekeeping goes.—Exchange.

LAUNDRY BAG.

Novel and Attractive Receptacle For Soiled Linen.

Even so commonplace and humble a member of the family of household conveniences as the laundry bag may be so wrought as to combine attractiveness with utility, and there is no reason why the receptacle for soiled linen should present an unlovely appearance every time it is disclosed to view.



THE CAT BAG.

It is said that it took the inventor of the cat bag shown in the illustration a whole year to perfect her idea. The bag is one result, and the same feline is noted in furry round pincushions and other useful and ornamental articles. The cat in this case is of flat but very heavy pasteboard or cut from thin wood and covered with white canton flannel, the black portion being of black velvet pasted on top. The eyes and whiskers are drawn or painted in, and the nose is a piece of red flannel cut the proper shape. The bag is reached through the mouth, the interior being lined (preferably with red silk), while the bag itself is of fancy Japanese silk.—Exchange.

Rugs From Scraps.

Probably everybody knows that very pretty rugs can be made from bits of colored silks and ribbon, but in case some one has a lot of pieces and does not know what to do with them we make this suggestion: Select only bits of harmonizing shades—pink and brown, red and dull green and black, yellow and dark green, purple, black and cream color—and cut the pieces into strips of even width, sewing the ends together firmly. Roll into balls and send them to a weaver of carpets, with instructions not to use any discordant color for binding them together. You will be surprised at the soft, artistic effect of old scraps. A really charming portiere or couch cover will be the reward of a little patience and very little expenditure.

Loose Chairs.

Loose rounds on chairs are annoying besides giving the pieces of furniture the appearance of cheapness and general disability. They may be easily made tight by filling the grooves into which they are fitted with a good glue. As soon as this dries and the rounds are made secure the glue that has run down on the outside may be chipped off with a knife. A loose arm to a rocker or the runners on a rocker may be tightened in the same way.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

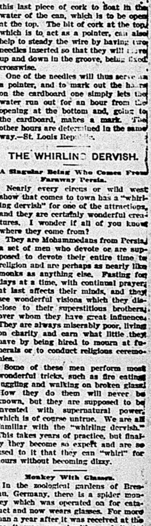
A WATER CLOCK.

Good Homemade Toy That Is Not Difficult to Make.

Very little difficulty will be encountered in making the water clock illustrated here, and any boy can manage it. All that is needed are a piece of cardboard, a piece of wire, two pieces of cork, some needles and a tin can.

A hole is made in the bottom of the can which shall suffice to let all the water run out in twenty-four hours. The piece of cardboard must be about twenty-six inches long and six inches wide and is cut out as shown in the diagram. This is set up on the tin can by means of wires.

A stiff wire twenty inches long has a small piece of cork fastened to one end and a shaving of cork at the other, this last piece of cork to float in the water of the can, which is to be open at the top. The bit of cork at the top, which is to act as a pointer, can also help to steady the wire by having two needles inserted so that they will move up and down in the groove, being fixed crosswise.



THE WATER CLOCK.

One of the needles will thus serve as a pointer, and to mark out the hours on the cardboard one simply lets the water run out for an hour from the opening at the bottom and, going to the cardboard, makes a mark. The other hours are determined in the same way.—St. Louis Republic.

THE WHIRLING DERVISH.

A Singular Being Who Comes From Faraway Persia.

Nearly every circus or wild west show that comes to town has a “whirling dervish” for one of the attractions, and they are certainly wonderful creatures. I wonder if all of you know where they come from?

They are Mohammedans from Persia, a set of men who devote or are supposed to devote their entire time to religion and are perhaps as nearly like monks as anything else. Fasting for days at a time, with continual prayer, at last affects their minds, and they see wonderful visions which they disclose to their superstitious brothers, over whom they have great influence. They are always miserably poor, living on charity and earn what little they have by being hired to mourn at funerals or to conduct religious ceremonies.

Some of these men perform most wonderful tricks, such as fire eating, juggling and walking on broken glass. How they do them will never be known, but they are supposed to be invested with supernatural power, which is of course untrue. We are all familiar with the “whirling dervish.” This takes years of practice, but finally they become so expert and are so used to it that they can “whirl” for hours without becoming dizzy.

Monkey With Glasses.

In the zoological gardens of Breslau, Germany, there is a spider monkey which was operated on for cataract and now wears glasses. For more than a year after it was received at the zoo it was very healthy and lively. Then it became very quiet, ceased to play and crouched in a corner. It was examined and found to be suffering from cataract, so it was immediately taken to the eye hospital and operated on. In less than a month it was fitted with a pair of spectacles, which it wears with becoming gravity.

Conundrums.

Why should a man always wear a watch when he travels in a desert? Because every watch has a spring in it.

What question is that to which you must always answer yes? What does y-e-s spell?

How many sides are there to a tree? Two, the inside and the outside.

If.

If c-a-t spelled dog and cow
And horse and mouse and heaven,
If two plus two made six and nine
And twelve and eighty-seven,
If “see the man” was all there was
To learn inside my reader,
No boy would be as bright as I;
In school I'd be the leader.

If school took up at nine and then
Let out in an hour or less,
If half of this was singing songs
And the other half recess,
If all the days were holidays
'Cept Christmas and Thanksgiving,
I'd know what people mean who talk
About the joy of living.

—Ellis O. Jones in St. Nicholas.

Pioneer Educators Of Deaf and Dumb.

The Oregon Outlook has the following interesting article, which relates to many old Bellevillians:

"The report of the Mackay Institution of Montreal, Canada, has just been received. Its contents are interesting for various reasons. So far as I know it is the only Canadian Institution that has been betrayed into the mistake of attempting to educate its deaf and its blind children together. The deaf aspect of its work was doubtless the result of the very exuberance of benevolence. It wanted to do all the good possible. It was founded by a benevolent movement in 18.6 for the education and training of deaf mutes 'and of the blind' of Protestant parentage. Its early policies were influenced to no small degree by that distinguished educator of the deaf, J. Barrett McGann, and not late in its history, his daughter, Mrs. Harriett E. Ashcroft, became Superintendent and has administered the affairs of the Institution with recognized ability and success for more than a quarter of a century. Mr. McGann's family seems to have devoted life service to the deaf. Some years ago a brother of Mrs. Ashcroft was a teacher in our deaf department, and brother-in-law is the Superintendent of the new institution in Idaho for the Deaf and the Blind, recently transferred from the superintendency of the Washington school.

"There are sixty deaf and twelve blind pupils at the Mackay Institution. A very rational course of study has been elaborated for the deaf, and a considerable range of exercises provided for the blind, some chair caning, and some music also.

"In the commencement exercises last June the President of the Board in a neat address presented Mrs. Ashcroft, on behalf of his fellow-members and himself, a handsome watch and chain as a testimonial of their high appreciation of her long and faithful services. — West Virginia Tablet.

"Mr. McGann, who is a grandfather of Mrs. Tillinghast, established the first school for the deaf in Canada at Toronto, then Hamilton. This was finally moved to Belleville in 1870 He was also instrumental in the establishment of the Mackay School.

"Besides the very successful work of Mrs. Ashcroft as the head of this school for 25 years and of Mrs. Watson in the Washington school and more recently that of Idaho, two other daughters of Mr. McGann have devoted their lives to the education of the deaf. Of these Mrs. J. G. Terrill has taught continuously in the Belleville school since its establishment 35 years ago, and Miss Mossie McGann taught for a number of years in the Mississippi school, where she fell a victim of yellow fever. In writing of her in the Annals Supt. Dobyns said; 'When Miss McGann died the cause of deaf-mute education lost a valuable worker: the articulating deaf of our state felt, for the time, that they had lost the power of speech. The history of the Institution and the friends she left among this people will prove an enduring monument to her success."

"In the third generation Mr. J. C. Watson, grandson of Mr. McGann, established the Winnipeg school, but soon after getting it well started in a new $25,000 building, was compelled on account of ill health to resign and seek a milder climate.

"In recognition of the great personal sacrifices, and the valuable and faithful services rendered their cause, the deaf of Canada have erected a fitting monument to the memory of Mr. McGann. But in the long, able, and faithful service of his daughters in the cause of the education of the deaf a still more enduring monument has been erected, one builded of the intangible labors of love, of the leading of hundreds of little children from ignorance to understanding, and thus sowing the seeds of light where the harvest must ever grow greater and greater from generation to generation."

One Bottle Made Many Fortunes.

T. P. O'Connor, M.P., who on his recent visit to this country met with great success in raising funds to increase the influence of Ireland in the British Parliament, tells an interesting story, in his London Weekly, to illustrate how great oaks from little acorns grow. He had been resting up and taking the waters of the Spa at Neuenahr, a resort in Germany, which he describes as restful, quaint and beautiful. Like all the others who take the cure at Neuenahr, he paid a visit to the Apollinaris spring, which is not distant. He describes the studied care with which Apollinaris is bottled and the spring's large volume of natural carbonic gas, a constituent, which, according to medical men, greatly improves digestion: then he tells how, some thirty years ago, the capital was secured from the late Mr. Steinkopff, who owned the St. James' Gazette, and the late Mr. Smith, the head of the great publishing firm of Smith and Elder, to exploit the Apollinaris spring on a large scope. It appears that a famous English surgeon who travelled a great deal and generally brought back something interesting from his tours, put on his table one evening a bottle of Apollinaris, a water which he had tried and liked during a trip to Germany. Mr. Smith and Mr. Steinkopff liked the water, investigated its virtues, and thus the bottle which figured in this little dinner conversation was the origin of the gigantic London company, whose shareholders number thousands, and whose income has reached many millions of pounds sterling.

Death's Heavy Hand

Hamilton Spectator: For the second time within a few months the hand of death has been laid heavily on the family of Andrew Linklater, yesterday, when, after some months of illness, Minnie Elizabeth, only surviving daughter, passed away at the family residence, 29 Bailie street.

Deceased was 27 years of age, and was much beloved by a very wide circle of friends, who will mourn her demise. She was a member and an active worker in Herkimer St. Baptist church, where her services will be much missed.

To the sorrowing family, which a few months ago was bereft of another daughter, after a few days' illness from pneumonia, will be extended heartfelt sympathy of many friends.

Besides the parents, two brothers, William, traveller for the John McPherson Shoe company, and Charles at home, are left to mourn a loving sister.

The funeral will take place at 3.30 Wednesday afternoon,

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Harmless Solution That Will Lighten Laundry Labor.

It is never necessary for harmful washing solutions to be used in order to facilitate the laundering of clothes, for there are several things that can be added to the water which will quickly eradicate dirt, besides making the washing easier, and will not injure the fabric.

Kerosene is one of the best clothes whiteners and is perfectly safe to use. It is especially good for clothes that have been hanging for some time and become yellow.

For ordinary purposes use but a tablespoonful of kerosene to a gallon of water.

In the event of garments becoming very much soiled an emulsion made from equal parts of kerosene, clear limewater and turpentine shaken until creamy is invaluable.

Only one cup of the mixture should be added to a boilerful of clothes. They should be kept over the fire for half an hour.

In the case of men's jumpers, overalls, working shirts or children's stockings or trousers this emulsion is invaluable.

Make a very hot soapsuds and add a small portion of the emulsion to the water. Allow the clothes to remain for about five minutes in the water and rinse with hot water thoroughly, for in the latter case when the emulsion is used so strong it is quite necessary that every particle should be removed.

Borax soaps which are free from alkali are good for laundry purposes.

MOTOR-OMNIBUS EVILS.

Ceilings Collapse in Edgeware Road as Result of Vibration.

Crockery is broken, ceilings are falling, street scavengers are with difficulty able to carry out their work, and the clerks in the telegraph offices can scarcely hear their instruments in the Edgeware road, where, after a lull due to the efforts of The Express, the motor-'bus nuisance has broken out again.

A London Express representative who made enquiries in the Marylebone district found that nearly every resident in the Edgeware road had some complaint to make about the motor-omnibus. Many have decided to leave the district, and the Marylebone Borough Council is deluged with hundreds of letters of protest.

Noise Drowns Voices.

Councillor Knight was one of the residents interviewed by The Express representative.

"Edgeware road is a pandemonium," he said. "It is a positive fact that if I am walking with a friend along the street I cannot carry on a conversation because of the noise made by those vehicles.

"The vibration caused by the constant procession of omnibuses is so great that ceilings are being ruined, much damage is being done to crockery, and newly-painted shops are as dirty as ever a few weeks after the improvement has been completed. One neighbor of mine spent £150 a few months ago in redecorating his shop, which now looks as if it had not been painted for years.

"Not only do the motor-omnibuses raise dust and dirt, but they prevent the scavengers getting early to work, and so thoroughly cleaning the streets," continued Mr. Knight. "I have myself seen those public servants standing idly on the pavement in the early morning while a procession—it was nothing else—of motor omnibuses raced three abreast down the road. One scavenger was killed not long ago."

Other residents have much the same story to tell. One storekeeper declared that he often stands at his door, watching with a kind of fascination people who attempt to cross the street. "When two omnibuses of one company are trying to 'starve' a rival vehicle, pedestrians have to be very lively indeed to escape death or injury," he said.

Can't Hear Ticker.

A telegraph clerk told an Express representative that even with all the doors and windows closed he can hardly hear his "ticker." "We have to convert the office into a veritable oven in order to work at all," he added.

Estate agents are finding increasing difficulty in letting houses or flats, for few people would by choice live in a constant turmoil, clouds of dust, and the odor of petrol.

The Marylebone Council are doing all in their power to stop the nuisance, and recently two drivers were fined £1 and costs each for driving at a dangerous speed.

He Commands Respect.

Lord Courtney, one of the most recent additions to the British House of Lords, is the kind of man who commands respect rather than affection, says M.A.P. To look at, he might be a substantial farmer, were it not for the development of his dome-like head, now thatched with hair as thinly as his native Cornwall is with trees. The beetling brows, the big determined nose, the firm, clean-shaven upper lip, and the whitening beard and whiskers, combine to form a countenance full of character, and it is, indeed, a true index of the rugged, masterful, independent spirit within. Even in his dress Lord Courtney shows his independence. Mathematics and the "dismal science" of political economy have been the twin lodestars of his existence, and yet it is his fate to be regarded by the man in the street as a crank and a faddist. This is due to his persistent advocacy of female suffrage and proportional representation; also to his pro-Boer sympathies during the war. He disagrees, more or less, with everybody, and always has done so, and yet none of the recent peerages conferred on Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman's recommendation has given more general satisfaction than Lord Courtney's. The bitterest disappointment of his life was when the Liberals would not elect him as Speaker after Lord Peel's retirement.

A Close Shave.

Mr. Raymond Blathwayt, in his lecture on "People I have Met," tells how, during his recent provincial tour, Mr. Beerbohm Tree was entertained at a big public luncheon by the Lord Mayor of Manchester, and sat next to Bishop Welldon, the new dean. Said Dr. Welldon, "Well, Mr. Tree, what have you been doing today?" "Oh," replied the famous actor-manager, "I went for a long motor ride this morning and I lost a bet." "Indeed," answered the dean, "May I ask what the bet was?" "Certainly," said Mr. Tree. "I made a bet that we would pass through four hundred different odors, and we only encountered three hundred and ninety-nine." "Ah!" swiftly replied the witty dean, "you missed the odor of sanctity!"

Edinburgh's Empty Houses.

Some rather remarkable figures have been published concerning the number of empty houses in Edinburgh. The burgh assessor's books show that in May last, there were 4,179 tenantless houses—a record for that city. Nearly four-fifths are houses under £20 rent, and, therefore, for the most part, working class houses. The total valuation of unoccupied houses is £121,251, against a total valuation for the city of £3,191,803. On all hands it is agreed that the chief causes of the large amount of property standing empty are overbuilding and want of employment.

A Mountain Joan

By Alicia Carr

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

Tilda Dale came up into the mountains of Kentucky from Virginia while the clans of the Doanes and the Hacketts were at peace. Not a man on either side had been killed or wounded for five long years. They passed each other on the highway, they met each other in the village, and they sat almost side by side in the log church on a Sunday. They did this with knives in their belts and rifles at hand. At any moment there might be bloodshed.

The girl was not a stranger to feuds, but she was not a hater. She had the sentiment of one, born amid peaceful surroundings. She had a gentleness about her that awed the grim mountaineers who had sent for her to teach the school at Chestnut Cove. The Doanes and the Hacketts were agreed on that. They had met at the schoolhouse, half a dozen on each side, each man with his Winchester across his arm, and talked it over. When they rode slowly away in different directions they had looked back at each other, but not a shout of defiance had been uttered or a shot fired. Schooling was a part of patriotism.

In a week the schoolmistress had heard the story of the feud, but she had refused to become a partisan. When a month had gone past and she was indulging in the hope that she might be the humble instrument of making the truce a permanent peace she precipitated the very calamity she was praying might be avoided. The children of the Doanes and the Hacketts were in the same classes, but they mingled no more than oil and water. Down to the five-year-old child they had heard the story of the feud, and each was a self constituted champion.

One of the Hackett boys finally resented a word from one of the Doanes, drew a pocketknife and made an attack. The teacher's screams called in James Doane, who happened to be passing, and he disarmed the Hackett boy. Doane had been away in North Carolina, and this was his first meeting with the schoolmistress, He was the Kentucky mountaineer in size and strength and lithesomeness and fearlessness, but he had a face in which there were good nature and gentleness. He had grown from youth to manhood during the truce. He had neither sought to make peace nor provoke hostilities. Having disarmed the boy, he stood staring at the girl, blushing and unable to say a word.

Next day there were mutterings from the Hacketts and chuckles from the Doanes. There were those who sought to enlarge upon the incident. Three days later, as young Doane rode to town, he passed two of the Hacketts, and they crowded him off the narrow highway. There would have been an outbreak but for the gentleness of the teacher. Her mingled tears and smiles turned the knives and bullets aside for the time. Then a foe crept in against which she could not guard.

James Doane was just past his twenty-first birthday. It was the same with David Hackett. Both young men came to call upon her with that freedom from restraint found among the primitive. Each fell in love with her ere she was aware of having created any feeling at all. When she found that the demon of jealousy had been aroused in young Hackett's breast she wanted to return to her home and let the feeling die out, but the people would not hear of it. They were taking sides again to renew the feud, yet they insisted on regarding her as a neutral figure and also on her remaining.

Down in her heart Tilda was just a bit glad of this. While she would not admit it to herself, she was learning to love the young man with the mild blue eyes and gentle face.

The dozen families at Chestnut Cove had already taken sides. The partisanship soon extended to others miles away. In a family feud you are for or against. For a man there can be no neutrality. Next came arming and mutterings and threats. All knew that these were the preface to deeds of violence. It needed an overt act and the killings would begin.

As the excitement intensified young Doane ceased his visits to the schoolmistress. She had not seen him for a week when one gray afternoon as she walked alone up the mountain side to gather the ripening chestnuts she saw him hiding behind a bowlder. Even as she stood there looking and wondering he aimed, fired his rifle and quickly disappeared among the laurels. Twenty minutes later she knew that a horse ridden by one of the Hackett partisans had been killed in its tracks.

The girl could have told, but she didn't. Even when the Hacketts charged her lover with the crime and had him arrested and confined in jail for examination she spoke no word except to him. From that hour she was thinking and planning. Her face was still gentle, but her scholars noticed that it had taken on a new look of determination, almost of heroism.

Of a certain Wednesday down in the town at the foot of the mountain James Doane was to be brought before a justice of the peace for preliminary examination. Each and every one of the Doanes was there. Each and every one of the Hacketts was there. Each partisan for five miles around was there. When the justice saw the size of the crowd that had gathered he adjourned the case from his office to the big room in what the townspeople called their city hall. It held 200 people. Two hundred were there to fill it. The sheriff at the door had asked each and every man who passed to leave his weapons behind. Not a man had obeyed. Who could say what would happen before the examination was concluded?

To humiliate a Doane the Hacketts had insisted that the prisoner be brought in handcuffed. Women had asked to be admitted, but they were kept out—all but one. There was no school that day up in Chestnut Cove. The schoolmistress had been subpoenaed as a witness, but no one knew what her testimony would be. She had come down in the buckboard of a constable. She had talked with the official long and earnestly on the way. Before going to court he had performed an errand for her. This purchase he had carried into court, with the girl at his heels, and had placed it on a table. When the girl took her place every one felt that something remarkably uncanny was at hand. The Hacketts had demanded a warrant and had a witness. He perjured himself when he said that he saw James Doane do the shooting and run away. The justice was a Hackett sympathizer, and he smiled.

Then the girl was called to the stand to tell her story. She told it in such a straightforward way that even the Hacketts believed, but the justice shook his head. There was an uneasy stir at this, and men muttered to each other. It was then that Tilda Dale rose up and returned to her place beside the table to tear the brown paper off the purchase made by the constable. Men looked again and still again and drew in their breath. It was a keg of powder, with one head out.

The girl then took from her pocket a candle and lighted it and placed it on the desk two feet away. Not a man in that room moved so much as a foot. No one rose, no one spoke, no one looked elsewhere, but straight at the girl.

"Men, I want to talk to you for a few minutes," she began in gentle tones, though every word was audible back to the door.

Then she gave a history of the Doane-Hackett feud as she had gathered the particulars. She named the killed and wounded and the living. She pictured the misery and the heartaches. She spoke in withering scorn of ambushes, of cowardice, of the burning of buildings and the maiming of animals. There had been warrants and summonses many times before. Partiality had been shown by justice, and there had been perjury without stint. She scored the Doanes as well as the Hacketts. She scored the gray haired women on either side, and no one interrupted her. The sheriff was there, but he did not advance upon her. Justice, lawyers, sheriff, the Doanes and the Hacketts were looking at that lighted candle and keg of powder.

"The man is innocent," said the girl, pointing to her lover. "At the hour named he was miles away. Besides, I was there and saw. Is he to have justice?"

No one answered. The flame of the candle was blowing in the draft of the window toward the keg. She reached out and picked it up and held it quite over the keg and said:

"Only sixteen people have been killed in this feud lasting fifty years. That is too slow work. Here are 200 of us. We are Doanes or we are Hacketts. Why not all die together and end the trouble and bring peace to a neighborhood that has been in turmoil for half a century?"

Men cringed and chilled and chattered as the candle swept back and forth over the headless keg. So it lasted for two minutes, and then the girl blew out the light and stood with folded arms.

"The prisoner is discharged!" said the justice at last.

The Hacketts tiptoed out, then the Doanes, and the Joan of the mountains was left all alone in the big room. She sat down and laid her head on the table and wept. And by and by an arm stole softly around her, and her tears ceased.

Light and Colors.

It is now the general conclusion of scientists that light is simply the result of vibrations, or waves, which occur in a hypothetical substance known as the ether, a substance supposed to permeate all space and all objects and to be coextensive with the universe. According to this theory, when the ether is caused to vibrate at a certain rate it gives rise to the sensation of light in proportion to the rate of vibration, or, in other words, the wave length. In this way the various colors are produced, red having the longest wave length and violet the shortest wave length of any of the colors—that is, there are more waves or vibrations in a given time in the case of violet than in the case of red light. Briefly, in relation to this peculiar phenomenon, the theory is that colored bodies owe their color to the fact that they exert a selective action on the waves or rays of light which fall upon them, allowing some to pass on and so give the effect of color, while others are absorbed or destroyed.

A Driller All Right.

An Irishman looking for work took his stand in a group at the gate of a large engineering establishment. By and by the foreman came up to the gate and asked:

"Are there any drillers here?"

"Yes," said Pat, stepping forward.

He got the job at once, but he had not been working long at the machine when it broke down. The foreman, in anything but a pleasant mood, then inquired:

"Where, man, did you learn drilling?"

"In the militia," was Pat's reply.—London Tit-Bits.

Tyendinaga Orangemen Elect Their Officers,

The annual meeting of L.O.L. No. 295, was held in their lodge-room at Myrehall, on Dec. 8th. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, and installed by W. J. Hall County and District Master of South Hastings:

P.M.—Bro. Robt. Sullivan.
W.M.—Bro. F. Gray.
D.M.—Bro. Robt. Deckin.
Chaplain—Bro. A. Coulter.
Rec.-Sec.—Bro. E. C. Carter.
Fin.-Sec.—Bro. G. Boldrick.
Treas.—Bro. P. R. Sullivan.
D. of C.—Bro. W. Gray.
Lecturer—Bro. R. Crawford.
1st Com.—Bros. Simon Howe, John Chariswerth, Robt. Sullivan, John L. Cartet, Jos. Colden.

Our lodge meets on the first Tuesday of every month; all visitors welcome.

We also held our annual oyster supper on Dec. 28, which was largely attended by the members and their families. The tables were tastefully decorated with cakes and pies, provided by the ladies, and oysters were served in abundance, and after all had done justice to the inner man the meeting was called to order by our worthy master. A programme was held presided over by Bro. Robert Sullivan, past master. The usual loyal addresses were given by the chairman, our new master, J. F. Gray, and Bro. Archibald Collins. The addresses were interspersed by suitable vocal selections by Miss Wilson, of Haiston, and Misses Mabel Hamilton, Jennie Alford and Miss Downey of Myrehall, and Bro. Chas. Sargent, who gave us a few selections: also Bro. Anson Carter, who gave us "Jacob's Dream."

At the close of the proceedings the Orangemen presented their past master, Bro. Robt. Sullivan, with an address accompanied by a Morris chair. Bro Sullivan was taken by surprise, and in a touching reply to the address assured the members of the great pleasure it afforded him to know that he possessed the esteem and respect of the brethren for the years in which he was master. He congratulated both himself and the lodge upon the harmonious good-feeling that existed between all concerned, and the happy conditions generally on this occasion.

He trusted they would all be spared to enjoy many merry Christmases and happy New Year's.

ADDRESS.

Robert Sullivan,

Dear Sir and Bro.,—Upon your retirement from the office of Worshipful Master, we, officers and members of L.O.L., No. 295, desire to express to you the very great and sincere appreciation of the work done by you during the past eight years, and of the manner in which you have upheld the honor and dignity of your worshipful office. We cannot but feel that lasting good must result from the earnest, untiring and self-denying way in which you have performed that which you were called upon to do. All who have the honor to know you pay you the just tribute of respect and admiration, and applaud your zeal in the performance of your duties, feeling that they have seen in you a worthy example to imitate.

In token of your appreciation and regard we ask you to accept this chair, praying that your days may long be spared among us.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge,

Total expenditures	$1725.34
Balance on hand	$ 161.75

On motion the report was received and unanimously adopted.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and resulted as follows:

President—R. J. Garbutt.

First Vice-President—G. M. Goodfellow.

Second Vice-President — Mayor Sulman.

Third Vice-President—W. Carnew.

Directors — W. W. Anderson, L. R. Terwilligar, F. Mallory, T. J. Hurley, H. C. Emerson, C. Sheffield, W. Hanley, W. Thrasher, C. Weese, J. R. Anderson, M. Coulter and H. K. Denyes.

Auditors — G. G. Horton and J. L. Clapp.

A LETTER FROM THE DEPARTMENT.

A letter was read from the Department of Agriculture stating that it would be necessary for the society, at its annual meeting in January, if such is their desire, to name Belleville as the place at which the exhibition will be held, the intention to do so being set forth in the notice calling the meeting. Belleville will then be recognized under the new Act as the headquarters of the society.

A motion prevailed that the name of the East Hastings and Belleville Agricultural Society be changed to the Belleville Agricultural Society.

VOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. Farley moved, seconded by Mr. C. Sheffield, that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered to the Belleville City Council for their grant of $300 towards assisting the fair.

The motion was carried by a standing vote.

Mayor Sulman thanked the members for the vote of thanks that had been passed. He promised the association that a grant equal to last year would be given if it was in his power to obtain such.

DATE OF NEXT FAIR.

After some discussion as to the date of holding the next fair it was decided to hold it on Wednesday and Thursday, September 11th and 12th.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Mayor Sulman suggested that the Board of Directors take into consideration the advisability of having the fair open one evening, as there were many in the city who were unable to attend during the day, and who would attend one evening if a programme was provided.

Mr. Terwilliger said he had no doubt the Driving Association would assist the officers of the fair in providing an entertainment for one evening.

On motion this matter was left in the hands of the Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors met and elected the following additional officers.

Treasurer—W. C. Farley.

Secretary—H. C. Fairman

Mr. Farley moved, seconded by Mr. G. Campbell, that the President, Secretary and Treasurer be a committee to take into consideration the disposal of the building at Thrasher's Corners, with power to act.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

This completed the business and the meeting adjourned.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE VILLAGE PARSON."

A beautiful pastoral drama, "The Village Parson," was presented at the opera house last evening to a rather slim audience. Those who did attend apparently enjoyed the play, which was presented by a well-balanced company. There are many rather touching situations in the drama and these were well portrayed by those taking part. Ben. J. Lauder, as Rev. Tom Godley, the village parson, has an excellent conception of his part; also Miss Louise Price, as the parson's wife. The stage settings were in keeping with the play.

"THE SHOO-FLY REGIMENT."

One of the distinct novelties of the season will unquestionably be Cole and Johnson, who are exploiting this season in a new musical farce comedy written by themselves entitled "The Shoo-Fly Regiment," which comes to the Carman next Monday. All (or very nearly all) the colored performers of note in the profession have been enlisted under the Cole and Johnson banner and a company of exceptional merit is the result. A special feature is the capital singing ballet to which unusual attention has been paid.

Former Resident Married.

A quiet wedding took place on Dec. 25, 1906, at the residence of the Rev. Dr. Riley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Minneapolis, the contracting parties being Miss Theressa V. Burtan, of Minneapolis, formerly of Thorpe, Wis., and Mr. Jas. J. Mills, a former Belleville boy, now of Minneapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Mills will reside in Minneapolis.

Died In New Hampshire.

Mrs Margaret Hanbury, wife of Michael Hanbury, died at her home in Manchester, N.H., on Dec. 7, aged 55 years, after an illness from pneumonia. She is survived by her husband and one sister, Mrs. Hughes, Murney St., this city. Mrs. Hanbury was a member of St. Anne's Church in Manchester, and of the Confraternity Society. The funeral took place at St. Anne's Church, Rev. J. J. Lyons being the celebrant at high mass of requiem. Many handsome floral offerings were sent, expressing the deep regret of numerous friends.

Terry-Hare Nuptials

Mr. Wm. J. Terry, of Colborne, and Miss Etta E. Hare, of Brighton, were married at the bride's home yesterday and arrived in the city last evening to spend a day with relatives here. The groom is a cousin of Mr. Thos. Lycett, wine clerk at the Anglo-American hotel in this city, whose guests the couple are.

Canifton Lady Is In Jamaica.

It is certain that at least one native of this district was in Kingston, Jamaica, when the recent earthquake happened. Miss Maud Watts, daughter of Mr. William Watts, of Canifton, after taking a course at the O. B.C., went to Jamaica about a year ago, in company with a Miss Solomons, a native Jamaican who had also taken a college course. Post-cards, dated Kingston, Jamaica, were received from Miss Watts not long ago.

Alleged to Be Of Unsound Mind.

A middle-aged man named James Hatch was this morning brought to the city by County Constable Steele, of Shannonville, The unfortunate man is of unsound mind, and was remanded to jail for examination. Hatch, who is about 45 years of age, is a married man, but has no family. His wife, we are informed, is afraid of the man, and was compelled to take steps to have him taken care of.

Obtaining Money; False Pretences.

The police are after two Englishmen, who it is alleged have been collecting money about the city and not applying it to the object they represented it was for. Some four or five weeks ago an Englishman named Wingrove had the misfortune to have his feet badly frozen whilst at work near the city. He was taken to the hospital here, where he has since remained. It appears that his two fellow-countrymen above noted went about the city and secured money, alleging it was to procure necessaries for Wingrove, who is a poor man. It has since transpired that they have not given one cent or procured any necessaries for their unfortunate countryman. The names of the parties are not known, but a description of them has been furnished to the authorities. On Tuesday evening of this week they secured some money from residents of Church street. If they are apprehended they will no doubt be severely dealt with.

Annual Meeting Of John St. Church.

SPLENDID REPORTS PRESENTED IN ALL DEPARTMENTS—LARGE CONTRIBUTIONS TO HOME AND FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The congregation of John Street Presbyterian Church assembled in the lecture room last evening for the purpose of receiving the reports of the past year and reviewing the work done by the various church organizations.

Most interesting were the reports presented by the church treasurers, the Church Help Society, the Young People's Guild, the Women's Foreign and Home Missionary societies, and the Sabbath School, every one of which showed the past year to have been one of the most successful in the history of this congregation, and it was most gratifying to the members of the congregation to know that not only had all current expenses been met and the year closed with a balance in the hands of the treasurer, but greater pleasure was expressed when it was shown that John Street's reputation had been fully sustained and the largest amount in the history of the congregation had been contributed to the schemes of the church, including Home and Foreign Missions, Point Aux Trembles schools, Toulon Hospital, etc., these amounts in all being $1178.50, contributions which would be very creditable to much larger congregations than that of John St. church.

A very pleasant incident during the evening was the presentation by Mrs. Morrice on behalf of the ladies of the congregation, to Mrs. Drumm of a life membership certificate in the Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, as an expression of their appreciation of the very deep interest taken, and the valuable services rendered by Mrs. Drumm in making the work of 1906 so highly successful.

Messrs. Thos. Ritchie, R. Templeton, Jas. Little, Prof. Coleman and W. B. Robinson were elected Trustees of the church property, and the Committee of Managers were elected as follows: Messrs. W. S. Cook, W. Springer, Geo. Boyle, H. McGreggor, Thos. Ritchie, A. McGinnis, W. S. Morden, Jas. Little, J. S. Sprague, A. O. Marshall, W. B. Robinson and A. Stratton.

A special committee was also appointed to arrange for and superintend the interior decorations of the church proper, which work will be done during the coming mid-summer.

Refreshments served by the ladies brought to a close one of the most interesting of annual meetings, the whole congregation entering upon the New Year with pleasant recollections of the past and hopeful for still greater things for 1907.

TRANSPORTATION.

Possibilities of Midland—Future of the Welland Canal—National Ports On the Atlantic.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—The House devoted nearly four hours yesterday to discussing the general question of transportation.

Mr. Bennett fairly rivalled Proctor Knott in describing the future glory of Midland, the matchless city of the unsalted seas. He urged a large measure of government ownership with waterfront and terminal facilities for every railway and a truly national port.

Mr. German of Welland naturally saw the country's future clustering about the Welland Canal, while Mr. Turgeon, from New Brunswick, thought the great need of the nation was to build up twelve, or even eighteen, ports upon the Atlantic coast and to bring about commercial, or even political union with Newfoundland.

There was the usual grist of questions. Among other pieces of information handed out by the Government were the following:

The Ottawa postoffice is about rebuilt after nearly three years at a cost of $203,000.

Maintaining the Government House, Ottawa City, since 1900, has cost the Government $73,000.

The export of agricultural implements from Canada has increased from $465,682 in 1894 to $2,497,601 in 1906.

Immigration from France is almost a negligible quantity. In twelve years the total immigration has amounted to 9,140 persons, mainly from Normandy and Breton. They have settled in Quebec and the maritime provinces.

At 6 o'clock the House, under the new rule, automatically adjourned.

The summary of the report of the geological survey for the calendar year 1906 was tabled yesterday.

PRIMATE OF ALL CANADA

Most Rev. Dr. Sweatman of Toronto Elected to the Honor.

First His Grace Was Made Metropolitan of the Eastern Ecclesiastical Province and Thereafter Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada Without a Dissenting Voice.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Right Rev. Arthur Sweatman, Anglican Bishop of Toronto, was yesterday elected metropolitan of the eastern ecclesiastical province, with the title of Archbishop of Toronto, and also Primate of the Anglican Church in Canada, at a meeting of the House of Bishops held at St. Alban's Cathedral. Afterwards, at a special convocation, he was awarded the degree of doctor of divinity by Trinity College.

The ceremony at the cathedral, which was of a private nature, began at 10.30 a. m., and was attended by Bishop DuMoulin of Niagara, Bishop Rainham of Keewatin, Bishop Hamilton of Ottawa, Bishop Williams of Huron, Bishop Carmichael of Montreal, Bishop Mills of Ontario, Bishop Dunne of Quebec, Bishop Thornloe of Algoma and Bishop Holmes of Moosonee. Canon McNab, rector of St. Alban's Cathedral, was the only clergyman present.

Made Doctors of Divinity.

Luncheon was served at the See House, after which the bishops adjourned to Trinity College, where His Grace Archbishop Sweatman and Rev. J. C. Farthing of Kingston, Dean of Ontario, were granted degrees of doctor of divinity honoris causa.

After a brief address by Rev. Prof. Clark, vice-chancellor, who characterized Dean Farthing as an ecclesiastical power and a great minister of the church, the Lord Bishop of Ontario introduced the candidate with a few remarks.

In replying Dean Farthing said that he could receive no greater honor than a degree from Trinity College. This university stood for high ideals and a well-balanced manhood in all relations of life. To have an ideal at all in these days of commercialism, pervading all conditions of life, was a great thing in itself.

Lower House Congratulates.

He was proud to be associated with his grace on such an auspicious occasion and would convey to him the congratulations of the lower house on his new honor and dignity.

Bishop DuMoulin had the great honor and pleasure of introducing the Most Rev. the Lord Archbishop of Toronto, Metropolitan of Canada, and Primate of All Canada.

For fourteen years he had looked up to the Bishop of Toronto, in his gentle, kind rule. He welcomed his grace to the high honor that the church had bestowed upon him to-day.

"We have known him long and well for the last thirty years," said his lordship. "He has followed closely the business of the church, and nowhere could be found one better able to occupy the exalted position to which he has been elected."

Ven. Archdeacon Sweeney spoke for the eighty-eight clergy of the Diocese of Toronto. The twenty-seven years of episcopal life of the archbishop had been a busy one. He had done a great constructive work for the Church. During his life over forty thousand had received confirmation at his hand and he had ordained over four hundred clergy.

The Primate's Reply.

His grace spoke briefly. It was the proudest day of his life when by the suffrages of the clergy of this country he had been named to the highest position in the gift of the church. He was sensible of the enormous responsibility which the position entailed. It was a great time in the history of the church, but he was confident of the support of all the bishops and clergy.

The great Northwest was a tremendous problem, to which he would devote his best energy, specially directed for the benefit of the missionary work of the church.

He esteemed the honor that Trinity had bestowed upon him. His connection with Trinity had been very close. It was the heritage from the first bishop of the diocese.

Career of Most Rev. Dr. Sweatman.

His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto was born in London, England, in 1834. He received his early education at University College School, London, and in 1859, graduated with high honors from Christ College, Cambridge.

His early Christian work was begun as a teacher in Christ Church Sunday School. He came to Canada in 1865 to fulfill the duties of headmaster of Hellmuth Boys' College, London. Later he accepted the teachership in Upper Canada College, but resigned to become rector of Grace Church, Brantford. He was appointed a canon of the London Cathedral in 1875 and later was honored as Archdeacon of Bronte. After a ministry in Woodstock he was elected third Bishop of Toronto on the death of Bishop Bethune.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The National Board of Trade yesterday rejected the report of a committee recommending tariff revision.

MANITOBA'S BUDGET.

Province's Finances Are Excellent As Corporations Swell Revenue.

Winnipeg, Jan. 17.—The feature of Hon. J. H. Agnew's budget speech, which was brought down last night, are figures showing a great increase by the present Government in railway and corporation taxation.

Mr. Agnew submitted figures showing that the taxation of railway companies operating in the province had increased from nothing in 1899 to $84,150.48; and the corporation tax from nothing in 1899 to $74,636.20.

Mr. Agnew estimated this year's railway tax at $100,000, and corporation tax at $80,000.

The budget was a most rosy one, by far the best ever presented in the history of the province, showing that the finances of Manitoba are in a most satisfactory condition.

The surplus is $518,000, or $50,000 more than last year.

"FLYING ROLLERS" COLONIES.

Mrs. Mason Is Buying Up Essex County Farm Lands.

Windsor, Jan. 17.—Mother Elinor Mason, supreme head of the Flying Rollers, has arranged for the transportation of 250 of the sect living in and around Chicago to the Essex County farming districts. Eight farms are now in her possession or are being negotiated for.

Mrs. Mason has not yet closed the deal for the Stovell property, near Tecumseh, on Lake St. Clair, and unless other adjoining property can be secured, the deal will be called off.

Mrs. Mason does not intend to confine her operations to Essex County, but is looking over plans of land in nearby counties for colonization.

D. J. O'Donoghue Dead.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Daniel J. O'Donoghue, one of the best known of Canadian labor men, died yesterday at his home, 25 D'Arcy street, after a long illness. Mr. O'Donoghue was born near Killarney in 1844 and came to Canada when 8 years of age, his parents settling near Ottawa. At a bye-election in 1874, for the representation of Ottawa, in the Provincial Legislature, Mr. O'Donoghue was nominated as the Labor candidate, and was elected, as he was again on the same nomination in 1875, but met defeat in the election of 1879. In 1881 he removed to Toronto. In 1900 Mr. O'Donoghue was appointed fair wage officer for the Dominion Government, which office he held at the time of his death. He leaves a family of seven—four sons and three daughters. The eldest member of the family is the solicitor, J. G. O'Donoghue.

Swedish Parliament Opened.

Stockholm, Jan. 17.—The Swedish Parliament was formally opened yesterday with a speech from the throne delivered by Crown Prince Gustav, the regent. After reference to the gratifying change for the better in the condition of his father, King Oscar, the good relations existing between Sweden and foreign powers is set forth.

Winter Herring Catch.

Halifax, Jan. 17.—The total catch of winter herring, and its value for the years 1904, 1905 and so far this season, are: 1904, 105,455 barrels, $185,857; 1905, 84,641 barrels, $144,474; 1906 (to Dec. 25), 62,923 barrels, $102,046.

Pile Remedy Given Away.

TO ALL PILE SUFFERERS WE WILL SEND FREE A TRIAL PACKAGE OF THE PYRAMID PILE CURE.

In order to prove to you that our remedy is not to be classed with the many concoctions advertised as cures for this dread disease, we make this liberal offer.

We leave it to your own judgment to decide whether or not you can afford to do without this long tried remedy. We know of no case where the Pyramid Pile Cure has not brought relief, when it has been used according to directions. It has saved thousands from the operating table and endless torture. You owe it to yourself to give it a fair trial especially since it costs you nothing.

"I write to thank you and also praise you for the good your medicine has done me. Oh, I can't find words to express my thanks to you all for such a wonderful and speedy cure. I felt relieved after using your sample, so I sent right on to a druggist and bought a 50c box, which I believe has cured me entirely. I feel more myself now than I have felt in over a year, for I have been bothered about that long with the piles. I have told all my friends about this wonderful discovery and will recommend it whenever I can. You can use my name anywhere you choose. Respectfully, Mrs. Chas. L. Coleman, Tullahoma, Tenn."

There is surely no good reason why any sufferer from piles should continue in agony. If you are tortured with this disease, we will send to your address in a plain sealed wrapper a sufficient quantity of the Pyramid Pile Cure to show what relief it brings. Many have been practically cured by this amount of the remedy alone. The sample package which we will send you contains the identical remedy sold in all drug stores at 50 cts. per box. Write to-day and prove to your own satisfaction that you can be cured. Pyramid Drug Co., 77 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

HE EMBEZZLED $50,000

W. J. McGee of Montreal Lost It in Speculation.

Treasurer of the Peoples' Mutual Building Society Under Arrest As a Self-Confessed Thief, Embezzler and Forger—Had Tears In His Eyes As He Told of His Defalcations.

Montreal, Jan. 17.—There is a young Montrealer short in his accounts to the extent of over $40,000.

William J. McGee, treasurer of the People's Mutual Building Society, well-known in amateur sporting circles, is to-day under arrest, a self-confessed thief, embezzler and forger.

McGee commenced by declaring that he had been guilty of manipulating the books of the society, cheques and notes, as a result of which he was enabled to handle a great deal of money, much of which had been lost by continued dabbling in stocks.

With tears in his eyes, he said he did not know the amount of his defalcations, but they will be close on to $50,000.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Inspecter Heard Rumors of McGill But Was Afraid to Investigate.

Toronto, Jan. 17—Mr. Arnoldi, K.C., made another vigorous attempt in the Police Court yesterday to have the proceedings in the Police Court in the Cockburn trial brought to a quick finish. He was apposed at every step by Crown Attorney Corley, who wishes a continuation in order to introduce new evidence which cannot be ready for a few days.

"I think our patience is about exhausted," Mr. Arnoldi remarked to Magistrate Denison.

"Not half as much as the patience of the shareholders," said a man standing near the press desk.

After listening to both lawyers, the magistrate decided to hear the argument to-day. This will not, however, prevent Mr. Corley from putting in further evidence when the case is resumed on Monday.

Were Suspicious In 1905.

Robert B. Caldwell, the inspector of the Ontario Bank, who did not inspect the head office, where big things can occur, was the only witness. His evidence went to show that as far back as May, 1905, he and President Cockburn had discussed the street rumors regarding McGill's dealing in stocks. The same question was discussed between them a year later. There was no inspection made for fear of hurting Mr. McGill's sensitive feelings, and injuring the standing of the bank.

He did speak to McGill, however, who stood him off for a time and finally flashed $1,000,000 worth of securities at him. That was all the inspecting that was done, although witness and Cockburn had concluded an examination of the head office books should be made.

Afraid McGill Might Quit.

It was understood that McGill was a wealthy man and trustee for the estate of Mrs. Nicholls of Peterboro. Witness and Mr. Cockburn were loath to follow up these suspicions for fear McGill might take umbrage and resign, although they had heard rumors reflecting on the character of the general manager.

Maggie Harris Discharged.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Maggie Harris, alias Ruth Wilson, was discharged in police court yesterday. Magistrate Denison was of the opinion that she was a tool in the hands of her sister. She went to her father's home.

Criminals Hike For Canada.

London, Jan. 17.—(C. A. P.)—A number of offenders have endeavored to escape conviction by promising to emigrate to the Dominion, which seems to have a fascination for the criminal. Two Irish Guard corporals who stole regimental moneys had tickets to Canada when arrested Tuesday. A burglar excused himself by saying he did it with the best intentions, wanting the wherewithal to go to Canada for a new start.

Death Penalty For Assault.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—The death penalty for criminal assaults on women and girls was demanded of the Legislature Tuesday night by the Chicago city council. Life imprisonment for attempted assault also is advocated.

City May Slip Into The Sea.

New Horror Added to the Situation at Kingston, Jamaica.

Sir Alexander Swettenham, Governor of Jamaica, Cables the Actual Conditions to the Colonial Office--343 Already Buried, and 400 Persons Admitted to Hospital--The Population Is Listless, Though Patient--Big Names Among the Killed.

St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 18.—Wire messages received at the station on Anastasia Island by Chief Electrician Elkins say that Kingston is sinking gradually; that holes and cracks 100 feet deep were formed by the earthquake and that grave fears are felt that the entire city will slip into the bay.

Accept the Warning.

New York, Jan. 18.—Owing to the alarming news concerning a change in the bed of the ocean, near Kingston harbor, as a result of the earthquake, the Hamburg-American Line announced yesterday that they have decided to withdraw special sailing to Jamaica by the steamer Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, and to despatch her instead from New York on Feb. 2, 17 and March 7, for Nassau, Havana, Puerto Rico, Bermuda and New York.

THE ACTUAL CONDITIONS.

Governor of Jamaica's Cable to the British Colonial Office.

London, Jan. 18.—The Colonial Office has received a cablegram from Sir Alexander Swettenham, the Governor of Jamaica. It is without date and runs:

"Continuing my previous telegram on the subject of the earthquake. The evil effects have been confined almost to three parishes of the island, namely, Kingston, Port Royal and St. Andrew. The fire at Kingston has practically ceased; only coal and rubbish are now burning. The district burned comprise a triangular area between the parade gardens, the sea, Duke street, and Princess street. The parish church forms the apex of this triangle, which comprises about one-thirtieth part of the town. The wharves burned are George and Branday and Malabre, Haggart, Lyons, Solomons, Demercado, Henriques, and one, not both of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co.'s wharves.

"The burned area is being cleared slowly owing to the indisposition of the population to labor at double the usual wages. There are a few bodies still covered with ruins. The burials to noon this day comprise 343. The persons admitted to hospital in Kingston total 400, excluding some 60 cases sent to Spanishtown from Kingston for treatment.

"The population generally is encamped on the parade grounds, the race course and the open spaces. It is reluctant to return to its ruined houses during the fine weather.

"The usual provision shops are in the burned area, and there is consequently difficulty in buying provisions. I am arranging for sales temporarily, and for the transfer of persons to other parishes. There was some pilfering last night from deserted shops. The poulation is wonderfully patient, but listless.

"Among the killed are Sir James Fergusson, J. W. Middleton, A. M. Nathan, E. de Cordova, J. R. Mundon, J. A. Payne, Dr. R. C. Gibb, R. W. Bradley, B. Verley, W. George, H. Burrows, Charles Sherlock, E. Morris, Capt. Constantine and Miss Lockett.

"Great assistance has been given by Sir Alfred Jones, who converted the steamer Port Kingston into a temporary hospital and refuge, by doctors and firemen from Spanishtown, and by the commander of the troops, who supplied men to assist in keeping order and to patrol.

"The direct line cable is broken three miles off the coast. Both the telegraph offices are burned."

Royalty Quick to Aid.

London, Jan. 18.—With characteristic promptitude, the royal family hastened to set an example to Great Britain of generous assistance to the afflicted city. The King and Queen have each contributed $5,000 to the lord mayor's fund. The Prince and Princess of Wales have contributed $2,500 each, and the big companies interested in the West Indies are following suit.

The corporation of London have subscribed $5,000, and theatres will tender benefit performances.

Government to Aid.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—It is probable that the Dominion Government will take action toward assisting in the relief of the stricken City of Kingston, Jamaica. W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford brought up the question in the House yesterday afternoon.

The Premier, however, announced that the matter was engaging the attention of the Government, and a statement would be made shortly. It is said that the Governor-General will send a message to the House to-day, recommending an appropriation of $50,000 for the relief of the Kingston sufferers.

At Washington, Too.

Washington, Jan. 18.—An emergency bill for the relief of the sufferers on the Island of Jamaica, was passed by the House yesterday, authorizing the President to use and distribute among the sufferers and destitute people of the Island of Jamaica, such provisions, clothing, medicine and other necessary articles belonging to the subsistence and other stores of the naval establishment as may be necessary for the purpose of succoring the people who are in peril and threatened with starvation on the island, in consequence of the recent earthquake and attending conflagrations.

Relief Ship Leaves To-Day.

New York, Jan. 18.—The first cargo of supplies to be sent from here in aid of the stricken people of Jamaica will be shipped to-day on the Hamburg-American steamer Allegheny.

Death List of 1,000.

London, Jan. 18.—According to further despatches received here from Jamaica, dated Thursday, the total list of dead at Kingston is expected to approach 1,000.

Many bodies in a state of decomposition or charred beyond recognition had to be buried.

The American battleships Missouri and Indiana have arrived in the harbor.

Thirty-five out of a total of 55 employes in a tourist bureau were killed.

The Plum Point and Port Royal lighthouses are both at the bottom of the harbor. The navigation channel has materially changed, and in some places the depth of the harbor has been altered by from 40 to 60 feet.

It is reported that the Hamburg-American steamer Prinz Waldemar, which reached Kingston from New York Jan. 3, is ashore at Plum Point.

Homeless From Ohio Flood.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 18.—With the Ohio River in flood in a region of more than 400 miles, thousands of persons are suffering for necessities, and thousands more are homeless. All the indications point to this being the greatest flood since February, 1884. The city authorities yesterday began to care for persons who have been made homeless, or are otherwise suffering.

GRATUITIES BESTOWED.

Civil Servants or Their Heirs Who Benefit Under the Statute.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—Cabinet Ministers have been sitting very steadily at work for some weeks past, in preparing the estimates and settling other details of public business for the approaching session.

The gratuity list for the year was decided upon and announced by Hon. Mr. Matheson yesterday. The aggregate is less than two-thirds that of the previous year, when nearly $30,000 was disbursed. The present total is $17,410, including $1,525 paid some time gao.

The general principle adopted in making the gratuities has been—to take one year's salary as the basis of the grant. In the case of Col. Clarke, the retired clerk of the House, the limit mentioned in the statute section was taken, and he receives $2,500, or fifteen months' salary, for fifteen years' service. The other gratuities are: Miss Wood, attendant, Brockville Asylum, $150; Robert Barron, gardener, Mercer, $500; Miss Pope, matron, London Asylum, $250; Miss Sharkey, laundress, Hamilton Asylum, $125; Miss Quinlan, matron, Mimico Asylum, $200; R. A. Bush, engineer, Brockville Asylum, $275; A. Thompson, farmer, Orillia Asylum, $200; Miss Elliott, Woodstock Hospital, $250; M. McBrearty, engineer, S.P.S., Toronto, $600; Daughters of Kivas Tully, consulting engineer, Public Works Department, $1,000; Mrs. Millar, widow of the late deputy minister of education, $2,700; Miss Cummings, teacher, Ottawa Normal School, $150; Pat Gaffrey, engineer, Toronto Normal School, $400; M. J. Ferris, clerk of Crown Lands, $575; daughters of the late John Murray, provincial detective, $1,900; sisters of Hugh E. Sinclair, chief clerk Lands Titles Office, $1,100; Thomas McCutcheon, Public Works Department, (injured), $300; daughters of C. A. Sippi, bursar London Asylum, $1,000; John McManus, storekeeper, Kingston Asylum, 5$00; Miss Watson, matron, Hamilton Asylum, $250; R. W. Laird, bursar, Mercer, $500; Hugh Kerr, attendant, Kingston Asylum, $360.

TIMELY TOPICS.

It hardly needs a resolution of the Board of Trade to tell us that the days of bonuses in this city are past. It would have to be an exceedingly alluring proposition which could carry in Belleville nowadays.

• • •

Yesterday, Jan. 17, was the coldest day on record in Montreal, when the mercury registered 27 below zero, which, as our friend the professor would say, is going some.

• • •

Doesn't it pain you to look at your coal bin after one of those cold snaps?

• • •

With the mercury registering 50 and 60 below out west, it's just possible some former Bellevillians may have felt sorry they left dear old Ontario.

• • •

Andrew Carnegie writes of the coming time when mind will stand above money and the desire for wealth be ignoble. But can he predict when the time will arrive when mind will keep the coal bin filled without money to buy coal?

• • •

The Hamilton Times says "Hon. Geo. W. Ross won't be in the Senate long before he has his hands in Sir Mackenzie Bowell's hair." He'll be a badly used-up barnacle if he does.

• • •

The Board of Trade, it will be seen, came to life with a start last night. Here's hoping it may be a long time before they again take soothing syrup.

Funny, isn't it. The Ontario Liberals found Ross too heavy to carry, and now everybody they can think of to succeed him is too light!

A Cleveland man has become insane because a girl refused his offer of marriage. He must have been crazy about her at first.

A South Norwalk (Ct.) farmer reports that his chickens have hydrophobia, as they bark like dogs. Probably a trick to get out of laying eggs.

• • •

Burglars in Long Island have stolen some silver cups which were golf trophies. They may pose till summer as golf experts, but what will they do when called upon to defend their title to the cups?

Several hotel-keepers have asked The Intelligencer to contradict a story which has been set afloat, namely, that all hotels in Belleville are overcrowded, and that there is no sample-room accommodation for commercial travellers. This, the hotel-keepers say, is not true, and, in the interests of the city, they would like it contradicted.

The U. S. army authorities have issued orders against the use of white or gray horses in the cavalry service. That's the way with the Yankees—always drawing the color line.

• • •

Those of us who recollect the splendid concert given by the Philharmonic Society last year will learn with pleasure that even better things are promised for the concert on the first of next month. Four fine soloists and a chorus of a hundred. A rich treat is in store for those who attend. The Philharmonic Society is doing much to improve and cultivate the artistic spirit in this city. By the way, a precedent has been set in Toronto which might well be followed here. Wealthy people, who appreciate the efforts of the Philharmonic Society, purchase blocks of tickets and hand them to their employees and others who love music but have not the wherewithal to pay the piper. By this means two very desirable things are accomplished, the Society being insured against loss and many lovers of music, who otherwise might be unable to attend, are gratified.

• • •

No better evidence that Belleville is going ahead could be asked than the Board of Trade meeting last night, attended, as it was, by a majority of the brightest and most progressive of our business men. This is as it should be. Many important matters were discussed, and the Board placed itself on record in no uncertain way.

• • •

In the discussion on the Fire Brigade many things came out which should cause the average citizen to sit up and think deeply. The new Chairman of Fire has his work cut out, for matters cannot go on as they are alleged to be at present. The letter from the Underwriters' Association must be dealt with, and the recommendations considered, even if they are not adopted.

• • •

The question of permanent paving for Front St. looms large, and the trouble appears to be that, the closer people get to it, the larger it looms. The sum hinted at, for asphalt paving, is $32,000. To many citizens that price seems prohibitive. But it may fairly be asked, without in any way attempting to throw cold water on the scheme, is asphalt necessary? Or would it be the best material? We submit not. The proper paving for Front St., in the opinion of many who have studied the question, would be tar macadam, put down with imported granite, in a proper way, and then looked after intelligently and kept in proper repair. And after it has been put down the periodic butchering of the surface of our main aisle must be stopped, or, if people get permits to excavate they must be placed under bonds to put the street back in a proper state of repair.

• • •

Of course it would be a mistake to assume that Prof. Denmark and his estimable wife are ever late in going to church, though they were presented with a clock by St. Andrew's choir last night.

• • •

Many bad cases of grip are reported. This is a good time to, if possible, carry out the old-time advice, "Keep your feet warm and your head cool."

Thousands in this city will heartily echo the sentiments of the Board of Trade in regard to the local post office. If a deputation to Ottawa can do any good, send it instanter. It is time, and more than time, that something should be done to better conditions.

St. Andrew's Church Had Splendid Year.

OVER $5,000 WAS RAISED FOR ALL PURPOSES—FINE REPORTS PRESENTED.

The annual congregation meeting of St. Andrew's Church was held on Wednesday evening, in the lecture room of the church.

Col. Lazier occupied the chair.

The various reports presented were of a most encouraging nature, showing that the church was steadily progressing.

During the past year 50 had joined the church. The net increase for the year was 37. The total membership at present is 306.

The managers reported that the total amount raised during the year, for all church purposes, was $5,136. The church debt had been reduced by $1,000.

The Sunday School had made good progress, the membership being now 235, as against 194 last year.

Reports were presented from Church Schemes Committee, Missions, Busy Bees, and the Ladies' Aid. The latter, during the year, had raised $696.72, which, with a balance of $86.30 on hand, totalled $783.02.

Mr. A. B. Mallory, secretary of the Boys' Brigade, reported that body in a flourishing condition having at present thirty-six members. The officers are:

Instructor—Capt. Barragar.
Chaplain—Rev. R. S. Laidlaw.
Col. Sergeant—W. Y. Ormond.
Treasurer—A. B. Mallory.

The matter of building a shed was discussed and the shed will probably be erected in the near future.

The following Board of Managers was elected: Colonel Lazier, chairman, Colonel Ponton, Colonel Stewart, Colonel Farley, Wm. McGie, J. Wardrope, B. Mallory, W. J. Campbell, Wm. Webster, D. M. Waters, W. P. Hudson, W. C. Reid, and A. Gillen.

Prince Edward Co. Has a Centenarian.

At a family gathering at Mr. A. G. Jinks, Bloomfield, on New Year's day, says the Picton Times, was a man who is supposed to be the oldest man in the county. Mr. John Pymer came out from England in 1835 with his wife and three children. He fought in the Battle of the Windmill at Prescott and he is still hearty. He can thread a needle and do some sewing without glasses. If he lives to celebrate his next birthday, the 12th of April, he will be 108 years old. He was a resident of Hillier for about 40 years and after the death of his wife, about 17 years ago, he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. L. G. Lovell, Bloomfield.

Child's Cry Saved Them

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 17.—Chief J. J. Graham, of Napanee, and his family, had a narrow escape from being asphyxiated. During the night one of the children began to cry, and one of the members of the family arising to attend to him, found that the other members had fainted. Had it not been that the windows were promptly opened and fresh air allowed in, all would have been asphyxiated.

Four visitors were slightly affected. The cause was located and was found to be a broken furnace door.

RINGS

ARE FASHIONABLE.

More so now than ever before. As usual we have provided for the demands of fashion, and display fully as fine an assortment of Rings as ever shown in Belleville.

In addition to a beautiful assortment of single stone Pearl and Diamond Rings ranging from $3 to $200, we show almost every desirable combination of these two and other stones.

Signets

In the matter of Signet Rings (Ladies' and Gentlemen's) we don't hesitate to state that such a line has never been shown in the city. You'll have to admit this if you just call and compare. Artistic relief designs in the very popular "Rose" finish at no more than others ask for the ordinary old style ones

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

A Bogus Surplus.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson recently laid on the table the annual report of the Railways and Canals Department. Page 66 of this report gives the following statement of gross earnings and expenses of the Intercolonial:

Gross earnings	$7,643,829.90
Working expenses	7,581,914.36
Surplus	61,915.54

Notwithstanding this statement showing a surplus, the Intercolonial Railway was actually run last year at a loss of at least a million dollars. The books would show it if they were kept in the manner of any railway company.

By charging capital with the entire cost of replacing old rails with new metal Mr. Emmerson escapes altogether the ordinary charge for depreciation of rails, and thus transfers to capital $250,000 which should have been charged to working expenses.

Mr. Emmerson's charge for working expenses does not include one dollar for the purchase of locomotives or passenger cars to keep his rolling stock good. He had at the beginning of the year 329 locomotives, and to keep up his plant he bought 16 new ones, for which he paid $384,000. Every dollar of this was charged to capital, though six engines were condemned during the fiscal year. The rolling stock table shows that six engines are to be rebuilt in the shops, but that was not done during the year, so that six have disappeared from active service, and the other 323 have had one year's work taken out of them without one dollar of charge to working expenses to the line.

Mr. Emmerson started the year with 41 first-class sleepers, and no charge to working expenses has been made to keep them good, although one was totally destroyed by the Moncton fire in February of last year.

It may here be stated that this fire totally destroyed one official car, one first-class sleeping car, one dining car, four first-class passenger cars, one postal car, five box cars, seven platform cars, one coal car, twenty-six cars in all. At the price paid last year for such rolling stock it would cost $184,330 to replace this property.

A loss like this would be expected to cut down the surplus for the year or increase the deficit. As a matter of fact it did nothing of the kind. Not a dollar was spent on account of working expenses to replace this stock. New cars were bought and charged to capital, so that the construction account of the Intercolonial is now charged with the burnt cars and the new ones that replaced them. The burnt cars are thus included at their original cost in the Intercolonial assets.

At the beginning of the year the railway had 5,636 serviceable box freight cars. During the year 70 were condemned, and five were destroyed in the fire. In the shop 20 were rebuilt, and 19 were bought and charged to working expenses. The decrease would therefore have been 41, had not Mr. Emmerson bought 360 cars on capital account which were probably about sufficient to keep the stock good. These cars cost $900 each for one kind and $1,016 for another. The total outlay for the box cars charged to capital was $337,000. Five refrigerator cars were condemned during the year. None was rebuilt, or purchased on expense account, but 25 were bought on capital account at a cost of $1,390 each. Of the platform cars 68 were condemned and destroyed and only 26 rebuilt, leaving 42 short and no charge to represent it. No less than 80 hoppers were condemned, and were not replaced or marked off. Also 20 vans were purchased on capital account and no charge was made to expense, though two cars were condemned.

It will be seen that the Minister of Railways paid out last year on capital account $1,291,234, the greater part of which was required to keep up the plant of the road, and that he thus relieved his ordinary expense account of these legitimate charges, so that by false bookkeeping he has changed a deficit of a million dollars or more to a fictitious surplus.

HOCKEY.

Kenora Won the First.

Montreal, January 17. — Tom Phillips' Kenora Thistles won the first game in the Stanley Cup series with the Wanderers to-night by 4 goals to 2, and deserved their victory: they were much the faster team, and though their system has little combination, they should beat the Wanderers every time they meet. The weather conditions just suited the challengers, who are at their best on keen ice, and when it is noted that the thermometer registered 25 degrees below zero here this morning it will be understood that the ice was very keen. The Arena was filled, though the prices had been raised and $2 was the tax at the office for reserved seats. The crowd had many Kenora supporters, or at least, many who were not friendly to the Wanderers. There is a deal of hard feeling between the different Montreal clubs and the partizans of the other local teams were quite satisfied to see the Wanderers beaten. The cup-holders represent the out-and-out professional idea here and are none too popular. The game was a fine exhibition of hockey and the spectators were electrified by the brilliant dashes of Phillips, Beaudro, Griffis and Ross, for Kenora, as well as the dashing play of Lester Patrick, who outshone all his mates on the Wanderers. The goal-keeping of Hern and Giroux was of the superlative order. Nothing finer, indeed, nothing as good, has been seen in the Arena, and it is noteworthy that both are old Ontario Hockey Association players. Bob Meldrum and Russell Bowie were the referee and judge of play, and while it is a common complaint of the cup challengers that they got the worst of it in the matter of officials here, no such complaint can be laid against the gentlemen who had charge of the game to-night. They were prompt and capable. The Wanderers' team was the same as played Ottawa last Saturday, with the exception that Ernie Russell took the place of Blatchford, who is still laid up as the result of that game. Russell seemed to think that it was necessary to "make good," and he was the only persistently foul player on the ice, his idea of stopping a man being to hook him with the stick. He was not caught at it till the second half, when he got a few minutes' penalty. Penalties were few, as the game was clean, and both teams were trying to play hockey all the time. Only two men went off in the first half, Beaudro and McGimsie, and it is significant that the two goals the Wanderers got were scored when Kenora was a man short. Glass was quite overshadowed, and on to-night's play he was not worth quarrelling over. Hod Stuart played a good game, but as a defence man he was not effective, the Kenora attack invariably getting in behind him. Kennedy, the Wanderers point, only once moved down the ice, and that amounted to nothing, and on the other hand Griffis and Ross, the cover and point men of Kenora, repeatedly took the puck down to the other end, and then were able to get back in time for defensive work. The half-time score was two all, and Kenora added two in the second half, while the Wanderers got nothing.

A Jolly From Madoc.

A Madoc correspondent sends the following hot stuff:

"On Tuesday night last Belleville sent out a crack hockey team to the little mining village of Madoc. They came with the full confidence of winning easily; in fact, so sure were they that some remarked they did not intend to win out by a large score, but would let the miners off easy. But, alas! their hopes were shattered by the home team, who won easily by a score of 9—2.

The Belleville boys stepped on the ice about 8.15 p.m., and after practicing for a time, the referee called the game.

"'Belleville boys started off with a rush, but the best they could do was to get to cover-point and shoot. And what a shot! If the goal had been five yards to the right it would have went nearer the mark.' This was the only shot Belleville had the first half. After that it was all Madoc, Belleville not getting past cover, while for Madoc, well, all they wanted was to get the puck and go. For Madoc E. Price scored 5, W. Wellington 2 and A. Pine 2. All Madoc goals were made by individual rushes, which makes Belleville defence loom up as fit for senior company.

"In the first half Illsey, of Belleville, mixed it with one of the Hardys, and, of course, struck the ice. This was the only accident of the game. Then Belleville thought they would learn the local team the art of bunting, but the best they could do was to strike a local man and then hit the ice.

"Perhaps the only man worthy of special mention for Belleville was Philips. In goal he was called on to stop a perfect hail of shots and but for his good work the score would have been larger.

The return game will be played in the near future, but Madoc would like something just a little harder, something to make the game interesting."

SPORTING NOTES.

The ice will be fast for the game here to-night, and the old rivals, Kingston and Belleville, should put up a great fight. No one should miss this, for it may be the last O. H. A. game this season. Let's hope not, however.

A Peterboro Review man, who saw the game in Toronto between the Marlboros and Peterboro, thus throws the harpoon into "Chaucer" Elliott; "The match was refereed by Chaucer Elliott and he sustained his reputation of currying favor with the home team and their supporters. It is said that is a fault of the great Chaucer's. 'Please Toronto, while in Toronto, Peterboro in Peterboro, etc., etc. His work was fairly satisfactory, although he seemed to have a liking to keeping one Peterboro man on the fence, especially when the visitors were in the lead."

Belleville people who have seen "Chaucer" in action will hardly agree with the above. Square as a die and as good as the best of 'em is the way Mr. Elliott has shown himself here. Perhaps the Peterboro 'wonders" were looking for something more than an even break.

Playing for the Stanley cup last night, the Kenoras beat Wanderers 4-2, and despatches say the score indicates the merits of the teams. Taking that for granted it would appear that the mug is destined for a trip to the west. But it would not be well for the Rat Portage people to count their chickens just yet. The next game will be played on Monday, and the westerners will find they have another stunt or two yet to do before they put the cup into a suit case and elope with it. Tommy Phillips and his merry men have won the first game of a series before, and then lost the last two. It may be so in this case. However, the westerners are hockey-players and gentlemen, and here's good luck to them whether they win or not.

Hockey results last night: Deseronto 9, Napanee 0; Montreal Vics 16 Shamrocks 3; Toronto pros. 7, Michigan Soo 6.

The Plain Girl.

The plain, quiet, apparently unattractive girl should be taught to make the most of herself, and who can teach her this so well as her mother? If your daughter is growing up too quiet and seems never to have anything to say, exert yourself to draw her out. Lead her into general conversation at every opportunity. Let her feel that her thought and opinion about different matters are of some weight and importance. Do not let her sink into that state of mind which is content to let other people take the burden of conversation while she sits by in apparently stupid silence, says Home Chat. It is a habit which will grow upon her and which will only become the more deeply fixed if referred to in any way. Some day her chances of a happy and useful life may be ruined by it.

Hydrogen Peroxide.

Hydrogen peroxide is usually associated with golden hair of a suspicious hue, but it really is a most useful household drug. As it is best known, it is an excellent and harmless bleach, but besides this it is an excellent disinfectant. One would hardly look for it in a mouth wash, but it is even so. A solution of one-fourth or one-fifth hydrogen peroxide makes an effective antiseptic. It is often used undiluted in open fresh wounds and, used with a styptic to stop the flow of blood, has proved very healing.

To Clean Glass.

Place pulverized pumice stone between the layers of a folded piece of soft muslin and stitch around the edge to prevent the powder from spilling. Wipe lamp globes or window panes with this dry cloth, and they will be clean and sparkle almost instantly. Enough powder will remain on the cloth to be used many times.

TIMELY TOPICS.

THE DEMON CHILD.

(Bertrand Shadwell.)

His father is a quiet and an inoffensive man;
His mother lives her life upon a truly Christian plan;
Yet their darling little baby-boy, whose age is only seven,
Is fit to carry coals to the antipodes of heaven.

He has smashed a hundred windows, he has tortured twenty cats,
He has driven fifty families from five-and-thirty flats;
He's the nuisance of the neighborhood, the terror of the streets,
And the vulgar little enemy of every-one he meets.

His parents humbly pray to him, and tremble when they're chid,
And they never do a thing without permission from the kid;
He's their bowling little autocrat, their grisly little god,
And the world was made to worship him and grovel at his nod.

He throws his little demon dog at all the passers-by;
He ties a rope across the path to trip them on the sly;
He calls them every nasty name that comes into his mind,
And he slings a brickbat after them, and hits them from behind.

He has been a little demon from the day that he was born;
He only lacks a Satan's tail, a pitchfork and a horn;
He's beneath all comprehension and above all human law;
And everybody hates him but his "popper" and his "maw."

I remember little children — long ago—of six or seven,
In a land where priests and poets say that children come from heaven;
Those were spanked and loving children, little lambkins meek and mild;
Here they leave their guilty cradles each a full-fledged demon-child.

Killed While Shunting Cars.

Toronto Junction, Jan. 18.—Samuel Tansley, a C. P. R. brakeman, lost his life yesterday morning while shunting at the siding of Moffatt's stove factory, between here and Weston. While pulling out of the siding five cars became detached from the rear end. Tansley, who was with the front end, reached over to turn the angle cock, while the rear cars run upon him and jammed him between the draw bars, completely crushing him about the abdomen. He died almost instantly. The deceased had been in the employ of the C. P. R. for a short time. He was formerly employed on the city and suburban railway, and lived at 130 East Queen street. He was 25 years of age, and leaves a young widow. He was only married last July.

Sage Succession Dues.

Albany, Jan. 18.—State Comptroller Glynn yesterday received $625,000, the amount due the state on the estate of Russell Sage, under the inheritance tax act. The value of the estate has been placed at $60,000,000.

Petticoats.

The really economical woman is careful about exercising her economy when she buys a petticoat, particularly a silk one. A cheap silk petticoat is never worth having sent home from the shop, for as a usual thing it is skimpy in quantity as well as poor in quality, and a really good silk or moire will more than repay the original outlay in durability and satisfaction. When buying a silk petticoat, among the minor details to be taken into consideration is that of color, for some dyes render the silk much more brittle than others. All shades of blue, dark as well as light, are good for this reason, the dye having but little effect on the wearing qualities.

A SISTER'S COURAGE.

Presence of Mind of an Eighteenth Century Irish Woman.

In looking over some family papers and bundles of old letters I discovered one by Mrs. Jeffereys of Blarney castle, County Cork, which contains an account of a circumstance interesting in itself as an instance of heroism on the part of the narrator toward her brother, the Earl of Clare, and so valuable as bringing to light a remarkable event connected with the history of those troubled times that I feel I am only discharging a duty in submitting it to the notice of the editor.

The letter is dated 9 Molesworth street, July, 1807, and, among other matters, Mrs. Jeffereys writes as follows:

"On the day Lord. Fitzwilliam was recalled, when my brother (as chancellor) was returning from the castle after having assisted at the swearing in of the newly arrived lord lieutenant, a ferocious mob of no less than 5,000 men and several hundred women assembled together in College green and all along the avenue leading to my brother's house. The male part of the insurgents were armed with pistols, cutlasses, sledges, saws, crowbars and every other weapon necessary to break open my brother's house, and the women were all of them armed with their aprons full of paving stones. This ferocious and furious mob began to throw showers of stones into my brother's coach, at his coachman's head and his horses. They wounded my brother in the temple in College green, and if he had not sheltered himself by holding his great square official purse before him he would have been stoned to death before he arrived (through the back yard) at his own house, where with several smithy sledges they were working hard to break into his hall door, while others of them had ropes ready to fix up to his lamp iron to hang him the moment they could find him, when I arrived, disguised in my kitchen maid's dress, my blue apron full of stones. I mingled with this numerous mob and addressed a pale, sickly man, saying: 'My dear Joy'l, what'll become of hus! I am after running from the castle to tell yeas all that a regiment of hos is galloping down here to thrample hus, etc. Oh, yea, yea, where will we go?' Then they cried: 'Hurry, hurry, the hos is coming to charge and thrample hus! Hurry for the custom house.' And in less than a moment the crowd dispersed.

"I then procured a surgeon for my brother and a guard to prevent another attack, and thus I saved Lord Clare's life at the risk of being torn limb from limb if I had been recognized by any of the mob."—London Notes and Queries.

Delay in Divorces.

"The underlying reason why so much time usually elapses between the filing of petition and the hearing or trial in divorce proceedings is not generally understood," remarked a lawyer who makes a specialty of this character of practice. "Perhaps it is within the circle of truth to say that in a majority of cases, if either husband or wife, whichever side be plaintiff, should 'stop, look and listen,' as it were, the trouble would be adjusted out of court entirely. As a rule, judges are inclined to afford ample time for domestic partners to ponder well before pursuing further toward legal redress for matrimonial difficulties. 'Divorce in haste and repent at leisure' is a logical paraphrase. Of course, if after mature reflection a different opinion does not ensue, the average jurist would favor progressing the suit."

Chills and Hot Baths.

Hot water bathing is beneficial in counteracting the effect of a chill. First, it undoes another mischief worked by the chill. The latter has sent too much blood internally, so risking congestion. Heat brings the blood to the surface. Heat is not life, but it is one of the factors of life. Indeed, dissolution always occurs when the internal bodily temperature is greatly lowered. Heat will not keep a body alive and great heat will kill it. In many morbid states of the system, as rheumatism, hot baths are of great service. Warm baths are useless. The heat should be as great as can be borne without pain.

To smile at the jest which plants a thorn in another's breast is to become a principal in the mischief.—Sheridan.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Receipts of live stock at the city market as reported by the railways since Tuesday were 124 cars, 1623 cattle, 2299 hogs, 1374 sheep and lambs, with about 100 calves. Trade was good all round, with prices firm at Tuesday's quotations.

Exporters

Prices ranged from $4.60 to $5 per cwt., and had there been better quality cattle doubtless they would have sold readily at higher prices. Export bulls at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots, if such they could be called, sold at $4.50 to $4.70, and there were few of them; good at $4.25 to $4.40; medium, mixed with cows, at $3.80 to $4.15; common, $3.50 to $3.75; cows, $2.50 to $3.75; canners at $1 to $1.50.

Milch Cows.

About 40 milch cows and springers sold at $30 to $58 each. Trade was brisk on account of Montreal buyers being on the market.

Veal Calves.

Prices for prime veal calves were firmer, few being offered. Prices ranged at $4 to $7.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade in lambs was not so good, but sheep were firm; lambs sold at $6 to $7 per cwt., with $7.25 for some that had been contracted for ahead; export ewes sold at $5 to $5.25; bucks at $4 to $4.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

There were 2200 hogs on the market, and all told about 3000 hogs arrived in the city on Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Harris was paying $6.90 for selects to-day and $6.65 for lights and fats, but reports prospects are for lower prices this coming week.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

Calves—Receipts, 38 head; very little doing for lack of stocks; feeling steady; prime veals sold at $10; no western or barnyard calves.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2123; sheep nominally steady; no sales; lambs 10c lower; fair to prime lambs, $7.50 to $7.87½; no very choice here.

Hogs—Receipts, 917; feeling steady; quoted at $7 to $7.15; pigs at $7.15 to $7.25.

GETTING READY TO CONTRACT.

Power Bylaw Cities Asked to Notify Commission and State Quantity.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The executive of the Union of Western Ontario Municipalities decided at yesterday's meeting to ask the councils of the various municipalities which have passed power bylaws to notify the commission that they are now in a position to enter into a contract for the supply of power, and to state the amount they will require.

Representatives from every interested municipality will be invited to gather in Toronto in the last week in January, on a day subject to the convenience of Premier Whitney, who, with the Hydro-Electric Commission and the City Council, will be invited to attend a banquet in the evening.

May Purchase Coal Area.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 18.—Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, left Wednesday night for Winnipeg, where he will again interview William Whyte, with regard to the coal supply of the provinces. He gave out an interview stating that the Government is considering the advisability of purchasing a coal area from the Dominion for the purpose of operating mines on the public ownership principle. Mr. Motherwell is now investigating the matter.

Absentminded Miss Amy

By Louise J. Strong

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

"There are worse things than being an old maid," Miss Amy Colver said serenely.

"Oh, Miss Amy—I didn't mean—I never think of you as being that!" the girl stammered.

"She isn't such a very old maid," Mrs. Wridgely smiled. "And she says truly there are worse things—such as having a blind husband on your hands, which would have been her fate if she'd married Henry Scott, as she came near doing once."

"She wouldn't think so if she were his wife! She'd love him all the more for the affliction. I know I should. If Willie"— Blushing hotly, Elsie ran from the room.

Mrs. Wridgely laughed, but with a keen glance at her sister, who murmured something about the heat, fanning vigorously. Then presently she asked, "Did you say that Henry Scott was blind?"

"That's what Kate wrote. The doctors think his eyes were ruined, and no wonder, running into that fire so. Inflammation set in. He may never see again. It's a good thing he has no family. He's pretty well off, but he'll need all he's got. He'll never work again, and his business will soon go to ruin, with hired help managing it."

Amy said nothing. Mrs. Wridgely regarded her preoccupied face with a slight frown, then closed the subject by remarking briskly:

"Well, fortunately, Henry Scott is nothing to us. I ran over to see what you're going to wear to the reception, Amy."

"The same as usual, I suppose, if I go."

"If you go!" Mrs. Wridgely almost shrieked. "When you know the affair is complimentary to you! Of course you'll go! And you must wear your cream silk. I'll send Ruth to dress you. And, Amy, I want to take the waist and have the sleeves shortened. You have such pretty arms. I'll run up and get it."

"Judge Hale and wife will be there," she resumed, returning to the porch with the waist.

"Be where?" Amy questioned vaguely.

"Well, if you aren't enough to— Be at the reception, of course, and Senator Ellsworth, too; he got back this morning. Mrs. Reed was so afraid they would not be here. I think I'll dress early and come over myself, Amy, or like as not you'll appear in that everlasting black! Of course you are full of your new book, but you owe something to your friends. Do put it out of your mind for this evening. I'll be over early."

"I'm glad it's out about Henry Scott," Mrs. Wridgely communed with herself. "I've been some afraid of the effect on her, but I guess she's forgotten that old affair, and I mentioned the senator on purpose to turn her thoughts. I wish I dare speak plainly to her about Senator Ellsworth. If she were only a little more like other folks! But then, I suppose, he would not find her so attractive."

Mrs. Wridgely had constituted herself first aid to Senator Ellsworth a few months before, when chance enabled her to extract a letter from Amy's mail which was plainly from Henry Scott. She felt justified. Amy would be spared mental disturbance, and, anyway, the letter was probably only a congratulatory note on the success of her book, such as she received constantly. Mrs. Wridgely's hopes concerning the senator were new then, and the brilliancy of the possible position for her sister Amy excused anything.

Amy had been provokingly unappreciative of this advantageous opportunity, as she had been of many others, which was perhaps to be expected of people who wrote books.

Amy sat alone pondering over her lover's peculiar silence. Was it due to jealousy of her success? She had glorified in his magnificent conduct when the papers had told of his plunging again and again into the burning wreck, rescuing women and children, and to her love, that folly and estrangement could not kill, was added hero worship. She had sat silent under the news of his calamity with a control that reassured her sister, but now her fan fell from her grasp, a broken heap.

"Blind! Blind!" she moaned.

The dark eyes that had looked into her heart with a power that no other could ever attain darkened forever.

Her imagination vividly pictured what it would mean to him, so active, so alive to the world and its needs, suddenly imprisoned in darkness, hopeless darkness, dependent upon others, limited to the companionship of hired attendants and his decrepit aunt, his sole relative.

At least she might write him a few sympathetic lines, the fact that she had but now learned of his terrible loss being explanation and justification of her former seemingly heartless indifference. In the privacy of her chamber she gave rein to her emotions, producing that which she hastily reduced to scraps for the wastebasket.

Recalling that other eyes now scanned his letters, she wrote and discarded page after page, finding each short epistle more difficult of composition. In the midst of her perplexity a maid brought in the remodeled garment and an imperative scrawl from Mrs Wridgely to the effect that the article be tried on immediately and, if not satisfactory, returned for further alteration.

Amy dismissed the maid and donned the garment, her mind turning sentences over and over, still striving to express only the proper amount of interest. Then, as she absently arranged ribbons and lace, there came the firm conviction that to write was impossible; that she must see him as soon as distance would allow.

It would not have happened had Amy been properly chaperoned and companioned instead of maintaining the independence which Mrs. Wridgely often and uselessly deplored. The generously salaried and loyal servants only looked their astonishment when, wearing the elbow sleeved bodice of her elegant reception gown, a black lace fichu and plain traveling hat, Miss Amy announced that she was going on a journey. As she descended the steps she received a large box from a florist's boy, and this she abstractedly carried with her.

She was still carrying it when, after an hour's ride on a train, she walked to the old Scott homestead, at the end of the village, where she had been raised. She had been engrossed in the past, but once inside the gate she was roused to a somewhat embarrassing present. With a painfully beating heart she stole away to the summer house, hoping there to regain self control before ringing the bell. As she entered a voice, speaking from the gloom, startled her.

"Are you back so soon, auntie?"

She would have run away, but a sudden weakness at sight of him, a heavy shade over his bandaged eyes, made her stumble to the bench beside him. He put out a groping hand as if sensing something unusual.

"Is it you, auntie? Is anything wrong—or—who is it?"

The shock of his helplessness swept away everything but tender pity, yearning love and longing to minister to him. She caught the groping hand and kissed it, sobbing with impetuous abandon:

"Oh, Harry, Harry! I came as soon as I knew. I am going to stay with you and take care of you forever. You shall never, never be alone in the darkness again!"

"Why!" he cried. "Why, it must be—it is—Amy! My own Amy!"

His next movements demonstrated that his arms at least were as strong as of old, and Miss Colver submitted to the loving bonds without a struggle.

"Dear," he said gravely when the old misunderstanding and the purport of the purloined letter had been made clear—"dear, I do not mean to let you leave me again, because you might forget to come back, but I must not hold you by false pretense. You came, like a sweet angel, to care for a blind man, but you will not discard me, will you, though my sight be fully restored, as I now have hopes it may be?"

"Oh, Harry!"

The ecstatic cry and the soft, bare arms about his neck were answer enough.

From the crushed box between them there crept a perfume that presently brought unpleasant remembrances to Miss Amy.

"Why," she exclaimed, examining the contents and the accompanying card, "the senator's roses! And I have on my"— She viewed the costume with amazement, a guilty sense of outraged social amenities and her sister's disapproval.

When she had made shamefaced explanation, Henry Scott intimated, with a heartless disregard of the senator's shattered hopes, that the parsonage was close by and that the evening bodice and the roses were plainly in preparation for the wedding that was to occur immediately.

Curiosities of Coffee.

Coffee, as experts are aware, has a very extraordinary property. It is one of the most absorbent matters in existence. Coffee beans placed in a damp room swell and absorb moisture till they nearly double their weight. Here is the chance of the dishonest grocer. Not content with the amount of profit made upon coffee, he places pails of water in a room with piles of uncovered coffee beans, and by swelling the coffee adds something like 50 per cent to his profits. The flavor is ruined, but that does not matter to him. So absorbent is coffee, not only of moisture, but of gases and flavors, that shippers of Brazilian coffee always stipulate that the sacks of fresh Rio beans shall never be carried on a steamer which has raw hides as any part of her cargo. These will taint the coffee more surely than anything else and render it unfit for use. The useful side of this quality of coffee is that in a sickroom a handful or two of fresh roasted and ground beans act as an excellent purifier and deodorizer.—Washington Post.

Trade Signs.

On nearly all street corners even in the largest metropolis of Europe may be found relics of the middle ages and of the earliest times. Take, for instance, the wooden image of a shoe, which every cobbler hangs out above his door. It goes back for its origin to the Rome of the pre-Christian era. In the ruins of the lava buried cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii many shop signs of stone and terra cotta have been discovered, the forerunners of those that for centuries adorned the highways not only of Europe, but of the new world. Among them was the emblem of the shoemaker's trade, a Cupid carrying a dainty pair of women's shoes. But the Romans did not stop there. They used the image of a goat to indicate the dairies, that of a mule driving a mill to point out the bakers' shops and a bush of evergreen to direct the thirsty traveler to a tavern. This particular sign gave rise to the English proverb, "Good wine needs no bush."

The Woman Or the Car

By Elliot Walker

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

Ladd, the proprietor of the Tamaracks, shook his head with discouraging firmness.

"No," he declared decidedly; "I accommodate people here, not automobiles. First, no shelter for the machine; second, I won't have one round since my dog was run over; third, there's no use of talking. Better go along."

In the sudden darkness of the summer twilight came a blinding flash, disclosing more clearly the occupants of the big touring car—the chauffeur, gesticulating angrily; two other scowling men, a woman and a child.

With a rush of wind the storm broke. A deafening thunderclap shook the earth. The rain, almost horizontal in the flying air, drove a deluge of great drops under the hastily arranged covers.

"I'm going to get out!" shrilled a small scared voice. "I want to be in a house! Mamma, come!"

A tall figure leaped from the piazza of the little hotel, shoved Ladd aside and held out a pair of shirt sleeved arms.

"You shall, baby!" he shouted. "It's a confounded shame! You, too, madam! Let the men take care of themselves. Hurry, or you'll be drenched!"

"Look out!" cried the mother sharply, for the child had jumped recklessly. "Thank you, sir. I feared she would fall. Yes, I think it is best. I'll be right in."

She fumbled for a bag, spoke rapidly to one of her companions and sprang from the step unassisted to run up the short path after the uncoated figure, striding swiftly, with the little girl clinging to his neck.

Ladd's loud voice came to her ears above the din.

"You're all welcome, I say. I'll bed and feed the crowd, but that pesky machine can't lodge at my place. No, gents. Sorry, but I've sworn to pass 'em along."

"A fine specimen you are to run a hotel," scolded the man by the driver.

"It's my house," retorted Ladd.

"Well, keep it and be hanged! I wouldn't put my head under such a roof. We'll be here in the morning, old curmudgeon. Take care of Mrs. Dixon. Push her along, Henri. Never mind speed limits."

A few rattles, a dozen snorting gasps and the car dashed away through the mud.

Mr. Ladd, bareheaded and dripping, gazed after it with a satisfied grin.

"Too bad to break up a party," he grunted. "This storm will last a good hour. They'll get a nice twenty mile trip to Jepworth, splashing soft dirt. Well, I've got two guests, anyhow, and tomorrow I make my third nick on old Hank's tombstone."

He chuckled his way into the barn.

Lois Dixon sat in the dining room, a small apartment largely given over to social usage other than the delights of the table. A high chair had been found for Dot, who was assaulting bread and milk. Seraph Ladd, corpulent and apologetic, talked from the adjacent kitchen.

"Oh, no, my dear," she was saying. "The Tamaracks isn't much of a hotel. Folks stay here for meals, and we take in a few transients and occasionally a regular. The regulars are mostly men who come to fish and kill time. There are good trout in the tamarack swamp brook, but it's a pesky hole. That man you saw is a regular. He has been here a week."

"I can hardly say I saw him. Everything was done so quickly. I'm quite dry now, and so is Dot. Your husband doesn't appear to approve of automobiles," this last sentence with an aggrieved intonation.

"He doesn't!" exclaimed Mrs. Ladd rather warmly. "Jason is good natured about most other things, but after our dog was knocked across the fence (poor old thing; he was only gnawing a bone in the road) Jason swore an oath never to let a car stop overnight again. So he boarded up the shed. My, the way some of these people whiz along a country road is fearful! Your supper is most ready, Mrs. Dixon. I take it you are a widow woman, because"—

"Yes, I've been widowed for five years," Lois interrupted. "We were simply taking a short pleasure drive. A slight accident delayed us for an hour, else we should be at home by this time. We were making for Jepworth, where I have a sister."

"I see." Mrs. Ladd began to place dishes. "I sort of wondered."

"A friend of mine and his brother, besides the chauffeur," explained Lois, blushing a trifle. "It did seem queer that I was left so unceremoniously to the care of strangers, but I can look out for myself, and I always go prepared for emergencies. Still I should have thought"—

"Oh, it's the machine every time," laughed the old woman. "Men seem to forget. What with their wrangling and hurry for cover, you and Dotty were better out of it."

"Apparently." Mrs. Dixon's tone was sarcastic. "However, to let me come in unattended and to leave all explanation to me when he knew I was upset and trying to calm Dot"— She paused. Seraph was eying her shrewdly.

"Considerate, I must say," observed the hostess. "Well, draw up and eat."

"Mercy! You have cooked enough for three!" Lois laughed outright.

"It's not all for you, my dear. Our regular hasn't had his supper. He turned up only a few minutes before you did. I'll tinkle the bell for him. You don't mind company, do you? He's a real nice man, but sort of quiet this trip. Acts sort of impatient and nervous, too, which isn't his usual way."

"I must ask you to introduce me, then. I'll be glad to thank him for helping us."

The bell rang softly in the hall. Lois, busying herself with her napkin and with Dot, did not glance at the entering figure.

Mrs. Ladd, impressed by the importance of the act of introduction, spoke up smartly.

"Nat, let me make you acquainted with Mrs. Blakeley—I—I mean Mrs. Dixon. Mr. Blakeley, Mrs. Dixon. This is her little girl. Dear, dear! Wasn't it funny that I should have got you twisted?"

"Very funny," murmured Blakeley, bowing and making considerable noise with his chair. Lois dropped her napkin. Dot stared, smiling and nodding.

"Now I've embarrassed you!" cried Mrs. Ladd, retreating to the kitchen. "Gracious!" she exclaimed to herself. "Neither of them can find a word to say. I guess I'll shut this door or they may hear me giggle."

The silence was broken by Dot. "You've got whiskers," she remarked, with complacence. "That's why! Didn't you know me?"

"No," said the man thickly. "I hadn't my glasses on. I recognized no one. I put that wrap over your head, dumped you in a chair and called Mrs. Ladd. I didn't know you, dear"—

"And you've put on a coat," went on his inquisitor, surveying him affectionately. "I liked you better with just a mustache. It seems ever so long since you came to see mamma."

"Hush, Dot," said her mother softly.

"But he used to bring me candy," persisted the child. "Mr. Barker doesn't. I like Mr. Blakeley best. Don't you?"

Lois' cheeks crimsoned.

"It's bedtime, dear. Mrs. Ladd will take you to the room. I'll be up in a minute. Be a good girl and run out to the kitchen for her."

Dot tiptoed to Blakeley's chair.

"Good night," she said coyly and put up her lips.

The man kissed her tenderly, with a great lump in his throat. He had hoped for many good night caresses from this little one, but that hope no longer existed. As she disappeared he gazed steadily at the woman opposite.

"Let us have it over, Lois," he blurted. "I heard the news a month ago. Believe me, my dear, I shall try to think only of your happiness. Barker will be a very happy man."

"Not with me, Nat."

"What! Do you mean"—

"I mean that I do not intend to become Mrs. Barker. I have not yet given him my answer. He will get it tomorrow when he returns with his automobile. You have been misinformed."

Her eyes shone into his as he strained forward, eager, transformed with a sudden joy.

"Lois!" he cried. "Oh, my love, tell me, is there a chance for—yes, yes, you are crying, dear?"

• • • • • • • •

"My introduction wasn't so far wrong, after all, Jason!" beamed Seraph Ladd the next day. "I wonder what Mrs. Dixon thought when I called him 'Nat,' so familiar? She says she will be Mrs. Blakeley the next time I see her."

The Ownership of a Patent.

Suppose that a prior patent is infringed and no way is seen to avoid infringement by changing the product or the process or the machine so as not to embody the principle of a patented invention. The simplest way, of course, would be to buy the patent. If the patent cannot be bought, but a fraction of the patent can be obtained, no matter how small a fraction—say one-tenth of the entire right in the patent—the owner of the one-tenth would be just as well off as the owner of the nine-tenths. The courts have held that a patent is not like the capital stock of a corporation and that the owner of more than one-half of the title to the patent has no claim upon the owner of less than one-half. Each is at liberty to do with his portion what he pleases and cannot be made to account to the other. The owner of one-tenth may make ten times as much out of the patent as the owner of nine-tenths, because of his greater business ability or greater capital or for other similar reasons, and it would not be equitable to make him turn over nine-tenths of his profits to the other owner.—Edwin J. Prindle in Engineering Magazine.

His Great Nose.

There was a certain exciseman in Shrewsbury who was very trim and neat in his attire, but who had a bottle nose of more than usual size. As he passed through the school lane the boys used to call him "Nosey," and this made him so angry that he complained to Dr. Butler, who sympathized and sent for the head boy, to whom he gave strict injunctions that the boys should not say "Nosey" any more. Next day, however, the exciseman reappeared, even more angry than before. It seems that not a boy had said "Nosey," but that as soon as he was seen coming the boys ranged themselves in two lines, through which he must pass, and all fixed their eyes intently upon his nose. Again Dr. Butler summoned the head boy and spoke more sharply. "You have no business," said he, "to annoy a man who is passing through the school on his lawful occupation. Don't look at him." But again the exciseman returned to Dr Butler, furious with indignation, for this time, as soon as he was seen every boy had covered his face with his hand until he had gone by.—"Life and Letters of Dr. Samuel Butler."

MALE DRESS REFORM

IT IS HOPELESSLY HAMPERED BY THE STIFF WHITE SHIRT.

The Way This Garment Interferes With Both Health and Comfort. Some of the Absurdities of the Present Masculine Style of Attire.

The necessity by which men feel coerced of proving to the world that they wear white shirts lies at the basis of all the difficulties of the dress problem.

Until the garment becomes extinct it is hopeless to attempt the reform of men's dress on the lines of health and comfort.

It will of course ultimately disappear, for it is but the mark of a stage in the evolution of dress, just as the vermiform appendix is a useless evolutionary remnant in the body. But the question is whether we ought to await the slow course of evolution or to use our common sense and abandon the ancient garment at once.

Why do we wear white shirts? Ages ago it was only the wealthy who could afford to clothe themselves in linen. The possession of linen underwear was then a mark of social position, and there was an obvious advantage in making public display of it.

We may put down three-fourths of the discomfort of the hot summer to the account of the starched shirt. It prevents the very process devised by nature to keep the body cool—the evaporation of sweat. In so far as it hinders this natural process in summer, the white shirt favors disease. But in winter it is a fruitful cause of illness.

In winter the mere wearing of a white shirt would no doubt leave a man no better and no worse if he were content to wear it for his own satisfaction. But the curious law of evolution comes in and compels him to wear it in such a way as to do himself physical injury.

Wherever evolution is at work it leaves vestiges—literally, footprints. Probably it is millions of years since the vermiform appendix became a useless organ, but it still survives. All evolutionary survivals appear to be harmful. The appendix is the seat of appendicitis. In the inner corner of the eye there is the remnant of a once useful third lid, which now only lodges dust and causes irritation.

The lord chancellor's wig was once a comfort in ancient drafty legislative chambers and now merely serves to make a sensible man look ridiculous and give him headaches.

People who drew up laws were long ago paid according to the number of words, but the multiplicity of words now only causes confusion. So the white shirt that was once a badge of wealth and culture, being no longer of value for that purpose, is only a cause of discomfort and disease.

It is necessary to cut a piece out of the vest and the coat, just over the most important organs of the body, in order to prove to our neighbors that we wear white shirts. Consequently in the winter time we expose the lungs and the air passages to the cold wind and the cold rain.

From the point of view of health nothing could be more stupid. Bronchitis is one of the most deadly of all diseases in this country. Bronchitis is simply inflammation of the bronchial tubes. This inflammation is excited by a chill, a chilling of that part of the body left exposed in order to show that we wear white shirts.

The white shirt, in fact, might appear in the tables of the registrar general as the cause of so many deaths, perhaps 100,000 a year.

And does it really improve a man's appearance? By virtue of the association of ideas it certainly does. Usually men who do not wear white shirts are not given to cleanliness. The man who wears a white shirt washes his face and hands and brushes his clothes; hence when we see a white front and white cuffs we experience that pleasant sensation produced by general neatness of the person and clothing. But that a few square inches of white clothing over the chest makes a man look better is an absurd conclusion.

The case for the white shirt has not a leg to stand upon. The garment is uncomfortable, unhealthy and unbecoming. And as it has lost the only useful function it ever possessed—that is, its symbolism of exceptional wealth—we ought to discard it altogether. The difficulties of this course are very great no doubt. What we want is an "antiwhite shirt society," which would agree to wear, from some prearranged date, a dress designed wholly with regard for comfort, health and beauty.—T. F. Manning in London Gossip.

Making Love Up a Tree.

Billing and cooing among the Fijians is a curious feature in their social customs. It is decidedly against the rule to do any courting within doors. The gardens or plantations are the spots held sacred to Cupid, and the generally approved trysting place of lovers is high up among the branches of a breadfruit tree. You may often walk around a plantation on a moonlight night and see couples perched forty feet from the ground in the breadfruit trees, one on each side of the trunk, a position which comes fairly within the limits of a Fijian maiden's ideas of modesty.

Lord Rosebery's Definition.

It is to Lord Rosebery that we are indebted for the most modern definition of memory. "What is memory?" said a friend one day to him. "Memory," replied his lordship, "is the feeling that steals over us when we listen to our friends' original stories."—London Bystander.

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs.

Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the great woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female sysem. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.

AN OCEAN IN THE AIR.

The Queer Superstition That Once Prevailed In England.

The curious superstition that there is an ocean above the clouds is illustrated by the following strange story by an old English writer: "One Sunday the people of a certain village were coming out of church on a thick, cloudy day when they saw the anchor of a ship hooked to one of the tombstones, the cable, which was tightly stretched, hanging down from the air. The people were astonished, and while they were consulting about it suddenly they saw the rope move as though some one labored to pull up the anchor. The anchor, however, still held fast by the stone, and a great noise was heard in the air like the shouting of sailors. Presently a sailor was seen sliding down the cable for the purpose of unfixing the anchor. When he had just loosened it the villagers seized hold of him, and while in their hands he quickly died, just as though he had been drowned.

"About an hour later the sailors above, hearing no more of their comrade, cut the cable and sailed away. In memory of this extraordinary event the people of the village made the hinges of the church doors out of the iron of the anchor." It is further stated that these hinges "are still to be seen there," a bit of evidence much like Munchausen's rope wherewith he once climbed to the moon. If you doubted the story you were confronted with the rope.

There is another queer tale about this aerial ocean. "A merchant of Bristol," it is said, "set sail with his cargo for Ireland. Some time after, while his family were at supper, a knife suddenly fell in through a window on the table. When the merchant returned and saw the knife he declared it to be his own and said that on such a day, at such an hour, while sailing in an unknown part of the sea, he dropped the knife overboard, and the day and the hour were found to be exactly the time when it fell through the window." All of which was once implicitly believed by many and regarded as incontrovertible proof of the existence of a sea above the sky. One is at a loss to conjecture how that "unknown part of the sea" connected with the rest of it. A physical geography showing this would be no small curiosity.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The doctor can't always cure you; sometimes it's your mean disposition.

The trouble about a good time is that people seldom agree on what it is.

If a shiftless man in a country town doesn't keep greyhounds he usually plays a fiddle.

So many men fool away so much valuable time doing things in which there is neither point nor profit.

It is not recorded that any financial genius ever got his start by purchasing diamonds on the installment plan.

When a man is telling of a quarrel he has had and says, "I said to the other fellow," he nearly always makes what he says a good deal worse than it was.

After a girl has married and left home she sits up and takes notice every time her parents buy an expensive dress for the daughter still at home.

The Department Store.

The organization of a great department store is almost military in its discipline and is one of the best examples of what organization can accomplish. The proprietor is commander in chief, and under him are a number of assistants who are what might be considered district supervisors. Below them are the heads of departments, who are responsible to their district chief or to some other head. The floorwalker, the man who is so much in evidence because he spends his time in the aisles, is, in fact, a superintendent or foreman in charge of a department or series of departments. Each counter is under the general supervision of what is known as a head salesman, but this head salesman is subject to the direction of the floorwalker.—"Starting In Life," by N. C. Fowler, Jr.

FOOLISH GIRLS.

Those Who Deliberately Walk Into Matrimonial Failure.

It is enough to make one's heart ache the way foolish girls will pass by splendid, hardworking men and choose insignificant little nobodies for their life's partners, and all because they won't take the trouble to look below the veneer of fine dress.

The man who has an aim in life can't spend all his time in running after girls and going to dances.

He has something better to do. He has to make a name and place for himself in the world.

The young men who are lounging around street corners and saloons will never be anything better than they are now. The chances are they will be much worse.

Look around at the married women of your acquaintance. Some of them married honest, hardworking men. Others married loafers. Some of them are happy wives, others miserable wrecks.

Look forward a few years and imagine yourself in the place of either and then marry a good for nothing loafer if you dare.

Marry the worker and help him build up a successful career. Let him come home at night and find a cheerful home and a happy, smiling wife who is proud of his successes and sympathetic in his reverses.

But don't deliberately walk into a life where failure is bound to come. Don't tie yourself to a man for whom as time goes on you will be able to feel neither love nor respect.—St. Louis Republic.

TO MAKE A LEVEL BED.

The Secret Lies In Having a Tight Undersheet.

The secret of a level made bed lies largely in a tight undersheet. This is not merely a smooth one, but a sheet stretched so tightly that it lies taut across the bed and springs a little up from the mattress. To effect this the undersheet should be much wider than it is ordinarily made. Indeed, when tucked under the sides it should meet and overlap for two inches beneath the mattress and hang down at least ten inches over the head and foot.

With the sheet laid evenly on the bed and tucked in, the process of tightening it begins at the head. The bedmaker stands with her right side to the bed. This rule holds good with all her work. All of the bedding is laid on from this side, and, with the exception of the bottom sheet, that side should be nicely laid and tucked in before she moves to the other side in order to save steps. Standing then at the right side, the bedmaker reaches under the mattress and with the right hand grasps the opposite side of the sheet and with the left hand the near side. She then pulls the sheet so as to bring her two hands together beneath the middle of the mattress. So she progresses to the foot, drawing the sheet together every six inches down its length. It will take all her strength to do this properly, and unless she exerts this she will realize no result.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Try dipping lamb chops in lemon juice just before broiling them. They are delicious.

Carrots and onions will be better if soaked in cold water for twelve hours before using to draw out the strong flavor.

When boiling fish add an onion to the water and sweet herbs tied in a piece of muslin. This is a French cook's suggestion and very tasty.

Slices of fried bread or ordinary toast spread with anchovy paste are delicious if covered with scrambled eggs. This is a very nice supper dish.

When making cake beat your eggs thoroughly and mix in the last thing before baking. One well beaten egg will go as far as two badly beaten ones.

Persons who have been brought up on dried figs feel disappointed that fresh figs are not sweeter and resemble melons more than figs. Fresh figs have to be peeled and are usually eaten with cream.

MISS CLAUDIA LE BLANC.

The Most Successful Woman Broker in New England.

Starting out when a girl of thirteen and with a capital comprised entirely of borrowed money, Miss Claudia Le Blanc is today the most successful and best known woman broker in New England, officiating as the head of 478 employees and operating forty brokerage offices in different parts of New England.

Miss Le Blanc first came into prominence during the great Fall River strike, when she labored in behalf of the striking mill operators and gave her thirty tenements rent free, winning the gratitude of all the laboring class in the mill city.

The life story of this enterprising young woman is marvelous, the results attained being due entirely to her never failing persistency and the inherent desire to persevere regardless of obstacles.

Born in Lowell, Mass., of parents in modest walks of life, the child was early sent to the convent school, where she remained until she was thirteen years old.

Unknown to her parents, she left school and procured a position in a fruit store in Lowell. Her small salary did not discourage Miss Le Blanc's ambitions, for she soon convinced her employer of her ability and soon received the desired increase in her wages.

MISS CLAUDIA LE BLANC.

Advancement did not come quickly enough for the ambitious young woman, who left to take up a position in a hosiery mill.

Quick with her fingers, cautious and ever alert to learn the essential things that are necessary for the successful operator, she soon was able to earn a large salary. Her leisure time was devoted to study and the prospects incident to the making of a more lucrative livelihood. With her it was always a question of how to attain better results in the business world, and while others devoted their time to pleasure Miss Le Blanc devoted hers to study.

Her first commercial training began at a commercial college, where she was able to study the ethics of business, after which she became imbued with the desire to put her ideas on the business question to a practical test. It was at this time that Miss Le Blanc made her first bold stroke for a start on the highway of fortune.

At nineteen, with the money she had saved from her earnings, she started a shoe store in Lowell. Her first business venture was marked with success from the start, and at the end of the first year the profits were added to some borrowed money, and she made her first investment in real estate, building a block of houses in Lowell.

From real estate to the brokerage business she gradually opened up her field of labor. At first she had but one small office in Lowell and but one employee. The business was new to her, and she had to hire a man to appraise things which she bought and sold again.

As the profits began to increase weekly she opened other offices, and the proceeds derived from their operation she placed in real estate.

Miss Le Blanc has always taken an active interest in the general topics of the day and has affiliated herself with many movements that had for their object the betterment of mankind.—New York Herald.

Armenian Toast.

We all know about French toast, where slices of bread are moistened in beaten egg and milk, then browned in butter, but here is a little different Armenian way of preparing toast for breakfast that is nourishing and exceedingly tasty. For half a dozen slices of bread put three eggs in a shallow bowl and beat. Have ready in a frying pan a generous lump of butter or a couple of tablespoonfuls of good drippings. When hot, cut the slices of bread in halves, dip as many as will fit into the pan in beaten egg until both sides are covered and brown in the hot pan. As fast as colored a crispy deep gold pile evenly on a hot plate and serve with maple or any fruit sirup preferred. Ten minutes suffice to cook enough for a family, a great desideratum when an early breakfast is necessary. The cooking of the eggs and bread together in this way saves extra cooking dishes.

Making a Skirt.

One of the most important items in the making of a skirt is to see that the nap in the weave or the pattern in the cloth runs the same way in all the gores. Before cutting study the pattern and follow directions carefully. Remember that one-half the pattern is given, and the front gore is laid on a lengthwise fold of the goods. In cutting the side gores be sure that the right sides of the goods are laid together. It is well to cut the skirt a little longer than you intend it to be, so that it will admit of being drawn up in case more room is required around the hips. Baste the seams, beginning at the top, and try on. After the skirt is properly fitted the seams are stitched and pressed. It is a good plan to stitch a piece of tape in with the back seam to keep it from sagging. The seams may then be overcast or bound with a bias strip of sateen or percaline.

Buttonholes.

When cutting buttonholes in heavy material a small triangle is cut in the end nearest the edge of the garment. This allows the shank of the button to set easily in the buttonhole. After cutting and overcasting begin with two threads, one to outline the buttonhole and the other to work the stitches. Draw one thread gently around the edge of the buttonhole to form a cord as the stitches are worked over it. When completed work three or four stitches at the inner end of the buttonhole, making a bar across it. When all the buttonholes are finished the edges of each should be drawn together by a few stitches at the back. They should then be pressed under a damp cloth, and when dry the stitches can be ripped out.

Graceful Hands.

It is next to impossible to make the hands slender. You can make them graceful by indulging in certain Delsarte exercises, stretching the fingers to the utmost and closing the hand slowly and gracefully. You can also keep your hands soft and white by using a pure soap and cosmetic jelly. If, in addition, the nails are beautifully manicured, the extra plumpness will not matter so very much. The main thing is to have the hands white and soft, the nails polished and clean and to move the hands gracefully. All these delightful conditions can be cultivated.

Towels.

Much to the comfort of the average man and the sensible woman, the fringed damask towel is being supplanted, or at least supplemented, by the hemstitched huckaback. To many persons huckaback affords just the right degree of roughness and resistance to be agreeable, while it also absorbs moisture rather more readily. For the dower chest of the bride nothing is prettier than huckaback towels embroidered at the ends tastefully in old blue, old pink, white or a color that matches the decorative scheme of some particular room.

Shelf Paper.

"If paper is used on your closet shelves," says an expert in domestic science, "teach your waitress to put on three thicknesses at once. It is as easy to cut three layers as one. They can be removed then one at a time as they become soiled, a few dishes being removed and replaced as the paper is rolled away, and it requires much less time than to remove all the dishes and put on new paper."

Good Luncheon Dish.

To use cold lamb, ham or beef, mince it fine, with half the quantity of ham and a quarter as much breadcrumbs. Season with a small onion (if not objectionable), salt and pepper. Mix this with an egg and any gravy that may have been left from the roast. Put in a baking pan, cover with breadcrumbs and bake for half an hour. This is a good dish for luncheon.

To Keep Clothes White.

In putting away white clothes from one season to another, to keep them from yellowing take a bag made of an old sheet, wash clean, dip in strong bluing water and dry. It should be very blue. Then put clean clothes in bag loosely and hang in a dark closet. Clothes will keep white for years by this method.

Cabbage Stumps.

Why do we throw away tender cabbage stumps? Why do we throw away apple peelings and apple cores? Apple cores and peelings make a splendid jelly, but it is well to get rid of most of the pips. Cabbage stumps when young are a valuable addition to stews. They should be sliced.

Silence and Nerves.

A physician who makes a specialty of modern nerves says that an hour of silence should be rigorously imposed on each patient daily. In serious cases it may even be desirable to enforce silence for two hours each day. It may be that a large part of this doctor's patients with "nerves" are women.

When bathing the eyes add a little salt to the water. A teaspoonful of table salt to a pint of water is about right. The salted water will not smart like unsalted water when it gets into the eyes.

New iron kettles sometimes have a disagreeable taste, and it is advisable to remove this by boiling a wisp of hay in them, repeating it until the taste is removed.

Twenty-four hours before shampooing saturate the scalp with warm olive oil. Careful brushing every night will encourage the hair to be good.

HAROLD.

Mr. J. A. Potts, who has been very ill for a few weeks, is slowly improving.

Miss Osborne teacher, in this school, received a telegram last Friday stating that her sister at home was dead. She will have the sympathy of the vicinity in this her hour of grief.

A large number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bailey and spent a pleasant evening on Jan. the 11th. Oysters and cake were in abundance. Music, singing and games were enjoyed until the wee hours of the morning.

Mrs. Franklin Ketcheson, Mrs. Jno. Bailey and Mr. Charles Mumby are on the sick list.

Mr. Theodore Reid has purchased a swell new cutter.

Messrs. S. Armstrong and W. Gay each have a very sick horse, suffering with distemper.

Messrs. H. Heath and M. Scott are out of the village this week; they are engaged in the wood business in the north.

The Misses Myrtle and Mollie Bailey entertained a few of their friends one evening last week.

Miss Estella Kirk, of Chapman, is the guest of her sisters, in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, of Sine, are guests at Mr. W. Gay's.

Miss Alice Scott has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Jeffs, of Hoard's.

Miss Pearl Clancy, of Wellman's is the guest of Miss Flossie Heath.

Mr. David Gay, of Niagara, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gay.

Mr. Blake Faulkner, of Holloway, visited friends here recently.

Fakirs.

Fakirs is the name given to a celebrated class of fanatics found in many parts of the east, but more particularly in India. Some of them will make a vow to continue all their lives in one posture and adhere to it strictly. Others never lie down, but remain in a standing position all their lives, upheld only by sticks or ropes under the armpits. They pretend to have subdued every passion of mortality.

Might Be Worse.

When the poet Wordsworth died an old lady at Ambleside lost no time in telling the mournful news to an old and confidential manservant. "Ey, ey!" quoth Thomas. "It's a gre't loss nae doot, but efter a' it may not be sic a parlish loss as ye're coontin' on. Mrs. Wordsworth, they say, is a gey, clever body, and she'll be carryin' on the business, we may be sewer."

Peasant and King.

Henry IV., the idol of the French people, was also a king of phrase makers. During one of his tours through France he arrived at a small village and ordered that the most intelligent villager be sent to converse with him while he dined. When the rustic appeared the king ordered him to take a seat opposite to him at the table. "What is your name?" asked the monarch. "Sire, I am called Gaillard," replied the peasant. "What is the difference," said the king, "between gaillard" (i. e., a jolly fellow) "and paillard" (i. e., a rake)? "Sire," was the reply, "there is but a table between the two."

APT ILLUSTRATION.

HOW MR. J. S. McKEOWN SHOWED THE DIFFERENCE TO AN INTELLIGENCER REPORTER.

A reporter for the Intelligencer was talking with Mr. J. S. McKeown lately, discussing a very interesting subject, when Mr. McKeown said:

"See here, I'll show you now just what I mean."

He went out and soon returned with a bit of board and two bottles. Resting one end of the board on the counter, he supported the other end with his fingers, and poured on the board from one of the bottles a drop of thick, oily substance, which slowly oozed down the slope. Then Mr. McKeown took the other bottle and poured out just a drop of a clear, delicious, dark red liquid. This drop shot down the incline in the twinkling of an eye.

"This first bottle," said Mr. McKeown, "is the old-fashioned cod liver oil, or emulsion, as it is called. The second bottle contains Vinol. See how slowly the emulsion creeps along the board. It is thick, sluggish, unwholesome. But the Vinol dashes to the bottom at once. These two substances act like this in the human body—the cod liver oil is so thick and clogging that it merely upsets digestion, and its medicinal value is lost; while Vinol goes at once to the seat of trouble and corrects the difficulty by creating an appetite and building up the strength and general health.

"Vinol, you know, is a cod liver preparation, and, while it contains all the medicinal elements which have made cod liver oil famous, it contains not a drop of oil, and is delicious to the taste. We can guarantee old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsion, but Vinol is guaranteed to the limit, and if it fails to give satisfaction it costs nothing. We stand the loss. But it won't fail. Try it on our guarantee and see." J. S. McKeown, druggist.

STOPPED THE OVATION.

Richard Wagner's Peculiar Experience in Vienna.

When Wagner was at the height of his popularity he visited Vienna. Baron von Beust, then chancellor of the empire, was informed that the Prussian party intended to give him an immense serenade—a serenade which would have the air of German protest against the tendency of the ministry to make the union of Hungary and Austria more intimate. The demonstration promised to arouse strong feeling.

"Your excellency is warned," said the chancellor's advisers. "It is impossible to stop this manifestation unless Wagner goes away, and he loves ovations too well. Nothing will induce him to depart."

"You think so," said Beust, with a smile.

An hour later Wagner was invited to dine with the chancellor. He was flattered by the invitation and accepted it. After dinner, at which Beust was delightfully affable and entertaining, the chancellor remarked: "Herr Wagner, are you interested in autographs? I have some very curious ones to show you." And he opened a portfolio where were letters of Palmerston, Bismarck, Napoleon III., Heine and others.

Suddenly turning to a paper, dated 1848, he said: "Ah, look at this. It is very curious. What would your friend his highness the king of Bavaria say if this paper, which would be significant in connection with the political serenade which the Germans are going to give you, should be published tomorrow in the Vienna papers?"

The composer examined the paper and recognized, with surprise, an old proclamation of one Richard Wagner, who, an ardent revolutionist in 1848, had proposed to the youth of that time to set fire to the palace of the king of Saxony. He saw his autograph and that it might be the means of getting him into serious trouble.

"Very curious, is it not, Herr Wagner?" said the minister.

"Very curious, your excellency," replied his guest.

The next morning Richard Wagner left Vienna, recalled to Baireuth by urgent business.—Strand Magazine.

MAKING WAMPUM.

A Process That Requires Both Patience and Skill.

With certain tribes wampum is still highly prized and necklaces are worn by men, women and children when they are the fortunate possessors of them. To make wampum various kinds of shells are used, white and those having a lavender hue being most liked.

The thin shells are broken into little pieces and by aid of nippers are made as nearly round as possible. When each piece is drilled in the center, the old time fire kindling style of drill being used, the shells are then strung and rolled with the hand on a flat stone, which grinds them until they are smooth and even.

Comparatively few Indians among those who prize wampum beads most highly have the skill or patience to make them, even though they had the materials. The fact is there are but few wampum bead makers in the country, and it often happens that long pilgrimages must be made to secure the requisites for really fine beads, and, as with the white man's trinkets, that which is "far fetched and dear bought" is most sought after for ornamentation.

Around some of the ancient ruins in the southwest the little disks of wampum are often found in the sand, and it is probable that they were deposited in the graves in very early times and washed out or exposed by the wind's action. These ruins are in the best state of preservation of any in the country. Absolutely nothing is known of their builders, and the origin of these ruins was as much a mystery when Coronado first saw them in 1540, when he made his famous invasion, as it is to the people of the present day.—Indian's Friend.

Oxygen and Mushrooms.

A singular way of removing oxygen from the air by the aid of a plant is as follows: Inside a glass bell jar, suspended over water, is placed a mushroom, and sunlight is allowed to fall upon the plant. The mushroom absorbs the oxygen from the air in the jar, and the carbonic acid formed during the process is absorbed by the water, which gradually rises in the jar to one-fifth of its height. The mushroom now dries up, but its animation is only suspended, as may be proved by introducing beside it a green plant, when it will recommence to vegetate, being nourished by the oxygen exhaled from the fresh plant.

Hope.

"Mr. Merchant," said the new clerk, preparing to ask for more money, "I think I understand the business pretty well now, and"—

"Yes?" interrupted his employer. "Well, keep at it four or five years. Perhaps you'll understand it then as well as you think you do now."

Taking Papa Down.

First Daughter—Oh, papa, dear, two young men we've met down here have asked us to marry them. Father—They'd better see me first. Second Daughter—Oh, they've seen you, papa, and they love us notwithstanding.

A Fashion Note.

Doctor (to female patient)—You've got a slight touch of fever. Your tongue has a thick coat— Patient (excitedly)—Oh, doctor, do tell me how it fits!

The Home First-Aid.

Accidents will happen in the best regulated families, and the necessity of keeping a reliable first-aid for home use cannot be too strongly insisted upon.

Where a box of Zam-Buk is kept on a handy shelf, no member of the family is at a loss in emergency. The breadwinner dresses his injuries with Zam-Buk, and knows that its powerful antiseptic action will clean out the wound, preventing suppuration or poisoning. The housewife flies to the useful little box for her bruises, cuts, and burns, and the little ones cry out for Zam-Buk when they fall, because they know it will soothe the smarting pain and heal quickly.

Zam-Buk is a pure healing balm made from rich medicinal herbs, the saps and juices of which are cleverly combined and concentrated, and wonderfully refined. Many modern preparations contain quantities of animal fats and mineral poisons, and are not only coarse, irritating, and unreliable, but tend to create the very complications which should be guarded against.

The Zam-Buk way is both different and superior. This natural healing balm takes out the smart and soothes the pain, reduces the inflammation, and induces a clean and rapid healing right away. It kills microbes, nullifies the effects of dirt or poisonous substances, and finally helps Nature to build up new tissue to replace that which has been damaged or destroyed.

How Zam-Buk Cured Child and Father in one Home

Mr. Alf. J. Clark, of Cavendish St., London (Ont.,) says:—"I got my hands so severely burned with lime that as I worked with my shovel, the blood actually ran down the handle. The agony I suffered you may well imagine. I tried several different kinds of salves but the burns were too severe for these preparations to heal them. Then I tried Zam-Buk and the first few applications gave me ease. In a short time this balm healed the burns, deep as they were, and since then my hands have felt better—muscles more firm and skin in better condition than before the injury.

My little daughter, while playing in the house one day, fell and burned her hand severely against the stove. She ran to her mother crying and my wife, knowing the benefit I had received from Zam-Buk, put some on the child's burns. The little one stopped crying almost immediately, so soothing was the balm, and in a very short time her hands were all right again."

What You Should Use Zam-Buk For

Zam-Buk is absolutely unique in its power and in the variety of its uses. For skin injuries and diseases of all kinds it is at the same time a sure antiseptic and a quick healer. It is especially recommended for eczema, scalp sores, ulcers, burns, cuts, bruises, abscesses, poisoned wounds, old sores, wounds and sores which refuse to close under ordinary treatment, rashes, face sores, babies chafing sores, chapped hands, cold sores, chilblains, Etc.

All Druggists sell at 50c a box, or may be obtained by sending price to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 6 boxes for $2.50. Send one cent for dainty sample box and test it at our expense.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

Energy the Human Power House.

Mind, the master architect, engages energy to do its various kinds of work. The brain of man is a power house, in which there are many dynamos. Wires lead out from these dynamos to all parts and every organ of the body. The various organs and parts of the body are motors or engines, which keep up their action by the energy they receive over the wires from the dynamos in the brain. The food we consume is a fuel, which contains latent energy. Digestion prepares this fuel for admission into the blood. The blood carries it to the nerve centres, or dynamos, where much of it is finally burnt up—consumed, and the latent energy, which held the food together in its fuel form, is transformed into nerve energy, which is conducted by the nerves to every part of the human plant—the body.

Died In India.

A NOTED PRESBYTERIAN LADY MISSIONARY, PASSES AWAY.

Dr. Agnes Turnbull, whose services in India during the famine ravages and later in the plague were much appreciated, has been removed by death. She had a stroke of paralysis induced by arduous work. The India Government lately conferred on her the Kaisar-i-hind medal for her bravery during the plague. This, like the Victoria Cross, is given for conspicuous services.

She was born in this county, at Melrose, her father then being minister there. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved family and for the mission, in which her place will be hard to fill.

Board of Trade Recommends Assistance To Hotel Quinte.

Largely Attended Meeting Puts Itself On Record Last Night—Feeling Was Almost Unanimous—Conditions At the Post Office—Deputation Will Go to Ottawa to Protest Against Them—Considerable Talk About Front Street Paving and the Fire Department, But No Definite Action Taken.

A largely attended meeting of the Board of Trade was held last evening, and many matters of vital interest, affecting the city's good were discussed.

Mr. R. J. Graham, president, occupied the chair. Others present were Mayor Sulman, Messrs. J. W. Johnson, H. C. Hunt, W. B. Deacon, F. S. Deacon, A. Henry, J. Wallace, E. Fairfield, E. T. Blackburn, Walter Alford, P. Wims, Ald. Green, Ald. Ackerman, Ald. McCrodan, C. J. Bowell, R. E. Sills, S. C. Clapp, S. E. Lennox, C. B. Scantlebury, J. A. McFee, J. Elliott, E. P. Frederick, P. F. Canniff, Ald. Panter, T. P. Brown, H. F. Ketcheson, Dr. Caverley and Dr. Dupraa.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was read from the Toronto Board of Trade asking that the Belleville Board of Trade co-operate in petitioning the Dominion Government in reference to the better enforcement of the law in regard to undesirable emigrants coming to this country.

From the Kingston Board of Trade in reference to petitioning the Dominion Government as to widening the Welland Canal.

On motion the above communications were laid upon the table for discussion.

A MATTER OF AMAZEMENT.

Col. Ponton's name being mentioned, Mr. J. W. Johnson said he was amazed at the action of the Council in leaving Col. Ponton off the School Board.

WANTS A BONUS.

A communication from a party in the Maritime Provinces, re establishing an industry here, was considered. The party asked for a bonus of $10,000 to $15,000.

NEW MEMBERS.

The following gentlemen's names were submitted as desiring to become members of the Board:

Ald. Ackerman, J. Elliott, E. P. Frederick, J. A. Harte, M. Sprague, Ald. Butler, A. W. Dickens, J. W. Ostrom, P. Allen, F. T. Carney, O. S. Hicks, J. H. P. Young, T. Coppin, C. C. Leavens, J. W. Wardrope, G. S. Thornton, R. Chown, J. Coulson, D. Baecker, F. Ham, E. Fairfield, H. Greenleaf, F. Dolan, V. Doyle, W. R. Riggs, A. G. Vermilyea, D. Faulkner, Ald. Thompson, Ald. Green.

A motion prevailed that the Secretary cast a ballot in favor of the above as members of the Board.

THE BOARD'S COMMITTEES.

The nominating committee recommended that the following gentlemen constitute the various Board Committees for the year:

Executive Committee — President, Secretary, Treasurer, D. V. Sinclair, J. W. Johnson, C. M. Reid.

Reception Committee — D. V. Sinclair, W. N. Ponton, Walter Alford, J. W. Johnson.

Membership and Attendance Committee — C. B. Scantlebury, T. Blackburn, H. C. Hunt, W. B. Deacon.

Municipal Committee — —. B. Deacon, D. V. Sinclair, Stewart Robertson.

Development and Tourist Committee — C. J. Bowell, A. R. Wallbridge, W. C. Mikel, A. McGinnis.

Freight and Passenger Rates Committee — H. C. Hunt, J. W. Wardrope, W. E. Schuster and M. Cober.

New Industries Committee — D. V. Sinclair, H. C. Hunt, W. B. Deacon and Col. Ponton.

Programme Committee — President, Secretary, H. C. Hunt.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Scantlebury moved, seconded by Mr. Wims, that a number of copies of the new by-laws be printed for use of the members.—Carried.

The matter of assisting a prospective new industry was discussed.

LOANS TO INDUSTRIES.

Mr. Hunt was in favor of loaning to new industries. He gave instances of cities which had secured industries through loans, which had proved beneficial to the municipalities.

Mr. Graham stated that the city of Stratford had secured industries through loans, and some of these industries were thriving.

Mr. J. W. Johnson thought that municipalities should not either grant bonuses or even make loans to prospective industries. He could not, generally speaking, adopt the principle. Money could be secured from the banks for these industries, if the proposition is a good one.

Mr. Walter Alford was opposed to granting aid to proposed industries either by loan or a bonus.

Mr. J. Elliott was not in favor of bonusing industries unless it could be shown that there was considerable capital behind the contemplated industry. He thought it would be better if the city remitted the taxes and gave free water. He would do all in his power, whilst a member of the Board of Trade, to assist in building up the city.

Mr. Wims was in favor of doing all he could, to assist industries in coming to Belleville, but before doing so he would desire to know something about them.

Mr. W. B. Deacon said we desired industries and there were some he would be in favor of assisting whilst there were other industries seeking location which he would in no wise assist.

The matter dropped.

The communication from the Toronto Board of Trade was taken up.

IMMIGRANT INSPECTION.

Mr. Bowell thought the Toronto Board of Trade should be upheld in this matter. The Government was not, in his opinion, having as rigid an inspection as there should be in the matter of immigrants coming to this country.

Mr. Johnson said that, whilst he was in favor of rigid inspection, he would not desire to in any way restrict immigration. We want all the immigrants from the old land that we can secure.

A motion prevailed that the President and Secretary write the Toronto Board endorsing their petition.

The communication of the Kingston Board of Trade re widening and deepening the Welland Canal, was discussed.

THE WELLAND CANAL.

Mr. Johnson moved that the Belleville Board of Trade concur in the petition to ask the Government to widen and deepen the Welland Canal. This was a national question.

Mr. Scantlebury seconded the motion which was unanimously adopted.

REBUILDING OF HOTEL QUINTE.

The question of the rebuilding of Hotel Quinte was taken up and discussed at length.

Mr. Alford said all were agreed that it was a serious loss to the city when the Hotel Quinte burned down. The Council should do something to assist in rebuilding the hotel. He spoke in favor of giving free taxes and free water.

Mr. Graham said that a by-law would have to be submitted to the ratepayers, if assistance was given in the way of exemptions.

Mayor Sulman said that a by-law would have to be submitted or a special Act from the Legislature would have to be secured as to remission.

Mr. Blackburn — "Has Mr. Jenkins asked the Council for anything yet?"

Mayor Sulman—"Not yet."

Mr. Elliott said the Council should be as liberal as possible in this matter. We should lose no time in assisting to have the hotel rebuilt.

Mayor Sulman thought that the best course to pursue in this matter was to get a special Act of Parliament. This could be secured by a large petition being prepared showing that the citizens generally were in favor of the Council assisting in the rebuilding of the hotel.

Mr. Johnson said Belleville had, before the fire, the best hotel between Toronto and Montreal, and also had the best hotel manager. Mr. Jenkins has had many offers to leave the city, but he desires to remain. We should do our utmost to have the hotel rebuilt and also do all we can to induce Mr. Jenkins to remain here. The Quinte was even better than an industry in our city. It it is rebuilt it will no doubt be on a grander scale.

Mr. Johnson moved that the City Council do all in its power to assist in having the Quinte rebuilt.

Mr. Wims seconded the motion. During last summer many tourists came from the United States and were guests at the Quinte. This meant considerable to the merchants and the citizens generally. He was greatly in favor of aiding the rebuilding scheme.

A DISSENTING VOICE.

Mr. Hunt said that, as business men, they all realized the importance of having a first-class hotel in our midst. If exemption from taxes and free water were granted, would not the other hotel men in the city ask for a like favor? He had no doubt there would be considerable opposition to the scheme and he could not support it.

Mr. Alford said that, if the remission was for 10 years, the city would be well repaid.

Mr. Blackburn said that there was considerable opposition to giving exemption of taxes and free water.

Mr. Johnson was of the opinion that no other hotel keeper would have a right to ask for exemption. In this case it would be asked because it was given for the rebuilding of the hotel. There is a necessity for a first-class hotel here, and its rebuilding should be heartily encouraged.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson spoke in favor of every inducement being given to have the hotel rebuilt.

Mr. Johnson's motion was almost unanimously adopted.

PAVING OF FRONT STREET.

This matter was discussed at some length, but nothing definite was done, it being decided to talk the matter over again at the next meeting.

Mr. T. P. Brown said that he had assisted in making a measurement of Front street, from Mr. Corby's premises to the upper bridge, and there were found to be 13,000 square feet. This would cost in the vicinity of $32,000 to properly pave.

Ald. Panter said he would like an expression from the Board of Trade in reference to paving Front street. A permanent pavement of some kind should be laid from the upper bridge to Queen Victoria Park.

After Ald. Green and Mr. J. W. Johnson had spoken, the matter was laid over for further consideration.

REORGANIZATION OF FIRE DEPARTMENT.

This was another matter discussed by some present, but no action was taken and no recommendations were made, it being understood that the matter would be discussed at a future meeting.

A letter was read from the Underwriters' Association, recommending that more hose be purchased by the city, a fire alarm established; more men employed; also more salvage equipment secured.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson said that there were in the city many buildings of faulty construction, which caused large insurance rates.

Mr. R. J. Graham thought the Belleville firemen did good work, and instanced the case when a fire occurred at his house. The brigade were there four minutes after the alarm was given.

THE POST OFFICE.

Mr. J. W. Johnson said that some action should be taken in reference to better service at the post office. Its office staff was inefficient, and he suggested that a deputation from the Council and Board go to Ottawa in reference to the matter. He made a motion to that effect.

M. C. B. Scantlebury seconded the resolution, referring to the fact that mail belonging to other parties was placed in his box continually.

Mr. Blackburn instanced a case of a parcel for him lying in the office here four days.

The resolution was adopted and the deputation will be named later. Board then adjourned.

WESTERN DAIRYMEN.

Prof. Dean's Report On Experimental Shipments of Butter to England Is Unfavorable.

London, Jan. 18.—In the opening session of the Western Ontario Dairymen's convention yesterday Chief Instructor Barr presented his report for Western Ontario for the past season. He complimented the cheesemakers on the small number of poor cheese made this year and on the better handling of overripe milk. With regard to the factories over $28,000 had been spent upon repairs during the year. The chief grievance against the factories now, was the wheytanks, which were in bad shape generally.

The cheesemakers' recommendations were presented by G. A. Putnam. Summarized they are to the effect that the Government amend the law to have one inspector to every 25 or 30 factories; that $12 be charged each factory as a part payment of these expenses; that the adulteration of milk be severely punished.

Prize Winners.

The prize winners in the dairy contest were announced by Chief Barr. The medal was won by J. E. Stedelbauer of Fordwich on a total score of 95.82 points for September cheese and 96.66 for October white. W. A. Bothwell of Hickson won first place in the 56-lb box creamery butter contest, as well as first in the pound prints class, being over 96 points in each class.

In the afternoon Prof. Harcourt of the O. A. C., in dealing with the subject of the moisture content of butter, said that the college had determined the moisture content of over 260 samples of butter sent them. The average percentage of moisture was 14.1. Only 18 out of the 262 samples overrun the 16 per cent. allowed. In the analysis of the 113 samples of competition butter the moisture ranged from 9.4 per cent., and there were no relationship to be found between the moisture content and the salt, the cured or awards.

The Refrigerator.

Prof. Dean gave the results obtained in the experimental shipments of butter to England. The highest scoring butter was made from sweet cream run directly from separator to the churn, without starter or culture. Thus he deemed it possible to get the finest butter without aids. But let the maker go slow in this matter and make no radical changes. It was wholly unnecessary to pay 15 cents a pound for preservatives when one can be obtained for five cents. He concluded from the shipments that it was not practicable to ship prints to England.

Prof. Dean made a severe indictment against the refrigerator car service of the province. Often the faults charged to the makers were due to the car service.

Dairy Commissioner Ruddick warmed up on the topic of the refrigerator car service in the wake of Prof. Dean's remarks. He did not pretend to control the running of the cars, and shippers could not shelve the responsibility to the department. Loss was entailed in butter shipments by allowing dairy butter entering the refrigerator at points along the route when that butter was not kept in cold storage at the country stores. Merchants should provide themselves with cold storage.

The Officers.

The following officers were elected during the afternoon: President, John McQuaker, Owen Sound; John Brodie, Maple; J. J. Parsons, Jarvis; John Scott, Exeter; directors, J. B. Smith, Alton; Thomas Ballantyne, jr., Stratford; D. A. Dempsey, Stratford; Wm. Paget, Canboro; George Boyce, London; Sam Wallace, Woodstock; Wm. Waddell; representatives Western Fair Frank Boyce, I. Steinhoff; representative Canadian National, A. F. MacLaren.

MUST TURN TO ROME.

Pope Does Not Wish Solution of the French Difficulty.

Paris, Jan. 18.—The French Episcopale has decided not to form cultural associations under the law of 1901, and to ask precise instructions from Rome.

Cardinal Coullie, Archbishop of Lyons, declared that the Pope did not wish a solution, but desired to compel the French Government to make a new convention.

"There will be no solution until the Government turns to Rome," he concluded.

WILFUL INTENT PLEA

Deception Must Be Shown Says Defence in Cockburn Case.

Prosecution Contends That the Signing of Bank Statement Is a Crime, In That Wilful Intent Is Not Necessary—Precedents Cited Why the President of the Ontario Bank Should Go to Trial.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The legal points regarding the charges against G. R. R. Cockburn, ex-president of the Ontario Bank, were threshed out before Police Magistrate Denison yesterday morning and the case will proceed on Monday.

Before Mr. Corley commenced his argument the magistrate remarked: "I do not think it is necessary to apply the evidence in this case, but would suggest the argument shall deal only with the law."

Asks For a Conviction.

The Crown Attorney began by saying: "Even on the evidence before the court, I would ask for a conviction." According to the law it was only necessary to show that a wilfully false statement had been made. He thought this was established. Then the defendant admitted signing the report, which the Crown held constituted an offence. Mr. Corley said the information came under section 99 of the Bank Act, which set forth several offences. He construed the wording of the section for the magistrate. It made a crime of the preparation of a false statement by any person, whether an official of the bank or outsider. Then the president of the bank could be prosecuted for signing, concurring in or approving the statement, and lastly, the person using the document with the intent to deceive was also guilty of a crime.

Statute Not Unreasonable.

The Crown Attorney did not think the statute could be considered unreasonable. It tried to force the high officials in the bank to do their duty. They could be prosecuted for signing, and the saving clause referring to an outsider using "with intent to deceive" did not apply to their cases. It had been shown that the defendant received a very large salary. That must have been because of his responsibility, for he was not an expert banker.

"If the law is as you argue it, no evidence can make any difference," said his Worship, "the mere physical act of signing is an offence."

"The reason for that is that the signature of the president makes the statement final and binding," replied Mr. Corley.

He named a number of cases which would probably be cited by the defence, but showed that they did not bear on the point raised by the prosecution.

"There has never been a case bearing on the construction of those particular words in the statute," said Hon. A. B. Morine.

Argument For the Defence.

"No person has been so peculiarly blinded as to try to prove such a case," said Mr. Frank Arnoldi in beginning his reply. "A wilfully false statement must be uttered. How can we have a wilfully false statement about which the defendant knows nothing? That is the common-sense view of the case." He thought there was only a crime under the clause. He objected to the construction which made the words, "with intent to deceive," qualify only the word "use." It was trying to constitute a crime on the absence of a comma, which would be contrary to common justice.

The counsel for the defence pointed to the fact that the judge held in the Sir Francis Hinck's case that the president should have knowledge of the Act.

Mr. Morine pointed out that the charge in the case cited was "making," and not "signing" the statement. Mr. Arnoldi denied this, but refused to allow the assistant counsel for the prosecution to show him where the charge was set forth. However, while reading the judgment, Mr. Arnoldi discovered that Sir Francis Hincks was accused of "making wilfully false statement."

"You will admit that I am right?" suggested Mr. Morine, laughing.

"No, I shall not," snapped the counsel for the defence.

"My learned friend is allowed special privileges in his way of saying things," said Mr. Corley.

After the argument had been concluded the magistrate declared that it did not touch the contention under consideration.

Mr. Arnoldi dealt with the common law concerning "criminal intent." The Crown Attorney was leaving to bring a book to combat the arguments when Mr. Morine suggested that the Banking Act was intended to set aside this very point.

The counsel for the defence concluded by arguing that directors could not be expected to know all about the affairs of the institution they served, and that the should not be considered guilty of criminal ignorance.

Hon. A. B. Morine's Reply.

In his reply Hon. A. B. Morine contended that the act wished to do away with the question of intent, which was so important in minor cases of common law. The Legislature gave bankers great privileges and wished to impose equally great responsibilities. In section 99 one of these was set forth. Minor officials of a bank might use a false statement, so they had to do so wilfully, but only the president or some one equally responsible could sign it, so he was not allowed by the act to plead ignorance of its contents if trouble arose, for his signature made it binding. While admitting that few presidents knew much about the business of the banks which they headed, the prosecution did not think that was an excuse for sending forth documents over their names as correct. He ought not to come into court and say as an excuse, "I certified it as correct, but couldn't and didn't know it was correct."

Col. Denison reserved his judgment and the case was remanded till next Monday.

ARRESTED IN ONTARIO WOODS.

Cook of Lumber Camp Accused of a Murder In Maryland.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 18.—After working in the woods as a cook in a lumber camp for several months, Charles Carter, colored, was arrested late Wednesday for the alleged murder of Thomas M. Reinhart, a railroad contractor at Dorsey's Run, Md., April 7 last.

Carter denied the charge but does not want to return, as he says he will be lynched. There is $1,000 reward.

Germans and Africans at War.

Cape Town, Jan. 18.—A despatch to The Cape Times from Port Nolloth yesterday, says that the negotiations for peace between the Germans and the revolted natives in the southern part of German West Africa, were abruptly broken off and that serious fighting is now on in the vicinity of Keetmanshoop.

Fell Into Hot Water.

Oakville, Jan. 18.—William Beasley, a young man employed in the Oakville Basket Factory, fell into the scalding vat and received severe scalds on the feet and legs. The accident was caused by the young man looking around as he approached the vat.

Combines Heavily Fined.

New York, Jan. 18—The MacAndrews & Forbes Co. of this city was fined $10,000, and the J. S. Young Co. of Baltimore $8,000, yesterday, following their conviction on the charge of combining to monopolize the trade in licorice paste.

Rockefeller Re-Elected.

Cleveland, Jan. 18.—The officers of the Euclid avenue Baptist Church last night re-elected John D. Rockefeller as superintendent of the Sunday school. His term had almost reached the quarter-century mark.

R. C. Church Burned.

Montreal, Jan. 18.—The Roman Catholic Church at Port Leonard De St. Maurice was destroyed by fire early yesterday, the loss being $75,000. Several people were nearly killed trying to save altar pieces.

British Emigration.

London, Jan. 18.—The emigration committee will recommend that the central unemployed body allocate 30,000 for emigration this year, and thinks it advisable for an organizing officer to proceed to Canada immediately to interview the Dominion and Provincial immigration officials as to placing them at work.

To Central For Nine Months.

London, Jan. 18.—Ernest Sylvester was sentenced to nine months in the Central prison on a charge of stealing money from a local furniture company for which he had been collecting accounts, while drunk. He surrendered himself to the Toronto police.

From Chicken-Pox To Cholera.

CURE-ALLS NO LONGER TOLERATED.

In early days every barber shop was an operating room and the town physician resorted to bleeding as the sure cure for all ailments from chicken-pox to cholera. As a result, many, including the first U.S. President, died prematurely.

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known.

There is no disease more common among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it half unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition.

There is a remedy for dyspepsia, and only one, recommended and endorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmental analyses in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which Nature has put into the stomach for digestion—pepsin, diastase and other ferments.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active principle of these Tablets being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and other foods. They are not cathartic pills—their action is simply that of a digestive.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure nothing but dyspepsia, waterbrash, sour stomach and kindred ailments resulting from the imperfect digestion of food, but these diseases they positively cure.

We will gladly send you a trial package to prove the truth of our claims. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be gotten of all druggists at 50 cents. F. A. Stuart Co., 69 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

N. B. MEMBERS PROTEST

Assail Appointment of Costigan and Gilmour to Senate.

Messrs. Crockett and Daniels Point Out That These Senators Being Non-Resident, One Living In Ontario and the Other In Montreal, a Violation of the Constitution Has Taken Place—Meat Inspection Bill.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Mr. Gervais (Liberal, Montreal) yesterday introduced in the House a bill to amend the Supreme Court act, simplifying appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada from the Court of Review in the Province of Quebec. Now the amount involved must be 500 pounds, although appeals from the Court of King's Bench, a higher court, are allowed where the amount involved is only $2,000. This amendment fixes a uniform amount at $2,000.

The bill to increase the representation of the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan in the House of Commons has been referred to a select committee consisting of Messrs. Turiff, McCraney, McIntyre (Strathcona), Lake and McCarthy (Calgary).

The House went promptly into committee upon Mr. Fisher's meat and canned goods inspection bill. The members insisted that the statute should be confined to interprovincial and export trade. Each province should look after its own markets.

The Fisheries Question.

Mr. Maclean (Liberal, Nova Scotia) revived at the evening session the lasting and always irritating fisheries question. He urged the revision of the modus vivendi with the United States. He quoted from debates in the United States Senate showing that the fisheries treaty of 1888 had been rejected by the Senate on a party vote. There was no reason why the United States should enjoy, without consideration, the privileges accorded by that treaty as a matter of agreement. Mr. Maclean admitted that the people of Nova Scotia were not in accord upon this general question, but he laid it down as a fair proposition that the Americans should agree to the maximum, "Free fish for free fishing." He eulogized the example set by Newfoundland and urged the Government of Canada to follow her example.

Attack on Senatorial Appointments.

Mr. Crockett (Conservative, New Brunswick) made a terrific attack upon the recent appointments of Costigan and Gilmour as Senators from New Brunswick. Mr. Costigan for years had owned property and voted in the City of Ottawa. Mr. Gilmour for years had lived in Montreal, with an occasional glimpse at his summer cottage in New Brunswick. Was it fair, when the sea-girt provinces were being robbed of representation in the Commons, that they should be deprived of their constitutional equality in the Senate of the Dominion?

We are now, said Mr. Crockett, entitled to ten seats in the Senate, yet on the one day this Government has made two appointments to that body from New Brunswick and assign them to other provinces. They have taken away by these appointments one-fifth of the representation of the Province of New Brunswick in the Senate.

The Premier tried to sidestep the discussion by suggesting that the Senate might expel these peripetetic philosophers.

Mr. Daniels said it would seem almost as if there were no two gentlemen resident in New Brunswick qualified, in the opinion of the right hon. gentleman, to be called to the Senate. But what qualifications do these gentlemen have who have been appointed? They certainly have not the essential qualification, under the B. N. A. Act, of residents.

Premier Defends.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that the appointment in no wise reflected upon the Government. Nor did it reflect upon the newly appointed Senators. The objection, then, went to the technical qualification as to birth, wealth, etc., as for example, did the Senator live in the province? If he did not, then his seat was vacant. It was claimed that Mr. Costigan had owned property and voted in Ottawa. The Premier desired to say that Mr. Costigan had disposed of all his property in Ottawa. Mr. Gilmour, it is true, owned property in Montreal, but he also owned property in New Brunswick.

Dr. Stockton (Conservative, New Brunswick) said that neither Mr. Costigan nor Mr. Gilmour resided in New Brunswick: It was no defence for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to say that the Senate could expel these two Senators.

Mr. Emmerson insisted that Mr. Costigan had property in New Brunswick. He further said that he was certain that Mr. Gilmour owned property in New Brunswick, because Mr. Gilmour told him so.

A Sudden Oscillation.

Earthquake Rocked Kingston City Up and Down.

United States Marines Are Patrolling the Ruined Streets of Jamaica's Capital City—Calamity Occurred Without Warning, Then Came Conflagration --Pitiful Scenes--600 Bodies Already Recovered--Death List Estimated At 1,000.

Kingston, Jan. 19.—The streets of this city are now picketed with American guards. Admiral Evans, at the request of the British authorities, landed a number of marines from the battleships Missouri and Indiana.

Six hundred bodies have been recovered, and more are being constantly found.

Dynamite is being employed to clear away the debris of shattered buildings.

The whole town is in ruins and the greater portion is still smouldering ashes. The smell of burnt flesh pervades the air.

The earthquake came as a sudden oscillation, not from any particular direction, but up and down.

Thousands of persons were on the streets of Kingston at the time and great numbers of them were crushed.

Without a warning the earth began to shake and tremble at 3.30 Monday afternoon. The shocks, which came from the westward, lasted exactly 36 seconds. The whole city rocked like a ship in a choppy sea and buildings reeled and fell.

Fire Soon Spread.

As the dust from their fall lifted pillars of smoke arose in Harbor street near the Parish Church, and shortly afterward flames shot into the sky. It was then perceived that fire would complete the work of the earthquake.

It was a pitiable sight. Thousands of persons were homeless and hundreds were enduring agony from broken heads and limbs under the open sky.

The city doctors were busy all night amputating limbs and dressing wounds. The worst cases were taken to the public hospital, where the staff doctors attended to them, but many expired before morning.

Nearly 50 Shocks Since.

On Monday night fifteen distinct shocks were felt, but they did no damage, on Tuesday there were twenty shocks, and on Wednesday there were ten.

The loss cannot fall short of £5,000,000 and probably will total double that amount.

The whole of Jamaica felt the shock, but no serious damage was done beyond a radius of 12 miles from Kingston. Some houses were cracked at Spanish Town, the fortifications at Port Royal were abandoned by the artillerymen and engineers, the western part of the town is partly submerged, 16 9.2-inch guns are displaced and the barracks are in a dangerous condition.

The King's House, the residence of the Governor, is badly injured, and its former occupants are now living under tents in Trafalgar Park. The residence of General Marshall is totally demolished.

The death list is constantly growing.

Dead Number 1,000.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The American State Department yesterday was furnished with copies of cabled reports the Western Union Co. has received from its agent in Havana in regard to the earthquake. In one of these it is stated that the latest information from Kingston was that no American was killed or seriously injured up to 7 p.m. on Jan. 17. The report further says that it was estimated that the number of dead would reach 1,000, mostly negroes.

CANADA GIVES $50,000.

At Once Prepares to Forward Supplies to Stricken Jamaica—Ontario, Too, May Extend Aid.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—At the opening of the House yesterday afternoon, Mr. Fielding said: "A question was asked yesterday with regard to the disaster in Jamaica. Owing to the breaking of the cable it has been found very difficult to get any official information. There seems to be no reason, however, to doubt that the disaster is a very great one; that there has been a large loss of life, a very great destruction of property, and, consequently, very much distress.

"We think that, without waiting further for official information, it will be the wish of the Parliament of Canada to take immediate steps to express in a tangible way the sympathy of the Canadian people with their brethren in the West Indies by the making of a substantial grant.

"As to what the amount should be, we are not prepared at this moment to say more than this, that we will take the usual steps for asking the assent of Parliament for a grant of $50,000 as a first step, with the understanding that, if further information show that the disaster is of such a character as to make the needs greater, we shall ask Parliament to supplement it with another grant of $50,000, making $100,000, if necessary.

A Relief Steamer.

"Information has reached us that a steamer is about to said from Halifax to Jamaica, and the proprietors of the line (Pickford & Black) have offered to convey free of transportation charges any provisions which the Canadian Government or people may wish to send. Instructions are being sent to the collector of customs at Halifax, who is a gentleman familiar with West Indian conditions, to make enquiries from well-informed people as to what it may be desirable to send, and to purchase at once whatever provisions are available, and, in the opinion of those whom he may consult, are suitable for the needs of the people of Jamaica. An endeavor will be made to have these, together with a supply of tents from the Militia Department shipped from Halifax for Jamaica to-morrow."

Opposition Congratulates.

R. L. Borden said: "I am sure that there will be no dissenting voice in the House in the proposal of the Government. It seems that the disaster has been even more appalling than we were inclined to think a day or two ago, and that the action which the Government and Parliament will take will, I am sure, commend itself to the people of Canada. It might not be out of place also to express the appreciation which, I am sure, all of us feel at the prompt and generous action which has already been taken by the President and Congress of the United States in relation to the disaster."

His Excellency has cabled to Governor Swettenham of Jamaica for particulars regarding the losses, and to ascertain the most acceptable form of relief that this country can send.

Ontario May Help.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Premier Whitney stated yesterday that in all probability the House would be asked to vote something to relieve the distress in Jamaica.

"But of course," he added, "this will depend entirely on the information we receive on the situation there."

Relief For Jamaica.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Jan. 19.—The legislative council has voted £1,500 as the first instalment from the people of Trinidad for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in Jamaica.

H.M.S. Indefatigable has sailed for Jamaica with provision, clothing and other supplies.

Senate Passes Relief Bill.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The Senate yesterday passed the Jamaican relief bill on its receipt from the House without discussion.

MORE EARTH SHOCKS.

Inhabitants of Udine, Italy, Flee From Homes In Fright.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 19.—Two violent earthshocks were experienced at Kuba, Government of Baku, at five o'clock yesterday morning.

Kuba (also spelled Kooba and Kouba) is a fortified town in the Province of Baku, situated on the south side of the River Kuba, 55 miles south-southeast of Derbund. It has a population of over 16,000 persons.

Flee From Homes.

Udine, Italy, Jan. 19.—A severe undulatory earthshock was felt at Tolmezzo, 29 miles from here, at 4.20 yesterday morning. The inhabitants were panic-stricken and fled from their houses into the street,. but there was no loss of life.

Peru Shocked.

Callao, Peru, Jan. 19.—The seismograph here has recorded an earthquake movement, apparently to the south of the city.

CHINESE TURN CANNIBALS.

Famine Districts Reports That Parents Are Eating Their Children.

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 19.—Reports from Shanghai tell of increasing horrors of the great famine in Central China.

A correspondent of The Echo De Chine says that in two districts, Sinchow and Paichow, starving people are eating their children.

Plants and grass, which have furnished food for many, have disappeared, and there are not even roots to eat.

The famine stricken people are being driven back to the cities in the famine district, the officials refusng to allow refugees to take the roads.

The correspondent says that cases of cannibalism are many.

He investigated a number, and many of them absolutely are correct.

In the absence of ordinary food he found human flesh actually being sold.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The action of the Board of Trade re the local post office, is commended by the very large majority of our citizens. As one gentleman expressed it: "Surely the better class of Liberals can drop politics in this matter and use their influence for the common good. This is not a political matter. It is a matter which affects the interests of all our citizens. If proper representations were made to the Government, surely they would take steps to put Belleville in a better class, and thus give us a better service."

McRAE — McCULLOUGH.

On Wednesday, Jan. 16th, at St. John's church, Selby, Ont., the marriage took place at high noon, of Miss Margaret Ella, eldest daughter of Mr. John McCullough, Tyendinaga, to Mr. William McRae, of Lonsdale, the Rev. T. F. Dowdell performing the ceremony. The bride was gowned in her travelling dress of dark green broadcloth with white satin blouse trimmed with white and gold insertion. Her hat was white and velvet trimmed with dark green velvet band and white plume. Miss Sarah McRae and Mr. John McRae acted as bridesmaid and groomsman. The bride was given away by her father. After the ceremony the happy couple left immediately for Toronto, Guelph and other points west, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

Protection & the Farmers

"We can," says one of the leading papers of the Laurier party, in a condemnation of the policy of protection, "obtain no record of the number "of farms that have been abandoned "or left untilled owing to the burden "of the tariff, while there are full "records of the industries brought "into existence." Where are the farms left untilled or which have been abandoned? asks the Montreal Gazette. Take the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, for example. We know that it is in these two provinces that the greater portion of the industrial growth promoted by the policy of protection has taken place. We know that the many industrial centres of these two provinces have drawn heavily upon the surrounding country. We also know that there has been a great exodus from them (Ontario in particular) of agriculturists to the Canadian Northwest. Yet what do the census figures show? That, despite this drain, in 1901 there were in these two provinces 249,432 farms of 50 acres or more, as compared with 223,420 in 1881, an increase of 26,012. Measured by population, in 1881 there was one farm of 50 acres or more for every 14.76 persons, as compared with one for every 15.36 in 1901. This is a slight decrease, but if the urban population of the two large cities, Montreal and Toronto, be deducted, it will be seen that where in 1881 there was a farm of 50 acres or more for every 13.58 people, in 1901 there was a similar farm for every 13.45 people. These figures show conclusively that there are more farms of 50 acres or more per thousand of the rural population than there were in 1881. With this the case, is it likely that there are more abandoned or untilled farms than there were previous to 1878? As for the other available evidence, it all goes to show that the present-day farmer knows a prosperity of which the farmers of the days prior to protection knew but little. It is reflected in many ways. It will be found in the prices paid the farmer for his produce, in the trade returns, in the bank returns, in the returns of loan societies, etc. In this province sheriffs' sales of farm property have become so few in number that the sheriffs are hardly able to make a living. It is not asserted that this prosperity is all the result of protection. To a considerable extent it comes from improved methods and developed markets. But the greater part of the farmer's produce is consumed at home. According to the census of 1901, the value of Canada's agricultural products in that year was $363,126,384, and of this only $80,276,797 was exported, leaving a balance of $282,849,587, or 77 per cent., consumed at home, Protection contributed materially to the existence of this great home market, and it is in this that the Canadian farmer has found more than ample compensation for any increase in the prices he pays for what he buys over and above what he would pay under a tariff for revenue only. Nobody knows this better than the Canadian farmer. It explains why he votes for protection.

Mark Twain's "Duel."

Mark Twain, in continuing his autobiography in the North American Review, for December, tells how he "fought" a duel. He writes:

"The boys were jubilant beyond expression. They helped me make my will, which was another discomfort—and I already had enough. Then they took me home. I didn't sleep any—didn't want to sleep. I had plenty of things to think about, and less than four hours to do it in — because five o'clock was the hour appointed for the tragedy, and I should have to use up one hour—beginning at four—in practising with the revolver and finding out which end of it to level at the adversary. At four we went down into a little gorge, about a mile from town, and borrowed a barn door for a mark—borrowed it of a man who was over in California on a visit—and we set the barn door up and stood a fence-rail up against the middle of it, to represent Mr. Laird. But the rail was no proper representative of him, for he was longer than a rail and thinner. Nothing would ever fetch him but a line shot, and then as like as not he would split the bullet—the worst material for duelling purposes that could be imagined. I began on the rail. I couldn't hit the rail; then I tried the barn door; but I couldn't hit the barn door. There was nobody in danger except stragglers around on the flanks of that mark. I was thoroughly discouraged, and I didn't cheer up any when we presently heard pistol shots over in the next little ravine. I knew what that was—that was Laird's gang out practising him. They would hear my shots, and of course they would come up over the ridge to see what kind of a record I was making—see what their chances were against me. Well, I hadn't any record; and I knew that if Laird came over that ridge and saw my barn door without a scratch on it, he would be as anxious to fight as I was—or as I had been at midnight, before that disastrous acceptance came.

"Now just at this moment, a little bird, no bigger than a sparrow, flew along by and lit on a sage-bush about thirty years away. Steve whipped out his revolver and shot its head off. Oh, he was a marksman — much better than I was. We ran down there to pick up the bird, and just then, sure enough, Mr. Laird and his people came over the ridge, and they joined us. And when Laird's second saw that bird, with its head shot off, he lost color, he faded, and you could see that he was interested. He said:

"Who did that?"

Before I could answer, Steve spoke up and said quite calmly, and in a matter-of-fact way:

"Clemens did it."

The second said, "Why, that is wonderful. How far off was that bird?"

Steve said, "Oh, not far — about thirty yards."

The second said, "Well, that is astonishing shooting. How often can he do that?"

Steve said languidly, "Oh, about four times out of five."

I knew the little rascal was lying, but I didn't say anything. The second said, "Why, that is amazing shooting; I supposed he couldn't hit a church."

He was supposing very sagaciously, but I didn't say anything. Well, they said good morning. The second took Mr. Laird home, a little tottery on his legs, and Laird sent back a note in his own hand declining to fight a duel with me on any terms whatever.

Salvation Army Work.

2500 NEW SETTLERS FOR CANADA UNDER ITS AUSPICES.

As a successful immigration agency the Salvation Army has come into great prominence, and during the past four years about twenty thousand people have been directed to this country through the agency of this world-wide organization. Sixty per cent. of these have been placed in Ontario. 30 per cent. in the Northwest, and the remainder in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces.

Thirteen thousand persons came to Canada under the auspices of the Army last year, and were selected from a possible one hundred thousand applicants. These figures convince us of the fact that great discretion is used in the selection. During the coming season, 1907, it is estimated that fully 25,000 persons will avail themselves of the Army's Emigration facilities, and book passages to Canada. The entire accommodation of three steamers has been chartered for the season, besides all available accommodation on Dominion, Allan and C. P. R. steamship lines.

The majority of the new-comers will be available for engagement as farm laborers, teamsters, navvies, quarrymen, railway construction workers, factory and general laborers, and farmers and others desiring the services of same will do well to apply to Brigadier Howell, James and Albert Sts., Toronto, for application forms.

If house accommodation can be furnished, married men with growing families are specially recommended as being more permanent and stable. Farmers are recommended to apply for married men when possible.

Breaking your mirror does not remove the spots on your face.

HAPPY RESULTS OBTAINED.

By the Use of the New Scalp Antiseptic.

It wouldn't take long to number the hairs in the heads of some people, the reason being they haven't many to number. In most instances, however, the fault is their own. A germ at the root soon plays havoc with the most luxuriant growth and causes it to fade and fall out. A remedy for this has recently been discovered, called Newbro's Herpicide, that acts by destroying the germ that does the damage, besides removing all impurities from the scalp. In addition it permits new life and vigor to enter the scalp, and happy results are sure to be obtained from its use. Try it. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

A wonderful temperance work has for some months past been carried on in the city and diocese of Montreal, under the patronage of Monseigneur the Archbishop Bruchesi. Eight Franciscan Fathers have been holding meetings in different parts of the diocese at which some thousands have taken the pledge. The priests in many places have fallen into line, assisting the "Fathers" in their work.

Similar efforts have been made in other parts of the province, notably in Quebec, under Monseigneur Begin. The attention of school commissioners has been called to the subject, asking for the use of books on the nature and effects of alcohol.

Young people are forming "French-Canadian Associations" in different parts of the province under the patronage of the Archbishop, asking for the reduction of licenses, for the removal of screens from bar-rooms, etc. May the work continue to prosper.

Promising Canadian Doctor Joins Majority

Great and general sorrow was felt by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, says the Napanee Beaver, when it was learned that on Saturday, Jan. 12, 1907, Dr. Charles Melville Wagar had passed from this life at the Hahneman Hospital, Rochester, N.Y. Deceased was the fourth son of Mr. J. D. and Mrs. Wagar, of Enterprise. He was born Jan. 16, 1882. After some years in the home school he attended the Collegiate at Napanee; then for some time the Royal Military College, Kingston. After matriculation he pursued the Science Course at Queen's University for a year, and then took the full Medical course, graduating in 1905. Desirous of excelling in his chosen profession, he accepted a position as House Surgeon in Hahneman Hospital, Rochester, where his services were highly appreciated. It may truly be said he left in the hospital a fragrant memory of kindness, gentleness and Christian virtue, which will be cherished by many in that institution. Clever, ambitious, with high ideals, he aimed at making life a marked success; but Death loves a shining mark, and marked him for his prey. Some two weeks ago he was taken with la grippe, from which he partially recovered. Then a relapse developed menengitis, which speedily sapped his reduced strength. His parents were summoned, then his three brothers to his bedside. At brief intervals he recognized them, but after five days battling with that dread disease, he passed away from suffering here to rest over there.

SHOT COW MOOSE, WAS FINED $20.

CAMPBELLFORD HUNTERS FINED —MAN WHO BOUGHT THE HIDE ALSO TAXED.

Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, fish and game inspector, says the Peterboro Review, had to go to Campbellford this week, where those in charge of the fish and game laws had laid information against a party of Campbellford people, who, on November the first last, shot a cow moose in Beaver Creek in Hastings county. It is against the law at any time of the year to shoot a cow moose, and the game law protectors in Campbellford have been working on this case for some time and yesterday drew the matter to a close. Mr. Fitzgerald had considerable evidence against the parties and they were quite willing to not take any proceedings in their defence. They had to pay a fine of $20 and an hotelkeeper in Campbellford who bought the hide, was equally as guilty and had to pay a fine of $20.

Daily Fading Away

THE STORY OF A WOMAN MADE WELL BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Bad blood means bad health. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mean good health. They actually make new, rich blood which strengthens every nerve and every organ in the body. That is why people who use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills feel bright, active and strong. Mrs. Arthur Hannigan, Marshville, Ont., is a witness to the truth of these statements. Mrs. Hannigan says:—"For nearly three years I suffered from anaemia (bloodlessness) and during that time consulted and took medicine from several doctors, without beneficial results. My complexion was of a waxy appearance, my lips and gums seemed bloodless. I suffered from headaches, dizziness and palpitation of the heart. My appetite was so poor that I did not care whether I ate or not and I grew so weak, and was so much reduced in flesh that my friends thought I was in consumption. As I have said I doctored without benefit, until the last doctor whom I consulted advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I followed his advice, and less than a dozen boxes have made me the well woman I am to-day. All the symptoms of my trouble have vanished and I enjoy the very best of health. I know there are hundreds of women who are drifting into the same condition I was, and to all such I would strongly urge the immediate use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act upon the bowels; they do not tinker with mere symptoms; they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why they cure common ailments like rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney trouble, headaches and backaches, St. Vitus' dance, and the special ailments that afflict so many women and growing girls. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Foxboro Presbyterians Burn Their Mortgage

An historic event of unique interest drew a large and enthusiastic gathering to the Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, on Thursday night, when the mortgage on the property was burned. It is only three years since Foxboro's beautiful little edifice was erected, yet in that short time the entire cost, $4,600, has been paid. Much credit is due to Mr. P. C. VanAllen for the energetic way in which he has handled the finances of the church. Reports were read from the different organizations of the church, which indicate steady and encouraging progress. Rev. David Smith was in the chair and expressed great satisfaction at the way in which the congregation had worked and sacrificed for their church. A musical programme was rendered during the evening. Refreshments served in the school room by the ladies brought a very happy evening to a close.

THE CANADIENS-FRANCAIS.

(W. M. MacKeracher in Montreal Witness.)

This is the race that crossed the main
Many and many a year ago,
France's glory and heaven's gain
Luring them into the sunset glow;
Kith of the sailor of St. Malo,
Kin of the noble the Bearnais
Missed from his place at Fontainebleau;
These are the Canadiens-Francais.

This is the race of the great Champlain,
Joseph le Caron and Jean Dolbeau,
Louis Hebert, with his bins of grain,
Paul de Chomedy, zeal-aglow,
Jogues, whom the Iroquois axe laid low,
Daniel Brebeuf, Lalemant, Garnier,
Giving their blood for their faith to flow;
These are the Canadiens-Francais.

This is the race of the Count who'd deign,
Speak but with guns to his country's foe;
Him who extended the king's domain
Down to the borders of Mexico;
Stout de Salaberry, Papineau,
Dorion, Lafontaine, Laurier,
Heart-stirring names that we all should know;
These are the Canadiens-Francais.

These are the countrymen of Chauveau,
Octave Cremazie, Sulte, le May,
Louis Frechette and the two Garneaus;
These are the Canadiens-Francais.

Notes. — "The Noble the Bearnais missed from his palace at Fontainbleau" was the Sier de Monts. "The Bearnais" was Henry IV. Louis Hebert was the first Canadian farmer. "The Count" was Frontenac. The man "who extended the king's domain down to the borders of Mexico" was La Salle. Le Caron, Dolbeau, Jogues, Daniel, Brebeuf, Lalemant, Garnier, were devoted missionaries. Those mentioned in the last stanza are literary celebrities.

The newspapers of Japan tell with pride of the athletic activities of its women, which they say is parallel with the general progress of the country. It is estimated that the timber cut for the current season will largely exceed that of last year, and an itemized estimate, which follows, is said to be well within the mark. The figures include the limits being cut in various parts of the Province of Ontario. The figures are: 1,000,000,000 feet of pine board measure; 70,000,000 hemlock; 100,000 cords pulp wood; 4,500,000 railway ties.

The Philadelphia Record says: It is now quite a fad for those who can afford it to club together for the purchase and inclosure of tracts of abandoned land, from which the timber has been cut away, with the view to establishing game preserves where the owners may catch trout or hunt for deer or other game in season or otherwise disport themselves for pleasure or profit. Such ownership of waste lands may well be encouraged, because it leads to co-operation in the prevention of ravage by fire, the promotion of reforestation and the insurance of a more constant water supply in running streams.

PATERSON'S COUGH DROPS

Take one when you feel the cold coming on,—take one when that cough troubles,—they give throat comfort and they CURE. Recommended by the medical profession. Ask for the three-cornered kind in the red and yellow box.

THEY WILL CURE

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

FEW PEOPLE KNOW HOW USEFUL IT IS IN PRESERVING HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics, in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

NEW NORMAL SCHOOLS.

Fred Whitham of Brantford to Erect Four at Cost of $212,000.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—At a total cost of $212,000, the contracts for the four new normal schools have been awarded to Fred Whitham, Brantford. The amounts are $54,200, for North Bay; $53,800, for Peterboro; $52,050, for Stratford, and, $52,050 for Hamilton.

Mr. Whitham was the contractor for the new G. T. R. station at Brantford, and several buildings lately erected at Guelph Ontario Agricultural College.

The tenders accepted were the lowest received in reply to the advertisement. The amount is slightly in excess of the original appropriation of $50,000 each, but so inconsiderable that it was decided to go on with the work.

F. R. Heakes, provincial architect, prepared the plans. The buildings are uniform in size, with 78 feet frontage by 110 in depth. There are four floors, including the basement.

Root's Visit to Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—Secretary Root will arrive from Montreal on the Governor-General's private car at 12.40 p. m. to-day. He will visit the Houses of Parliament on Tuesday afternoon immediately after luncheon and his address at the Canadian Club.

Montreal, Jan. 19.—Capt. Newton, A. D. C. to His Excellency, was at the station with Lord Strathcona when Secretary Root arrived, and the party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Root and daughter, were driven to the High Commissioner's residence. They will proceed to Ottawa to-day, and will remain in the capital three or four days.

More Money For Province.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—The Succession Duties Department has closed matters connected with the estate of the late J. McCausland of Toronto, and as a result the Provincial Treasury will be richer to the extent of $2,160. The negotiations date back to the time when the act exempted from dues estates under $100,000. The executors of the McCausland estate put in its value at $77,000. Arbitration followed, and the gross value of the estate was finally fixed at $113,000, which enables the collection of duties at 2 1-2 per cent. on a net value of $86,000.

Way For Religious Peace.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The text of the French episcopate's address to the Pope, made public yesterday, contains a protest against the "violations of the most sacred rights of the church," and declares that "religious peace can only be restored by respect for the hierarchy, the inviolability of property and full religious liberty."

To Investigate Senator Bailey.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 19.—By a vote of 65 to 55, the House of Representatives of the Texas Legislature last evening adopted the Kennedy substitute to the Duncan resolution looking to an investigation of United States Senator J. W. Bailey and his connection and associations with the Waters-Pierce Oil Co.

EXPLOSION KILLS THREE.

Blasting Powder Ignited Prematurely at G. T. P. Camp.

Kenora, Jan. 19.—By the premature explosion of 150 pounds of blasting powder, three men were killed instantly and three more seriously injured at Dutton & MacArthur's Camp No. 1 on the G. T. P. work, about 20 miles from here.

Foreman Alexander McGillivray, who was handling the explosives, was killed. He was an old hand and a thoroughly experienced foreman, and had worked in the same capacity for almost a year, under Foley Bros., Larson & Co., before going over to the G. T. P. John Hough, who was seriously hurt, lives in Ridout.

Little Coal In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 19.—Owing to failure on the part of the railways to haul sufficient coal from Fort William to allow Winnipeg dealers to keep a stock on hand, the coal supply of Winnipeg is at present in a precariously low condition. To quote the words of one prominent dealer: "There is not at present a three-days' supply of coal in Winnipeg." The wood situation is also said to be alarming. The railway situation applies to wood as well as coal.

Big Blaze In Halifax.

Halifax, Jan. 19.—Fire on Barrington street early yesterday morning caused a loss of $30,000 in buildings and stocks. It was first noticed in Crump and Perrier's, plumbers and gasfitters, and spread south to four other wooden structures which it consumed with their contents.

No man finds salvation until he finds himself.

There are 265,000 people in Canada today, who really KNOW "Fruit-a-tives" to be a splendid remedy.

Four years ago, "Fruit-a-tives" were an unsolved problem in the brain of one of Canada's leading physicians.

Today, over a quarter of a million of Canadians know them for what they are—a positive cure for Stomach, Liver, Kidney, Bowel and Skin Troubles.

"Fruit-a-tives" have cured stubborn cases of Constipation—Chronic Rheumatism—Skin Eruption—that defied ordinary remedies. The cures of Biliousnesss, Indigestion, Headaches, Pain in the Back, Nervousness and Irregularity of the Bowels—are numbered by the thousands. "Fruit-a-tives" move the bowels just as fruit moves them and leaves them healthy.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices and tonics in tablet form—with the increased medicinal action made possible by the chemical change which takes place when the juices are combined.

Only 50c. a box—6 boxes for $2.50. At all druggists—or sent on receipt of price. 104

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head; back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all woman's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

To-morrow's International Sunday School Lesson.

MAN'S SIN AND GOD'S PROMISE—GOLDEN TEXT IS: "AS IN ADAM ALL DIE, EVEN SO IN CHRIST SHALL ALL BE MADE ALIVE."

Man was placed in the most favorable circumstances for his development and growth; in a beautiful garden, with all the influences of noble nature around him; in natural communion with God, with plenty of work in taking care of his home farm, in gaining and exercising dominion over it, with a perfect family life—all of which were educational forces, so that Eden was the great school of man.

"Man was, therefore, naturally mortal, though apparently with a capacity for immortality. . . . The mystical nature of the tree of life is fully recognized in the New Testament, by our Lord, when he says, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the mist of the Paradise of God. . . . Both these representations are intended to convey, in a striking and pictorial form, the promise of life everlasting."

Thus there was from the very first a culture of the immortal nature of man, of his religious life, and of his relationship with God.

The Tree of Knowledge, of Good and Evil was not "the tree of knowledge," but only of the knowledge of good and evil. It was not to prevent them from knowing good and evil. Its purpose was to teach them that knowledge in the divine way through knowing the good by possessing it, and evil only by contrast. Not "knowledge of good brought dear by knowing ill."

It was not there to make them fall into sin, but to train them in virtue by resisting temptation. It was necessary that there should be something forbidden that seemed desirable. There was no other way of opening the door to man's highest possibilities, his fullest development, his purest holiness, his greatest happiness, his largest usefulness. All who would become strong and useful must gain their power largely through victory over temptation. It is thus that the soul "builds itself larger mansions." It is a chief factor in education. Men cultivate courage through things that test courage. They grow in faith through the things that try their faith. They learn business by taking the risks of business. People without trials and temptations are always failures.

Whether this was a real or a symbolic tree is of little account, though it is impossible to conceive of a more simple and natural test of obedience than such a forbidden tree, when we remember that Adam was but a child in development. It is like the forbidden objects by which we train children. There may have been something in its fruit which would have been injurious. "The prohibition of this tree was to cultivate moral growth, for a man grows morally only when he is in the presence of a forbidden thing and restrains himself. There being a prohibition, he knows that there is a distinction between good and evil. He may choose either. This tree made him conscious of good and evil. The prohibition was a constant education of the law. The tree was named not for its fruit, but for the prohibition."

Here is the announcement of a great principle, that human life is a restricted life, a life subjected to law; and he who confesses this subjection remains in Eden: and he who denies it is banished. As God made the ocean to roll between shores and said to it, 'Thus far and no farther,' so he placed the created soul between banks, and said, 'here only may thy bright waters flow.' The banks are not narrow. Human life need not be called a river, for it is vast as the ocean, deep and strong and sublime, but it has a shore all around, and along that shore the cherubim stand, and flaming swords gleam, to banish those who cross the boundary, marked all around by the finger of the Almighty."

The forbidden tree stands in every paradise of virtue and enjoyment. God has made a boundless provision for natural appetites, but there is always a limit, in going beyond which paradise is lost. The desire of progress, of acquiring property, of enjoying earth's blessings, is right, but the forbidden tree of gaining them by injuring others, by falsehood or fraud or selfishness, stands near. God wants us to enjoy, but in the heavenly way; and to gain any enjoyment of any kind of wrong is to eat of the forbidden tree and lose paradise.

5. Work, the pleasant labor of caring for the garden was an essential part of the training of man. Nearly all the powers of civilization have come from the necessity of labor, not the grinding toil which ruins the body and dulls the soul, but that kind of labor which is allied to play, a joy and delight, as to-day brings the highest joy and delight.

Now the serpent was more subtle. Crafty, cunning, wise in gaining its ends, insidious. Therefore the best tool of any power that would use it for its crafty ends. That a real serpent is meant is evident from the curse laid upon it.

This speaking serpent is either (1) a tool used by "that old serpent called the Devil and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world (Rev. 12; 9), because it was the most fitting instrument for his purpose. This is plain from the fact that the New Testament continually implies it. "The temptation of Jesus makes it quite certain that the serpent and Satan are in some way identical. John 8:44; 2 Cor. 11:3 (compare 14); Rom. 16:20; Rev. 12:9; 20:2."

The Temptation. The First Great Moral Battle.—Vs. 1-5. Said unto the woman. Because through the perfection of her nature she could be most easily attacked.

Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? A very insinuating question. God is very good, but has he not laid some useless and trying restrictions upon you? Surely, there must be a mistake. If he loved you, could he shut you away from the delicious fruit on yonder tree? Are you to live in paradise and not be able to enjoy it?

2. Eve replies that, We may eat of all, except one, laying emphasis on the liberality of God's gifts, and on the danger of disobeying. But, at the same time, she left out three emphatic expressions in her quotation of God's permission, every tree, freely, and surely die, which shows that the temptation was beginning to take effect. Whoever parleys with temptation is already on the verge of danger.

4. And the serpent said . . . . Ye shall not surely die. This was the most deadly of lies, for it was a half-truth, by far the smallest half. There was no bodily poison in the tree, the death did not come at once like a lightning stroke, and the most deadly death was that of the spirit, not of the body. Satan is never so devilish as when he is disguised as an angel of light. This is the first recorded lie.

5. The first assertion was that God was not truthful; next, the serpent adds that God is selfish and envious. This false picture of God's character made the temptation to disobedience the stronger. God does know that . . . . then your eyes shall be opened, as indeed they were, but not in the sense that Eve imagined.

Ye shall be as gods. Better as in R.V., "as God," Elohim. He meant her to understand that she would be like the glorious Being, her Creator, and the radiant seraphs who talked with her in paradise.

"Temptation comes like a serpent; like the most subtle beast of the field; like that one creature which is said to exert a fascinating influence on its victims, fastening them with its glittering eye, stealing upon them by its noiseless, low and unseen approach."

The evil in man coming by influences from without—a power of evil suggestion other than man's own thoughts—leaves more hope for him than if he alone were the originator of all. His nature is not so hardened nor his heart so black. The very existence of Satan gives more assurance of man's possible redemption.

Men who have experienced evil and live in it, "will some of them, be very clever and ingenious persons, and will owe much of their wit to their lack of innocence. As against the innocent—the dwellers, as it were, in Eden, these knowing sinners can always assert that there is something more advanced — more Godlike, as the serpent said, in their wisdom than in the ignorance of those who cannot conceive of sin . . . . which often makes evil so keenly attractive in the eyes of the young and curious. It was just in this half-truth that the wisdom of the original serpent consisted."

V. The Fall, the Battle Lost.—Vs. 6, 7, 8. 6. And when the woman saw. With the eye of her soul as well as of body, found a new charm she had not realized before, as a tree in the setting sun. There follows the cumulative force of the temptation—through bodily pleasure, mental delight, intellectual hunger for wisdom. Her faith in God, unseen and almost unknown, was weakened, and the chief barrier to sin was weakened. "The confluence of all these streams made such a current as swept the feeble will clean away; and blind, dazed, deafened by the rush of the stream, Eve was carried over the falls as a man might be over Niagara." She . . . did eat. Deliberately chose to disobey God. Gave also unto her husband with her. Either he was with her during the temptation, or as Mitchell "when she found him, or he her, she gave him his share of the fruit." And he did eat. According to Paul, Adam was not deceived (1 Tim. 2; 14.) He disobeyed God with open eyes. He had one more motive to sin than Eve had, his love for her. So often still the wine cup held in the hand of charming woman has made man yield, when the fascinations of the cup alone would have failed. The temptation, according to Dillman, was the more easily yielded to because Eve, "by first tasting, has already seemingly made proof of his harmlessness."

7. And the eyes of them both were opened. The knowledge of good and evil which the serpent promised had come to them, but it was not the kind of knowledge they had expected. It came to them as the sight of the horrible features of the veiled prophet of Khorassan to his votress Zelica, when he took away the shining silver veil.

13. The serpent beguiled me. Eve sought to minimize her guilt by reference to the serpent, but she told the exact truth.

14. Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above (or among) all cattle. The other animals were not cursed. Upon thy belly shalt thou go. Degraded, repulsive, insidious, deadly; a type and illustration to man of the condemnation of Satan, who is base, mean, crawling, insidious, instead of the winged angel he was made to be. The most effective way of teaching early man was by symbols.

"The truth is, that as the rainbow became a glorious token after the flood, though it had always existed, so after the fall the serpent's form and attitude became a badge of shame and repulsiveness, and thorns and thistles, though they had been created long before, became the symbol of man's curse, and the cause and sign of his weariness and toil."

15 I will put enmity . . . between thy seed and her seed. "The peculiar and inveterate dislike of the human race to everything of the serpent kind, which is apparently fully reciprocated, has often been remarked." This was a perpetual symbolic representation of the conflict between the Satanic being who made use of the serpent and the children of men, a warfare not yet ended, but raging as intensely as ever. It (the woman's seed) shall bruise thy head, etc. An illusion to the serpent's habit of hiding itself in a path and attacking the feet of the passer-by, who then stamps him to death.

Life Marks Are Indelible.

We are not writing in the sand. The tide does not wash it out. We are not painting our pictures on the canvas and with a brush so that we can erase the error of yesterday or overlap it with another color today. We are writing our lives with a chisel on the marble, and every time we strike a blow we leave a mark that is indelible.—Lyman Abbott, D. D.

High Priced Copy.

During the siege of Kimberley the editor of the only daily paper there was often hard put to find enough news. One day, in a clubroom he found Cecil Rhodes reading a fairly new paper from Cape Town. He borrowed it and rushed to his own office, where it soon reappeared as a special edition, selling like hot cakes. That same evening he met Rhodes, who inquired, "Where's my Cape Town paper?" "Oh, I cut it up for the printers," was the reply. "Please don't do that again," said Rhodes mildly. "That paper came through my native runners and cost me $1,000."

The Long Lived Orchid Flower.

Even when orchid flowers are fully developed they may remain uncut upon the plants for two or three weeks without apparent deterioration. This gives them a manifest advantage over most flowers that have to be cut immediately upon or even in advance of reaching full maturity.—Country Life in America.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

If you have a baby or young children in the home always keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets on hand. Don't wait until the little one is sick, for sometimes an hour's delay may prove fatal. This medicine cures stomach troubles, constipation diarrhoea, simple fevers and makes teething painless. If children are sick Baby's Own Tablets make them well; and better still an occasional dose will keep them well. The Tablets are good for children of all ages and are guaranteed to contain no opiate or harmful drug. Mrs. Joseph Ross, Hawthorne, Ont., says:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and find them just the thing to keep children well." These Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or you can get them by mail at 25c a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COD LIVER OIL and IRON

Add PHOSPHORUS and you have FERROL

For many years it has been recognized by physicians everywhere that Cod Liver Oil and Iron should be given in combination if possible, as where one is required the other is in all probability needed, too, each enhancing the value of the other.

Strange to say, although many attempts have been made, no one ever succeeded in combining the oil and iron until, quite recently, a Canadian physician, after some years of study and experiment, managed to solve the problem. He then added just a little phosphorus; the result is which contains in an elegant, palatable and easily digested emulsion Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus, the exact constituents necessary to Increase the Weight, Enrich the Blood and Build up the System.

No argument is needed to prove the value of such a preparation in the treatment of Bronchitis and Pulmonary Diseases, Scrofula, Rickets, Anæmia and wasting diseases of any kind.

For Croup, Whooping Cough and Chronic Coughs and Colds Ferrol is an absolute specific.

FERROL is not a patent mystery. The formula is freely published. It is prescribed by the best Physicians. It is endorsed by the most eminent Medical Journals. It is used in prominent Hospitals, Sanitariums, etc.

Burden's Failure

By CLAY MARSDEN

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

"Come right in," said the girl at the head of the stairs. "I have been expecting you for an hour."

"It is pleasant to be expected," laughed Burden.

"That will do," said the girl sharply. "No impertinence or I shall report you to the janitress."

Burden could not quite see what the janitress had to do with the matter, but he lifted the soft slouch hat that was a part of his fishing toggery and started to pass on up the stairs to his apartment.

"Come in here," called the girl imperiously. "You don't suppose that I came downstairs to meet you, do you?"

She led the way through an open door, affording a vista of chaos, to the parlor of the apartment. "Those pictures had better be hung first," she commanded. "I will tell you where."

Burden gasped. For the first time he realized what was expected of him. She had mistaken him for a day worker for whom she had probably sent to aid her in straightening out her new home. The fact that he was in an old suit and had rung the nearest bell in the lobby because he had forgotten his keys accounted for the error. It had been her bell he had rung. She was expecting a man to help, and she had supposed that he was the one. She had not been flirting after all. Somehow Burden was rather glad of it.

There would not be very much doing in the street that afternoon, so he slipped off his coat and went to work.

It was evident that the little woman intended to get the full worth of her money out of him, for she kept him busy, and under her skillful direction the flat soon assumed an appearance of orderliness he had not supposed possible in so short a time.

She explained that her mother would arrive the next morning and that she was anxious to have things all in readiness for her. On that plea she kept him working until 9 o'clock, but she was generous when she paid him off.

"THAT WILL DO," SAID THE GIRL SHARPLY. "NO IMPERTINENCE."

Burden waited on the landing until she closed the door; then he ran upstairs to his own rooms and tumbled into the tub. It had been hard work and hot, and he was glad of the chance to clean up. He had risen at 4 for a fishing trip and had made a long day, but he thought he would dress again and slip over to the club for a chat and a bite.

At the foot of the first flight he came face to face with the girl. She recognized him in spite of the change that evening clothes made and gave a little cry.

"Then you were not the man the janitress promised to send up?" she said.

Burden lifted his hat.

"I admit it," he began. "When I saw the mistake you had made and remembered that I had seen Phil, the chore man, disgustingly intoxicated on my way in, I let you persist in your mistake that I might be of assistance."

"And you let me pay you money," she reproached.

"If you think I didn't earn it," he smiled, "I'll give it back."

"But I made you earn it!" She shuddered as she thought of how she had driven him. "And I gave you 10 cents for a glass of beer."

"Beer is only five," he explained. "Won't you have the other one? I guess that you must be as tired and as hungry as I am. You did your full share of the work, so won't you come and share the reward? I know that it's unconventional, but it will be such fun. Will you come?"

The girl looked into his eyes. What she saw there must have satisfied her, for she turned to descend the stairs with him.

"My name is Burden," he announced when they reached the street—"Nathaniel Burden, commonly known as Nat."

"I am Lois Trevor," she retorted. "I am glad to meet Mr. Burden."

Burden tucked her arm through his and led the way to the street car. It was only a short ride, and Lois gave a little gasp when she saw the restaurant.

"I did not realize how hungry I was until I began to wonder if they would serve an unescorted woman at this time of night."

Burden glanced at the clock in the window. It was only half past 10, but it seemed later to her.

"We won't worry about such things," he suggested. "Just think about what is best to eat."

Over the tasteful meal he had ordered she grew more communicative. She had come to the city to study music, he learned. There were only her mother and herself left of a large family, and they wanted to be together. There was something in Burden's manner that inspired confidence, and, almost without realizing it, she was chatting as with an old friend.

The next afternoon he called to pay his respects to Mrs. Trevor, and before long the two women had come to regard Burden almost as one of the family. He took them to concerts and the theater and formed the habit of dropping in for a chat in the evenings when he was not going out.

Then came the panic, and for a week many a firm's fate hung in the balance. The one in which Burden was a partner was persistently included in the list of the doubtful concerns, and then one afternoon the late editions came out with the statement that the house had been forced to suspend.

Lois read the report feverishly, but when Burden came home late that night and wearily began to ascend the steps she was at the head of the flight to welcome him, calm eyed and quiet.

"Mother wants you to come in and have some coffee," she pleaded. "We saw the papers and are so sorry."

"I'll come gladly," he said as his drawn face lighted up. "I shall be glad to forget business for the moment. To find you waiting here like the first time we met is as unexpected as it is pleasant."

"We could not sleep," she explained, "while you were in trouble. We wanted to know that all was well with you if not with the business."

"You didn't suppose I was going to shoot myself in the true melodramatic fashion, did you?" he laughed. Lois shook her head.

"It wasn't exactly that," she explained, "but we thought it might not seem so hard if you had a chance to rest up a little before you went to your rooms."

He followed her into the tiny dining room, where a dainty cold lunch was spread.

"Cast your restaurant meals on the water and they will come back in the shape of real home stuff," he laughed.

"I hope this lunch will do you as much good as that other supper did me," said Lois earnestly.

"More," he protested. "There is only one thing I should like better."

"And that?" she asked.

"A meal in our own home," he explained. "Is there hope for me, Lois?"

The girl nodded her head.

"You are—so handy about the house," she explained to cover her confusion.

"That's a good recommendation," he laughed. "If the firm really does fail I think I shall hire out by the day."

"If," she echoed.

"Just that," he confirmed. "It was a trick to throw the market. We are solid enough, but the sensational sheets turned rumor into what purported to be a statement of facts. You see, you will not have to carry a beggar after all."

"I don't care what you are, Nat," she said tenderly, "so that you are you."

Are We a Courteous People?

Are we as Americans as courteous in all our relations of life as well disposed visitors occasionally think us? Are we as courteous as mixed blood, equitable laws and a prevailing sentiment of self respect might be reasonably expected to make us? Do we not sometimes confound issues, confuse disinterestedness with politeness and believe that because good breeding comes from the heart all good hearted people are consequently well bred? Yet there are men and women who stand ever ready to help their fellow creatures and who are seldom or ever polite to them. Dr. Johnson was one of the kindest of men, but of that courtesy which respects the feelings as well as the rights of others he had never the faintest perception. "Now, what harm does it do a man to contradict him?" he used to say, and contradiction was the guiding principle of his talk. It is a guiding principle with people of much less intelligence today, and it gives to conversation a rough acerbity, destructive alike of pleasure and persuasiveness. It is supposed to be a masculine prerogative, but, like other masculine prerogatives, has been usurped by an advance guard of women.—Delineator.

Lincoln and Mrs. Pickett.

In her book "Dixie After the War" Mrs. Myrta Lockett Avary tells the following Lincoln story in connection with General Pickett, who led the charge at Gettysburg: Mr. Lincoln had taken warm interest in young George Pickett as a cadet at West Point. During his hurried sojourn in Richmond Lincoln's carriage and armed retinue drew up in front of the old Pickett mansion. The general's young wife came out, with her baby in her arms, and said, "I am General Pickett's wife."

"Madam," Lincoln answered, "I am George's old friend, Abraham Lincoln."

"The president of the United States?" she asked.

"No," with a smile, "only Abraham Lincoln, George's old friend."

The child reached out his hands, and when Lincoln took him in his arms he kissed the president.

"Tell your father," said Lincoln, "that I will grant him a special amnesty—if he wants it—for the sake of your mother's bright eyes and your good manners."

FIRE INSURANCE.

Full Amount May Not Be Paid Even When Loss Is Complete.

In a fire insurance policy the sum insured merely marks the maximum liability accepted by the insurance company and determines the premium to be paid. It is not in any way admitted by the insurance office as a measure of the value of the property insured.

If I have a life policy for £5,000, says a writer in the Nineteenth Century, my heirs can, on proof of my death and their title, receive at least £5,000, possibly more if there are bonuses. If I have a ship and I insure her with marine insurance companies for £5,000, I can recover the full £5,000 at once should my ship be totally lost.

But if I insure my house against fire for £5,000 I cannot recover £5,000 unless I can prove the house to be worth fully that sum. All that I am entitled to demand is the actual value of my house immediately before it was burned, and I must give every assistance to the insurance company in order that the actual value may be justly determined.

By statute the insurance company has the power to reinstate that house, as far as the sum insured will go, instead of paying me anything. In practice, compensation is usually agreed and paid in cash without recourse on either side to the right of reinstatement, but in no case am I entitled to more than the actual value of my house as it existed just before the fire.

PATENTS ON INVENTIONS.

Must Be In the Names of the Actual Inventors.

The law provides for the granting of patents only to the actual inventor of the patented invention, and a patent granted in the name of any one else is invalid. For this reason it is essential that the application for patent be made in the name of the one whom the law regards as the inventor. In some factories it is the custom to patent every invention in the name of the president of the company. This frequently happens because the company has been built up on inventions made by the president or other officer, and as a matter of pride the president wishes to see all patents issued in his name.

This is a dangerous thing to do in the case of inventions which were conceived by the employee independently of the officer, such as inventions wholly worked out by employee without suggestion or assistance from the officer, for if in a suit brought under such patent it were shown that while the patent was granted in the name of the officer the invention was actually made by an employee the patent would be declared invalid, and usually a suit would not have reached such a stage until it was too late to go back and patent the invention in the name of the real inventor.—Edwin J. Prindle in Engineering Magazine.

The Huguenots.

Here are two essays on the Huguenots by Chicago public school pupils:

"The Hugonots are people in France that are followers of Victor Hugo. Their leader is a man named Jean Valjean that was a thief, but got converted and turned out well. The Hugonots are very good people. A lady named Evangeline wrote a long poem about them, but it don't rhyme."

"The Huguenots is the name of a big thing like a steam roller that the mogul used in India to run over people. It squoshed them to death and was very terrible. It had eyes painted on it like a dragon and snorted steam when it was running. They are no huguenots enny more."

John Bright and Lord Manners.

In one of his speeches in the house of commons John Bright quoted in a spirit of banter and ridicule the well known lines written by Lord John Manners in his callow youth:

> Let wealth and commerce, laws and learning die,
> But leave us still our old nobility.

Lord John, who was present, immediately got up and pulverized the great tribune by retorting, "I would rather be the foolish young man who wrote those lines than the malignant old man who quoted them."

Mozart.

Mozart lived thirty-seven years. His first mass was composed when he was less than ten years of age, and the enormous quantity of his compositions was the work of the succeeding twenty-seven years. Mozart wrote forty-one symphonies, fifteen masses, over thirty operas and dramatic compositions, forty-one sonatas, together with an immense number of vocal and concerted pieces in almost every line of the art.

Dubious.

Stippler—Did Miss Kutts admire your paintings? Dobber—I don't know. Stippler—What did she say about them? Dobber—That she could feel that I put a great deal of myself into my work. Stippler—Well, that's praise. Dobber—Is it? The picture I showed her was "Calves In a Meadow."

Real Reform.

Dibbles—There goes Rhymer and his rich wife. She married him nearly a year ago to reform him. Scribbles—Did she succeed? Dibbles—Sure. He hasn't written a poem since they faced the parson together.—Chicago News.

Same Old Feeling.

Gladys—I feel sure he has never loved before. Penelope—Oh, I felt the same way, dear, when he used to make love to me!—New York Press.

CURIOUS INSECT.

A Butterfly That Enjoys Only Five Hours of Life.

It is in August that the naturalists observe the marvelous insect which is born, reproduces and dies in the period of a single night on the banks of the Marne, of the Seine and of the Rhine. It is the ephemere of which Strammerdam has written and which is spoken of in Aristotle.

The life of this insect does not last beyond four or five hours. It dies toward 11 o'clock in the evening after taking the form of a butterfly about six hours after midday. It is true, however, that before taking this form it has lived three years in that of a worm, which keeps always near the border of water in the holes which it makes in the mud.

The change of this worm in the water to an ephemere which flies is so sudden that one has not the time to see it. If one takes the worm in the water the hand cannot be taken away before the change is made unless by pressing the worm slightly in the region of the chest. By this means it can be taken from the water before the change takes place.

The ephemere, after leaving the water, seeks a place where it can divest itself of a fine membrane or veil, which entirely covers it. This second change takes place in the air.

The ephemere assists itself with the point of its little nails as firmly as it can. It makes a movement similar to that of a shiver; then the skin on the middle of the back breaks apart, the wings slip out of their sheath, as we sometimes take off our gloves by turning them inside out. After this stripping the ephemere begins to fly. Sometimes it holds itself straight up on the surface of the water on the end of its tail, flapping its wings one against the other. It takes no nourishment in the five or six hours which are the limit of its life. It seems to have been formed but to multiply, for it does not leave its state of a worm until it is ready to deposit its eggs, and it dies as soon as they are deposited.

In three days' time one sees appear and die all species of ephemere. They last sometimes until the fifth day, for the reason that some malady has affected some of them and prevents them from changing at the same time as the others.

A STUDY IN EYES.

Michael Angelo had hazel eyes.

Mohammed had coal black eyes.

Milton had gray blue eyes, clear and round.

Beethoven had small brown eyes, very mobile.

Dante had, according to Boccaccio, large black eyes.

Isaac Newton had blue eyes, small, bright and piercing.

Cowper, physically timid, had weak blue eyes devoid of animation.

Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, had small eyes, full of spirit.

Carlyle's eyes were described as "the very handsomest ever seen in a man's head—dark blue."

Bismarck had eyes of steely gray, deep sunken, almost hidden under bushy eyebrows.

Dr. Johnson's poor health so affected his eyes that they were dull and lifeless, of a watery blue.

Richelieu as an Editor.

The first reporter of France was Louis XIII. The National library possesses the manuscripts of thirty-six articles written by that king. Almost all are accounts of his military operations. These articles were published in the Gazette de France. The "copy," however, did not go directly to the printer. Louis XIII. wrote abominable French, and he had vague notions of orthography. His articles were corrected and often entirely rearranged by a secretary named Lucas, who copied them, sending to Richelieu the new manuscript. Richelieu examined it in his turn and often introduced additional corrections. At the siege of Corbie the king wrote a few lines eulogistic of the cardinal, but afterward crossed them out of his article. Richelieu wrote them in again, and so they appeared in the Gazette de France.—Revue de Paris.

The "Man" Who Minds the Cows.

In the Basque country the children begin to work at an early age. They learn to tend and guide the oxen, which are used entirely for agricultural and draft work, and as if by instinct obtain complete control over the animals while barely able to reach their heads. The sturdy urchin of four years is up at daybreak, and barelegged and bareheaded he goes with the cows to the pastures. If one should stray on to a neighboring patch he is after it with his long stick and Basque adjurations and brings it scampering back, generally holding on to its tail meanwhile.—Strand Magazine.

The Huns.

The first mention of the Huns in history is in China B. C. 210. They conquered that country and were afterward driven out by the Celestials and marched clear across Asia, penetrating the country now known as Hungary in 376 A. D. For a time they threatened to overrun the whole of the continent, but were defeated in the heart of France and driven back to the banks of the Danube.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Energy the Human Power House.

It is quite proper to call the human body a plant, the brain a powerhouse, and the nerve centres dynamos; for it is in the nerve centres, as an electric dynamo, that a transformation of energy takes place. The dynamos in the human brain are also intimately connected by conductors, so that, when an organ or parts is called upon for excessive work, the dynamo that presides over this part furnishes the excess of energy needed by robbing all of the other dynamos of their energy or working power. Thus all other parts of the body, for the time being, must suffer from the lack of functioning power they are deprived of. So, in this way, an organ may be weak or deficient without it or its dynamo being at fault, simply because some other dynamo is taking its needed energy to supply some overtaxed function. Of all organs in the body, the eyes are

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

HOCKEY.

Belleville Won a Strenuous Match.

There was pretty nearly a record crowd at the rink last night, when the Kingston Frontenacs and Bellevilles had a battle royal. And a battle royal it was, indeed, for the big crowd present saw a match which kept them on their tiptoes with excitement all the time. Everybody surely got his money's worth last night. The ice was lightning fast and the home team in the best shape they have been this year. In fact they had to be to win, for that bunch of Kingston lads shaped up better than any visiting team this season. It was anything but a pink tea affair, and some of the locals were a little too ready to "rough it up," thus coming under the eye of the referee with rather too frequent regularity. Over-anxiety may have led some of the local boys to take long chances, but rough work does not go with Chaucer Elliott, who knows the game thoroughly himself. Truth to tell, Chaucer would hardly have received a majority vote of the spectators last night as the best referee in the O.H.A., for many appeared to think he favored the Kingston team, and he was the target for many uncomplimentary remarks. This was uncalled-for and undeserved. Chaucer is as square as a die. The game, if he had not kept a strict hand, might, under the circumstances, considering the high strain the youngsters were laboring under, have become exceedingly rough, and, if he called off-sides which spoiled Belleville goals, he certainly spoiled at least two Kingston goals in the same way. The referee's position is a thankless job, anyhow, and spectators might better help, rather than hinder, a man who has enough to bother him without having his temper riled by insulting speeches from the crowd.

As before remarked, the Kingston bunch was a fast lot, their forwards, in particular. Crawford, their rover, is a coming star, with speed to give away. The Belleville lads however, watched him so closely last night that he was never very dangerous. Wherever he went, Spangenberg or Allen were there to check him, and oh! boys! the checking was something fierce. The Kingston forward line was fine, and their goaltender was a peach. The point and cover were not so good, but the goalkeeper was the real goods. In the second half he was as busy as a bee all the time, and certainly gave a gilt-edged exhibition of goal-keeping. At times there was a fusilade of shots, but he connected with one after another, and cleared like lightning.

As hinted once before, the local team was in great shape, and never, probably, since they have been playing together, showed up so well. Spangenberg, at centre, played a "horse of a game." He was boring in all the time and took all sorts of chances. Allen never played so well in his life, and the way he checked the Kingston flyer, Crawford, was a sight to see. Burke, on the wing, surprised everybody by his speed, aggressiveness and shooting ability, and was a regular thorn in the side of the Kingston defence. Little McGuire went over to left wing, and, while his wind lasted, was the equal of any man on the ice. Toward the middle of the second half, however, Jimmy seemed to have "bellows to mend," and no wonder, for the pace was enough to play anybody out. Connolly, at cover, seemed to be right under the referee's eye last night, and it must be confessed that he does not play ping-pong hockey. Connolly is a husky lad who never squeals himself and plays on the principle that everybody should do the same. But they won't, and you can't get referees to think they should. As a consequence of Connolly's strenuous play he made many trips to the timekeepers' box last night — and "he was not the only one, oh! dear, no!". There were several others. It looked once as though Connolly had put the speedy Mr. Crawford completely out of business by a heavy check into the fence, for which he did time. It was extremely lucky he did not break Crawford's neck. On another occasion Burke cheerfully checked a Kingstonian with the butt end of his stick, and sat on the penalty bench for four minutes. In Pepper, at point, Belleville probably has one of the best, if not the best, defence players in the district. He played hockey of the most useful type last night, was always in his place, and his shooting was deadly. The Kingston line would come down with a rush, with the Belleville forwards at their heels—but they never got past Pepper, of whom, by the way, they seemed to have a wholesome dread. Boland, in goal, did what he had to do in excellent style. The shot which beat him, from Crawford's stick, was knee-high, and could not have been stopped by Riley Hearn. It must not be supposed that all the rough work was done by Belleville, for several of the visitors worked in sneaking little trips which earned them rests. They had the "sandwich" act down fine, and "soaked" Connolly for fair on one occasion. It may safely be said, though, that "Jimmy" didn't owe them much on that score. And now let's get down to the game. It was about 8.20 when Chaucer made his bow, and the teams lined up like this:

Belleville goal.
Boland.
Pepper.
Connolly.
Allen.
Burke Spangenberg McGuire
Gravelle Ainsley Cook
Crawford
Dowsley
Lemon
Lumb
Kingston goal.

They were off, and it was soon seen the game was to be a fierce one. The boys were checking closely, and it was not long before ruled-off players began to come to the timekeepers' box. The game was very even, and finally Burke scored for Belleville by a long, low shot from the side. There was very little choice between the teams during the rest of the first half, and there was no more scoring. Allen was accidentally cut on the temple by a Kingston's man's stick, and had to retire till half-time, Lemon going off with him to even up. It was anybody's game at half-time.

When the teams came on again, Kingston started to rush harder than ever, and Crawford scored after a fast bit of play. Belleville came right back in ten seconds, McGuire scoring right after the face. Score, Belleville 2, Frontenacs 1. The spectators were kept up to a high pitch of excitement, for the Kingston forwards were dangerous all the time, and but for the fine work of the Belleville defence would several times have been right in on the nets. At last Burke scored again, after a neat bit of combination play, and it looked safe now, with the score 3—1. The locals appeared, at this stage, to surely have the measure of the Frontenacs, and were right on top of them all the time. Allen and Spangenberg were working like beavers, but the Kingston goal-tend, cool as an icicle, was right on the job, and, try as they would, the locals could not score. At last the puck went down to Belleville ice, and Pepper got it. He dodged a Kingston forward, who was following up like a race horse, and then let go a cannonball shot, which sailed past Lumb into the net. Score 4—1, and the cheering was something terrific. There was no more scoring, though the Bellevilles were pressing hard when the whistle blew.

Caught in the Net.

Not for a good many seasons have Bellevillians seen as good an exhibition of junior hockey as that of last night.

The Frontenacs brought down a Lemon with them. The Bellevilles handed them another.

It was the finest ice of the season, and easily the finest game.

The practise of spectators blowing whistles should be stopped. It deceives the players

The new rink is a tremendous improvement on the old one. This is more apparent at each match.

The officials last night were: Timers—Kingston, Mr. Hipson, Belleville, "Billy" Burke; penalty timers, Kingston, Mr. Van Horne, Belleville, "Sandy" Burrows; goal umpires, Kingston, Mr. Abernethy, Belleville, Mr. Fish.

There was very little betting. Local sports were willing to wager even money that Belleville would win by three goals, but Kingston men held out for four goals, which was more than Belleville men would give. Consequently neither lost much change.

Speaking after the match, Chaucer Elliott said the game was the fastest junior event he has seen this season.

Referee Elliott handed out 17 penalties, this being the roll of honor: Kingston, Ainsley, Cook (3), Dowsley (2), Gravelle; Belleville, Connolly (7), Allen, Burke (2)

The standing of the clubs in this district now is:

	Won.	Lost.	To play.
Belleville	3	2	1
Kingston	2	2	2
Brockville	1	2	3
Picton	2	2	2

SPORTING NOTES.

Two rinks of curlers go from here to Toronto on Monday. They will be skipped by F. Dolan and J. Clarke. The rinks had a practise match last night, and should give a good account of themselves in the Queen City.

The Wanderers have not yet lost hope of keeping the Stanley cup, and will have a new face on their team on Monday night, namely Russell Bowie, admittedly the fastest skater and best shot in Montreal. It looks now as though the ice may not be very hard, and on soft ice the Kenoras will lose much of the benefits of their wonderful speed. The visitors are chock full of confidence, however, and are willing to give odds that the battered old mug will go to the west with them. Some difficulty is being experienced to find a referee for Monday night.

Reports from Cornwall say that "Reddy" McMillan is not playing up to his old-time form this season. But "Reddy" never believed in shining very much unless there was absolute need of it. Give him a game where the score is close and the betting high and his auburn locks will still show in front.

The Kenoras would like "Chaucer" Elliott to referee next Monday's game, but the Wanderers object. They might do much worse.

The local Juniors are scheduled to play in Brockville on Tuesday next, and Kingston in Picton on the same evening. The Kingston boys should give the Pea Canners a shaking-up, if they don't beat them.

FISSURES IN STREETS EXUDE BLACK MUD—EARTH'S CRUST BEING BROKEN BY SUBTERRANEAN FORCES.

Holland Bay, Jamaica, Jan. 19.—(Special) — Earthquake shocks still continue, and the people are in terror of another disaster.

Great fissures have opened up the streets, from which come black mud.

The subsidence of the shore line continues, and there is every evidence that the earth's crust for many miles around the city is being broken by subterranean forces. The sea is black with mud.

Big Steamships In Collision Last Night.

RED STAR LINER CUT DOWN SCOTCH STEAMER LAST NIGHT —THREE MEN ARE MISSING.

Dover, Eng., Jan. 19.—(Special) — The Red Star liner Vaderland collided with and sunk the Dundee steamer Naworth Castle four miles east of the South Goodwin lightship during the night.

So far as is known only three members of the Naworth Castle's crew are missing.

The Vaderland's forward bulkhead remained tight, so that there was no damage of the ship sinking.

Ald. Ackerman Gets Back Wedding Gifts.

The pearl handled knives and forks stolen recently from the residence of Ald. Ackerman, have been found. They were discovered by a lad named Donoghue, who found them wrapped up in a parcel behind the Separate School. They have been returned to their owner, who was naturally overjoyed at getting back these souvenirs of a recent happy event. The articles in question were wedding presents.

Death of "Donny" Bruce Here Last Evening

A popular resident of this city some ten years ago died last night in the person of Donald Bruce, who has been ill for some time. Ten years ago "Donny," as he was called, was in the thick of all the sporting events. He left Belleville eight years ago for Detroit, and a few months ago took a severe illness. A few weeks ago he returned to this city, gradually sinking until death claimed him last night. "Donny" was born in Wick, Scotland, on October 15th, 1868, being thus in his 38th year. He was a Liberal and a Presbyterian. Deceased died at the residence of his mother, Brown St., who with a sister and two brothers, survives.

Good Old Citizen Died In Tweed.

There died recently, at Tweed, a highly respected old gentleman in the person of Mr. John McCamon, in the 84th year of his age. The late Mr. McCamon was the father of Mr. W. J. McCamon, whose lamentable death by accident is still fresh in the memory of our readers. Mr. John McCamon, whose death at Tweed is here chronicled, was a gentleman of the old school, whose demise will be mourned by everyone who knew him.

GIROUARD'S APPOINTMENT.

His Abilities as an Administrator Will Be Brought to a Test.

London, Jan. 19.—The will of Archibald Thomas Anderson, who died in Toronto in August, 1897, came before the Scottish courts, who decided that Anderson validly bequeathed to his wife his share of £5,000 from his father's estate.

The Scotman's London correspondent, referring to Girouard's appointment, says attention is attracted to his official qualification for the appointment. As it is temporary the most obvious inference is that Girouard will be on trial, as an administrator of the greatest of the British West African possessions. But it is also suggested that the temporary character of the appointment may not be without significance in connection with prospects for amalgamation with Northern Nigeria.

Niagara Fruit Growers Protests.

Grimsby, Jan. 19.—A mass meeting of the fruit growers of the Niagara district at Grimsby yesterday by resolution expressed disapproval of the action of the directors of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association in appointing a committee to confer with a committee of the Michigan State fruit growers with a view to arrange a reciprocal tariff on fruits and fruit products. They considered the present tariff on fruits too low and stated that "We can produce all the domestic fruit required for home consumption and the home market should be protected for Canadian growers." Another resolution urges the Government to incorporate in the new tariff the schedule presented to the tariff commission at its last session in Ottawa by the commercial fruit growers of Ontario, and the third is a protest to the Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, that the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association had overstepped its duties in presuming to deal with any legislation, and to ask that he see to it that the association in future stick to its constitution and confine itself wholly to a work of education nature.

A large meeting held at Stony Creek last night adopted similar resolutions to those passed at the meeting here.

LONDON BRIBERY CASES

Grand Jury Brings in an Indictment Comprising 20 Counts.

True Bills Against John O'Gorman, William J. Mulloy, Daniel Wiley, George M. Reid and E. I. Sifton Charging Them With Fraud and Corruption and Conspiracy to Commit Bribery, Etc.—Sifton a Witness.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—The grand jury of the Assizes yesterday brought down true bills against John O'Gorman, William J. Mulloy, Daniel Wiley, George M. Reid and E. I. Sifton, charging them with fraud and corruption in the elections in London, both Dominion and provincial, in 1904-5.

There are twenty counts in all.

The first includes practically the same charges as laid in the Police Court, viz., conspiracy to commit bribery, obtaining money for that purpose, moneys paid, obtaining information as to how people voted, and for communicating such information.

(2) Conspiracy in all foregoing offences in connection with the Hyman-Gray Dominion election in 1904.

(3) Conspiracy in like offences in the local general election, Beck-Rumball, in 1905.

(4) Same thing in bye-election for the Dominion House, Hyman-Gray, 1905.

The next fifteen counts are subdivided so as to cover the original counts for each election, and the committing of each separate election offence.

The twentieth count charges George M. Reid with conspiring with Sifton, Service and Spence to open the ballot-box held by Spence as a deputy-returning officer in the Beck-Rumball election, with a view of ascertaining how voters voted.

The grand jury have been hearing evidence on the bill for the last three days. Sifton, one of the accused, was a witness. J. Collins, H. Ranahan, J. M. McIntosh, H. C. McBride, J. G. Pritchett, Wm. Spence, Harold Peray, George Ardy, Wm. Trudell, W. Service, George McCoy, M. J. Donohue, F. A. Jones, Alfred Gatecliffe, H. J. Adams and John Cox were also examined.

The trial will not be commenced until the end of next week if then.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY.

Brantford Youth In Toils and Warrant Out For a Woman.

Brantford, Jan. 19.—Frank Babcock, a well-known young man, was arrested at the Grand Trunk depot on information that he presented a forged cheque for $200 at the Imperial Bank on Jan. 2 last and received money for it. In the Police Court Babcock was identified by the teller. He left the city in company with a young lady employed in an east ward store, who is supposed to have been an accomplice in the forgery. Both returned recently from Buffalo. A warrant is out for her arrest.

Another bank forgery was committed at the Standard Bank on Wednesday when a stranger presented a cheque for $50 drawn on a merchant in good standing at the bank.

Sergeant Wallace yesterday morning arrested two Hungarians, Steven Kebac and Gurvesi Imigna, wanted in Hamilton for alleged theft of $90 from George Kiss.

HOUSES IN WRONG LOT.

Union Trust Co. Claims to Have Been Victimized In Odd Way.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Henry Glover, 722 Muir avenue, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Tipton and McArthur, on the charge of stealing $1,826 from the Union Trust Co.

Glover is alleged to have secured a loan on some lots on Muir avenue, on which two houses were being erected. After advancing the money, the company ascertained the houses were not on the lots on which the loan was made. The property had already been mortgaged.

Glover was negotiating another loan with the company, and was to have been paid the money yesterday.

Will Be Prosecuted.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—The Department of Justice has given its opinion that Capt. Klengenberg of the San Francisco whaling steamer Olga ought to be indicted on the charge of murdering his chief engineer in Prince Arthur Sound, Arctic Ocean, last winter. The crime, if crime it was, is believed to have been committed in British waters, but the United States authorities at Point Barrow, Alaska, determined that they would prosecute him.

Wiarton, Jan. 19.—Thursday morning burglars entered the grocery stores of H. D. Ruhl and William Armstrong and the boot and shoe store of L. M. Ely. They got into Ruhl's by bursting out a panel of the back door and secured $85.25 of Forester money, which was in the safe, and about $20 in silver out of the cash drawer. At Armstrong's there were only 19 coppers in the till. They took 18 of them; the other being a Chinese cent, they left it. They also took some groceries. At Ely's shoe store they were not so fortunate. They entered through a back window, and in getting in cut themselves on the window glass. There were drops of blood on the floor from the window to the safe and also quite a pool in front of the safe and in the till. They secured nothing and appeared to have made a hasty exit.

Ottawa Is Growing.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—The total assessment of Ottawa for taxable and exempt property is $60,408,750. The taxable assessment is $41,318,450 and the exemptions $19,000,300.

TALK FISH FOR 7 HOURS

Liberal Members Assail Government Without Mercy.

Kestrel's Efforts On Pacific Coast to Stop Poaching Termed Ridiculous—Modus Vivendi's Abrogation Openly Advocated—But the "Jingle of the Guinea," In Shape of American Trade, Gives Government Pause.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—Yesterday being Friday, the House appropriately talked for seven long hours about nothing but fish. It was in some respects a remarkable day for private members on the Government benches assailed the Government without mercy.

Even so faithful a friend as Alexander Johnson informed the House that, in his opinion, the modus vivendi should be abrogated.

Mr. Sinclair of Nova Scotia suggested that there should be appointed a select standing committee of the House upon fisheries.

Mr. MacPherson of Vancouver urged that large and speedy boats be placed on the Pacific coast to stop poaching, and characterized as ridiculous the present efforts at patrol exercised by the steamer Kestrel. He pointed out, however, that the American market was a large factor in the fishery question. Only about 5 per cent. of the output of the Canadian fisheries is consumed in Canada.

Mr. Sloan, late of the Yukon and now of British Columbia, but who, it is rumored, is soon to return as Governor, went after the modus vivendi in a way that was calculated to make the Ministers sit up.

Mr. Brodeur, who spoke for the Government, was frank enough to say that the time was not ripe for abrogating the present arrangement. He, too pointed out our dependence upon the American market and some incidental benefits that flowed to certain districts of Canada from the modus vivendi. He referred to his cold storage for bait and the action of the Government in promoting the transportation of fish.

The debate will be continued on Tuesday.

Questions re. G. T. P.

Before the House adjourned, R. L. Borden referred to the order in council granting to the G. T. P. for terminal facilities a tract of certain lands and asked: (1) Is this land adjacent to the 10,000 acres granted by the Province of British Columbia? (2) Has the consent of the Indians to this grant been obtained? (3) What is the present state of the negotiations?

Mr. Oliver promised to answer on Monday.

Pimples Stopped In 5 Days.

EVERY POSSIBLE SKIN ERUPTION CURED IN MARVELLOUSLY QUICK TIME BY THE NEW CALCIUM TREATMENT.

SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE PACKAGE TO-DAY.

Boils have been cured in three days, and some of the worst cases of skin diseases have been cured in a week, by the wonderful action of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. These wafers contain as their main ingredient, the most thorough, quick and effective blood cleanser known, calcium sulphide.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you. They are the most powerful blood purifier and skin clearer ever discovered, and they never derange the system.

No matter what you suffer from, pimples, blackheads, acne, red rash, spots, blotches, rash, tetter or any other skin eruption, you can get rid of them long before other treatments can even begin to show results.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with these disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks, I am so grateful to you."

You can depend upon this treatment being a never-failing cure.

Just send us your name and address in full, to-day, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form, and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address to-day and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 55 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GRANTS POWER PERMITS.

Secretary Taft Permits Importation of 160,000 Horsepower From Canada — Will Not Mar Falls.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Secretary of War Taft has just rendered his decision upon the applications under the Burton Act for the issue of permits to divert waters for power from the Niagara Falls on the American side and to transmit electrical current developed from water power on the Canadian side into the United States.

The secretary concludes that with a diversion of 15,000 cubic feet on the American side and the transmission of 160,000 horsepower from the Canadian side, the scenic grandeur of the falls will not be affected substantially or perceptibly to the eye.

On the American side, the Niagara Falls Hydraulic and Manufacturing Co. will receive a permit for the diversion of 6,500 cubic feet per second.

The water for the Erie Canal is to be used under a special permit limiting the consumption to not more than 400 cubic feet.

Relative to the transmission of electrical current from Canada the Secretary decided to issue permits for the importation of such current to the following amounts:

The International Railway Co., 1,500 horse power; the Ontario Power Co., 60,000 horsepower; the Canadian Niagara Falls Power Co., 52,000 horsepower, and the Electrical Development Co., 46,000 horsepower.

Ontario Not Affected.

Toronto, Jan. 19.—Premier Whitney was asked yesterday afternoon if he had read the telegram from Washington on the transmission of electric power from Canada to the United States.

"I have seen the despatch from Washington," he replied, "and I have nothing to say on the subject, as it does not affect Ontario, whose interests are confined to the various agreements with the companies. Questions as to export of power do not come before us."

Taft Gives Warning.

Secretary Taft, in speaking of his approval as above, refers to allegations that the three companies are really looking forward to an amalgamation of interests or a combination to keep up the price of electrical power by avoiding competition, and says that "should evidence in proper form of the existence of such a combination be brought to me as a ground for the modification of the action now taken, it will be given careful consideration."

COLD DRIVES MAN INSANE.

Mount Forest Man Attempts Walk of Two Hundred Miles.

When the time came for him to return to Capac, he had no money to pay his railway fare, and set out to walk the entire distance. He made his way as best he could, sleeping in barns or other shelters, and sometimes walking by night to keep from freezing, and had thus got as far as Perche, on the lake shore nine miles from Sarnia, and a distance of about 150 miles from his starting point, but by the time he reached Perche he had become almost violently insane, because of the toilsome journey made without shelter, proper food or sufficient clothing.

He had stripped himself of his shirt and trousers and had taken off his shoes and socks and in that condition had evidently slept out for one or two nights. When an officer took him in charge he was unable to tell where he came from or how long he had been wandering about.

Both his feet were frozen, but amputation may not be resorted to.

FREEZE TO DEATH IN WEST.

Bodies of Two Scotchmen Found Partly Eaten by Wolves.

Davidson, Sask., Jan. 19.—Yesterday news was received here of finding of two bodies in Red Deer Lake district, across Saskatchewan River, and about 60 miles west of Davidson. The bodies were partly frozen and partly devoured by wolves and could not be identified, but are believed to be the remains of two Scotch homesteaders. There was no trace of horses.

It is said a man was lost on the prairie near Long Lake, 30 miles east of Davidson on Sunday night, and was frozen to death.

Angry at Balfour.

London, Jan. 19.—(C. A. P.)—It is said that it is only now that the truth about Mr. Chamberlain's health is dawning on tariff reformers, and adds they are so indignant with Mr. Balfour that a movement is being made not merely to force him to keep his promise, but to force him out of the leadership.

Fears the Voice of Charmers.

London, Jan. 19.—(C. A. P.)—A report from Cape Town says there is a pronounced feeling that the South African premier should preside at the colonial conference. It is feared that there is danger that British hospitality may interfere with the serious work of the conference.

Schoolboy Kills Chief.

Smolensk, Russia, Jan. 19.—The chief of the rural administration, M. Krollaux, was killed Thursday night by a schoolboy named Boriookoff, as the chief was leaving a concert hall. The boy, who fired five shots from a revolver, was immediately shot and killed by an officer.

Swept By A Hurricane.

Niagara Frontier Lies a Scene of Wreck and Destruction.

Buffalo's Loss Is $1,500,000, and the Aggregate Will Be Over Two Millions—Five Vessels Ashore and 13 Others In Danger—Miles of Docks at Tonawanda Destroyed—Millions of Feet of Lumber Lost—Elsewhere.

Buffalo, Jan. 21.—During the last 36 hours this city has been swept by the most destructive windstorm of a decade. Last night, after a day and night of continuous hurricane, the Niagara frontier lies a scene of wreck and destruction in the wake of the storm.

Two lives reported lost so far, and a property damage that will aggregate $2,000,000 when the accounting is made, is the toll of the storm. Lake Erie, a giant mud puddle, with its level higher than has been known for 20 years, has gorged the Niagara River to overflowing its banks, and thousands of dollars' worth of property has been carried down the stream. Miles of docks at the great lumber market at Tonawanda have been destroyed, and millions of feet of lumber have been carried out into the river.

The damage to shipping in Buffalo harbor alone is $1,500,000. Five leviathans of the great lakes, torn from their moorings and run aground, tell that part of the story. Thirteen others, making brave attempts to ride out the storm may add to it. Wreck and devastation of everything along the whole waterfront is the relic of the storm.

Niagara Falls power was cut off when the cables snapped, and the city was in partial darkness last night. Damage to homes and buildings is widespread throughout the city, but no one case is of particular serious nature.

The tail end of the storm last night was sweeping up the St. Lawrence Valley.

The vessels aground are the Hurlburt W. Smith, William Nottingham, J. Q. Riddle, Munroe C. Smith and A. G. Brower. Most of them are owned in Cleveland. They have cargoes. Caretakers were aboard, but are believed to be safe.

The water in Lake Erie rose three feet in as many hours.

Old lake men say this is the severest continued storm that has swept the lower lakes in the last 20 years.

Two Drowned.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The storm toll here was two lives and many thousands of dollars damage to property. Pearl Shear, seven years old, was drowned while some rescuers were taking her family to safety from their home, which was fast becoming flooded. Henrietta Soldwick, 46 years of age, was crushed in the collapse of an icehouse and several other persons were injured and some of them severely.

In Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The fierce windstorm did an immense amount of damage to property here and surrounding villages. Telephone and telegraph companies suffered heavily.

THE NIAGARA FRONTIER.

Thousands of Dollars Damage Done to the Gorge Railway.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 21.—Great damage has been done by a gale that swept across the Niagara frontier during Saturday night and yesterday from the west. The wind reached at times 90 miles an hour velocity. Telegraph and telephone wires are interrupted in all directions.

The greatest damage was done along the river front; the high wind drove the water out of Lake Erie and caused the water in the Gorge to rise 30 feet, the highest mark in several years. The force of the high water undermined the roadbed of the Gorge Railway double track from the Grand Trunk steel arch bridge to Whirlpool Point, carrying the rails and ties at several points in a twisted mass into the river. The pole line carrying the electric feed wires toppled over into the river. It will take several thousand dollars and months of time to reconstruct the roadbed.

The docks and offices of the Maid of the Mist Steamboat Co. on both sides of the river, were swept away by the force of the flood.

The outer water walls of the intakes of the big power companies were completely submerged, but withstood the force of the rushing flood.

The stables and outbuildings of construction of the Niagara Falls Hydraulic Co., on the American side, were swept into the river, with several horses in them, as were the outbuildings of the Ontario Power Co. power house below the Falls on the Canadian side.

In Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Early Sunday morning Toronto was visited by the most terrific wind storm in years, and it continued in more or less severity during the day. Directly from the west, the gale, which traveled, at its worst, at the rate of 60 miles an hour, swept over Ontario with great damage along the Niagara River and then through Quebec to the maritime provinces, and on to the sea with increasing energy, doing damage and destruction. The average velocity of the wind during the day was about 30 miles an hour.

Buildings were blown down, trees torn, wires broken, fences overturned, and many handsome signs in all parts of the city fell before the onslaught of the big wind. Lucky it was, although several fires were started, they were quickly extinguished, and no great damage resulted. The largest building blown down was the upper part of the Traders' Bank, corner Bloor and Yonge streets.

In Hamilton.

Hamilton, Jan. 21.—The high wind yesterday was almost as hard on windows as were the street car rioters. Windows in many of the stores were broken, and signs and chimneys were blown down. The organs in the churches, which are operated by electricity, could not be used, and the street and house lights all went out about 8 o'clock last evening. The firemen had a busy day, being called out five times.

In Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—Ottawa last night was pestered with an erratic blizzard as the finale to a series of squalls and showers. During an early morning gale some plate glass windows of the Montreal Bank and the Banque Nationale blew in. The tops of the cupolas of the First Baptist and Knox churches were blown away. Many signs were thrown down and the train service hereabouts is demoralized.

In Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 21.—Saturday was a very mild springlike day, thawing. About midnight a very high cold westerly wind came up and continued a perfect gale all Sunday, in which trees, smokestacks, plate glass windows suffered severely.

5,000 HOMELESS BY FLOOD.

Ohio Towns Suffering Severely From Uprising of the River.

Cincinnati, Jan. 21.—The flood stage here Saturday was 62 feet and much of the lower portion of the city is flooded.

In Newport 5,000 persons are homeless and almost destitute.

Colder weather and a gale if wind on Sunday increased the sufferings of those thousands who had been made homeless by the flood in Ohio and a number of buildings that had been weakened by the water went down before the wind Saturday night and yesterday.

The area of the flooded section increased considerably during the day, each inch of rise spreading over wide territory.

FUEL SITUATION SERIOUS.

Blizzard Rages In Dakota, and All Trains Are Delayed.

Minneapolis, Jan. 21.—News from western North Dakota and Huron, S. D., says that that portion of the country is in the throes of the worst blizzard of the year. All trains from the west are reported indefinitely late and the situation is regarded as most alarming.

The fuel and food situation is such that deaths by the score are expected, should the blizzard continue for the next 12 hours.

"NAWORTH CASTLE" SUNK.

The Vaderland Collides In Fog With Dundee Steamer, Which Goes Down—Three Sailors Drown.

Dover, Eng., Jan. 21.—The Red Star Line steamer Vaderland, from New York, Jan. 9 for Antwerp, collided with and sank the Dundee steamer Naworth Castle, Friday night, four miles east of the South Goodwin Lightship.

A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

The Vaderland's bow was damaged below the water line and her forepeak was full of water, but she was enabled to proceed on her voyage.

The collision occurred between two and three a. m. The Naworth Castle sank immediately, carrying down Second Engineer Low, the steward, Parkinson, and a seaman named Nicholson. Seventeen other members of the crew boarded the Vaderland.

The Naworth Castle was bound from Newcastle to Pozznoli, Italy.

It is well for one to know more than he says.—Plautus.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Cease, rude Boreas! as the poet might have sung yesterday.

• • •

Many people did not venture out in the wind yesterday. They were afraid all the religion would be blown out of them.

• • •

There is no truth in the story that the Mayor and City Treasurer were seen at the ruins of the Quinte, trying to put some bricks in their pockets to hold them down. They wouldn't blow away so easy as all that.

• • •

It's lucky none of those chimneys and things hit anybody when they fell on Saturday night. It would have made such a mess for Sunday.

• • •

A preacher yesterday morning wondered why some of his parishioners were afraid to turn out in the wind. Most of 'em, he thought, were pretty well anchored to this world, anyhow. And that same remark will pretty nearly hold good concerning the people of all churches. Except, of course, the one you and I go to, gentle reader.

• • •

No, Gladys, the wind won't blow influenza away, because, you see, people have such a grip on it.

• • •

Just a coincidence, of course, but did you notice how quick the big wind came after the Board of Trade meeting?

• • •

An estimable citizen was proceeding down a certain street yesterday when a brick came down and struck the sidewalk about a yard ahead of him. It is a matter for congratulation that the estimable citizen was not a yard ahead of his record, though his slowness, undoubtedly, spoiled an exceedingly good item. Some men are forever spoiling sport.

• • •

A lot of people were yesterday watching the Quinte walls, to see if they would blow down. Why didn't they find a Joshua, and hand him a trumpet.

For the table, get WINDSOR TABLE SALT. Every grain a perfect crystal. Absolutely pure, clean and never cakes.

A wind like yesterday's around mosquito time would be fine, wouldn't it?

Say, if a Ladies' Hockey Association were formed, wouldn't dear old Kingston be able to enter a great bunch of seniors?

The Halifax Herald publishes some figures which we here reproduce for the benefit of our friends the Liberals and others:

The weather this winter certainly takes the cake for variety.

The new City Council of Hamilton will have to face an overdraft of $100,000, piled up last year and the year previous. The outlook is certainly encouraging. Those overdrafts, as a rule, don't point to much except the fact that the Council lacked courage to fix the tax rate at what it should be. With a desire to cater to the parsimonious people the Finance committee strikes the tax at one or two mills less than they know it should be. They get a little temporary popularity for their "fine financing," but at the end of the year there is a big overdraft staring them in the face. It is questionable which hurts a city's rep. the most — a high tax rate or a big overdraft at the end of the year. Everybody, of course, knows which is the more honest plan. Pay as you go is the best motto yet found, for cities as well as men. Fix the tax rate to cover all legitimate expenses. For a finance committee to strike a 19-mill tax rate, when they know that a 20-mill rate will hardly cover the case, is to pile up burdens for somebody else to carry. Whoever does this is seeking a reputation for economy under false pretences.

The Parkhill Gazette-Review prints a biography of Hon. Geo. W. Ross. Parkhill is only a few miles from the farm on which Mr. Ross was born—from which we take the following, which may be interesting to the school teachers: "He received his early education in the public schools in East Williams in the days when the curriculum was largely a matter of the teacher's capability and the pupils' receptiveness, in the days when the birch rod was a power in the land and moral suasion was unknown. After receiving a first-class county-board certificate he taught school for a time at, as he puts it himself, 'the magnificent salary of $18 per month and glad to get it.'"

Bancroft Times: The Belleville Intelligencer asks the question:—"Who will be Warden of Hastings County for 1907," and mentions Mr. A. Kirk, reeve of Hungerford, but states they have been informed that he is not desirous of the position. Mr. Kirk was canvassing for votes for the Wardenship twelve hours after he had been elected reeve.

The Intelligencer's information came from what was believed to be excellent authority, and it had no desire to in any way prejudice Mr. Kirk's chances. As a matter of fact, either Mr. Kirk or the other gentleman mentioned, Mr. Stanley Vandervoort, would make an excellent Warden, and the county's interests would be quite safe in either of their hands.

• • •

Police Magistrate Dumble, of Peterboro has given an interesting decision, which may or may not stand on appeal. He dismissed a charge laid by Chief of Police Roszel, under the Indian Act, against James Kelley, a Peterboro hotelkeeper, of having sold intoxicating liquor to Richard Cornelius, an Indian. The Magistrate ruled that as Cornelius did not live with any band or tribe of Indians, he did not come within the class "Indian or non-treaty Indian" as defined by the Act.

• • •

People who live in this blessed country at present, "where every prospect pleases and only man is vile," do not realize, perhaps, the hard times their ancestors went through in early days. Here is a bit from the "Old-Time Records" man of the Hamilton Spectator, which makes interesting reading just now:

"Times were hard in Canada in 1857 and 1858, and work was scarce and poorly paid. The new council for 1858 had to meet this unfortunate condition of affairs, and its first meeting had to provide for the care of the needy. A committee of two was appointed in each ward to issue tickets for soup and wood to be given to the poor. As many not really needy were applying for aid the council wanted to cut them out and give help only where necessity demanded. Dr. Ryall suggested that the medical faculty of the city could co-operate in charitable designs to a great extent, as they were more acquainted with the distressed classes of the city than even the clergy. More than 100 loads of wood had been issued during the two months prior to the day in which the council took action. The retiring mayor had advertised in the city papers, calling upon any persons having cast-off clothing to send it to the police office for distribution among the poor. The happy and prosperous workingmen of Hamilton to-day cannot even imagine the months from 1857 to 1860, when there were no large factories to give employment, and the small shops were closed because there was no demand for their output. Men worked only on half time for months, at small wages, and were glad even to get that to keep themselves and their families from becoming objects of charity."

Nothing Yet Heard From Mr. and Mrs. Williams

Hamilton Herald: The Belleville Intelligencer stated that Mr. John and Mrs. Williams, of that city, had been in Kingston, Jamaica, a few days before the earthquake shock, as they had sent cards to Belleville from there. It stated further that as no Canadians were reported injured, Mr. and Mrs. Williams were probably safe.

Mrs. Williams is a sister of Justice Clute, who is conducting the assizes here. His Lordship was asked by a Herald reporter this morning if he had received any word from his sister. He said he had not within the last week, but had little fear for their safety, as he believed Mr. and Mrs. Williams intended to visit friends in another part of Jamaica. He did not know they had been in Kingston a day or two previous to the disaster, but believed they were safe, as no Canadians were reported injured.

A Bold Thief.

The Port Hope Times says: Farmers will do well to beware of a well-dressed stranger who may attempt to enter their homes under false pretences.

Last Thursday a man who is described as short and dark, came to Mr. John Anderson's farm at Bunker Hill, Zion. Mr. Anderson was away at the time but the house was occupied by Mrs. Anderson and her son and daughter. The stranger said that he had bought 500 acres of land in the vicinity, and among others the farm rented by Mr. Anderson from Signor Farini. He wanted to see the place and tenant. Mrs. Anderson allowed him to come in and told him that he might stay until Mr. Anderson returned. He stayed until Sunday, and in the meantime got Miss Anderson to drive him to neighboring farms. Among others he visited Mr. Job Dickinson's place, where he asked to be allowed to look over the house as he said that he intended to remodel the house occupied by Mr. Anderson, and wished to see how Mr. Dickinson's house was planned. This was permitted.

On Sunday the man disappeared, and with him went two or three dollars that had been in Mr. Anderson's pocket.

The stranger has not since been heard of.

The Farmers' Schools.

A contemporary thoughtfully discusses the many farmers' conventions which are held at this time of the year, and truly remarks that, to get the real good out of such meetings, the farmers must attend them. The press reports give the salient parts of the proceedings, and the Government books are to be relied upon for ample records, but these come out long after the occasion has passed, and interest is lost in the rush of fresh subjects and more momentous discussions.

By being present at conventions farmers rub shoulders with farmers, and exchange ideas and compare notes, with the result in many cases of making better agriculturists of them all. "As iron sharpeneth iron, so man his neighbor."

There are still many men who may not believe in this kind of thing, men who would rather stay around home doing chores or hugging the stove on a winter's day, than drive a few miles to attend a farmers' meeting, but there are not so plentiful as formerly, when "book farming" and scientific teachings were in a manner despised. Nearly all that has passed away. The old feeling against scientific farming has given place to one of appreciation and conformity. The successful farmer nowadays is he who attentively heeds the results of modern knowledge.

It is related that a boy once asked his father to allow him to go to an agricultural school to study farming. His father was one of those self-made men who did not believe in book farming, and he told his son he did not. The boy asked his father if he did not know a great deal about farming, and the old man said he did or he would not have made the success he did. The boy then asked his father if his uncle did not know a lot about farming, and again the old man admitted that the uncle was one of the best farmers in the country. "Then," said the boy, "if what you know and what uncle knows was written up and put into a book it would be pretty good stuff for a farmer to read, would it not?"

This is what is meant by "book farming," and what attendance at the institutes and farmers' meetings leads to.

Colonization and its Cost.

The political crisis in Germany has been caused by the alleged extravagance and failure of the colonial policy of the Government, to which Parliament refused to assent. As a result, the Emperor dissolved that body, and the question is before the people in a general election.

The plea for colonial expansions as an outlet for German trade is met by the argument that the Germans already enjoy a prosperous world-wide trade, that their commercial agents are everywhere, and that they can obtain all needed supplies of raw materials in a profitable exchange of their manufactures, and that the colonising experiment in East Africa has brought nothing but waste and disaster.

As for emigration, it is said the Germans go wherever the best conditions exist for themselves without reference to their governments. They found new homes in America, the Argentine or Brazil, instead of encountering the enormous risks of plague and battle in the hinterland of East Africa.

It is on these issues that the elections are being fought.

All this leads to an interesting review of what the United States has gained by its colonial policy. The annexation of Hawaii was looked upon as a grand stroke, although all the benefits were already available by reciprocity. Now, besides Portuguese and Spaniards, the islands are being populated by Japanese, who make them a stepping stone to the mainland. Annexation there has brought a serious race problem and the promise of endless difficulty. In the Philippines matters are still worse. It is said that for every dollar gained one hundred dollars have been spent, and this condition promises to continue.

It would seem that the craze for outlying possessions which seized on the nations a few years ago has brought in these cases at least severe penalties.

It will shortly be seen what the sober German mind thinks of it.

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

NOTES OF SERVICES IN BELLEVILLE'S DIFFERENT PLACES OF WORSHIP.

Anniversary at Holloway St.

Yesterday was the 29th anniversary of the opening of Holloway St. Methodist Church, and the services were of a nature in keeping with the occasion. Rev. Charles E. Manning, of Sydenham St. Church, Kingston, was the preacher of the day, and in the morning he delivered a thoughtful and interesting discourse on "High Ideals," taking as his text the first verse of the 121st Psalm:

> "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help."

The public buildings of a city, the preacher said, indicated the spirit of its citizens, so churches were monuments of the people's faith in God. But the building of churches was only a means to an end, and that end was the glorification of God and the evangelization of the world. The churches were alike in one respect—none of them were built by infidels, and every church stands as a monument to the people's faith in God. The Psalmist, when he wrote the text, knew there were two worlds, the visible and the invisible; he knew that we stand on the borders of a world peopled by spirits. In times of storm and stress men needed comfort from unseen things. Someone has truly said that only the unseen things are real, for the things we could see amounted to nothing. The great factor in all that man had ever done was that invisible something we call thought. The abiding world is the spiritual world, and all successful preachers must look to the higher power for help, and the most successful preachers had realized that they were simply channels for a divine force which flowed through them. All plans should begin and end in a desire to glorify God—in the home life, in business life, in politics, in all human affairs. God was no more needed in the church than He was in the world. The reason we had the church was that God might be glorified in the world. God ruled over the secular things just as much as He did over the spiritual things, and the great statesmen, the great peace-makers, the great liberators, like the great preachers, were not originators; they were simply the channels through which God worked. Speaking of the necessity of high ideals, the preacher said it was only by accident that men did better than they intended to do. More men sin for want of high ideals than because they do not pray. Many a man, after his devotions in the morning, will go down to business and cheat and steal. What he needed to pray for was higher ideals. The upward look was what aided us in all our trials. Only by divine help could men, or churches, attain high ideals, but when they had attained them they could say, calmly and peacefully, with the Psalmist, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, whence cometh my help."

The choir was in excellent form, and sang with good balance and in a cultivated way. The anthem was, "Seek Ye the Lord," Mr. Merton Gordon taking the solo in his usual pleasing style. Miss Elsie Price sang a delightful solo, "O, Song Divine," in a very sympathetic way. Mr. W. A. A. Chown's voluntaries and accompaniments were listened to with much pleasure.

Bridge St.

A large congregation, considering the weather, gathered at the above church yesterday morning, the male and female students of Albert College attending in force. An eloquent and fitting sermon was preached to the members of the college missionary societies by Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., who took as his text the 3rd verse of the 17th chapter of Acts:

> "Opening and alleging that Christ must needs have suffered and risen again from the dead; and that this Jesus, whom I preach unto you, is Christ."

Bethel Hall.

Mr. W. P. Crombie and Mr. Wm. Slomans preached last night to an appreciative audience on the grace of God in sending His salvation to man, and the unsaved were exhorted to receive not the offer in vain, showing God's readiness to give eternal life to all who accept His Son. Meetings were announced for every night this week and an illustrated lantern address for Tuesday evening.

SUN AND SNOW,

Sometimes Help the Hair to Go.

In any changeable climate the hair is apt to become brittle and to break off stubby here and there. This makes a hair-dressing almost a necessity, especially to ladies. In using a hair dressing why not get the best, one that combines with it the efficiency in killing the dandruff germ, the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, causing what is called falling hair, and in time baldness. Newbro's "Herpicide" is that kind of a hair dressing. You have no idea how delightful your scalp will feel, and how stylish your hair will appear, after an application or two of Herpicide. It is certainly a wonderful innovation as a scalp antiseptic and hair-dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. J. THE TINY SCIARA.

A Procession of Worms Seen In Hungary and Norway.

In some of the Hungarian forests and in the pine woods of Norway there exists a tiny, wormlike insect called the sciara, of the genus tipula. During the month of July or early in August they gather together in large numbers, preparatory to migrating in search of food or for change of condition. When setting out on this journey they stick themselves together by means of some glutinous matter and form a huge serpent-like mass, often reaching a length of between forty and fifty feet and several inches in thickness. As the sciara is only on an average about three thirty-seconds of an inch in length, with no appreciable breadth whatever, the number required to compose a continuous line of the size above mentioned is almost incalculable. Their pace is, of course, very slow, and upon meeting an obstacle, such as a stick or stone, they will either writhe over or around it, sometimes breaking into two bodies for this purpose.

M. Guerin-Meneville, a celebrated French naturalist, said that if the rear portion of this wonderful snakelike procession be brought into contact with the front part and a sort of circle formed the insects will keep moving round in that circle for hours without apparently noticing that they are getting no "forrader" on their journey. If the procession be broken in two, the portions will reunite in a short time. The Norwegian peasants, when they meet one of these trains, will lay some article of their clothing, such as a belt or handkerchief, on the ground in front of it. If the procession passes over it it is regarded as a good sign, but if it makes a way round the reverse is believed.

FAIR PLAY.

A Plea That Is Respected by Almost All Classes of Men.

There is an appeal to which nearly all classes of men give heed—let us have fair play. You may address a schoolful of mischievous boys on the beauties of goodness, on the evils of cruelty or harshness to their fellows, and they will laugh at you. Exhortations to avoid any abstract evil or wrong and appeals to follow any abstract virtue will seem hazy to almost any collection of ordinary, healthy and lusty young boys, but if their sense of fair play be addressed there is a ready response.

Go among a crowd of wharfingers or longshoremen or the roughest and most reckless sailors, who have neither home nor principles of any sort, and talk to them of the things of the head or of the heart, and they will think that you are a harmless but quite futile specimen from crankdom. Try to awaken in them a horror of the brutality of their usual life, speak in moving terms of the force and beauty of kindness or of virtue or of any attribute of a polite and civilized society and way of life, and you will be soliciting the wind, talking to a statue, shouting in the desert. But in the most uncouth assemblage and in the vilest haunt in the English speaking world mention fair play and found your argument and your plea on that basis, and the effect is instant and eloquent.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Overloaded.

Corned beef hash as made by Senator Hanna's cook was very popular in Washington several years ago. When the head waiter of the senate restaurant wanted hash prepared very carefully he ordered it this way: "One corned beef hash for Senator Hanna." One day when the restaurant was doing a heavy business almost everybody seemed to want corned beef hash. "Corned beef hash for Senator Hanna" had been ordered fourteen times. When the fifteenth order went down to the kitchen the chef shouted: "That's fifteen orders for Senator Hanna! He'd better watch out or he'll founder hisself."

Saved the Situation.

"Ha, here comes Ratcliffe with a dagger! My last moment has arrived!" exclaims one of the characters in a new melodrama. Unfortunately, however, the actor representing Ratcliffe had forgotten the dagger and come on the stage without it. But he was equal to the occasion. "Villain," he exclaimed, "thou thoughtst thou sawst a dagger in mine hand. 'Twas thine evil conscience supplied the vision. But I will slay thee with a blow of this strong right hand," which he proceeded to do.

More Positive.

"Well," said Cudley scornfully, "I'll bet you didn't do the proposing. It's a safe bet that your wife asked you to marry her."

"No," replied Henpeck, "you're wrong."

"Oh, come now, be honest."

"No, she didn't ask me; she told me to."—Philadelphia Press.

Grindstones Wet and Dry.

The strength of a grindstone appears from tests to vary widely with the degree of its wetness or dryness, stones that are dry showing tensile strengths of from 146 to 186 pounds a square inch, but after soaking overnight breaking under stresses of 80 to 116 pounds a square inch.

That's What.

"A great deal depends upon the dressing," observed the thoughtful thinker.

"Speaking of what?" queried his friend.

"Women and salads," answered the T. T.—Exchange.

Those who want fewest things are nearest to the gods.—Socrates.

TIMELY TOPICS.

THE JESTER OF HEIDELBERG.

Long ago lived Perkeo
In the Tyrolene:
Form and face devoid of grace—
Poor his lot, I ween.
Yet, despite his low estate,
Perkeo was great.

His the thought that humor wrought,
Merriment his art,
And he knew where laughter grew
In the human heart.
Kings who found their glory sad,
Perkeo made glad.

Just to wile grave eyes to smile,
And turn care to sport,
Perkeo was bid to go
Like a lord to court.
Ever more an honored guest—
Knight of quip and jest.

Dead to fame is many a name
Great in days agone:
Lost to sight are prince and knight—
Perkeo lives on.
Still he seems to smile and quaff—
Ah! It pays to laugh!

ANCIENT LITERATURE.

How Some of It Was Luckily Saved From Destruction.

Considering that the whole of ancient literature was confined to manuscript, it is wonderful that so much of it has come down to us. The preservation of some old writings has been almost miraculous. To a single copy preserved in a monastery of Westphalia, for instance, do we owe all that we have of Tacitus. This is the more remarkable since the emperor of that name had copies of the works of his distinguished ancestor placed in all the imperial libraries and caused ten copies of them to be transcribed yearly. Still, only the one copy has been found in modern times.

A page of the second decade of Livy, we are told, was discovered by a man of letters on a battledoor while he was amusing himself in the country. He rushed up to town, but he was too late, for the battledoor maker "had used up all his parchment the week before." Two manuscripts of Cicero on "Glory" were presented to Petrarch, who lent them to an old preceptor. This latter gentleman, being pressed by want, pawned them and died without revealing the name of the pawnbroker. Two centuries afterward they were mentioned in a catalogue of books bequeathed to a convent, but could not be found. It is supposed that Petrus Alcyonius, the physician to the institution, appropriated them and, having transposed some of the thoughts to his own writings, destroyed the originals.

The original Magna Charta of England has certain mutilations, presumably from a pair of shears. It is said that Sir Richard Cotton, calling one day at his tailor's, discovered that that man was holding in his hand ready to cut up for a pattern a copy of the great Magna Charta, with all its appendages and seals.

THE STICKLEBACK.

After Winning a Fight His Colors Take on Brighter Hues.

Most courtly and gallant of fish is the three spined stickleback, the beloved "tiddler" of British youth. These little fish derive their name from the sharp spines with which they are armed and which they can raise or depress at will.

The female stickleback is the model wife of a model husband. She does not leave her eggs to chance, but establishes a nest or nursery for their reception, over which her irritated little husband keeps a jealous guard.

Woe betide the rival "tiddler" who rashly approaches too closely the domicile of his neighbor during the breeding season. With all his spines fixed for action the warlike parent steams out to offer him battle.

The contest that ensues is desperate, the combatants darting at each other with lightning rapidity, biting and striking at each other with their spines, a well directed cut from which weapon of offense will often rip up the body of the adversary, sending him to the bottom.

But most remarkable of all is the decoration which nature bestows upon the victor. The brilliant green of his mail becomes tinged with gold, while his red throat blushes to a deeper hue than ever.

On the other hand, his vanquished assailant, should he be fortunate enough to escape with his life from the battle, loses his brilliant and martial uniform of red, green and gold and retires to some obscure corner of his native pond, attired in a humble civilian uniform of sober and sorrowful gray.—Dundee Advertiser.

Parisians' Bread.

There is no city in the world where so much bread is consumed as in Paris. It is estimated that every inhabitant eats one pound a day on the average. Even in past centuries the French —especially Parisians—had a horror of stale bread. And, as in those days people manufactured their own bread, they had a curious way of making it palatable. Strange as it may seem, the bread they prepared—huge round or square slabs—was used as a dish on which the meat was carved and bore the name of "tranchoirs," or "tailloirs." The juice of the meat having penetrated into the bread imparted a pleasant taste and prevented it from becoming dry.

TROOPS STORM SEMINARY.

Expulsion of Catholics Causes Disturbances, But Resistants Escape.

Angers, France, Jan. 21.—The expulsion Saturday of a number of students from the Catholic seminary at Beaupreau was the occasion of serious disturbances.

Troops stormed the seminary building and broke in the doors, while the students, crowding the windows, bombarded them with stones, chairs and tables. The sub-prefect of police, the commander of the gendarmerie and the commissary of police were seriously wounded, while fifteen officers and soldiers were slightly hurt.

When the troops finally forced an entrance to the building they discovered that the students had escaped over the back wall.

Jap Squadron Damaged.

Tokio, Jan. 21.—The damage sustained by the training squadron, which was forced to enter Yokohama harbor Monday by a severe storm met after the squadron had started on a cruise to Honolulu, it not so great as at first supposed. It had been ascertained that the masts of one of the vessels was broken. During the storm the squadron lost six boats, and thirty of the crew were injured. It is expected that the voyage will soon be resumed.

An Overdose of Opium.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Dr. J. E. Elliott has decided not to hold an inquest on Roy Taylor, 689 Crawford street, who died from an overdose of opium. Taylor was 19 years of age, and was married a year ago to a daughter of Charles Gooderham, a Crawford street butcher. His brother-in-law, Joe Gooderham, runs a shooting gallery at 87 West Queen street.

On Goodwin Sands.

Dover, Jan. 21.—The British steamship Moldavia went ashore on the Goodwin Sands yesterday, but was refloated at high water and proceeded to London.

London, Jan. 21.—(C. A. P.)—The battleship Dominion is ordered to leave Bermuda for Chatham for permanent repairs.

WHEN MACAULAY SPOKE.

Then Flowed a Torrent of Oratory and Euphony.

What can be the matter? Doors open, members rush out; members are tearing past you from all points in one direction—toward the house. Then wigs and gowns appear. They tell you with happy faces their committees have adjourned, and then come a third class, the gentlemen of the press, hilarious. Why, what's the matter? Matter! Macaulay is up. You join the runners in a moment. It was an announcement one hadn't heard for years, and the passing of the word "Macaulay's up" emptied committee rooms now as before it emptied clubs; the old voice, the old manners and the old style—glorious speaking; well prepared, carefully elaborated, confessedly essayish, but spoken with perfect art and consummate management, the grand conversation of a man of the world confiding his learning and his recollections and his logic to a party of gentlemen and just raising his voice enough to be heard through the room.

As the house filled he got prouder and more oratorical, and then he poured out his speech with rapidity, increasing after every sentence, till it became a torrent of the richest words, carrying his hearers with him into enthusiasm and yet not leaving them time to cheer. The great orator was trembling when he sat down. The excitement of a triumph overcame him, and he had scarcely the self possession to acknowledge the eager praises which were offered by the ministers and others in his neighborhood.—From Whitty's "Parliamentary Retrospect."

ENGLISH SCHOOLS.

The Flogging Custom and the Way It Is Regarded.

About corporal punishment in England two curious facts lie beyond dispute. One is that while the working class and the lower middle class dislike and resent it and will not in general allow their children to undergo it, the aristocracy tolerate it without complaint. The time is coming, one might assert paradoxically, when it will be impossible to flog anybody but the son of a peer. And the other fact is that public school boys have often felt a special affection for the masters who have punished them most.

In Westminster abbey stand side by side the tombs of a master and his pupil. The master was Dr. Busby, who was head master of Westminster school for so long a time as fifty-eight years. Nobody ever flogged so many boys as he. The pupil was the theologian, Dr. South. It is told—I am sure the story is true—that when South came as a small boy to Westminster Busby greeted him with the ominous words: "I see great talents in that sulky little boy, and my rod shall bring them out." If so, he was no doubt as good as his word. But when South lay upon his deathbed it was his last prayer to be buried at his old master's feet, and the master and the pupil now rest side by side.—Nineteenth Century.

West Indian Negroes.

The West Indian negro is a born poacher. He catches the quail by the cruel expedient of strewing finely powdered cayenne or bird pepper in the little dust pits where the birds "wash." The burning powder gets into the eyes of the birds, which, confused and helpless, are then easily caught. When he wants a wholesale supply of fish, he explodes a piece of dynamite, which was probably intended for the making of new government roads, over a hole in a mountain stream, and the fish are killed by the concussion. But his favorite resource is the bark of the dogwood tree. This he drops into a river hole, and the mullet, intoxicated, comes to the surface of the water. This singular property of the dogwood has caused it to be employed as a narcotic.—Pearson's.

Noted the Symptom.

A little girl went for the first time to church with her mother. All went well during the service, but the child grew uneasy during the sermon, which was a long one. The mother tried in every way to keep the little girl quiet, but in vain. Finally the child observed that the preacher had a pompous way of inflating his chest and lungs at a new paragraph or head. Just as the mother was assuring the child that the preacher would soon stop, he did—for another start—and the tired child burst out on her mother's assurance, "No, he won't; he's swelling up again."—Woman's National Daily.

Scandalous.

Mr. Moth—Glad to see you on your feet again, old man! What caused all the trouble?

His Neighbor—Why, I dined off a seemingly woolen overcoat, and it turned out to be the worst kind of shoddy. I tell you the extent to which food adulteration is carried on nowadays is nothing short of criminal.—Puck.

Flowers and Voice.

Mrs. Howells (reading)—A German scientist claims that the odor of flowers has a pernicious effect on the human voice. Howells—That's all rot. I used to buy flowers for you before we were married, and your voice wasn't nearly so sharp as it is now.

Approval?

"Do you think they approved of my sermon?" asked the newly appointed rector, hopeful that he had made a good impression on his parishioners.

"Yes, I think so," replied his wife; "they were all nodding."

When Schumann was in love he wrote, "I wish I were a smile, that I might play about your cheeks."

Caused by A Kiss

By MARY BRAY

Copyright, 1906, by May McKeon

Billy kissed her. It had not been entirely unexpected. He had threatened, and she had laughed and teased him. Then it happened, and she had struck him a stinging blow in the face and run, plunging through tangled vines and bushes, tearing her light dress and scratching her arms on the blackberry thorns, until she broke into an open space where one might stop to breathe. She paused, then flung herself upon the ground, pressing hot hands to warm, flushed cheeks.

Why had Martha run away? Because she hated Billy? Oh, no, or she would not have gone blackberrying with him. Because she loved to scramble through brush and brier? Hardly. Why, then? Because (her thoughts rambled confusedly)—just because he kissed her. Perhaps Billy would come and find her. She waited quite a time, but he did not come, and at last, with a sigh, she remembered the blackberry pail and rose to her feet.

RAPIDLY SHE TRIED TO FORM A MENTAL PLAN OF ACTION.

It was a large pail, holding five gallons, and was much less than half filled. Not caring to retrace her steps, she crossed the open and pressed on to a blackberry patch farther away, one to which they seldom came. The day was blistering hot, and when the last glistening berry had heaped the pail she lifted it with tired purpled fingers and started home, carrying in her heart the feeling of a disappointing day.

It was quite a distance to the farmhouse, and the girl hesitated, considering which would be the shortest route, finally deciding upon a path not much used at that point, but soon communicating with the country road.

She had gone but a short distance on the path when a crunching step in the woods startled her, and a minute later a man stepped out from the trees, started at seeing her, grinned amiably and walked to her side. She stifled the first impulse to scream. There was no one near to hear, and it might be dangerous to show fright. So plucky Martha concealed her alarm and walked quietly on her way.

"Lemme carry the pail," he said. "It's too heavy for you."

"I can carry it," said Martha.

"Maybe you can, but I will," he responded and took it from her.

Rapidly she tried to form a mental plan of action. She could not shake off the instinctive feeling that the man meant harm, yet she knew the absolute futility of crying out or trying to run from him. If she could keep him from molesting her further until the path joined the county road she would be reasonably safe, as wagons and buggies passed there quite continually.

He began to talk, inquiring about the principal farmers around the vicinity—who they were, the best roads, the distances to towns—and she answered, never ceasing to be painfully alert, never slacking speed.

"Here, quit that pace!" he suddenly exclaimed roughly, putting one arm around her waist in a firm grasp. "You needn't try to run away from me, and I'm not going to run with you. Cut it out."

Her heart almost stood still. Then it flashed upon her that, somewhere near, another path ran from this one deper into the woods toward a deserted little cabin. That it stood open she knew. That the door could be closed and barred she also knew, having once taken refuge there in a rainstorm with a party of picnickers. Her eyes, now strained to unnatural keenness, discerned the break in the shrubbery where the second path began, not far ahead. Just as they approached it, with a sudden movement she tripped him, unguarded, sending him sprawling over the pail of blackberries as she wrenched herself away and dashed down the turning path, tearing along at a speed under any other circumstances impossible.

She had a start of several yards before he regained his footing and madly rushed after her. She ran till a pain throbbed in her side and her eyes swam, never faltering. Then it seemed to her that she was lifted to insensibility and sped on without volition, conscious only of speed. The cabin door was nearing, glimpsed through the woods, open. It seemed to her that a monster was coming fast behind and that she covered the ground by leaps, like a strange animal. Suddenly she left the path and made a short cut through the trees, so that for the instant he did not see her swift change of direction, and to this she probably owed her life. She tore into the cabin, almost fell upon a man within as he jumped from his chair and gasped, hardly knowing what she was saying: "He'll kill us! Lock the door! Run!"

As she fell exhausted to the floor she dimly sensed a man rushing out of the cabin in the direction from which she had come. Her breath came thick and painfully. She tried to think, and suddenly, like a lightning flash, came the query, "Who was the man in the cabin?" and a new terror seized her.

Then her flesh quivered at the sound of a horrible cry and two almost simultaneous shots, followed by a third.

How long she lay where she had fallen she did not know, for now fright and exhaustion seemed to have numbed her utterly, but when she was able to struggle to her feet she crept through the woods toward the old path leading to the country road, avoiding with a shudder the crooked path which led from the cabin. Finally she sat down by the wayside to wait for any passing vehicle, too spent to carry herself farther. And this time Billy, also disappointed, carrying his load of berries, came strolling along.

"Martha!"

At sight of the limp, bedraggled figure he cried out and fell at her side. She told him weakly what had happened, and, aflame with revengeful rage, he marched down the crooked path, leaving her for a minute alone. When he came back his usually ruddy face was white, though he would not give any explanation, and not until Billy had carried her home in his strong young arms and she had cried upon his shoulder and let him kiss her peacefully, rapturously, did he tell her that he had stumbled upon two dead bodies, dead, but warm, not five yards from each other, though separated by shrubbery and trees.

It transpired that the men were notorious criminals in hiding. When Martha had staggered in with her cry of "He'll kill us! Run!" the startled man in the cabin acted upon one idea—that he was about to be captured; that she had warned him. He had rushed out, fired at the figure approaching through the woods, and his shot was almost instantly returned. Both men had shot to kill.

As a curious beneficence from so harrowing an experience, the prize money paid for the delivery of the two criminals, alive or dead, gave a certain young couple a splendid start in the building of their new home.

The Second Duke of Wellington.

Lady Dorothy Nevill tells us that the second Duke of Wellington was a very clever and witty man, whom indolence or pride prevented from taking part in politics or anything else. He certainly was eccentric in manners and dress, generally wearing "an old soft felt hat and an aged cloak of the sort known as a roquelaure, a huge cape of black cloth, and this, combined with his goggles, made him a figure of a very noticeable and eccentric kind." One day the duke drove Lady Dorothy Nevill down to the Crystal palace to see an exhibition of donkeys, and when there his grace would insist on strolling about in the inclosure reserved for judges. Lady Dorothy told him they would be turned out and left him. Presently an official approached and said, "Sir, may I ask, are you a judge?" "A judge of what?" thundered the duke. "Of donkeys," came the reply. "Certainly I am and (looking hard at the man) a very good one too. Leave me alone." The man slunk back abashed, and there was more whispered consultation among the officials. But the queer intruder was recognized by somebody, and with many bows and apologies the Duke of Wellington was invited to become a judge, to which he agreed with much chuckling.—Saturday Review.

Ways of the Wild Elephant.

Wild elephants terrorize whole districts in India, killing men, women and children and destroying houses, granaries and fields. A woman and her two children were sleeping in their hut. One of the children heard a noise at the granary and woke the mother. The sound of the human voices from the house enraged the invading elephants, one of which charged the house, broke it down and killed the woman and one child. The remaining child escaped by hiding. At another time a woman was working at a ford. An elephant walked out of the forest and wished to cross the stream at the ford. As the woman was in the way, he picked her up, winding his trunk around her body, the end of it coming over her face and nose. Then he placed the woman gently, or as gently as he could, at one side of the path. He did not mean to hurt her, but nevertheless he broke her nose and one rib by the compression of his trunk. Again, an elephant found a mother and baby in a granary which he was demolishing. With its huge foot it crushed the baby in its cradle, but, picking up the mother, lifted her out of the house unhurt, placed her on the ground and then went on rummaging for grain.

Preliminary Practice.

"Your friend Popley hasn't had his auto very long, but he seems to manage it very well. He seems particularly clever at steering through a crowded street."

"Oh, Popley's all right! He's had years of experience with a baby carriage."

Hanway's Punishment

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

Copyright, 1906, by May McKeon

It was October when Tim came to school. The family had been visiting relatives in the west, and he had rejoiced in the prolonged vacation. It seemed rather hard to have to go back to school, and it was with laggard feet that he headed, with the rest of the scholars, toward the little frame building where the tender mind of district No. 4 was trained.

"The new teacher's soft," volunteered Tommy English. "The other day Bill Hendricks brought a bean blower and shot the teacher in the back, and all she said was, 'Please don't.' I guess there's going to be fun."

Tim smiled weakly. It was encouraging to know that he could practice his deviltments without the risk of a thrashing. The last teacher had been a man, and Tim had had good reason to remember him, for of the younger boys Tim was the ringleader, just as Hendricks was the leader of the older boys. That Bill had eventually thrashed the teacher and forced him to resign just before the end of the spring term was no great consolation to Tim.

The trustees had put in a woman teacher as an experiment, thinking that perhaps feminine appeal might be more potent than the hickory switch. Tim rather expected a gaunt old lady, as a certain Miss Flint had been, and when he made his appearance in the schoolroom and presented himself before the teacher he was shocked to find so young a woman.

Marion Murtha was only nineteen, and her fresh coloring and the liquid brown eyes made so deep an impression on him that for the first ten days he was one of the model scholars, and Miss Murtha was beginning to congratulate herself that the boy against whom everybody had warned her was not so bad after all.

GENTLY SHE EXPLAINED THAT SHE HAD BEEN HIRED TO TEACH THE SCHOOL.

In vain his fellows looked for some outbreak, and finally Tommy English twitted him on his susceptibility.

"He wants to marry her when he grows up," he jeered. "He'll be bringing her apples an' candy next. The ain't afraid; he's just soft, that's all."

The gibe struck home, for Tim had a big apple in his desk that he was thinking of giving Miss Murtha if he did not feel tempted to eat it himself during the noon hour.

"I ain't a-skeered of her," he said contemptuously. "I was just waitin' till I could think somethin' up."

"Yuh," jeered Tommy. "I didn't say you was a-skeered. I said you was stuck on the teacher."

The iron entered Tim's soul, and, with a dark "You wait and see," he raced off to the well.

He came stamping in when the bell rang and went to his desk with a swagger that was quite like his old time bearing. The desk next him was empty, and with infinite care he twisted two bits of slate pencil into a rubber band and dropped them into the other desk. The unwinding band rattled the pencils around in the empty box with a crash that stopped the Fourth Reader class and directed the eyes of the whole school on him. Tim tried to look unconcerned, but he could not refrain from casting a glance of triumph at Tommy English, and therein lay his undoing, for the teacher's eyes were quick and her intuition keen.

"Tim," she said sharply, "You will stay in after school tonight."

"I ain't done nothin'," he declared stoutly.

"I did not say that you had," she said quietly. "I said that I wished you to remain after school this evening."

"Aw," cried Tim, "that ain't fair!"

She said nothing, but went on quietly with the class work. Tim had expected her to answer, that he might talk back again. He could not understand this quiet ignoring of the matter and sat silent and uncertain.

During the noon hour Tommy English sought to persuade him into defying the teacher, but when 4 o'clock came and he made as though to go out with the others a firm hand was laid upon his shoulder, and Miss Murtha's quiet voice reminded him that he was to stay in.

To stay after school meant to spend a certain time in study. Tim scuffled back to his desk and sat there swinging his feet idly. He was determined that he would not study and wondered vaguely if the teacher would try to thrash him for his disobedience.

Presently the others were gone, and Miss Murtha went back to her desk. Another scholar had been kept in to rewrite the spelling lesson, and Miss Murtha waited quietly until the task was done. At last they two were alone, and she called to him. Not once had she noticed him before, and Tim went forward wonderingly.

"They told me that you were a bad boy," she said, "but I did not think that you would act so toward a woman."

"What's the difference?" he demanded. "You get paid to teach us, don't you, just like a man?"

Gently she explained that she had been hired to teach the school, but that she could not remain if she could not handle the pupils. If he and some of the other boys persisted in being disobedient, she would have to give up the school and they would have deprived her of a chance to earn a living. When she had finished, Tim looked up.

"Say," he said penitently, "I'll let you lick me if you want to. I won't fight back."

"I don't want to whip you," she said as she stooped and kissed him. "I want you to be a good boy; that's all."

Tommy English was waiting for him as the subdued Tim went out. "Did she lick you?" he demanded eagerly. "I didn't hear you holler."

With a howl Tim sprang at him and thrashed him as a relief for his overwrought feelings.

"An' I'll do it again if you say anything about Miss Murtha," he promised as he released his victim, "an' I'll lick any of you fellers what makes trouble for her."

It took but a week to make that fact apparent, and those who had taken advantage of the fact that Miss Murtha did not believe in physical punishment learned to behave.

Then came Ren Hanway upon the scene, and it soon became apparent that Marion had fallen in love. The proposition was almost too much for Tim to grasp, but in a vague way he realized that the teacher cared a great deal for Ren. He was not jealous, though he resented the lost walks home with Miss Murtha, because now Ren called for her with his buggy, and Tim was left behind.

But the course of true love never did run smooth, and one afternoon Tim came back to the schoolroom to find Miss Murtha, with her head bowed on her arms, her slight form shaken by sobs. Softly he stole out of the room and made for the village.

Ren would probably be in the office of the lumber yard, and thither he bent his steps. Hanway was working at his desk when the door burst open and Tim was upon him like a young catamount, pummeling and kicking indiscriminately. The attack was so sudden that it was several minutes before Hanway could grasp the youngster.

Tears of rage stood in Tim's eyes as he struggled to get free.

"You let me alone!" he shouted. "I've got to lick you. I said I was goin' to lick any feller that made Miss Murtha cry, an' I licked 'em all except Billy Hendricks, an' I threw stones at him."

"I didn't make her cry," laughed Hanway, though his face went very white. "What makes you think so?"

"You used to drive her home," cried Tim, "an' now you don't come any more, an' I went into the schoolroom this afternoon, an' she was cryin', with her head on the desk, an' I knew it was your fault, an' I want to lick you."

Hanway's face glowed with pleasure. There had been a small quarrel, but so successfully had she hidden her feelings that he did not think she cared.

"I'll hitch up and go right over to tell her I'm sorry," he said. "Will that do?"

"If she says yes," agreed Tim. Hanway went out.

That evening Tim was at the Presbyterian social when Miss Murtha and Hanway came in. Miss Murtha bent over and kissed him.

"My little champion," she whispered. "You have made me so happy."

"Then I won't lick Ren again," promised the pleased Tim. "I thought you'd want me to."

The Star and Her Public.

Of course materially the star is extremely well off. She can, if she has any business instinct whatever, easily become a rich woman. She earns, we will say, $500 a week and a percentage of the box office receipts. At that rate she need not be miserly to accumulate a tidy fortune in the course of a few successful years. A few successful years! Ah, there's the rub! The public is dear, kind, sympathetic, flattering—and fickle. Its regard is immediate and perhaps ephemeral. It adores you this year, flocks to see you, bursts its gloves applauding you, warms the cockles of your heart with its ready smiles, its ready sighs, tosses you flowers, sends you notes, makes you walk upon air with gladness. And next year it doesn't care for your play or there is some one new, some one bewitching, enthralling. Your personal popularity has evaporated. And you see yourself going the inevitable way—the way that greater actresses and greater favorites than you have gone before you, to their neglected, half contemptuously pitied old age—to the drummed up benefits and the condescendingly bestowed charity.—Ethel Barrymore in Harper's Bazar.

MEDIAEVAL LONDON.

Luxuries of the British Capital In Ancient Days—The Social Status of the Trader.

Not a few interesting things come out when we study the history of mediaeval London. One of them is the social status of the trader. The fashionable contempt for his business is of comparatively recent growth, not much more than a century old. No precise date can be given; but in the earlier part of the eighteenth century the feeling on the matter was not what it became in the nineteenth.

For hundreds of years before then the connection between the country and the city, the country gentlefolk and the city trader, had been most intimate. No more striking evidence of this can be given than the analysis of the origin of the 203 Lord Mayors from Henry Fitz-Aylwin down to the year 1633, a period of 210 years. Of these 156 were country born. When we consider what the mediaeval village was, how limited was the horizon of all but the lord of the manor or a knight here and there, it is not difficult to understand why many lads of good birth sought the opportunities offered by apprenticeship in the city. Camden is quoted to show that the nobility thought with shame of the merchant's career. He himself declared "mercantura non derogat nobilitati." These same country lads supplied the city, as indeed they do now, with the necessary fresh blood and energy.

Another important point is the fact that London was always great as a distributing not as a manufacturing centre. And this fact no legislation, no system of duties could alter. Fraternities of foreign merchants established themselves in their fortified houses and kept their trade jealously to themselves. The crown, so long as it got its tolls and duties, was content. Now and then, indeed, it endeavored to restrict their increasing trade, but its ordinances were always evaded. For London wanted what they alone could supply. It could supply itself well enough with necessaries, as Sir Walter Besant says, but neither London nor England has ever been content with necessaries.

The mediaeval city of 500 years ago was as full of luxuries as is the city of to-day—the best shopping place in northern Europe in the days of Edward III., as it is in the days of Edward VII. Entire fleets laden with nothing but wine came to London. Once or twice there were periods when a man could "get dead drunk for twopence," as the fascinating invitation of a later time put it; but the drink had by that time been changed from wine to gin. Mediaeval London had, indeed, the best of everything, paying for it all in wool. So Capgrave has it: "Our enemies laugh at us; they say: 'Take the ship off your gold noble and impress a sheep instead.'" (This was the noble of Edward III.) Napoleon repeated the taunt, but the laugh was not in the end with the foreigner. And how, it may be asked, did these good things go backward and forward? Not always securely. We could not always command the Channel, though we still claimed the sovereignty of the seas. In this respect things reached their worst, we are told, in the 14th century. Foreign merchants settled in London and traded. They came from Venice, Rouen, Genoa, Florence, Lombardy, Antwerp and Dantzig. And so the period was a halcyon time for pirates, for lords of manors who had foreshores, for fishermen and for wreckers.—From The Spectator.

Wolseley's Dread of Invasion.

Lord Wolseley has written two letters to Lord Wemyss on the possibility of the invasion of England. The following are some of the most striking passages:

"England can never have an efficient army during peace, and she must therefore accept the rebuffs and calamities which are always in store for the nation that is content to follow the breed of cowards who usually direct her great affairs.

"The day will come when she will violently and suddenly lose her former fighting renown to such an unmistakable extent that the plucky fishwives will march upon Downing street, and if they can catch its usual inmates, will rend them.

"One party is as bad as the other, and I hope and pray that when the national misfortune of a great defeat at sea overtakes us, followed by the invasion of England or Ireland—very possibly the latter — that John Bull will turn and rend the jawers and talkers who prevent us from being prepared to meet invasion."

Mainly For Housewives.

Each of the following items represents the task which a single pennyworth of electricity is capable of performing—in Loughborough, at any rate. The list was compiled by the engineer in charge of the Loughborough Corporation electricity department.

Your pennyworth of electric power will—

Clean 5,000 knives.

Keep your feet warm for 5 hours.

Clean 75 pairs of boots.

Warm your curling tongs every day in the year for three minutes, and twice on Sundays.

Knead eight sacks of flour into dough.

Boil nine kettles, each holding two pints of water.

Cook 15 chops in 15 minutes.

Run a sewing machine for 21 hours.

Carry you thirty times from the bottom of the house to the top, 80 feet each journey.

The Clock's Joke.

Owing to the erratic behavior of the Steyning (Sussex) church clock the local fire brigade were called out last week. The church bell, which is also the fire alarm, persisted in tolling more than twelve, and villagers and firemen rushed up only to find that the clock had hoaxed them.

MRS. C. E. FINK

HEALTH OF WOMEN

In this nineteenth century to keep up with the march of progress every power of woman is strained to its utmost, and the tax upon her physical system is far greater than ever.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers few drugs were used in medicines. They relied upon roots and herbs to cure weaknesses and disease, and their knowledge of roots and herbs was far greater than that of women today.

It was in this study of roots and herbs that Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., discovered and gave to the women of the world a remedy more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

is an honest, tried and true remedy of unquestionable therapeutic value.

This medicine made from native roots and herbs contains no narcotics or other harmful drugs and today holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any medicine the world has ever known, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., which testify to its wonderful value.

Mrs. C. E. Fink, of Carnegie, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— "I wish every suffering woman would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to you for advice. It has done me a world of good and what it has accomplished for me I know it will do for others."

When women are troubled with Irregularities, Displacements, Ulceration, Inflammation, Backache, Nervous Prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case.

MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN.

Many and sharp the num'rous ills
  Inwoven with our frame!
More pointed still we make ourselves
  Regret, remorse and shame!
And man, whose heaven-erected face
  The smiles of love adorn—
Man's inhumanity to man
  Makes countless thousands mourn.

See yonder poor o'erlabored wight,
  So abject, mean and vile,
Who begs a brother of the earth
  To give him leave to toil;
And see his lordly fellow-worm
  The poor petition spurn,
Unmindful though a weeping wife
  And helpless offspring mourn.

If I'm designed yon lordling's slave,
  By Nature's law designed,
Why was an independent wish
  E'er planted in my mind?
If not, why am I subject to
  His cruelty or scorn?
Or why has man the will and power
  To make his fellow mourn?

Yet, let not this too much, my son,
  Disturb thy youthful breast;
This partial view of human kind
  Is surely not the last!
The poor oppressed honest man
  Had never, sure, been born,
Had there not been some recompence
  To comfort those that mourn!

Customer: Penny stamp, please.

Postal Clerk: Next window; can't you read?

Customer meekly bows and affixes his stamp, and, returning to the first window, says. Will this letter be delivered in London to-morrow morning if I post it to-night?

Clerk: Of course it will.

Customer: You're wrong; it won't; 'cause it's going to Sheffield.

A boy aged five years, on entering a barber's shop, laid down twopence and asked for a haircut. Whether it was that the boy had an extra large growth of hair on this occasion, or that the price of a crop had increased, is not known. At any rate, the barber coolly remarked that the price was threepence. The child, undaunted, replied: "Tak tuppence worth off the noo, an' I'll get t'other pennyworth aft aifter."

The municipal election was over, and the magisterial vacancies had been filled up. The Monday following was one of the new bailies' first day on the bench. When the first prisoner was brought before him, he asked: "Are you guilty or not guilty?" "Not guilty," replied the man, promptly. "Then what are ye daein' here? Take that man awa, polisman, an' bring in ane that's guilty, an' I'll gie him saxty days."

The minister of a country parish lately preached a charity sermon, and the collection taken subsequently amounted to £23 7s 4 1-2d. In the vestry, after the sermon, the elders counted it out, and mentioned the result. "Well," said the reverend gentleman, "the congregation must have appreciated my sermon very much to have given so liberally." "Nae doot they did, sir," replied one of the collectors, "but the laird himself put in a £20 note, an' ye ken he's deaf!"

A good story is told of an inquisitive man. One day not long ago he saw a furniture removal van being loaded at the close opposite his house. His curiosity got the better of him, so he slipped across the street when no one was about and said: "I say, carter, are the people upstairs removing?" The carter looked at him with amused amazement, and answered: "Naw, naw, we are jist takin' the furniture oot for a drive."

In certain parts of England the word "putten" is erroneously used for "put." A teacher, giving a grammar lesson, explained the mistake. Soon afterwards he tested the children's knowledge by giving them three sentences in which they had to write the word "put" correctly. One boy, glancing at another boy's exercise, found he had made a mistake, so he stood up and exclaimed, "Please, teacher, "Jones has putten 'putten' where he ought to have putten 'put!'"

A fashionably dressed young lady, who was visiting some friends in Scotland recently, stalked proudly into one of the private pews of a little church. The beadle, an old fellow, whose caustic remarks sometimes got him into trouble, immediately bustled up to the visitor and said: "I am afraid miss, you'll hae to come oot o' that. This is a private pew, ye ken." "What do you mean, sir?" replied the lady irritably. "Do you know who I am? I beg to inform you, my good man, that I am one of the Fyfes." "I dinna care if ye are the big drum," retorted the beadle; "ye'll hae tae come oot o' that."

Don't Use Drug Cures for Headache

They Hurt You. Use Zutoo.

Don't think because the drug cures for headache do not make your heart palpitate, dull your nerves or upset your stomach just when you take them, that they are not hurting you, for they are.

The magazine "Health" speaks truly when it says: "Every dose of such drugs is at the expense of vitality, and sooner or later the penalty for outraging nature will be exacted."

You can avoid this penalty and cure your headaches just as quickly by taking the vegetable cure, Zutoo.

It is Harmless as Soda.

Obvious.

A reporter tells of one of the funniest scenes that ever occurred in the House of Commons due to an innocent remark made by Robert Spencer, who is now Lord Althorp. His Lordship was one of the greatest dandies of the House. He was noted for his fastidiousness in dress and had a very effeminate voice and manner. One evening he appeared in the House in an immaculate dress suit, with a white tie, a white waistcoat, and dangling a pair of white kid gloves in his hand. When his turn to speak came he arose with the utmost solemnity and began:

"Mr. Speaker, I am not an agricultural laborer."

From anyone else such a remark would have attracted no attention, but from him, in the costume he was then wearing, it sounded so ludicrous that the House roared with laughter, and it was fully ten minutes before he could go on with his speech.

Value of Advertising.

Willie Also Discovers.

A teacher in charge of the second primary grade at a Denver school was telling the children about Columbus one day not long ago. She told them all about the home life of the discoverer of America and all about his people.

"His relatives," she said, "were wool combers."

The next day Columbus was discussed again. "By the way, children," said the teacher, "do you remember what his relatives were?"

There was a moment of profound stillness. Then a little fellow in the rear of the room raised his hand.

"You may tell us, Willie," said the teacher.

"They wus barbers," said the boy.—Denver Post.

Oranges.

This is the West Indian way of preparing oranges for the table: Peel the oranges, taking off as much white skin as possible; then slice them off all round as you would an apple, regardless of the sections. This leaves the seed, tough, stringy central part and most of the inner skin together and is a much less tedious process than removing the skin by sections. Use a very sharp knife, so as to make clean cuts and not crush the fruit.

Cold Calculation.

"You should do something to claim the gratitude of posterity."

"What for?" asked Senator Sorghum. "I don't know that posterity will have anything I especially desire, and if it should have there is no way for it to deliver the goods."—Washington Star.

WITH LIFE OUT OF TUNE

ONE'S DAYS SURE TO BE FULL OF DISSATISFACTION.

THE REBELLION OF JONAH

New Interpretation of the Text: "Doest Thou Well to Be Angry?" Wherein the Preacher Enforcesthe Influence of the Emotions Upon Those Who Permit Themselves to Be Controlled by Them.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—In this sermon the preacher gives a new interpretation to the rebellion of Jonah, the prophet, and shows that when our own hearts are out of tune with God and nature life is full of discord and dissatisfaction. The text is Jonah iv. 9, "Doest thou well to be angry?"

Sometimes I am inclined to think that Jonah is the most famous character of the Bible next to Jesus Christ. There are many people who know nothing about Abraham or Samuel or David or Isaiah who know all about the wonderful story of Jonah and the whale. That one incident in his career has made him the most famous of the prophets. His fame is due not so much to the disciples of Christ as to the enemies of Jesus. No sooner does a man brought up in a Christian home begin to listen to the enemies of the Bible and get ready to cut adrift from all past Christian associations than he hunts up the book of Jonah and sets out to prove that the Bible is a pack of absurdities by holding up the story of this recreant prophet to ridicule.

It is very easy to ridicule this story. Very shallow men devoid of logic or the power of analysis can do that. It serves as a handle of attack on the Bible, which can be used by any man who hates the Bible for its uncompromising attitude against sin and dislikes it for demanding of every man repentance and faith. Perhaps if Jonah had told the people of Nineveh what had happened to him they would have laughed at that instead of putting on sackcloth. Do not let us be led aside into such foolishness or in any way to lay stress on this incident. Perhaps if we knew more about the story and the man who wrote it and Jonah himself we might find that there was no difficulty at all in it. It is a waste of time to dwell upon it when the moral of what the writer wants to teach is so obvious—that when God calls a man to a work it is useless to evade the duty, and if he does try to evade it he will be brought back to it by some means, ordinary or extraordinary.

Having spoken these few words in the way of introduction, I want to dwell on one of the most remarkable characteristics of that obstinate and wayward prophet's mind. After Jonah had gone to Nineveh and told the people of Nineveh that unless they repented and turned from their sins they would all be destroyed the Ninevites put on sackcloth and ashes and repented. Then God, mercifully noting that repentance, said that he would not destroy them. Then Jonah petulantly flew off into a violent rage. "There," he said, "my work of prophecy is all gone for naught! Thou, O God, hast made a laughingstock of me. I told the Ninevites they would perish in forty days. Now thou sayest they can live. Who will listen to my warnings in future?" So angry Jonah goes off upon the hillside overlooking the city of Nineveh and there sulks and sulks and pouts and pouts. He said: "I knew it. I knew God would not destroy them. And now my business of prophesying is ruined forever. No one will believe me." Then God speaks to Jonah the words of my text, "Doest thou well to be angry?" So I ask you to-day the same words. "Doest thou well to be angry?"

Now, why did God say unto Jonah, "Doest thou well to be angry?" "Oh," you answer, "that is very simple. You have not quoted the whole of the passage. The Bible says, 'Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd?' While Jonah was upon that hillside overlooking the city he sat under the shadow of a broad leaf that spread itself out as an umbrella over his head. This leaf had a mushroom growth. It grew up in a night. It grew so rapidly that you could almost see it grow if you watched it. But, like all quick growing fungi, it withered away even more quickly than it grew. While the prophet sat upon the hillside this leafy umbrella suddenly shrank and fell. Then the hot Assyrian sun beat down upon his unprotected head, and he was overcome by the heat. He had a sunstroke. He fainted dead away. When he came to, he was mad. He practically said 'O God, I feel so miserable I wish I were dead.' And I do not blame him. With parched lips and overheated brow and excruciating pains chasing themselves up and down his anatomy he might better be dead. There is no sun hotter on earth than the Assyrian sun. The old site of Nineveh lies to-day in the midst of a desert. Jonah was simply physically sick from the heat, and that, of course, made him mentally and spiritually sick also."

Oh, no, my brother, you are wrong. Jonah was not angry so much with the folding up of that great leaf which protected him as an umbrella as he was angry with himself. The gourd was a mere incident. God told him to go to Nineveh. He would not go to Nineveh. Then, like every man who does wrong, he got angry and out of sorts with his higher and better nature. And when he got angry with himself he got angry with all his surroundings. And when finally he had to go to Nineveh under compulsion, as a slave is driven to his task, he grumbled all the way there. He grumbled while he delivered his prophecy. He grumbled when the gourd was taken away. He would have grumbled if the leafy sunshade had remained open, just as he grumbled when it withered away. In other words, Jonah was grumbling with his surroundings, just as some of us are grumbling with our surroundings merely because we are not willing to obey God's commandments. When you and I get out of touch with God, every flower we see will become a weed, and every living creature that flies about us will b a hornet thrusting a sting, and every sunbeam will have a blasting heat, and every wind will be a sirocco hissing and moaning over a desert of sand. Jonah was not angry with the withered leaf. He was not angry with his own obstinate, sinful, selfish self. He was out of tune with the divine nature, and therefore he was out of harmony with everybody and everything.

My brother, do you want to see the sun shine again? Do you want to associate with loving, gentle, kind people? Would you have your pathway strewn with flowers and your heaven melodious with songs? Then get right with God. Get right with your better and truer self. Undo at once the wrongs you have done your neighbors.

But we must not halt here. Jonah's anger stands as the symbol of the small souled Christian that we see sometimes on a throne or in a bishop's chair, who says: "If the world cannot be saved through me, then I shall do all in my power to destroy it. If I cannot make all Christians surround my chancel or study my catechism or listen to my preaching, then I will do everything in my power to debar them from entering any other church or studying any other catechism or listening to any other preaching. What we want in religious work is a great church trust. And the man whom we want at the head of that great church trust is a man of our own denomination or selection. In other words, if I and mine are not going to get the credit for saving the world, then I and mine will do all in our power to keep the world from being saved." Is not that exactly the position of Jonah when he got angry with God because God had repented of the evil that he had said he would do unto the Ninevites and he did it not?

"There," I can hear Jonah say, "I knew it. I knew it. Here I was, the greatest prophet in all the east. The crowds everywhere ran after me. Whenever I lifted up my voice I could see men's cheeks pale and their limbs tremble. They were afraid to have me speak one word lest I might hurl a divine thunderbolt at them. I gloried in my power. When I went to faroff Nineveh, even there the people had heard of my fame. And when I entered into that city and began to cry, 'Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be destroyed!' pandemonium reigned everywhere. The people got as frightened as a lot of fawns being chased by the falcons which are trying to pick out their eyes. They immediately fell down upon their knees and began to pray. I was the biggest man in that town. What I said was quoted by every lip. But now God has gone back upon that prophecy. The forty days have passed, and every wall is standing, and the homes are all filled with happy families. He has ruined all my prophecy business. If I go back into Nineveh, the little children will follow me and laugh at me and say to me: 'Aha! There is Jonah, who said Nineveh was to be destroyed. Look about you, Jonah, and see the city. You are a fine prophet, Jonah! You could not tell the time of day with your eyes open, let alone what is going to happen to-morrow.'" "But it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry." Angry for what? Because God had saved a city? No. Angry because the people might not think him a great prophet, as they did a few days ago when he cried out, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be destroyed!" and yet, my brother, I want to ask you a question. Is Jonah's sinful, childish anger any different from the mean, despicable and repugnant jealousies of many of our modern Christian workers? I believe not. I believe it is not very different from that which is to be found in some of our own selfish hearts.

Oh, that we could one and all so sink our selfish personalities in gospel work that we did not care by what means the sinners should be led to the cross, as long as the wayward and the lost were able thereby to find Christ! May we be enabled to cease our sectarian conflicts. May we not strive to lift our sectarian creeds above the cross. May we cease to be bigoted and selfish Jonahs. May our one joy be to see men and women come to the cross. May we care not by what means sinners come as long as they are saved. Lord God, teach us to sink self that they Son, our Saviour, may be glorified before men.

But why was it that Jonah fled away from Nineveh, and why did he sail for Tarshish? I want to show you why he shirked his duty. To show the cause or why a sin is committed is often to show us how we may flee the results of that sin. Jonah wanted to be God's prophet, but he wanted to be a gospel soldier without having to meet the dangers and trials and sacrifices of a gospel warrior. I believe all this can be substantiated by studying the geographical position of the great capital of Sennacherib, whose palaces in nearby Kuyunjik were one of the wonders of the world.

Jonah was then living at the beautiful seaport town of Joppa, the present entrance to the Holy Land. The town sits upon the high cliffs. It is one of the most beautiful spots of the world. To the west are the broad waters of the Mediterranean. The waves were dashing over the rocks and tumbling in spray at his feet. To the east rose the mighty mountains. There were the gardens and the vineyards and the orchards. There were the ships coming and going. There was everything at Joppa to make life pleasant and happy. Lovely people, Edenic surroundings, all, all were there.

In other words, Jonah was God's soldier doing barrack duty. His barracks were in one of the most delightful seaport towns of the world. But after he had stayed there awhile and made his circle of friends and was just beginning to enjoy himself the word of the Lord came to him and said, "Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it, for their wickedness is come up before me." In other words, God said unto his prophet soldier: "Gird on thy armor, mighty prophet. Go forth to battle. Draw the sword of faith and strike at my enemies. Go into the citadel of sin called Nineveh, the great capital of the north."

Now, what happened? Jonah began to make excuses. I think I hear him say: "Lord God, why dost thou command me to go to Nineveh? Dost thou want to kill me? Dost thou want to destroy me? Nineveh is at least 700 miles to the northeast of Joppa. In order to travel toward it I will have to cross the deserts and be attacked by the wild beasts and be hunted by the Bedouin robbers, who are more merciless and ferocious than wild beasts. Besides, Lord, I must go alone. I will certainly die if I have to go." Then Jonah, in his own mind, began to conjure up difficulties. He piled them up and up until at last he said: "I will not go. No, I won't. God has no right to ask me to make this sacrifice." Then, as he makes this sinful resolve, he looks out of his window, and he sees a ship at anchor. It was taking on its last bale of cargo. It was just ready to sail for Tarshish. That was the ancient name for the modern country of Spain. And so he got into a rowboat and pushed out to the ship and set sail for the west instead of setting out to travel over the Assyrian deserts to the northern capital of Nineveh. And, my brother, you know as well as I know that the reason most of us flee our Ninevehs is because we are not willing to make the sacrifices God wants us to make.

But I cannot close this sermon without noticing another fact. Jonah was angry because God repented of the evil that he had said he would do unto the Ninevites and he did not. Why? Because these Ninevites were Gentiles and not Jews. In the sight of Jonah they belonged to the barbarians. He would not have cared so much if they had been Hebrews, as he was a Hebrew. But they belonged to a class outside of his own nationality. And from time immemorial the Hebrews always looked upon their God as their own God exclusively. Thus, by accepting this repentance of the Ninevites, God was practically saying: "Jonah, I am a God to the Hebrew. Jonah, I am a God to the Egyptian. Jonah, I am a God to the white and to the black and to the yellow skinned and to the Malay. I am God to all peoples, of all classes. Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." And I see Jonah sitting upon that hillside. I hear him say with angry lip: "Nay, Lord, nay. If thou are to be a God to the Hebrew, then be a God to the Hebrew race alone."

Some time ago I was talking to some of the ablest Bible students of the west, and without exception they declared that this national exclusiveness was one of the chief causes of the anger of this obstinate prophet. And yet, after I had been thinking along this line for a little while, I said to myself: "Are we not all Jonahs? Do we not want to hem in the work of Jesus to our own social and national cliques? Do not some of us say: 'What is the good of sending missionaries to China? Let China keep on worshiping its idols if it wishes. We are not responsible for what China does.'" Do we want our Christ to be the Christ of the harlot and the laborer and the black man? Are we trying with an intense yearning desire to bring all social classes into our churches and have the poor and the unfortunate worship Christ by our side in our own church pews? "Nay, nay!" some of us say. "Let the missions be run for the poor and the social outcasts. But, for me and my my home, let us worship Christ among respectable Christians in a respectable neighborhood, in a respectable way." O man, when thou art crowding the poor man and the harlot and the drunkard and the thief from the church door art thou not a Jonah, angry because God has forgiven the Ninevites their sins?

As I come to the end of this sermon I want to lead you for a moment within the mighty walls of this great capital of the north. I want you to see the mighty rivers that flow through it. I want you to see its dams and sluices and great canals. I want you to see its castles and walls and palaces and temples. Nineveh was not a village. Nineveh was the mightiest capital of the east. It covered an area of over 400 square miles. I want you to see the princes and princesses and nobles and common people now jostling each other. I want you to hear the songs of praises as they sing them to the great God who has forgiven them their sins. Then I want to tell you that this mighty people and this mighty city, after they had heard the warning call of Jonah and repented of their sins, fell again into sin. Their last sins were worse than their former sins. Two centuries later, in 625 B. C., God wiped out that city on account of those sins from the face of the earth and so obliterated it that for over a thousand years no one knew where this mighty capital of the east had stood. It disappeared more completely than did Pompeii under the burning lava of volcanic Vesuvius.

It disappeared so completely that, though Xenophon in 400 B. C. led his great army over its ancient site, he could not tell where the people of Sennacherib's capital had dwelt. So, like Nineveh, we who have once repented of our sins may fall again into sin and be eternally destroyed.

May God grant that the apostasy of a Nineveh or a Judas shall not be our spiritual doom. May we, one and all, every day of our lives continue to fight the good fight of faith as did Paul, who was the mightiest servant of Christ that ever lived. He said, "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection lest that by any means when I have preached to others I myself should be a castaway." Art thou becoming a spiritual castaway? "Doest thou well to be angry with God?"

WOUNDING A FIRE.

An Odd Superstition That Dates Back to Ancient Times.

A curious modern attempt to rationalize one of the oldest of superstitions is to be found in Kipling's "Life's Handicap." There Mulvaney checks the author from stirring the fire with Ortheris' bayonet on the ground that fire takes the heart out of the steel. The real reason is much more mysterious. It was one of the maxims of Pythagoras "not to stir the fire with a sword," and to this day the wandering tribes of North America and of northeast Asia hold it a sin to take up a burning ember for a pipe light with the point of a knife. The explanation is undoubtedly given by Johannes de Plano Carpini when he tells us that one of the Tartar superstitions concerns "sticking a knife into the fire or in any way touching the fire with a knife or even taking meat out of the kettle with a knife or cutting near the fire with an ax, for they believe that so the head of the fire would be cut off."

This is evidently connected with the ancient idea that fire is a living creature, a sacred animal, which must not be wounded by its human owners in case it should be annoyed and deprive them of its valuable services. Is this in any degree more irrational than the belief still existent among housekeepers that a feeble fire can be made to burn up by laying the poker across it.—London Outlook.

TEA BUGS AND TEA MITES.

They Are the Plagues of the Assam Tea Gardens.

Every animal and plant has its parasite, and from this general law, it seems, the tea plant is not exempt. Two insects are described as spending their lives in tea drinking. They are the plague of the Assam tea gardens and are known as the tea bug and tea mite.

The mites spend their entire lives on the tea plant and are never known to attack any other leaf. They live in families and societies on the upper side of the full grown leaf and spin a delicate web for a shelter. They then puncture the leaves and pump out the liquid in the plant veins.

They seem to become very dainty in their tastes, for a sprinkling of muddy water over their floor and tea table is the only remedy known to check their ravages. Even this is not always effectual.

The tea bug is still more destructive and is evidently possessed of an appreciation of the best kinds of tea, since it always attacks those of a mild and delicate flavor. Such as afford harsh and rasping liquors are almost entirely free from its attacks.—London Chronicle.

Leaving Security.

Johann Sieberlich is by nature suspicious; but, says the Albany Journal, he appreciates a reasonable proposition. A traveling butcher came his way one day and bargained with him for eight head of fine cattle. The price being satisfactory, the butcher felt in his pocket and found he had not brought his wallet.

"I have not the money with me," he said, "but I will drive the cattle to town and send the money back to you."

"Nein!" said Johann emphatically. "That goes not goot. You shouldt bring de moneys first."

"Well, I tell you what I'll do," said the butcher frankly. "I'll drive only six of them in, and I'll leave the other two as security for the debt."

Johann studied a moment and then his face lighted.

"All right," he said. "Dot is chust so goot. Ven you leave dose two you haf bought den it is sure you comes back und pays me."

NO PERSON

WOULD MAKE SUCH A PROPOSITION TO THE PEOPLE OF BELLEVILLE AS HAS OUR LEADING DRUGGIST, J. S. McKEOWN.

Did you ever know or hear of a person who would offer to return every cent you paid him if he could not build up and create strength and vitality for old people, weak, sickly women and children and the convalescent; create an appetite, cure stomach troubles; make those who are too thin fat, rosy and healthy. Or cure hacking coughs, chronic colds, throat and bronchial troubles?

This is exactly the offer our well-known and reliable druggist, J. S. McKeown, makes to every person in Belleville.

Mr. McKeown says Vinol is simply the most valuable and delicious preparation of cod liver oil known to medicine. It is the greatest known strength-creator and health-restorer. It makes the blood rich and pure. It tones up the tired, weakened digestive organs. It strengthens every organ in the body to do its work as nature intended, and wherever it fails he will give back the money paid him for it.

We advise every sick and ailing person in Belleville to try Vinol on Mr. McKeown's guarantee to return money if it fails. Remember, you get it at the store of J. S. McKeown, druggist.

THE SHORT LIVED DOG.

His Normal Length of Life but One-seventh That of Man.

Surely it is by an unfortunate dispensation of nature that the dog, beyond all question the chief friend of man among the other animals, should have a normal length of life which is no more, on a fair computation, than one-seventh of his own. There is no other figure which expresses the relative ages of man and his dog so well. The puppy of one year is about at the same canine age as the child of seven. At two years he is probably a little more advanced than a fourteen-year-old boy, but the canine age of three is very nearly equivalent to the human twenty-one. And so it continues through all the years of canine and of human prime respectively, the ratio fairly well preserved. It has to be admitted that the old age of the dog, thus computed, outlasts the old age of the man. One hears stories which seem to be fairly authentic of dogs living up to eighteen, and if we do hear stories of human beings living similarly up to 126, at least we do not believe them. But such an age for a dog is quite the extreme limit. The dog of ten years approaches the equivalent of the three score and ten which had been named as the fair end of the human creature's tether, and on the whole the multiplication of canine years by seven all through the stages of life gives the corresponding age of man better than any other figure gives it.—Westminster Gazette.

OLD LEATHER.

Uses to Which Discarded Boots and Shoes Are Put.

Old boots and shoes of leather are cut up into small pieces and then are put for two days into chloride of sulphur, the effect of which is to make the leather very hard and brittle.

When this is fully effected the material is withdrawn from the action of the chloride of sulphur, washed with water, dried and ground to powder. It is then mixed with some substance that will cause it to adhere together, such as shellac or other resinous material or even good glue, and a thick solution of strong gum.

It is afterward pressed into molds to form combs, buttons and a variety of other useful objects.

Prussiate of potash is also made out of old leather. It is heated with pearl ash and old iron hoops in a large pot. The nitrogen and carbon form cyanogen and then unite with the iron and potassium. The soluble portions are dissolved out and the resulting salt, added to one of each, produces the well known Prussian blue, either for dyeing purposes or as a pigment.—London Boot and Shoe Trades Journal.

A Doubtful Compliment.

Although Mr. Hobbs was taken at his face value by his son and heir, there were times when the youthful William's admiring tributes embarrassed his parent in the family group.

"I had quite an encounter as I came home tonight," the valorous Mr. Hobbs announced at the tea table. "Two men, slightly intoxicated, were having a quarrel on the corner. As usual, there was no policeman in sight, and they were in a fair way to knock each other's brains out when I stepped between and separated them."

"Weren't you afraid, father?" asked Mrs. Hobbs in a quavering voice.

"No, indeed! Why should I be?" inquired Mr. Hobbs, inflating his chest.

"I guess there isn't anybody could knock any brains out of my father!" said Willy proudly.—Youth's Companion.

Cock Crowers—An Extinct Trade.

"Cock crowers in the past got good pay," said an antiquary, "but theirs is an extinct business now. Cock crowers were employed by the rich in their town houses to crow the hour. They crowed only the rising hour for the most part, but during Lent they crowed everything—even the halves and quarters—all night long. It was a kind of penance. These men were trained from childhood to crow. Sometimes in their childhood an operation was performed on their throats to give them a more cocklike delivery. An ancestor of mine on the maternal side was a famous cock crower in his day."—London Graphic.

Influence.

No human being can come into the world without increasing or diminishing the sum total of human happiness, not only of the present, but of every subsequent age of humanity. No one can detach himself from this connection. There is no sequestered spot in the universe, no dark niche along the disk of nonexistence to which he can retreat from his relations to others, where he can withdraw the influence of his existence upon the moral destiny of the world. Everywhere he will have companions who will be better or worse for his influence.

The Usual Way.

When a mother forbade her daughter social gayety on the ground that she "had seen the folly of such things," the daughter very reasonably answered that she wanted to see the folly of them too. That is the attitude of youth toward the warnings of age.—London Lady.

Beards.

A. Brandt, in his writings on the human beard, proffers an opinion directly opposing that of Darwin that the beard is a hereditary remnant of animal growth. According to Brandt, it is an acquisition, so that even the occasional beard of women has a prophetic significance, for as man has overtaken woman in his whole organization so it is the case also with reference to the beard. But slowly women are following, and now 10 per cent of them show a stronger growth. The woman of the distant future would then likewise be adorned with a beard.—Die Umschau.

Ten Thousand Telegrams at Once.

In 1871 at a celebration held in New York in honor of Professor Morse the original instrument invented by him was exhibited, connected at that moment by wire with every one of the 10,000 instruments then in use in the country. At a signal a message from the inventor was sent vibrating throughout the United States and was read at the same time in every city from New York to New Orleans and San Francisco.

Energy the Human Power House.

the most capable of demanding and getting an excessive share of the general fund of nerve-energy from the human power-house for the following reasons:

(1) The feeling of vision is the most acute of all the senses, because it is actively aroused by one of the most imponderable elements known to science—light. By the impact of its delicate waves our consciousness is made to feel shape, motion, and color. Its rays, reflected from various objects, pass through the cornea, the aqueous humor, the crystaline lens the vitreous body, and there reach the retinal nerves. From this point an impulse is conveyed to the sight centres at the base of the brain, which with no uncertainty determine form, color, motion, quantity, and space.

(2) This work of seeing, requiring energy, is kept up continuously for sixteen out of the 24 hours, or 2-3 of our entire life.

A Recount Decided.

The recount of votes cast in the election for Reeve for the Township of Marmora and Lake took place at Marmora village on Friday last, before Judge Fralick. The vote as given on the evening of election day, was 178 for Bonter and 177 for Hilton. The latter claimed that there had been an error and demanded a recount. It was held and three ballots at one poll were found to have caused the trouble. One had not been properly marked, a straight line opposite Mr. Hilton's name being made, and in the other two cases the crosses were partly upon the lines and not entirely in the blank space. His Honor allowed Mr. Hilton one vote, which made the result a tie. The Township Clerk, who was present and who was the returning officer, cast his ballot in favor of Mr. Bonter, who was declared elected.

HOCKEY.

May be Many Stars in To-night's Stanley Cup Game.

Montreal, Jan. 21. — The second game of the Stanley Cup series will be played to-night between Kenora and the Wanderers, and it may be this will be the last cup match in Montreal for some time. Victory for the Kenoras means that the trophy will go west, and no one can say when it will come back again to this city. Even if they do not win to-night, the chances of the Kenoras are not ended, for there will, in that event, be a third game on Thursday. Both teams are looking to strengthen their weak places, and it is not absolutely known what will be the line-up to-night. The Stanley Cup is not an amateur trophy, nor are its conditions restrictive in any way, as may readily be seen from the composition of the teams now competing for it. The Wanderers got Hod Stuart from Pittsburg mainly for service in defence of the cup, and are said to have telegraphed to Pittsburg on Friday for Lorne Campbell, formerly of the Montreal Vics., to come on for to-night's game, in which he would take the place of Glass or Russell, neither of whom showed championship form in the first game.

Kenora brought down Joe Hall and Hot Ross, who are still members of the Brandon team, and will return to Brandon when the cup excursion is over. Ross played in the first game, and was a very great success. Hall is held as a spare, and Kenora hesitates to use him, as he is a foul player and so frequently penalized as to neutralize much of his value to any team. The centre was the weak spot in Kenora's line on Thursday, and it is said that Harry Westwick will come down from Ottawa for Monday's game to take the place of Hooper or McGimsie. Ottawa would gladly lend his services, or do anything else that would assist in defeating the Wanderers, but there is no definite information to be had as to Westwick's coming, and will not be till the teams go on the ice to-night.

SPORTING NOTES.

They must have the hockey fever pretty bad in Picton. The Gazette thus describes what took place after the news came that Picton had beaten the Brockvilles on their own ice: "When the news reached town about 10.30 Tuesday evening, that Picton had won by such an overwhelming score enthusiasts went wild with excitement. Bonfires were immediately started in four or five different places on Main street, and the boys were most industrious in feeding the flames with empty boxes appropriated from dry goods and other establishments adjacent, and shouting until they were hoarse."

The Trenton Courier says that an alleged hockey team called the Wanderers, hailing from Belleville, was beaten at Trenton recently by a score of 17 to 0. If that's the best the Wanderers can do they should keep on wandering and never come back.

The Kingston Whig had this to say of last Friday's hockey match: "The Frontenacs were defeated at Belleville on Friday night, in a fast exhibition of hockey. The ice was in fine condition for the contest, both teams playing the game of their lives. There was only one score made in the first half, Belleville getting one past Lumb after several ineffectual efforts. The heavy Belleville defence is accountable for Frontenac's defeat, they used their bodies and sticks to good purpose, putting Reginald Crawford to sleep, and cutting up the other forwards."

"Heavy Belleville defence" is good. The Kingston defence would easily outweigh the Belleville defence. Had they been as skilful as they were weighty there might have been another tale to tell. But Kingston never would acknowledge the corn.

At the meeting of the Eastern Canada Hockey League last Friday night motions to punish Spittal and Alf. Smith for brutal play in the Ottawa-Wanderer match were lost. President McRobie characterized the meeting as a farce and resigned from that office.

The juniors will go to Brockville to-morrow to play the Crescents of that town. A good deal depends on that match—for the locals. If they win they stand a good chance for the group championship. If they lose—well, it's 23 for theirs. But here's hoping they won't lose.

A rumor from Montreal says that Tom Phillips' foot was so badly hurt in Thursday's match that he will not be able to play to-night. A betting story, probably.

THE PIPE OF PEACE.

Always original, the Manitoba Free Press has surpassed itself during the recent Christmas season by the presentation of a handsome "Pipe of Peace." Accompanying the pipe is an illustrated booklet which charmingly tells of many Indian legends of the origin of the calumet and also gives some of the usages in connection with it. The pipe is a reproduction in terra cotta of an ancient decorated Indian pipe carved from the red stone of the famous Pipestone Quarry.

Called Swettenham Man of Great Power.

ADMIRAL DAVIS' OPINION OF THE GOVERNOR BEFORE THE CLASH.

Washington, Jan. 20.—In a report by Admiral Davis, apparently written before Governor Swettenham obliged the Admiral to withdraw from Kingston with the American warships, the following language is interesting in the light of the sensational event:

"As to the social conditions, the Governor, Sir Alexander Swettenham, seems to be man of great power. Judging from conversation with him, he holds the situation well in hand. He assures me that there is no need of police protection or relief; declined my offers to land wrecking parties to assist in hospital, to police streets, clear away debris and bury dead.

"Later, upon request, I landed 50 men under arms from the Indiana to prevent alleged mutiny at penitentiary containing between 500 and 600 prisoners: then proceeded in carriage with government officials to King's House. Governor, with family, were living in tents: accompanied Governor to city, and shall this afternoon probably withdraw guard at penitentiary, as he assured me he is capable of controlling situation. He has West Indian regiment 1000 strong and two companies of artillery, besides insular constabulary.

"I consider it my duty to remain for the present at least; situation is too confusing and conflicting stories, reports, complaints and rumors too contradictory to enable me at present to form a clear judgment of actual situation."

PARTED AS FRIENDS.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 19.—When Admiral Davis called at headquarters' house this morning to bid farewell to Governor Swettenham he waited 15 minutes. He then informed the Governor's aide that he would wait no longer, and requested him to tell the Governor that, in consequence of his attitude in not desiring American aid, he had countermanded President Roosevelt's order, despatching the supply ship Celtic, laden with beef for the relief of Kingston.

Governor Swettenham arriving at that moment, there was a brief private meeting, and the Governor escorted Admiral Davis to his carriage. Salutations were exchanged, and the Governor, replying to Admiral Davis' regret that he was unable to do more for Kingston, said: "All the more to your honor," adding a deep bow, evidently in reply to Admiral Davis' reference to his departure, and meaning that he would do the same if in the Admiral's place.

Admiral Davis told the Associated Press that he deeply regretted the Governor's attitude. He was still convinced that the Governor was unequal to the task of relieving distress; that this was evident from the fact that the American field hospital had tended many sick and wounded, and others were constantly arriving, having been unable to gain admission to the government hospital.

HOSPITAL UNDER STARS AND STRIPES.

The American hospital was established in Winchester Park, the property of the Jesuits, on Thursday, under the American flag, and in charge of Fleet Surgeon Ames and Surgeon Norton of the battleship Missouri, and aided by sisters of charity. The hospital received more than fifty sufferers, including persons with fractured bones and skulls, cases of blood poison, which had resulted from neglect of wounds, etc.

Governor Swettenham and the local medical men were greatly opposed to the American hospital, saying there was no necessity for it, as all the wounded already have been attended to. Surgeon Ames said the local medical men were ready to accept medical supplies, but wished no American interference with the wounded. Consequently there was much suffering, which the American officers were anxious to relieve. A party of sailors worked at repairing the hospital building to the last moment. Then they hauled down their flag and the Jesuits took charge, and they returned to their ships. The Yankton sailed at 1 o'clock, followed by the battleships at 4.

Governor Swettenham's attitude is construed by some as inspired by resentment of President Roosevelt's attitude toward Jamaican negroes on the Panama Canal.

WHAT YANKEES SAY.

Guantanamo, Cuba, Jan. 21. — (Special)—The United States battleship Missouri has arrived here from Kingston.

It was stated to-day that Governor Swettenham held up Saturday night's despatches from Kingston regarding his letter requesting Rear Admiral Davis to re-embark the American marines.

Just previous to the departure of the American warships the Mayor and City Council of Kingston sent a petition to the Admiral, begging the latter to remain, and the relief committee, headed by Archbishop Hubball, threatened to resign.

When the American surgeons left the hospital the patients wept and begged that they and the American warships would stay, and the Red Cross nurses declared that the Governor's action in causing the Americans to withdraw was nothing short of criminal.

Estimable Lady Died Yesterday

MRS. J. S. CROTHERS, NEE WALLACE, JOINS THE MAJORITY.

Mrs. J. S. Crothers, who had been ailing for some time, passed away at an early hour on Sunday morning, at her late residence, Charles street. Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss Isabella Wallace, was a lady who was well known in the city. She was in her 61st year, and the greater portion of her life was spent in Belleville. Mr. Crothers preceded her to the tomb some years ago. Mrs. Crothers had been for years a member of Bridge St. Methodist Church, and was a consistent Christian lady. A family of one son, Stillman, and two daughters, Misses Lilly and Bella, all of this city survive. Messrs. James, Archie and Robert Wallace, of this city, are brothers of the deceased, and Mrs. J. Earle, of Picton, and Miss May A. Wallace, of this city are sisters.

Rude Boreas Blew Great Guns Yesterday

CHIMNEYS AND TREES WERE BLOWN OVER, BUT, IN THE MAIN NOT MUCH DAMAGE.

During Saturday night, all day Sunday and a portion of Sunday evening, this section of the community was visited by a gale. The wind blew great guns, but fortunately, whilst some damage was done, it was comparatively slight.

Between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock on Sunday morning an electric wire at the corner of Bridge and Charles streets was broken, also one on Front street, near Bridge street. The Electric company were notified of the breaks, and, as soon as possible, they were repaired.

One of the large chimneys in the ruins of Hotel Quinte, situated on the south side facing Bridge street, fell yesterday afternoon, also a small portion of the south wall. Many interested people watched the ruins all day, expecting them to fall.

Last evening the footbridge gangway leading off Front street, had to be closed to pedestrians. This was owing to the fact that a portion of a chimney fell off the premises occupied by the Ritchie company. It was fortunate that no person was passing at the time or a fatal accident would no doubt have resulted.

In various parts of the city it was reported that chimneys were blown down from residences, and in this respect Mayor Sulman did not escape. As a family on Cedar street were taking their dinner the chimney was blown over, causing considerable consternation for a few minutes. Some of the falling bricks crashed through a bedroom window of a neighbor's house.

A number of shade trees about the city were deprived of limbs, and in a few cases nearly whole trees were blown over.

The severity of the approaching storm was indicated by the unusually low reading of the barometers on Saturday night. 29.50 was where the mercury dropped to.

A large piece of heavy framework, situated on the top of the Ashley block, Front street, fell yesterday morning and it was fortunate that no person was passing at the time, or serious results would have followed.

Some of the galvanized iron work, and even some of the woodwork on the Bridge St. Methodist tower was yesterday afternoon moved out of position, but it did not fall. Repairs will be made to it immediately.

Died In Thurlow

Mrs. Harry Caswell, who resided in Thurlow Township, died on Sunday morning. Deceased, who was 23 years of age, had been ill but a short time. She was a member of the Methodist church. A husband but no family survives.

COLE AND JOHNSON TO-NIGHT.

In presenting these well known comedians and composers of negro melodies, an entirely new field has opened to the colored performers. Hitherto the satirizing of the current fads and fancies has been the special perquisite of the white artist, but in their latest offering, "The Shoo-Fly Regiment," Cole and Johnson have boldly entered the arena of legitimate musical farce comedy. Those who see these clever comedians and their superb company to-night will no doubt be more than pleased.

FATAL FUNERAL.

"Wake" Causes a Fire; Nephew Killed in Going to Obsequies.

St. Jean, Port Joli, Que., Jan. 21.—The house of Antoine Morneau of St. Aubert was completely burnt down Saturday, with all the contents. Mrs. Morneau was being "waked," having died on Friday. Three men were badly burned in trying to save the corpse, which was partially burned. One of Mr. Morneau's daughters, who had just arrived home, lost her trunk, with all her clothes and $150 in money in the fire. There is no insurance.

Louis Morneau, merchant, of St. Jean Port Joli, who had gone to his aunt's funeral, was found yesterday morning, accidentally killed, on the I.C.R. tracks.

Took Her Money; Wedded Another.

Windsor, Jan. 21.—Anna Hogan came here from the United States and secured a position as a domestic. Some time ago William Strouhauer paid court to her, and in the belief that he intended to marry her she drew $348 out of the Dominion Postoffice Savings Department and gave it to Strouhauer. He then married another woman. She brought suit for the recovery of her money. She has nothing to show for the loans, but the justice has given her a decision for the full amount claimed, with costs.

Puzzling Disease Claims 25.

Shawnee, Okla., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five deaths within the last 15 days is the record of fatalities from a strange disease in a region along the Canadian River, about four and a half miles from Konowa, I.T., southeast of here. Many are seriously ill. The disease resembles spinal meningitis, but physicians declare that the malady is different in a number of ways.

Jewelry Store Robbed.

Windsor, Jan. 21.—One of the most daring robberies that has occurred in this city for some time took place about 1 o'clock Saturday morning, when the jewelry store of Raphael Bensetto, 79 Sandwich street, was broken into and goods to the value of nearly $500 taken. The robbers cleaned up everything in sight.

Swift Current, Sask., Jan. 21.—While at work at Wayne's Ranch, 40 miles north of here, Campbell McCutcheon, shot himself on Tuesday. Deceased came to Canada last year from Epsom, England. He has two brothers, Douglas and Stanley, both homesteading beyond the Saskatchewan River, about 50 miles north of Maple Creek.

Hangs Himself In Cell.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—Frank Smith, 8 Regent street, hanged himself in a cell in No. 4 Police Station on Saturday afternoon. He was arrested at 4.20 on a warrant charging him with abusing his wife, and in a fit of temporary insanity fastened a scarf round his neck and strangled himself.

Coal Breaker Burned.

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 21.—The breaker and washery of the Erie Co., at Avoca, near here, were destroyed by fire Saturday, causing a loss estimated at $150,000. The fire is supposed to have originated from a burning culm bank situated near the engine room of the breaker.

Governor Swettenham Asks Admiral to Withdraw Sailors.

Their Assistance No Longer Required —Admiral Davis Immediately Complies as the Only Course Consistent With the Dignity of the United States — Estimates of Jamaican Dead Too Moderate.

Kingston, Saturday, Jan. 19.—(Associated Press Despatch.)—Rear-Admiral Davis' mission of mercy to stricken Kingston came to an abrupt and painful conclusion to-day, in consequence of Governor Swettenham's objection to the presence of American sailors engaged in clearing the streets, guarding property and succoring the wounded and sick. It culminated in a letter to the admiral peremptorily requesting him to re-embark all parties, which had been landed.

Admiral Davis' was greatly shocked and pained and paid a formal visit to Governor Swettenham to-day to inform him that the United States battleships Missouri and Indiana and the gunboat Yankton would sail this afternoon.

To the Associated Press Admiral Davis said that immediate compliance with Governor Swettenham's request was the only course consistent with the dignity of the United States.

The friction between the governor and Admiral Davis began with the arrival of the American war vessels. The governor objected to the firing of a salute in his honor on the ground that the citizens might mistake the firing for a new earthquake. He also declared there was no necessity for American aid — that his Government was fully able to preserve order, tend the wounded and succor the homeless.

Admiral Davis, however, landed parties of bluejackets, who patrolled streets, cleared debris, razed ruins, attended many of the wounded and won the highest praise from citizens and military officers or excellent work.

Newspapers Making Trouble.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Acting Secretary of State Bacon last night when shown the despatch from Kingston regarding Governor Swettenham's attitude toward Rear-Admiral Davis, who went to Kingston with two battleships, a cruiser and a torpedo boat destroyer to administer aid to the stricken people at once declared that it was not true. He charged that the newspapers were trying to make trouble between Rear-Admiral Davis and Governor Swettenham. "There is not truth in it," he said emphatically. "I know what I am talking about. There is not the slightest kind of trouble or foundation for it in any way, shape or manner. The ships have not sailed. I know exactly what happened," he added, "there is no foundation for it in any manner. That is prefectly straight. If you are looking for facts those are the facts."

Mr. Bacon would not disclose the source of his information, but indicated possibility of official advices.

Estimates of Dead Too Moderate.

The original estimates of killed were too moderate. Over five hundred victims have been buried, and scores of half-burned bodies have been taken from the ruins of collapsed buildings and cremated at the crossings of thoroughfares, with the view of avoiding the outbreak of an epidemic.

Fully one thousand persons have been maimed for life, their legs or arms having been amputated, and those who sustained lesser wounds are counted by thousands.

Nothing has been done as yet toward the reconstruction of shattered buildings, or even to repair the damaged residences in the northern and eastern parts of the city and in the suburb of St. Andrew. Indeed, it is impossible to do anything to this end.

Vultures Reveal Dead.

Last night the streets of the burned district still reeked with the stench of decaying bodies. The burned ruins were illuminated only by the baleful glow of the corpse fires lining the roadways.

To-day many bodies were recovered through the aid of vultures, which perch in flocks on the ruins. As fast as they are uncovered the bodies are thrown on the funeral pyres and slowly consumed.

The total number of known dead is about 750, and it is believed there are at least 150 persons who have not been accounted for.

Food is coming into the city from the country districts, but a famine is greatly feared.

Quakes Continue.

Slight earthquake shocks continue at irregular intervals. There were five on Thursday, four during Thursday night, and two this afternoon. But the people are ceasing to be alarmed at them, and are beginning to face the future calmly, even if somewhat hopelessly.

The steamer Port Kingston, carrying an enormous crowd of passengers, including Sir Alfred Jones and his party of distinguished persons, as well as the West Indian delegates to the interrupted agricultural conference, left here Friday for England by way of Barbados.

Refugees Report 1,000 Dead.

Santiago, Cuba, Jan. 19.—The steamer Oteri, the second refugee ship from Jamaica, arrived here at daylight. She left Kingston Friday morning, and brings 132 passengers. The refugees report that the list of dead from the earthquake and fire is over 1,000. Continued light earthshocks were felt up to Thursday. A large proportion of the persons killed were women.

Governor Swettenham feels that he now has the situation well in hand.

No brick houses in Kingston remain standing.

Relief Steamers Sail.

New York, Jan. 21.—The Hamburg-American line, Atlas service, steamer Allegheny, with a large quantity of stores and clothing for the sufferers by the earthquake in Jamaica, sailed Saturday for Kingston. A still greater quantity of supplies went by the same line's steamer Prinz Joachim, which sailed for Jamaica and South American ports yesterday.

Contribution of $10,000.

Halifax, Jan. 21.—The board of directors of the Bank of Nova Scotia have contributed $10,000 to the provincial fund for Jamaica's relief.

FAMILY OF FIVE WIPED OUT.

Worst Tragedy In History of Calgary Just Brought to Light.

Calgary, Jan. 21.—The worst tragedy in the history of Calgary was discovered late Saturday night when it was found that a whole family had been practically wiped out of existence. Father and mother and newborn babe are dead, while two children aged three and four are dying.

The first known of it was when a telephone message was received at the police station that a family named Ferdinand, a proprietor of a tannery, living in an isolated part of the city, had not been seen for several days.

The constable at once went to the house and forced open the door, when he was confronted with the sight of Mrs. Ferdinand, partly dressed, lying dead on the kitchen floor. On searching the house Ferdinand was also found dead in bed, with his two-year-old son alive, but unconscious, his arm around his father's neck. The boy's body was warm, but his legs were frozen almost to the knee.

A new-born child, dead, was also discovered in bed.

In a cot near, with blankets nailed to the framework, was a four-year-old son, also unconscious, and with frozen feet and legs.

Mrs. Ferdinand had evidently partly dressed, and was attempting to light the kitchen fire when overcome.

The children have been removed to the hospital, but hopes of their recovery are poor.

There are rumors of foul play. The real cause of death of Ferdinand has not been ascertained, although the others froze to death.

Couple Nearly Drowned.

Kingston, Jan. 21.—Henry Eaves and wife, Simcoe Island, near here, had the narrowest kind of an escape from drowning Friday afternoon. In driving home from this city when about 500 feet from shore a large piece of ice gave way, precipitating the outfit into the water, which is 40 feet deep at that spot. The horse and cutter sank immediately. The woman and man were rescued by several men attracted by the cries of the frightened couple.

DECAPITATED IN SHIP'S WENCH.

Well-Known Stevedore of St. John Meets a Horrible Death.

St. John, Jan. 21.—A terrible death was met by Wallace Brown, a well-known stevedore, Saturday morning. He was caught in a wench on the Donaldson liner Athenia and crushed to death.

As soon as his perilous position was noticed, word was sent to stop the engine, but before the machine had been brought to a standstill Brown had been twisted around and killed.

The body of the unfortunate man was terribly mutilated. Both arms were taken off and also the head. Mr. Brown was one of the best known stevedores in St. John, about 33 years of age and married.

From Chicken-Pox To Cholera.

CURE-ALLS NO LONGER TOLERATED.

In early days every barber shop was an operating room and the town physician resorted to bleeding as the sure cure for all ailments from chicken-pox to cholera. As a result, many, including the first U.S. President, died prematurely.

The present low rate of mortality is due in large measure to the advances made in medical science and the knowledge of the specific treatment needed for each disease known.

There is no disease more common among American and English people than dyspepsia. So prevalent has it become that thousands suffer with it half unconsciously, consider the symptoms as natural to their physical constitution and resign themselves to living on in that condition.

There is a remedy for dyspepsia, and only one, recommended and endorsed generally by physicians: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have stood the test of years of use by millions of sufferers, have been subjected to governmental analyses in Europe and America and alone have been found to contain the elements which Nature has put into the stomach for digestion—pepsin, diastase and other ferments.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve the stomach and bowels in a perfectly natural way by helping them do their work. If the stomach is weak in gastric juice, Stuart's Tablets make up the deficiency. If the muscles are inactive, Stuart's Tablets invigorate them. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of food entering the stomach, one grain of the active principle of these Tablets being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of meat, eggs and other foods. They are not cathartic pills—their action is simply that of a digestive.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure nothing but dyspepsia, waterbrash, sour stomach and kindred ailments resulting from the imperfect digestion of food, but these diseases they positively cure.

We will gladly send you a trial package to prove the truth of our claims. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can be gotten of all druggists at 50 cents. F. A. Stuart Co., 69 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

RAILS SPREAD—WRECK

Great Northern Winnipeg Express Is Wrecked.

Four Or Five Badly Hurt—Clerk of Manitoba Legislature, Mrs. Blow of Fort Frances, Ont., and E. H. Lewis of Chicago Injured—Possible Deliberate Attempt to Wreck Hospital Train—Wrecks On Big 4.

Minneapolis, Jan. 21.—The Winnipeg flyer, or Great Northern Express, was wrecked half a mile east of Oslo at 9 a.m. Saturday owing to the spreading of the rails. Three passengers were injured, and while railway officials positively decline to give out their names or any particulars, it was learned that the list of injured will not exceed probably four or five, and that none were killed.

The known injured are Mrs. A. E. Blow, Fort Frances, Ont.; E. H. Lewis, Chicago, and A. H. Corelli, Clerk of the Manitoba Legislature, Winnipeg. Mrs. Blow is in a dangerous condition in the hospital here suffering from severe body bruises. Mr. Lewis has a deep cut on the head, but will recover. Corelli has a bad scalp wound, two ribs broken and other injuries, but his recovery is anticipated.

It is possible a deliberate attempt was made to wreck the hospital train returning here from the scene. An employee of the railroad, M. Schnider, found every bolt in the fish plates of the rails for a quarter of a mile east of Robbinsdale cut and removed, and many of the spikes partially withdrawn. The train was due in a few moments when he made the discovery. He was able to communicate with sectionmen, who flagged the train within a few rods of the damaged tracks. Railroad officials say this may have been done by a damaged wheel on another train, but will institute a most rigid inquiry.

RAILWAY HOLOCAUST.

Sixteen Bodies Roasted In Wreck of Big 4 Flyer—Passenger Train Crashes Into Freight.

Fowler, Ind., Jan. 21.—At least 16 persons were crushed or burned to death Saturday in a collision between a freight train and the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis "Queen City Flyer," which left Chicago Friday night. Ten persons were seriously injured and several more slightly hurt.

The passenger train was running 56 miles an hour, and consisted of a combination coach, three sleeping cars and a Big Four private car, occupied by Mrs. C. E. Schaff, wife of the vice-president of the railroad. The train was destroyed by fire, except the private car and one sleeping car. Seven of the dead have been identified. Eleven of the victims were burned to death in the combination coach, and only two of these have been identified.

With but one exception, every member of the passenger train crew perished. None of the passengers in the sleepers suffered serious injury.

There were many instances of presence of mind and rare heroism among the passengers who were uninjured.

Yesterday afternoon enough fragments to make eight bodies were recovered. It is probable the exact number of victims will never be known.

CAR OF POWDER EXPLODES.

Wrecks Train on Big Four and Kills 22 and Injuries 35.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 21.—Twenty-two charred and mutilated bodies were taken from the smouldering ruins of the accommodation passenger train on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis (Big Four) Railroad, following its destruction Saturday night by the explosion of a carload of powder as it passed a freight train at Sandford, Ind., five miles west of Terre Haute. The number injured will total at least 35.

The cause of the disaster has not been fully explained. The result was terrible. The shock was felt for 30 miles, many believing it an earthquake.

The entire train, including the locomotive, was blown from the track, the coaches were demolished, the engine was hurled 50 feet and the passengers were either blown to pieces, consumed by fire or rescued in an injured condition.

30 Or 40 Dead.

Big Four officials, who yesterday directed the cars of the injured, said that the death list might reach between 30 and 40. Already 13 dead bodies have been identified, and five unidentified bodies have been taken from the wreck. Four other persons are missing and probably dead.

According to E. W. Thiers, local freight agent, enough remnants of bodies have been found to indicate a dozen more victims or a possible total of 34 dead.

How the Sentiment Grows.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 21.—The Regina Grain Growers' Association Saturday passed the following resolution:

"Whereas the Governments of Manitoba and Alberta have committed themselves to a Government-owned telephone system in these provinces, and whereas no announcemnt has yet been made by the Government of Saskatchewan respecting the telephone system in this province, therefore be it resolved that this association urge upon the Government of Saskatchewan the necessity of giving early consideration to this matter, and that we endorse a Government-owned telephone system for the province."

Government Will Make Money.

Ottawa, Jan. 21.—The Government are purchasing the machinery required for the making of its own coinage. This is necessary, as the royal mint is so far complete that the contractors are doing finishing work inside the building.

Asked For His Version.

Colonial Office Asks Gov. Swettenham For Information.

Why Did Rear-Admiral Davis Withdraw His Warships From Kingston? Is the Question to Be Answered—Meanwhile Gov. Swettenham Asks British Government to Thank U. S., Which Is Done.

London, Jan. 22.—After conferences yesterday between officials of the Foreign Office and of the Colonial Office, the latter cabled to Governor Swettenham of Jamaica asking him for his version of the situation which led to the withdrawal of Rear-Admiral Davis' warships from Kingston.

Asks For Thanks for Americans.

Shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Colonial Office received a despatch from Governor Swettenham asking the British Government to convey to the Government of the United States the thanks of Jamaica for the American assistance rendered by Admiral Davis.

The telegram contains no mention of the incident involving the departure of the American warships, regarding which the British Government is still awaiting direct information.

Great Britain's Thanks.

The despatch has been forwarded to the State Department at Washington, with the addition of the thanks of the Government of Great Britain for the aid rendered by the American admiral.

Replying to a telegram from the British charge d'affaires at Washington, reporting that the State Department had enquired whether Great Britain desired or was willing to accept further assistance in money or other form of aid for the Kingston earthquake sufferers, the Foreign Office yesterday replied as follows:

A Tentative Refusal.

"The offer of the American Government to give further aid is gratefully appreciated by His Majesty's Government. The Governor of Jamaica has not yet reported its requirements fully, but now that the first few days are over, it appears likely that there will be no justification for further calls upon the generosity of the United States. In the meantime, His Majesty's Government has been requested by Sir Alexander Swettenham to convey to the Government of the United States cordial thanks for the prompt and powerful assistance which the United States navy, under Rear-Admiral Davis, rendered to the inhabitants of Kingston in their suffering."

Citizens Indignant.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22.—The indignation of the residents of Jamaica, both official and private citizens, at the action of Governor Swettenham in demanding the withdrawal by Admiral Davis of the relief forces is spreading and intensifying. The governor's response to Admiral Davis' letter, is bitterly denounced and it is generally declared that the only possible reparation is for the Government to apologize and recall Governor Swettenham. The deepest regret is expressed lest the action of Governor Swettenham may disturb the entente between the United States and Great Britain.

Mayor Tait upon the departure of Admiral Davis, voiced the sentiments of citizens in a letter to the admiral.

Admiral Davis replied, thanking the mayor for his expression of approval of the services of his officers and men, saying:

"As a foreign naval officer, I am bound to respect the wishes and requirements of the supreme authority of the island."

The conditions in Kingston are improving slowly.

Many bodies are still being recovered and cremated and it is believed the fatalities will reach a total of 700.

There are still frequent tremors of the earth. A quake of especial severity occurred at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, but did little damage.

Difficulty is experienced in inducing the negroes to work, on account of the prevalence of the conviction among them that this was a "white man's earthquake," and that it would be dangerous for colored people to interfere with an act of God.

The city is still in darkness. The street railroad service to the suburbs has been partially resumed.

An Official Enquiry.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Mr. Esme Howard, charge d'affaires at the British embassy, called on acting United States Secretary of State Bacon last night, and presented a letter from Earl Grey, principal Secretary of State for Great Britain, regarding the Davis-Swettenham incident. In his message Earl Grey says that he is causing an official enquiry to be made to determine the authenticity of the letter purporting to have been written by Governor Swettenham to Rear-Admiral Davis.

Will Not Notice Insult.

Washington, Jan. 22.—From official sources it is learned that no attention will be paid by the United States Government to the action of Governor Swettenham, of Jamaica, in asking Admiral Davis to withdraw his forces from Kingston. It is held here that the act of the Governor is that of a single individual, for which the British Government is in no manner to be held responsible.

"NO RELIEF NEEDED."

Significant Cable From the Canadian Agent In Jamaica.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—The following telegram was received at the Department of Trade and Commerce yesterday from the Department's commercial agent in Jamaica: "Earthquake followed by fire 14th. Large loss of life and individual loss in Kingston. Island not seriously affected otherwise. No relief required. Have information published in principal centres. (Signed), Eustache Burke."

Toronto Votes $5,000.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The City Council yesterday endorsed the action of the Board of Control in granting $5,000 for the relief of the sufferers in Jamaica, and ordered the City Treasurer to act at once.

Earth Still Shaking.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 22.—Severe earthquake shocks are reported from Alexandrovsk, the port of Sakhalin and Elizabethpol.

MILLION LOSS IN BUFFALO.

Property Losses From Hurricane Lessened—There Were Four Deaths.

Buffalo, Jan. 22.—The hurricane which swept the Niagara frontier Sunday has subsided, and a more extended examination of the damage to shipping lowers the original estimates. At the Port of Buffalo alone, however, it will amount to about $1,000,000.

The high waters of Lake Erie receded yesterday, leaving some of the stranded lake liners high and dry on the sandy beaches. None of them appears to be seriously damaged, but the expense of getting them afloat again will be very heavy. They are grain-laden and valued at $12,000,000.

Death List Totals Four.

The death list totals four. Three persons were killed in the collapse of buildings, and another was drowned in the lake while being brought to a place of safety.

Reports from nearby places are that much property loss was occasioned by the high winds.

Niagara Falls power is again running the street cars and lighting the city.

The United States Government sustains a loss of from $100,000 to $200,000 from destruction of breakwalls.

Storm Damages Church.

Goderich, Jan. 22.—The wind on Sunday played havoc with the recently finished Methodist Church. Through the destruction of a 30-foot brick chimney, tons of brick and mortar crashed through the steel roof, wrecking the magnificent organ and surrounding fixtures.

Train Traffic Suspended.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 22.—Traffic on the Ohio River division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has been entirely suspended because of the flood. The Ohio River is still rising here at a stage of 40 feet, and industry is at a standstill.

An Unlucky Spot.

Ingersoll, Jan. 22.—During Sunday's storm a large barn in course of erection on the farm of Thomas Thornton, West Zorra, was blown down. The building was being erected on the site of a barn destroyed by lightning last summer.

Schooner Wrecked.

St. John, N.B., Jan. 22.—The three-masted American schooner Horace G. Morse, which sailed from here on Saturday noon for Philadelphia with a cargo of laths, was wrecked that evening during a blinding snowstorm on Bliss Point, down the bay. The schooner is a total wreck, and the captain and a seaman were drowned.

Tried to Cut Throat With Glass.

Brockville, Jan. 22.—For the second time inside of one month, Mrs. L. Piercy attempted suicide here. First she drank laudanum and recovered. When arrested by the police on a charge of drunkenness she spied a drinking glass in the cell and breaking it in pieces was hacking her throat with the ragged edges when a constable intervened. The magistrate gave her 23 months in the reformatory.

Col. Pinault's Estate.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—Col. L. F. Pinault, late Deputy Minister of Militia, left an estate valued for probate at $32,146. Bequests are made to the Congregation of Notre Dame, a religious order, of $4,000; $2,500 each to brothers and all real estate to his widow.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

SPORTING NOTES.

The cup goes west. The speedy Kenora Thistles beat Wanderers 8-6 last night, and are now in possession of the battered old mug which, during recent years, has been the cause of so many heads being broken. The Kenoras won on their merits, according to the despatches, but they can thank the clean sportsmanship of the Wanderers for it. Had the latter put up the manslaughter game played by the Ottawas the Westerners would again have had their trip for nothing. This is Kenora's third trip after the Stanley cup, and they would have landed it last year only for the murderous methods used by the Ottawas to beat them. Good luck to Tom Phillips and his bunch of flyers. May they hold the cup as long as they play clean hockey.

The Winnipegs, leaders of the Western League, will challenge for the Stanley cup.

Frank McGee, it is said, will turn out with the Ottawas for the remainder of the season's matches.

The salary list of the Wanderer Club has been a matter of keen interest during the season and it is said that the figures run in this way: Herne, $450; Johnson, $600; Glass $750, and Stuart, $1250, a total of $3,050, which is rather more than other clubs will expend in the players' market.

Brockville Times: "The Crescents had another splendid practice on Saturday night for the championship match with Belleville when they are called to win by a good margin. The Crescents are working hard to take the remaining games of the series."

Some people are bound to be pretty badly disappointed to-night. Here's hoping their address is not Belleville. The local boys are in fine shape, and will do their best to win this evening's game. If they do they should see the finals; if not—well, it will probably be 13 plus 10 for theirs. Here's luck to them.

Picton has obtained a certificate for a new player named Milton Hicks, who is said to be a regular Hod Stuart on the defence. The Pea Canners think he is the real goods.

Hockey results last night: Peterboro 14, Midland 5; Ottawa 6, Shamrocks 2.

The O.H.A. has decided that Brockville will pay Belleville the same amount that the former drew from the latter when they played here.

Says the Engineer Did Not Whistle.

MR. J. P. ROSE, OF THIS CITY, HAD A NARROW ESCAPE TODAY.

Mr. J. P. Rose, who lives on Coleman St., this city, had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not death, this afternoon. He was coming into the city, over the Geddes St. crossing, and was driving a horse attached to a buggy. Mr. Rose says he was proceeding at a leisurely pace, thinking no trains were near, as he heard no whistle. Just as he got over the track a train came round the curve and flashed by at a fast rate of speed. Just as the engine reached the crossing, Mr. Rose says, the engineer blew a blast on the whistle, causing Mr. Rose's horse to be more frightened and run away. The rig collided with a milk wagon, which was standing near, and the buggy was upset and badly smashed up, Mr. Rose himself being severely bruised, but fortunately not seriously hurt. Mr. Rose alleges that, had the engineer blown his whistle when approaching the crossing, as he should have done, he (Mr. Rose) could have been a considerable distance away from the track when the engine passed.

Lt.-Col. Halliwell Broke His Ankle.

Lt.-Col. Halliwell, of Stirling, who was in this city yesterday afternoon attending the conference of fishermen, returned home last night, and had hardly landed in Stirling before he met with an accident which will probably lay him up for some time. It seems that the Colonel was walking on a slippery walk and fell heavily. When assistance reached him it was found that his ankle was broken. Col. Halliwell's many friends in this city will sincerely regret to hear of his mishap.

No Reciprocity Possible.

That seems to be the final word on reciprocity which was spoken by Mr. Cannon, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives to a large delegation on Wednesday.

This word was that the Republican policy was irrevocably fixed on maintaining the home market as "a monopoly," and finding a foreign market for surplus manufactures.

The meaning of that sweet word, "reciprocity," said Speaker Cannon, depends on the man who uses it.

The policy of a maximum and minimum tariff, the speaker admitted as being practical, yet he dwelt on the virtue of the maximum tariff in the light of a big stick to be used against every nation that discriminated against U. S. products, and he explained how such a measure should be drawn to enable the executive to "retaliate."

The ordinary U. S. tariff is double that of the Dominion. Mr. Cannon gives a plain intimation that it will not be levelled down for anybody. The home market is to be "monopolized."

Mr. Cannon's announcement is a pointer to the Canadian Government. There are a few things amongst us regarding which his policy of protection could be used with advantage.

Amongst them is the supply of electrical energy which cannot be too closely conserved for the Canadian people, the supply of timber, pulpwood and nickel, the manufacture of which could be better carried on within our borders than allowed to drift away in a state of nature.

Literary Notes

"The history of cosmetics is older than that of many other branches of medical science," writes Dr. Anna M. Galbraith in the February Delineator, "But the Greeks used the word in a very different way from that in which it is now used. Under the term 'cosmetics' the Greeks included the education of the mind as well as the physical development and preservation of the body, together with the improvement of its beauty.

"From this broad meaning, the term 'cosmetics' has been narrowed down to any preparations which render the skin soft, pure and white, or help or process to be able to help to beautify or improve the complexion.

"Cosmetics comprehend the care of the skin, the general health, the correction of physical deformities; hence baths, massage, exercise, physical training, outdoor life, proper food and clothing all come under this head.

"An ideal complexion combines the qualities of clearness, translucency and fineness of the outer skin, with a proper disposition of the blood-supply.

"In illness the skin becomes dull, opaque and lustreless; with returning health its proper translucency and brilliancy return.

"It will readily be seen that no external applications can produce such qualities as fineness of texture, translucency and the delicate play of coloring produced by the contraction and dilation of the blood-vessels.

Says Hudson River Is In Quake Zone.

Albany, Jan. 21. — According to State Geologist Clarke, the Hudson River region of New York may experience a seismic disturbance similar to that which damaged Kingston, Jamaica, on Monday.

"We are accustomed," said Clarke to-day, "to think of this part of the earth as very old and very stable, but the earth floor is still in highly imperfect adjustment, and while the Mohawk carries its annual heavy load of debris into the Hudson and the Hudson shifts it on to the seaboard, the very transference of such a load changes the stresses on the earth floor, which may ultimately be relieved only by a readjustment of the rock blocks.

"This readjustment goes on quietly by the displacement of small blocks or suddenly by the movement of a large one, but that it is actually in progress right here may be seen at a number of places along the Hudson Valley, where the soil has been disturbed by the recent movement of the rocks beneath."

The joint and fault planes which intersect all this region from the Hudson Valley east, west, north and south are old wounds in the rock crust, which have never been and never will be healed until the earth has shrunken to a dead planet and all the rivers have run dry.

The most violent and destructive earthquake that has ever occurred in America since the coming of the white man was due to a displacement along such a weakness line running up the St. Lawrence Valley and down Lake Champlain. Though this happened more than 200 years ago, such lapse of time is influential geologically, and the region is no more exempt to-day from such a disturbance than it was then.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining or the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Bridal Wreaths.

The bridal wreath is usually formed in Germany of myrtle branches; in France and England, of orange blossoms; in Italy and French Switzerland, of white roses; in Spain, of red roses and pinks; in the islands of Greece, of vine leaves; in Bohemia, of rosemary; in German Switzerland, of a crown of artificial flowers.

Brain Weight.

A large brain does not signify intellect. The brain of an illiterate person in a low station of life has been found to outweigh those of the most celebrated scientists, poets and philosophers.

Cruelty to Goldfish.

It may not be generally known that there is cruelty in the keeping of goldfish. Half of such captives die from sheer want of rest. As fish have eyes so formed that they cannot endure the light, in a glass vessel they are in an entirely wrong place, as is evident from the way in which they dash about and go around and around until fairly worn out.

Cats and Birds.

Cats, if they have an opportunity to hunt birds and rabbits, will give no time to the hunting of rats and mice. Thus many cats are good mousers in the city and bad mousers in the country.

Luxury of the Ancients.

Twenty-seven hundredweight, or nearly one and a half tons, of gold plate was often placed on the tables of ancient Roman epicures.

Cooked Foods.

Cooked foods should be eaten moderately warm, not hot. The high temperature injures the mucous lining of the whole digestive apparatus and by increasing the flow of perspiration renders the skin more susceptible to chills and colds. The habit of eating hot food also increases a desire for liquids, and thus one bad habit leads to another.

PUNY EAST INDIANS.

The Native Born of English Parents Are a Sorry Lot.

"The queerest sight you see in India is the native born," said the sailor. "The native born is the thinnest, softest, laziest, sallerest thing in the way of a white man that was ever invented.

"And he is the proof that England won't never colonize India. For the English can't live in India, you see. The moist heat of that there land, with its nights of 110 degrees and its noons of 130 or worse, takes the strength and backbone out of an Englishman, gives him liver trouble and makes a complete wreck of him.

"If he goes back home, he may recover his health. If he stays in India, he don't never recover it. If he has children born in India, those children are called native born, and for poor, little, puny, spiritless critters they're the limit.

"If them native born English have children in their turn—well, that third generation of native born has none, at least. It is a generation of idiots, paralytics, cataleptics, cripples. If you was to see an army of native born of the third generation, you'd think you had the rams sure.

"Let England get out of India. She does the Indians only harm, and what she does for herself is to turn tall, strong, bloomin' young colonists into them skinny, yeller, whimperin' specters what you call native born."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE ART OF TALKING.

Things That Are Essential to a Good Conversationalist.

To be a good conversationalist you must be spontaneous, buoyant, natural, sympathetic, and must have a spirit of good will. You must feel a spirit of helpfulness and must enter heart and soul into things which interest others. You must get the attention of people and hold it by interesting them, and you can only interest them by a warm sympathy—a real, friendly sympathy. If you are cold, distant and unsympathetic you cannot get their attention.

To be a good conversationalist you must be broad, tolerant. A narrow, stingy soul never talks well. A man who is always violating your sense of taste, of justice and of fairness never interests you. You lock tight all the approaches to your inner self, every avenue is closed to him, and when they are closed your magnetism and your helpfulness are cut off, and the conversation is perfunctory, mechanical and without life or feeling.

You must bring your listeners close to you, must open your heart wide and exhibit a broad, free nature and an open mind. You must be responsive, so that a listener will throw wide open every avenue of his nature and give you free access to his heart of hearts. —Success Magazine.

Undiscovered Crime.

"Can you point out a man who at the age of thirty has not committed at one time in his life a crime that would have sent him to the penitentiary?" remarked a trusty at the penitentiary the other day. "I do not believe that there is a man living, excluding, for the looks of the thing, the clergy, who has not done something to bring him here had he received his just deserts. It is not always a great crime that sends a man to the penitentiary. There are men in here for stealing chickens or clover seed or nothing at all. It is easy to get behind the walls. There are many men on the outside who should be in here. I am personally acquainted with a few myself. But the difference between these people and myself is that I have been caught and they have not."—Columbus Dispatch.

DANCE OF THE LAMAS.

Adventures of a British Agent in Bhutan and Thibet.

Mr. Claude White, the British political agent at Sikkim, made two expeditions into Bhutan last year and during the late summer, details of which are now published for the first time, says The London Daily Express.

During the first journey, which was undertaken to invest the Tongsa Penlop, the ruler of Bhutan, as a Knight Commander of the Indian Empire, for the services he rendered during the Thibet campaign, the entire country was crossed, and portions of Thibet which had not been visited by white men were traversed. Everywhere Mr. White was received with absolute friendliness.

The Tongsa Penlop himself undertook a difficult and dangerous journey of over ten days from his residence at Biaga to meet Mr. White at Lhakhang. At Lhalong Monastery, one of the most noted in Bhutan, the chief incarnate lama is the nephew of the Tongsa Penlop. Here a great reception was organized in honor of the British political officer.

As the caravan approached up the gorge towards the ancient monastery it was met by masses of lamas, all wearing dark red robes. When Mr. White and the Tongsa Penlop had been escorted up to the monastery an extraordinary lama dance was organized in their honor. This took place in the courtyard of the monastery, the various dancers wearing grotesque masks of animals' heads.

During the summer mission Mr. White was beyond the limits of Bhutan proper, and traveled for a prolonged period through hitherto unknown parts of Thibet.

Mr. White came across the takin (Budocas axicolor), an exceptionally rare animal, which, so far as is known, had never been previously seen alive or shot by a European. Mr. White was presented with a very fine specimen by the Tangso Penlop, but it died in the Chumbi Valley on its way home.

Its habitat is just below the snow line. This extremely rare animal, which in appearance is half-ox, half-antelope, is stated by the natives to exist only in three places in Bhutan.

The foothills of Bhutan are admirably adapted for the cultivation of rubber, etc., and the people are extremely anxious to trade with us. Eventually, it is stated, they will form a valuable market for Manchester cotton goods.

Mr. White discovered a shorter route to Lhasa than the one now known.

British Soldier and Religion.

At the first meeting of the committee recently appointed by the British Secretary of State for War to advise the Army Council in all matters affecting the spiritual and moral welfare of the army met at the War Office. Mr. Haldane, War Secretary, made a brief address, in the course of which he said: "No soldier fights his best who is not an idealist, and touched with idealism about his duties. Every man has in him a latent spark which can be kindled and which can send through him that idealism which raises him to a different level of personality. There are times when the history of our race has shown that it is so."

After alluding to the stimulus of religion on the body and the fact still that the British soldier, simple as he is, is capable of being profoundly stirred by the broad features of religious life, which brings home to him the consciousness that he has a side of his nature in which he is more than a mere finite being, a side in which God is imminent in him.

In conclusion, he said: "I am very glad of the evidences which pour in on me from all sides of the fact that the increase in the education and the intelligence of the men of to-day, as compared with those of a generation ago, are telling on the condition of the soldier in the army, and are beginning to raise him to a higher level.

"But we want to stimulate this advance, and we feel that we can best stimulate it under the supervision and by the advice of those who are concerned with religion—with religion in its broadest sense. And it seems to us that in the army is a field in which those who are concerned may find abundant opportunity of working together, as indeed they are already doing to a considerable degree."

High Priced Bumblebees.

Many years ago the farmers of Australia imported bumblebees from England and set them free in their clover fields. Before the arrival of the bees clover did not flourish in Australia, but after their coming the farmers had no more difficulty on that score. Mr. Darwin had shown that bumblebees were the only insects fond of clover nectar which possessed a proboscis sufficiently long to reach the bottom of the long, tube-like flowers and at the same time a body heavy enough to bend down the clover head so that the pollen would fall on the insect's back and thus be carried off to fertilize other flowers of the same species. The bumblebees sent to Australia cost the farmers there about half a dollar apiece, but they proved to be worth the price.

His Weapon.

In some parts of Ireland it is a custom among bank clerks to speak of one another as "officers" to the bank, but little Jim Bender, the recently imported Cockney waiter in a County Mayo hotel, was not aware of this custom.

"Have you seen any of our officers here this morning?" asked a lordly knight of the quill of Jim a few days ago.

Jim glanced keenly at his interrogator.

"Yussir," he answered promptly; "it isn't three minutes ago since one of 'em went out with his sword be'ind 'is ear."—London Answers.

CHIEF INSPECTOR FOREST.

Scotland Yard's Chief Detective a Terrible Man For the Criminal to Meet—Man of Iron.

Chief-Inspector Forest, the strength of whose iron hands is only matched by his adamantine will and cold physical courage, became the executive chief of Britain's detective force at Scotland Yard on November 1. Inspector Forest is perhaps the most famous detective now living, and by sheer force of intellect, character, and courage has worked his way up from the lowest rung to the foremost position in Britain's detective force.

The Man of Iron.

At the top of his work, Mr. Forest is a terrible man for the criminal to meet—keen, relentless, afraid of nothing and never unsuccessful. And this man, the mention of whose name sends a shiver through every well-known criminal in every country in the world, is a person whom you might meet any day as a man-about-town, a good humored, genial fellow of forty, who can tell a cheery story with the best, can discuss the latest novel or the chances of the favorite for the Derby. Pooh! you would laugh at the idea that this was the man of iron, of quick decision in danger, and sudden, desperate action. This witty, smiling raconteur, who is on good terms with a thousand acquaintances, a great detective! He is merely an amusing companion, fond of gossip! Fancy a detective being fond of gossip! But it will be a wise criminal who distrusts this detective when he gossips. He never gossips in vain. No man ever had more of the gift of being entertaining while he says nothing that matters. He is possessed with a loquacious taciturnity. It has proved a trap for many.

Committed a Theft.

Mr. Forest went to London from Bristol years ago. It was when he was a young detective sergeant that he scored his first big success by committing a theft. An educated young governess had suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, and foul play was suspected by her friends. A thousand efforts were made to ascertain her fate, without success, and then the mystery was placed in the hands of the young detective. He thought over all that had been done, and made inquiries on his own account, but a week went by without the elucidation of the great mystery.

Then one day young Forest had an inspiration. Near where the missing girl had been employed as a governess there was a matrimonial agent's office. Mr. Forest called on the old proprietor, explained that his visit was to exhaust all possible avenues of information. The old man, evidently fearful of being mixed up with anything which had the slightest appearance of shadiness, indignantly denied that he had seen anything of the girl in question. Somehow Mr. Forest's suspicions were aroused, and noticing photographs lying about the room in which he and the agent were seated, he made a pretext about wishing to see various records, and succeeded in obtaining the old man's absence for a few minutes.

Unearthed the Story.

Directly the man was gone, Forest swiftly ran through the photographs, and to his surprise found one of the girl's taken side by side with a young man. When the agent returned the photo was in the detective's pocket. Mr. Forest said good-by without an indication that he had met with any success. By means of that photo Forest found out first the story of the young governess and then the young governess herself. She had embezzled property, and had done it all so cleverly that the world at large looked upon her as the victim of mysterious fate.

Narrow Escape From Death.

Needless to say, Frank Forest has carried his life in his hands scores of times. Here is one of his escapes. A French criminal moved to London, and Forest holding a warrant for his arrest, did not capture him at once, but had him shadowed in order, if possible, to secure his accomplices. All day the Frenchman was kept in sight, and at night there was always a detective in the house where he slept, with others outside. Four days later the time had come, and the inspector took his man on the Embankment, put him in a cab, and drove to the station.

"You've had a narrow escape, Forest," said the friendly Frenchman.

"How's that?"

"Why, I have known all along that you and your men have been shadowing me. I knew I was under observation, and the sensation was terrible. I could not escape. I could walk about, go where I liked, and yet I was pinioned, I could not stand things. I determined to make an end of it all. You remember following me along Piccadilly yesterday? Well, I pulled up in the doorway of the tobacconist's, took a revolver from my pocket, and determined when you came abreast of me to shoot first you and then myself. By some extraordinary chance you did not come right up to me. You turned off a couple of yards before you reached me and went up a passage."

"I was going up to Vine street station," said the detective. "I had another man fifty yards along the pavement to pick you up."

"Well, your turning up that passage saved your life."

"Thanks," said Mr. Forest.

That criminal is now serving a life sentence in a French penal settlement for the subsequent murder of one of his friends in Paris.

Got His Answer.

An Englishman traveling in Ireland complained that he could find none of the famous Irish wits of whom he had heard. He was advised to speak to the next farmer or teamster he met. A little later he encountered a peasant leading a horse with a load of turf. The horse had a blazed face.

"What a white face your horse has, my man!" said the Englishman by way of an opening.

"Sure," replied the Irishman, "your own will be as white when it has been as long in the halter."—Birmingham Post.

No man finds salvation until he finds himself.

Uncle Peter

By EDITH M. DOANE

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

Thomas Coleman, cold, reserved, ambitious, sat at the head of the heavy library table. Beside him his pretty, fashionable wife drummed softly with her finger tips on the polished mahogany and watched her husband sideways out of her dark, inscrutable eyes.

The other Coleman, Elizabeth, stood by the window, a letter with a queer South American postmark in her hand.

"Poor, lonely old man," she said softly. "Listen, Tom. 'I'm kind of hungerin' for the sight of a face that belongs to me,' and this—'I jest want to get acquainted with my own folks'—isn't that pathetic?"

"'I ain't beholden,' she went on, scanning the letter swiftly. 'I don't ask no favors, but I'd kind of like to feel that them that is to have the little something I leave will have a kindly feelin' for the old man who scraped it all together, when he's gone.'"

She looked up with swift comprehension at the tense attitude of the other two. "You do not suppose that 'little something' can be a fortune, do you?" she said half nervously.

"It might be as well," Thomas Coleman suggested, "to acquire more definite information concerning it before—ah—committing ourselves." Thomas Coleman was a man whom his friends called "level headed."

"May be nothing in it," he added.

"But if there should be?" suggested his wife, still drumming softly on the polished wood. Only his wife knew how fearfully Thomas Coleman had been hampered in money matters lately.

"Whether there is or not, he has a claim upon us," put in Elizabeth, hotly. "He's a poor, lonely old man—our father's brother."

Thomas Coleman raised a remonstrating hand. "Be reasonable, Elizabeth. We do not know him. It is not to be supposed that we can offer him a home indefinitely unless we receive some little—ah—remuneration in the end."

"I HAVE COME TO TAKE YOU HOME WITH ME."

"Although it would be in line with Elizabeth's quixotic ideas to do so," said Tom's wife, sharply.

Elizabeth was a standing grievance with her sister-in-law—Elizabeth, who was supremely indifferent to the value of money—Elizabeth, tall and straight and splendid, who preferred a self supporting life in a tiny flat to dependence in her brother's beautiful home, and who proposed to "throw herself away" on a fellow whose only lack was that of money.

She confronted them now indignantly. "It is a shame!" she flashed, looking like an enraged princess, with her flaming cheeks and heavy, red gold hair. "A lonely old man begs for affection. He freely offers us all he has. Be it much or little, it is all. In return you weigh and appraise and calculate. Oh," she broke off, "I am ashamed of you. Let us make him honestly welcome, whatever he brings."

And in that first day, while the others held aloof, it was Elizabeth who, in warm hearted, impulsive fashion welcomed the little old man enveloped in a shaggy greatcoat, who regarded his "own folks" with shrewd blue eyes which looked out rather wistfully from under the shaggy brows.

On the second day Uncle Peter approached Thomas Coleman.

"Some mornin' when it's convenient I'd like to go downtown with you. I want to find Willie Moore's office," he added apologetically.

Thomas Coleman looked up quickly. "William T. Moore, the lawyer?"

The old man nodded. "Willie Moore's father and me was boys together, and I always had considerable confidence in Willie. I've got a few papers I'd kinder like him to keep," he added.

The few papers turned out to be $5,000,000 worth of shares in the El Juarez gold mines.

Uncle Peter's welcome was assured.

For six months he was the recipient of every attention which the solicitude of his beloved and happily surprised nephew and his wife could devise; then, one day, like a bolt from a clear sky, the storm burst.

The El Juarez mines were flooded!

The rumor started in the Mining Exchange when stock that had been $150 was quoted at $25 a share; then the reporters got it and the journals flaunted great headlines of "Panic In Wall Street!" "El Juarez Mines Flooded!" Later the report was confirmed, and by 3 o'clock the shares of the El Juarez mines were not worth the paper on which they were written.

The old man to whom the mines had been a lifelong companion stared desperately at the flaunting headlines, then, covering his face with his rough, worn hand, gave way to his grief with the abandon of a child.

"Them mines was jest like my own child," he sobbed. "I knowed they wasn't actin' up jest right when I left 'em, but I never suspicioned they'd fetch up where they her," and again tears flowed unrestrainedly down the furrowed cheeks.

Disappointed, imbittered, almost maddened by the loss of sorely needed wealth just within his grasp, Thomas Coleman broke the silence.

"Don't worry," he said coldly. "You are not too old yet to find some suitable employment."

Uncle Peter looked up in astonishment, then as the meaning of the cruel words dawned upon him his face went suddenly and pitifully white.

"I kinder thought if I was ever in trouble I could depend on my own folks." The old voice quavered piteously as the curtains parted and Elizabeth entered the room. Sweeping past the others, she took the old man's hands in her young ones.

"I have come to take you home with me," she said simply.

"But the mines," he said unsteadily.

"Never mind. There isn't much room in my little flat, but there's a loving welcome, and soon"—she blushed happily—"there will be a little house in the suburbs."

"But how about that young feller you're goin' to marry?" questioned the old man doubtfully.

"He told me to come for you," answered Elizabeth, with proud, happy eyes.

The old man rose and, still holding Elizabeth's hand, faced Thomas Coleman and his wife.

"You said I wasn't too old to find suitable employment," he said, "and I ain't. I've found it. I'm goin' to buy that house out in the suburbs, and it won't be no little one, either. An' I'm goin' to set the young feller up in whatever business he wants to be set up in, an', what's more, I'm goin' to give Elizabeth a million dollars in government bonds fer her weddin' gift. I ain't through with the other million yet, but when I am she an' her children gits it. My money wan't in them mines. I told Willie Moore how they wuz actin' up, an' he took it out fer me three months ago. I ain't denyin' I felt bad about 'em, but 'twarn't the money I wuz thinkin' of.

"No," he repeated, "I warn't thinkin' of the money, an'"—he patted her hand lovingly—"neither wuz Elizabeth, but," he added slowly, with a shrewd glance at Thomas Coleman's white, baffled face, "it kinder looks as though there's others that wuz."

Puncturing a Fallacy.

The barber applied the rich brown dye with a fine tooth comb, combing it evenly into the grizzled locks of the old man.

"Hair dye, sir," he said. "Plain, unvarnished hair dye is the base of that absurd fallacy about people turning gray in a single night.

"If you investigate those yarns you find that invariably they concern persons in prison. Orsini, pining in jail, had his hair go back on him. Marie Antoinette, languishing in a cell, found the deep hue of her hair changing to an ugly gray. Raleigh, imprisoned in the tower, developed grayish streaks with incredible speed.

"The secret of all that, my dear, is this:

"These prisoners in order to conceal their gray hair dyed it, using a poor sort of dye, one of those sorts that have to be applied every day or two. In prison, naturally, they could not get hold of this dye, and hence their locks whitened at a miraculous rate. When people said of them pityingly that their terror of sorrow had turned their hair gray in a single night they acquiesced themselves in the deception, for is it not embarrassing—I leave it to you, sir, is it not embarrassing—to explain to the world at large that one uses hair dye?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Well Timed Puns.

A southern clergyman, an inveterate punster, says that while he is well aware that puns belong to the lowest order of wit he is seldom able to resist the temptation to make one when opportunity offers.

On one occasion after preaching an eloquent sermon he was met by two friends, one of whom began to praise his discourse in enthusiastic terms. When he paused for breath the other man said, with a laugh:

"Well, doctor, can you stand as much soft soap as that?"

"Indeed I can if there isn't too much lye in it," returned the minister quickly.

At another time he was present at the marriage reception of a young couple of the name of More. The occasion was somewhat stiff up to the time of the minister's entrance, and he quickly discovered the state of affairs.

"Madam," he said, with his radiant smile, addressing the awkward young bride, "how fortunate you are! There are so few people who can say with truth, 'The More I want the More I have.'"

The laugh which followed put the company at ease.

PALACE OF HEALTH.

Remarkable Hall In London For Making Surgical Operations—Has Most Up-to-Date Improvements.

The finest and most scientific operating theatre in London has just been built in the new wing of the Central London Throat and Ear Hospital, which was opened by H. R. H. Princess Louise, on November 19.

The world has been scoured for the latest and most up-to-date improvements, with the result that the new operating theatre is a species of marble hall wherein dust cannot find a home.

The floor is laid with Terrozzo marble, mosaic, noiseless and non-absorbent. The walls are lined with light Sicilian marble. Very large slabs are employed, so that there shall be fewer niches for dust. And where joins are necessary the slabs are made to fit closely by an ingenious method of fixing by clamp as well as by cement.

There are no corners in the whole room, and the system of ventilation ensures that all air entering the apartment comes from above the roof of the building, far away from ground dust and the chimneys of Gray's Inn road. Lest injurious particles should even then steal in, there is a perforated zinc screen, which allows only the purest air to pass through. Nor can the air be cold or damp, for a noiseless fan first throws it upon a number of electric heat lamps, controlled in such a manner that any desired temperature may be obtained.

Close upon a hundred thousand cases are dealt with in a year in this remarkably efficient hospital. Humanity is the watchword, and it is carried out with method and simplicity. In order that patients may not be unnerved by the sight of deadly-looking instruments and the assembly of students, there is a new anaesthetic room—on the same hygenic lines which characterize the operating theatre—in the form of an ante-chamber. Here the patient is placed under an anaesthetic, and conveyed by means of a clever moving operating table into the adjoining theatre.

All this is part of a great scheme by which, as soon as ever funds permit, the hospital will be further extended so as to become one of the most elaborate and humane scientific institutions in the world. Donations, however, are urgently needed, and intending subscribers—who should send to the secretary in the Gray's Inn road—may be assured their money will be used wisely and with economy.

A Finlander's Gift.

A coin was exhibited by Sir Frederick Treves during an address on hospitals at Nottingham, which, he declared, was in value "absolutely beyond price." It was a twenty kroner piece (equal in English currency to 15s.), connected with the following touching anecdote:

"Years ago a Norseman came to the London Hospital to be cured of a trouble which prevented him from earning his living, and was put under my care. I operated, the man was cured, and there the matter, so far as I supposed, ended. Three weeks after the man left he came to my house. I did not know that he was aware of my name, still less of where I lived, and I am ashamed to say that I supposed he had come begging.

"He said, 'It is now three years since I left Finland. Before I left, my wife sewed this coin in the band of my belt, and told me on no account to part with it until I was starving. For three years this coin has stood between me and starvation. The value to you is nothing; the value to me I cannot express, but when I was in the hospital I was determined you should have it.

"'I am proud to say that since then I have been starving, and since I left the hospital I have not slept in a bed, but I would not part with the coin because I wanted you to have it.'"

What magnificent piece of jewelry, asked Sir Frederick of his audience, could equal the value of that coin?

An Astronomer Royal.

One of the best known of living astronomers is Sir David Gill, who has been royal astronomer at the Cape of Good Hope since 1879. Sir David, the son of an Aberdeenshire magistrate, was educated at Aberdeen University, and after graduating set up a small private observatory near the college. Here he pursued his studies for a number of years until engaged to conduct the private observatory of the Earl of Crawford, and to organize his expedition to Mauritius to view the transit of Venus. In 1877 he proposed and conducted an expedition to Ascension Island to determine the solar parallax by observations of Mars. For his success at this time he received prizes from the Royal Astronomical Society and the Institute de France. Since then he has organized several expeditions, and has been connected as director with a large number of geodetic surveys, principally in Africa. In 1882 he photographed the great comet, and pointed out the desirability of using photography for cataloguing stars. His publications are numerous, all dealing with astronomical and mathematical questions, and the annals of the Cape observatory contain heaps of unpublished manuscript records and observations.

A Castle In Ireland.

The name of castle for a country house is preserved in Ireland, rather curiously, for Ireland has not the vestiges of French customs so noticeable in Scotland. The dullest little villa, so it be solitary in an Irish country place, bears that name, and the smile of the Saxon when he arrives and sees the castle is cheap and unscholarly. Where the Celt—the female Celt, that is—does earn and deserve that slight sign of derision is in her practice with her visiting cards intended for London use. The word castle there for a second and country address does seem to suggest machicolations, if not sieges and sally ports.—London Chronicle.

HUMOR

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE.

How the Colonel Came to Make a Speech at Cut Rates.

"Well, gentlemen, what can I do for you today?" queried the colonel as he entered his office after a brief absence and found three farmer looking men in possession.

"We are a committee from the county fair," explained one, "and we want to see about the address. You make 'em, don't you?"

"Oh, certainly!"

"What's your figger?"

"I delivered two county fair addresses last fall and received $50 each."

"Um! Too high."

"There was no fault found with my prices last year. It takes time to prepare one, you know, and then I must journey down and deliver it. The figure I named is a very reasonable one."

"Look here, colonel," said the chairman of the committee after considering a bit, "have you got one of your old addresses on hand?"

"I believe so."

"And can't you put 'er in for twenty-five?"

"But some one might get on to it."

"We'll take all the chances of that. All the people who will listen to you will be old Mrs. Cosely, who is as deaf as a post, and old Jim Shaw, who will take it for a Fourth of July oration anyhow, and you won't run the slightest risk. Won't this make a difference in your figgers?"

The colonel blushed and stammered and said he thought it would, and when the committee left they had his receipt for $30, and he agreed to be on time.—Chicago News.

Her Offense.

The despondent damsel had been apprehended in the very act of drinking carbolic. The speedy work of skilled physicians saved her life. The physicians afterward admitted that they had saved it. An officious constable arrested her on the ground of attempted suicide. Then a wise man present interfered and said:

"I object to this high handed procedure. If this person is to be seized on any charge it should be as a violator of the pure food law."

"How so?" exclaimed every one in unison.

"Because she was putting acid inside 'er."

Whereupon the crowd released the woman and with one accord hanged the author of the pun.—Judge.

No Inducement.

"Why don't you devote more time to study?" said the serious person.

"What for?" asked the nonchalant citizen.

"So that you will surpass all other people in wisdom."

THIRTY FEET TALL.

Horses Roamed In Wyoming In Olden Days Now Fossilized.

Out in Wyoming a lot of scientific grubbers have unearthed the fossil remains of a horse thirty feet long and more than thirty feet high. The grubbers seem to have pieced the horse together without any comment, and they don't offer a word of information concerning either his genealogy or his track record.

A horse thirty feet long would appear to be a lot of horse. If he belonged to the cave man the latter certainly had his hands full. A horse so tall that a thirty foot ladder became necessary when his bridle was to be put on might well be called the pride of the stable, although no ordinary stable would begin to accommodate him.

If the cave man hadn't any ladder and couldn't borrow one the next best thing was to climb a tree. Then try to imagine him shinning up a tall palm with the heavy bridle on his back, only to find when he attained the right altitude that the horse had moved beyond reach and was peacefully browsing on the tall grass of the jungle!

Of course a thirty foot horse could be expected to cover much more ground than the ordinary animal of the same breed, even at a walk. And if he took it into his head to work his way across lots there would appear to be nothing to impede him. Fences would go down before him like stubble, and a merely playful cavort would carry him over raging torrents.

When a thirty foot horse shied at a bit of white paper in the roadway the chances are that he jumped clear over into the next county.

As a war horse the thirty footer must have been a startler. When he let out a neigh the enemy fled in blind and unreasoning terror. When he champed his bit and pawed the ground the very hills shuddered. When he switched his tail the hireling foe fell about him like ripened grain.

And then think of the nightmare that could be expected to follow the first sight of this prodigious equine! He certainly was a wonder. It is a great pity we know so little about him.—Cheyenne News.

Vanishing Chinchillas.

In common with many animals noted for the beauty and value of their fur, the chinchilla of South America is in danger of becoming extinct, owing to the reckless impunity with which these little natives of the Andes have been slaughtered both in season and out. The chinchilla is about the size of a squirrel, has a head somewhat the shape of a rabbit's and is covered with a light gray, silky fur, which has long been very popular in the fur markets of the world. Chinchillas are captured in various ways, but the most common method is to hunt them with dogs, the fox terrier being the most useful and skillful in their capture. In hunting them the Indians employ a weasel, which is trained to enter the crevices of the rocks, where the animals often lie concealed during the day to avoid the sunshine, and drive them out, when they are easily killed. The rapid extermination of the chinchilla and the absolute lack of protection or regulation in taking them have resulted in a tremendous advance in the price of the skins in the past two years.

A Proud Old Steed.

Fred Fish of Southington, Conn., recently decided to sell his old mare and buy a younger horse, so he sold it for $15 to a peddler. No sooner had the money been paid than the old mare fell down dead. The previous owner says that she was always a proud old steed and that he is sure that she died rather than belong to a peddler, and so as he always admired the mare he is going to erect a monument to her with the $15 he received.—Boston Globe.

A Land of Contrasts.

Just now China is a land of contrasts so wide, so sharp and so forcible that the dullest observer can hardly fail to observe them. She is going straight from wheelbarrows and springless carts, or sedan chairs, to express trains; in place of special messengers she adopts the telegraph; from rush lights she goes to electricity, and from the extreme of antimilitarism she is developing a taste for patriotic volunteering.—Shanghai Celestial Empire.

Chirography's Flaws.

Alfred Binet, director of the psychological laboratory at the Sorbonne, Paris, has been investigating the value of handwriting experts. An expert who was given a specimen of Ernest Renan's chirography said the writer was a person of only moderate intelligence, credulous and garrulous. Vital, a criminal who murdered several women with revolting barbarity, appeared to another expert as "a timid girl, distinguished by moderation."

An Invigorating Drink.

"Pusky" is a new soda water fountain drink at Eufala, Okla. Pusky was invented by the Creek Indians. Corn that is just hard enough to shell is heated in a pot until it is brown. Then it is broken in a mortar into a fine powder. "Mixed with sweet milk or with carbonated water and sirups, pusky," says an enthusiastic local paper, "is a drink that makes a man carry his wife around in his arms just for the exercise."

A Cat With Wings.

The boatswain of the Caspian, an English schooner, brought with him from India on a recent trip a strange animal-bird, which he always referred to as his "Tabby." It certainly looked more like a cat than anything else, but it was probably some freak of the animal world. It had two pairs of wings, but could fly only with difficulty, like a tame duck.

BILIOUS?

A writer has stated there are only two really bad things on earth—sin and bile. Misdirected action is sin. Misdirected bile is biliousness. When you are bilious every thought of food may be nauseous. Every time the room gets warm you may feel sick! If you think of food—same result. If you hurry or move quickly—same wretched feeling! Headache, turning off with vomiting spells are also marked symptoms. All this arises from misdirected bile, imperfect liver action, and Bileans cure these symptoms as surely as the day follows night!

Mrs. Tong, of Hull, says:—"I suffered from biliousness for years. Sometimes I was so bad I positively could not stand! Scores of remedies proved altogether unequal to a case so bad as mine. Bileans, however, to my delight effected a complete cure, and what is better still, I have never had any bilious attack since!"

A FAMOUS MUSICIAN CURED.

Mr. J. Wright, of Weber Street, Berlin, Ont., a prominent musician, formerly a member of the famous Kilty's Band, gives his testimony to Bileans.

He says:—"I suffered for years with Biliousness and Headache and spent hundreds of dollars on Doctors and so-called remedies. From this expenditure, however, I got no benefit and had about given up in despair when a friend advised me to try Bileans. I did so, and the first box seemed to do me some good; so I persevered with this remedy, and three boxes were sufficient to cure me completely. This testimonial is entirely unsolicited, and you have my permission to use it in any way which would benefit fellow sufferers." If you are one

HOLSTEIN OFFICIAL RECORDS.

Since my last report eighteen cows and heifers have made official tests which have been accepted for publication in the Canadian Holstein Friesian Record of Merit. These tests are vouched for by Prof. Dean of the Ontario Agricultural College, President Cumming of Nova Scotia Agricultural College, or Prof. Mitchell of the Kingston Dairy School, and all unless otherwise specified are for a period of seven days. The amounts of milk and butter fat are actual while the amount of butter is estimated from the amount of fat by adding one-sixth.

1. Inka Josephine Abbekerk (2565) at 7y. 17d; milk 579.3; butter fat 17.56 lbs.; equivalent butter 20.49 lbs. Owner, W. W. Brown, Lyn, Ont, 14 days milk 1146.6 lbs.; butter fat 34.19 lbs.; equivalent butter 39.90 lbs.

2. Clothilde Dorinda 2424, at 8y. 6m. 19d.; milk 477.9 lbs.; butter fat 16.12 lbs.; equivalent butter 19.16 lbs. Owner, Logan Bros., Amherst Point, N. S

3. Car Born DeKol, 3rd 4410, at 4y 1m. 2d.; milk 484.6 lbs.; butter fat 16.12 lbs.; equivalent butter 18.81 lbs. Owner, W. W. Brown, 14 days' milk, 945.4 lbs.; butter fat 31.05 lbs.; equivalent butter 36.24 lbs.

4. Inka DeKol Waldorf 4411, at 3y. 11m. 25d.; milk 414.6 lbs.; butter fat 14.51 lbs.; equivalent butter 16.96 lbs. Owner, W. W. Brown. 14 days' milk 787.8 lbs.; butter fat 27.94 lbs.; equivalent butter 32.61 lbs.

5. Jacoba Emily 2561, at 4y. 3m. 9d.; milk 463 lbs.; butter fat 14.42 lbs.; equivalent butter 16.82. Owners, Logan Bros.

SQUARING A GATE POST.

A suitable tree having been chosen and felled, and the necessary log having been cut off, the first operation consists in removing the bark; the sooner, after felling, this and the subsequent operations are done, the easier they will be.

The tools necessary for squaring a log are an axe, a squaring or broad axe, a level with a plumbing bulb, a rule or measure, a pencil, a line or string, and some chalk or other material for coating the string so that it will make a mark on the log.

For the sake of stability, as large a butt as is possible is left on the gate-post; only that portion, therefore, which is to stand above the ground is squared. The length of this portion is measured off, and the log fixed so that it will remain steady while the ends are being marked, at the same time it is placed in such a position that the most may be made of the timber it contains. The ease and readiness with which this is done depends entirely upon the skill and judgment—largely the result of practice and experience—of the axeman.

The squares or rectangles are now marked on the ends with the aid of the level and rule. The first line (a vertical one) is obtained by drawing a pencil along the face of the level when it is held "plumb," and as close to the edge as it is deemed advisable to go. The line at right angles to this is obtained by drawing a line along the top of the same instrument when it is held level. The other lines, necessary to complete the ractangle, are then obtained without difficulty by measurements. Another way of marking the first line on both ends is with the aid of a plumb line. The other lines are then marked off it with the aid of a blacksmith's or other square and a measure.

It is very necessary that some method be adopted to prevent a "wind" or twist in the squared log. Marking the first line on each end with the plumb line or level is an easy and satisfactory way of preventing this. The ends having been marked, it is necessary to connect these marks with lines which will show the axeman how deep to chop. These lines are marked or "struck" in a similar manner to that adopted by a carpenter for marking a chalk line on a board. A carpenter's line, a piece of fishing line, or, failing these, a piece of string or sewing twine is used. Instead of coating the string with dry chalk, as the carpenter does, it is found better, for the work in hand, to use a liquid, such as whitewash.

Cuts, or kerfs, at intervals of nine to twelve inches, are now chopped with a common axe, almost to the lines "struck." The intervening blocks are then split off with the same axe, after which, the edges are finally trimmed with the squaring axe.

The partially squared log is now rolled over until the remaining marks on the ends are in a vertical position, lines connecting these marks are "struck" and the edges squared as the others were squared. The top is then rounded off with axe and adze. This completes the squaring, the post is finished, and is ready for setting in the ground.

HORTICULTURAL.

Growing Winter Mushrooms.

It seems that there should be a good profit in growing mushrooms, as a review of market reports show.

The Demand.

It is true that the demand is limited, confined mostly to the better class of hotels, and those who have good cooks and are not obliged to count the cost of their food. The high price probably hinders many from trying them, and thus acquiring a taste for them; and even those who live in the country and might find them growing wild in their fields are afraid of getting the poisonous toadstools, instead of the edible and wholesome mushrooms, although they might easily learn how to distinguish between them.

Any One Can Learn.

Some growers have been at pains to tell that the mushroom crop is an uncertain one, liable to fail when grown by the most experienced gardeners without any reason known for the failure, and at other times succeeding at the first trial by the novice, almost as equally without reason. The same thing was said of celery twenty years ago, and has been said of other crops that are now as easily grown as corn; and there is no good reason why mushrooms should not be grown by any one who will pay attention to the small details, in preparing the beds for them and keeping them at a proper temperature, as easily as any of the many crops grown or started under glass.

Where to Grow Them.

It is claimed that the best place to make a mushroom bed is in a cave or pit, roofed over and covered with earth, but this is only because it is more easy to maintain a uniform temperature there than in a shed or cellar under a building; but they are grown in such places with a little more care. I have seen them grown in an abandoned ice house, and in barn cellars, the main secret being in keeping a temperature as near 60 degrees as possible and not falling below 49 degrees and in getting the beds properly made of the right material.

Begin Right.

One needs fresh horse manure, just as dropped, free from litter or bedding. If enough cannot be got for one time to make a bed, get it fresh every day and add about as much by weight of fresh loam from pasture or meadow land which has not been manured or cultivated for some years. If it is intended to start the bed in winter, this should be made ready in the fall and placed where it will not freeze. The reason for selecting such virgin soil is that it is not liable to contain the spores of the toadstool or other fungi.

Mix Manure and Earth

together as the manure can be obtained, and turn the heap every day, that it may not heat up too much, keeping it under cover from rain or snow all of the time. When enough is ready for the bed, spread a layer over the floor from four to five feet wide and two or three inches deep. Pound this down hard, very hard, and add a thinner layer, pounding again. Continue this until the bed is eight inches deep. If deeper it may heat too rapidly, and if not so deep too slowly. Put the bulb of a reliable thermometer into the heap, not near the edge, and watch it. It should mark up to 100 degrees or more, and then decline to 90 degrees or 95 degrees.

It is Now Ready for The Seed, or Spawn, as it is called. All large agricultural warehouses keep both American and English spawn in brick form. Break this in pieces about as large as a hen's egg, and with a dibble or sharp stick make holes about four inches deep and a foot apart each way, dropping one of the pieces in each hole and pressing the earth solidly upon and around it. In from ten days to two weeks cover the bed with fine loam about two inches deep and beat this down moderately solid, though it need not be as hard as the bed was first made. Cover this with three or four inches of straw or hay. If the surface gets very dry, sprinkle lightly with water heated to about 100 degrees; but if the room or cellar is not too warm there should be no need of watering before the mushrooms appear, which should be in from four to eight weeks.

The mushrooms should be pulled or twisted off, not cut, and the earth pressed into the hole that worms may not get at the roots. The first crop will continue in picking for three or four weeks, possibly longer in some cases; but when it is no longer profitable to pick them, cover again with fine loam about one-half inch deep, beating down as before, and wait for a second crop, which will take a shorter time to come than did the first, and may be even better than the first. In some cases a third or even a fourth crop may be gathered by repeating this process, but most growers do not depend on them after the second crop.

TOTAL DEAD TWENTY-FOUR.

Several Bodies Found Some Distance From Scene of Explosion.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 22.—In a revised list of dead, completed at a late hour Sunday night, it is shown that twenty-four persons lost their lives, and about thirty-five others were injured in the catastrophe that befell a Big Four passenger train, when a car of powder blew up at Sandford, Ind., Saturday night.

Four bodies, badly mutilated, were found in the woods Sunday night, some distance from the track.

Nearly a Bad Wreck.

Oakville, Jan. 22.—A broken axle derailed three cars within a stone's throw of the high level bridge, just west of Oakville, yesterday afternoon. Had the accident taken place on the bridge the cars would have fallen into the water fifty feet below.

Artillery Officers Elected.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The 24th annual meeting of the Ontario Artillery Association was held in the Canadian Military Institute yesterday. The officers elected for 1907 were: President, Lieut.-Col. John Davidson, Guelph; vice-presidents, Lieut.-Cols. N. F. MacNachtan, E. W. Rathbun, M. P. P., Majors J. W. Odell and W. H. Singer; executive committee, Col. the Hon. J. S. Hendrie, Majors W. O. Tidswell, H. W. Mereweather, J. H. Mitchell and J. A. Bertschinger; secretary, L. H. Irving; treasurer, Major R. Myles; auditor, Lieut.-Col. John Gray. The treasurer reported a balance to credit of $891.44.

Killed in Sight of Home.

Montreal, Jan. 22.—Joseph Charbonneau, freight conductor, was killed here at midnight Sunday night. He was just returning from Ottawa with his train and at Charlevoix street was run into by another heavy freight train. The caboose was smashed, bringing instant death to Charbonneau. He was a married man, 50 years of age. He met death within sight of his home.

Come Join Me In This Honest Way To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity, —man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in, all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore are taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directions. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a "goldbrick"—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enables you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once, if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better; I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

Energy the Human Power House.

(3) The dynamos governing the function of vision are the largest in area of any in the human brain, and the most extensively distributed.

(4) The conductors from the dynamos to the eyes are very large, and capable of conducting much energy.

(5) The distance between the eyes and their dynamos is short, thus offering little resisting to the transit of energy.

These are reasons for claiming that perfect vision may exist under excessive, anatomical defects. A patient says, "Oh, there is nothing the matter with my eyes: I can see perfectly." He really means there is nothing wrong with his vision. The most obstinate and excessive cases of eye and brain strain we have to deal with are where the vision is perfectly normal.

The County Council.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the County Council met in the Council chamber, Shire Hall. All the members, thirty in number, were present at the opening proceedings.

The first business transacted was the election of Warden for the year, and the honor was conferred upon Mr. A. Kirk, reeve of Hungerford township. The usual routine business was then taken up.

No Quorum.

An adjourned meeting of the Public Library Board for the transaction of general business was called for yesterday afternoon, but there was not a sufficient number of the members present to constitute a quorum, hence no business could be transacted. Another meeting will be held on Monday next.

Net Fishing Conference Ends In Agreement.

BUT IT DOES NOT APPEAR THAT ANY VERY DRASTIC CHANGES WILL BE MADE IF THE SAID AGREEMENT IS CARRIED OUT.

A conference was held at the Windsor Hotel here yesterday afternoon, between representatives of the Hastings County Branch of the Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association and the licensed net fishermen of this district.

It was held at the request of Hon. Dr. Reaume, in order that certain regulations might be discussed and signed by both parties if agreeable.

At the conference held here a few weeks ago, it will be remembered that certain regulations were submitted and discussed pro and con. These were submitted to the Hon. Dr. Reaume, who suggested, in order to have something definite to submit to the Government, that another conference be held and the signatures of the parties interested secured.

Col. Halliwell was voted to the chair yesterday afternoon, and explained the object of the gathering.

The speakers during the conference were Mayor Sulman, Judge Fraleck, Col. Ponton, Ald. Starling, J. Templeton, C. Wilmot, and ex-Ald. Knox on behalf of the Association, and Messrs. A. W. Weese, J. W. Redner, D. Belnap, S. Root, W. LaRue and Peter Weese on behalf of the net fishermen. After considerable discussion the following agreement was drawn up and signed by the parties interested:

1. That a really practical system of inspection and patrolling of the waters of the Bay of Quinte and its tributaries be adopted by the Ontario Government, and that it will be necessary to provide a fast, powerful, light draught launch; a man chosen for fitness to command the same, he to be paid a fair living salary, and a sufficient number of overseers under him to cover the whole district.

2. That if the Association, through the efforts of its headquarters branch, can make arrangements to provide a market in Toronto and Belleville and other local points, for all the fish, coarse or fine, caught in the Bay of Quinte, at an equal or better price to that paid the fisherman generally throughout the province—then the bay fishermen will agree to sell only through such markets.

3. That the net fishermen agree to a joint recommendation to the Government that if any net fishermen break the regulations their licenses be immediately cancelled.

4. That no seines be allowed at any time in the Bay of Quinte.

5. That we hereby jointly, in consideration of the above agreement on the part of the fishermen to assist in a strict enforcement of the law, do waive our objections to the issuing of net licenses for the year 1907.

Signed on behalf of the Fish and Game Protective Association, — J. Earl Halliwell, President; Jos. Templeton, secretary; E. B. Fraleck, Chas. Wilmot, Jas. Knox, J. H. Starling.

Signed on behalf of net fishermen, —A. M. Weese, J. W. Redner, Daniel Belnap, Stillman Root, Wilford LaRue, Peter Weese.

In the matter of whitefish, nothing was done, it being pointed out that the whitefish were found principally in the lakes, and therefore were under the control of the Dominion Government.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams Are Safe and Sound

The uneasiness in regard to the whereabouts of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, who left this city for Jamaica some little time before the earthquake, has been dispelled.

Mr. Fred Laudenberger, of this city, this morning received a postcard from Mr. S. Gibson, of Napanee, which read as follows:

Napanee, Jan 21.

Received a telegram this morning from Mr. Williams, which said:

"We are all right and well.

(Signed.) "J. WILLIAMS."

Mr. Gibson is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Williams.

It is supposed that Mr. and Mrs. Williams were visiting at Montego Bay, Jamaica, at the time of the earthquake. Montego Bay is about 59 miles from Kingston. In a letter to Judge Deroche, from Montego Bay written before the quake, Mr. Williams said they proposed spending a week in Kingston before returning home, but it is probable this arrangement may now be changed.

Mrs. Jones Died At A Great Old Age.

Mrs. Jane Jones, relict of the late Mr. Benjamin Jones, died at an early hour this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Robin, Moira street.

Deceased, who was 85 years of age, was born in Thurlow township and had lived all her life in this vicinity. For the past four years she had made her home with her daughter. Mr. Jones died some years ago. Mrs. Jones had been for many years a member of the Methodist church. She was a lady who was respected by all who knew her. Two sons, Alexander of Cleveland, and Apollos, of Toledo, and one daughter, Mrs. Roblin, are the surviving members of the family. The remains will be taken to Salem, in Thurlow township, for interment.

Toronto Street Car Service Is Tied Up.

CITY AUTHORITIES AND COMPANY CLASHED THIS MORNING, AND NORTHERN SECTION IS WITHOUT CARS.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—(Special)—Following up the instructions of the City Council yesterday, the Police Commissioners to-day stationed men at three central points to compel the Street Railway motormen to run their cars along the routes specified by the City Engineer.

The result was an immediate tie-up of the three lines selected, namely, Bathurst, Arthur and Winchester, which serve northeast and northwest portions of the city.

The motormen, on the instructions of the Street Railway officials, took the poles off the cars and left these standing on the track.

In consequence almost the entire northern part of the city is without a car service until the city and the Railway Company come to terms.

The cablegram was received in this city at 9 o'clock last night.

Valuable Horse Was Drowned In Picton

On Saturday afternoon Mr. John R Culden, of Picton, was exercising the trotting horse Gretna Green, when the animal became unmanageable and ran away. It ran out upon the ice in Picton harbor, and plunged into a hole from which ice had been cut. Every effort was made to save the animal, but it was drowned, and the driver narrowly escaped a like fate. The animal, which was a valuable one, was the property of Mr. R. Hepburn, of Picton. The horse was well known in this city and vicinity, having competed in several trotting events.

"New Conditions Create New Needs"

OUR FRIEND THE PROFESSOR WRITES A WITTY AND INTERESTING LETTER, AND GIVES THE CAPTION OF THIS ARTICLE AS A REASON WHY THE QUINTE SHOULD BE REBUILT.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Mr. Editor, — Your friend the Professor's heart, since the disastrous fire of the 4th, has been sad, yet might have been even sadder but for the kind sympathy extended on all sides. Great men, like oaks that defy the tempest, may remain seemingly calm under withering winds, but the reed (for such I must be) is easily wounded, drooping at the first chill of adversity. Tradition tells of a certain holy man who, after being decapitated, was able still to walk. Trying as this would appear even for a saint, I doubt if there can be a keener sensation of misery than being thrown on the world without clothes; for, even a "swallow tail"—that pride of the social function—cuts but a dismal figure on the street on a crowded market day. Had Nero's trunk been burnt in the conflagration that tyrant set up, it would n't have been so bad, he never wearing the same coat twice. But it was different with our beloved little surplus which had to be husbanded. True, I might have remained comatose till spring and, Cato-like, have saved considerable expense, but this were perhaps neither fine nor fit. As it is, however, things are mending, having now again procured thread and thimble and a Venus packet of needles admirably arranged all the way from a cute little cambric to a variety meant, I should judge, to pierce iron.

But I must not sully too much paper with futile ink, except to express the hope, with every progressive citizen, that the peerless Quinte — which many of us learned to love as a home and whose ruins it pains us to view—may speedily and with still greater splendor rise from its ashes. Other hostelries we have, good and creditable, but new conditions have created new needs, and prompt action in this matter should, to all interested, be the supreme word.

Votre Ami,
PAUL DENYS.

Mrs. A. G. Northrup Died This Afternoon

HAD AN APOPLECTIC STROKE THIS MORNING, AND PASSED AWAY AT 1.30.

It will surprise and shock our citizens generally to learn that Mrs. A. G. Northrup, widow of the late Anson G. Northrup, of this city, and mother of W. B. Northrup, M. P., and Mrs. (Rev.) Dr. George, died at 1.30 this afternoon.

The deceased lady, it seems, suffered a stroke of apoplexy this morning, shortly after she arose, and though all possible was done for her, passed away at 1.30 this afternoon.

Mr. W. B. Northrup was in Ottawa, attending Parliament, and did not even know that his mother was indisposed till a telegram to that effect was sent to him by Mr. John Taylor.

The late Mrs. Northrup was a Miss Bolster before her marriage. She was about 73 years of age. Fuller particulars will be given later.

Henry Seton Merriam's story, "With Edged Tools," of which Harper Bros. own the copyright, will begin in The Intelligencer on Saturday. Be sure you read the opening chapters.

WHY THE SHERIFF MUST GO.

Premier Whitney Gives Reasons For Mr. Gillespie's Dismissal.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—James Gillespie, sheriff of Prince Edward County, at the age of 83, has been removed from office, who has held office for 30 years, and James Gibson, Cherry Valley, P. O., has been appointed in his place.

In making the announcement, Premier Whitney said:

"Mr. Gillespie was notified that in consequence of representations which had been made to the Government as to his conduct, his resignation was required. He, however, asked for an investigation, and was informed, as the letter to him intimated, the decision of the Government had been come to when it was written, and he was merely given the opportunity to resign.

"The reasons which guided the Government are that numerous complaints had been received to the effect that he had interfered in elections; had taken the stump in Dominion and provincial elections; had taken part or interfered in the work of registration under the manhood suffrage registration act; had used violent and abusive language; had allowed election returns to the altered; and had been guilty of offensive personal conduct in several respects."

George A. Aylesworth has resigned as clerk of the fourth division court of Addington and Lennox, having been appointed to the immigration staff of the Dominion department of Interior. He is a brother of the Minister of Justice, and is succeeded by Charles Welbanks, Newburgh.

BROKER IN TROUBLE.

Charge of Theft Laid Against W. J. Chambers of Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—William J. Chambers, 10 Bernard avenue, of the firm of W. T. Chambers, mining brokers, was arrested last night by Detective Tipton.

On Dec. 4 last a stock certificate for 100 shares of the Green-Meehan Mining Co. was stolen from the brokerage office of John M. Wallace, 75 Yonge street. On Dec. 11, a man supposed to be M. J. Kelly cashed a cheque at the Standard Bank, made by Smillie & Stanley, brokers, Bay street, for $140. The cheque was marked "100 G.-M." The stock certificate, after being missed by the Wallace firm, was next heard of in the office of A. T. Heron, brokers, West King street; from there it found its way to the office of Strathy & Co., Simcoe street, and thence to Smillie & Stanley, who issued a cheque for it.

Chambers, when first arrested, denied everything, but subsequently confessed, and a charge of theft was laid against him.

McGILL AS WITNESS.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Magistrate Denison yesterday said he would not close the case against G. R. R. Cockburn until Crown-Attorney Corley has presented all the evidence he wants to and an adjournment of a week was granted.

In answer to Mr. Arnoldi, Mr. Corley stated that he intended to call Chas. McGill as a witness for the crown.

The magistrate said it wouldn't be fair to call McGill until his own case is disposed of in the assize court, and intimated that adjournment would be made until that time comes. Meanwhile, an adjournment until Jan. 28 was made.

The grand jury has returned a true bill against McGill on the false returns charge.

McINTOSH BROS.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Investigating Edward Bridant's Conduct to His Wife.

Sister of Dead Woman Testifies That Husband Forced Her to Take Pills—Evidence of Mrs. Villiard, Mrs. Bridant's Mother—"Confession to Priest May Be Used By Defence—Testimony of the Doctors.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Edward Bridant, the French-Canadian barber, was put on trial yesterday morning in the assize court, on the charge of murdering his wife Agnes, by furnishing her with noxious drugs and instruments for the purpose of procuring an abortion. Chief Justice Meredith is presiding; G. T. Lynch-Staunton, K.C., of Hamilton, is crown prosecutor, and the accused is defended by R. S. Neville.

Forced to Take Pills.

Mrs. Elizabeth Callan, sister, the first witness, told of a visit she made to the Bridants in April, 1906, when they resided at 23 Temperance street. They had only one room. He was continually insisting on his wife taking pills. Both she and her sister were in an expectant mood. Bridant also wished witness to take the pills. Both refused. On one occasion, Bridant tried to force a pill down his wife's throat.

At the age of 17 on May 2, 1905, she was married secretly. She and her sister had worked for a time on a steamboat. She denied that their conduct had been improper in any way.

Witness admitted knowing Charles Driscoll, who is now doing time in the Central, but denied that her sister had been too friendly with him. She never heard of Driscoll being the cause of the trouble between Bridant and his wife.

Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, with whom the Bridants roomed in Temperance street, testified that she heard the young couple quarrelling several times, and heard him advising his wife to take pills of some kind.

Mrs. Josie de Grey, a tenant in the Bristol house, told of having called a doctor at Bridant's request. Witness thought he did all he could for his wife.

Mother's Evidence.

The next witness was Mrs. Villiard of Kingston, mother of Mrs. Bridant. She gave her evidence in a straightforward manner, and remained calm, until Mr. Neville mentioned the man Driscoll. Then she became somewhat excited, and denied ever knowing him. She denied emphatically that Mrs. Bridant ever carried on a correspondence with him, or had a private letter box where she used to get letters from him. She described with tears in her eyes the scene at her daughter's deathbed.

When they saw there was no hope for Mrs. Bridant the priest was sent for. He received her confession, anointed her, and prepared her for death.

After the priest left the house, Mrs. Bridant said, "Mother, I am dying. I want you to take care of my little child." She then asked the mother to kneel by the bedside and repeat the Lord's prayer. Witness did so, the dying woman repeating the words after her, but before the "amen" was reached Mrs. Bridant was dead.

Witness never saw Bridant abuse his wife. All she knew was what she had been told. Her daughter told her once that Bridant had struck her and knocked her insensible.

When asked by Mr. Neville "if she had any hard feeling against the prisoner," Mrs. Villiard replied, she "never wished him any harm, but could not be expected to have a friendly feeling towards him after the manner he had abused his wife."

Mr. Neville intimated that the priest would be called as a witness for the defence.

Doctors Testify.

Drs. Rose and Winnett were also called. The latter said Mrs. Bridant told him she had purchased the medicine herself from Mrs. Miller (Dr. De Vass), and took it herself. The accused also told witness that he did not know she had done anything like that.

Sergt. Duncan will be the first witness this morning.

LOOK FOR POISON.

Death of Henry Perkins of Canfield Being Inquired Into.

Cayuga, Jan. 22.—Sensational evidence will likely be forthcoming at Coroner Arrell's inquest to-day into the death of Henry Perkins, the Canfield farmer, who, on Sunday, Dec. 23, walked out to his farm, and on his return complained of being ill. Dr. Kerr of Dunnville was immediately called in, and diagnosed the case as perforation of the stomach. On Christmas morning, Perkins was dead.

Later the body was exhumed, and the stomach sent to Prof. Ellis to Toronto. His report, it is said, will prove startling

Mrs. Perkins, a woman of 35 years of age, is at present living with her sister, Mrs. Romain Hislop, in this town.

It is given out on authority that in all probability arrests will follow the verdict of the jury to-day.

C. P. R. to Spend Millions.

Montreal, Jan. 22.—Vice-President Whyte of the C. P. R., having concluded his conference with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, it is announced that six or seven millions will be spent next year, and that the independent line from Winnipeg to Edmonton, via Saskatoon, will be pushed ahead with all possible speed. A number of branch lines will also be built.

Uttered Forged Cheque.

Brantford, Jan. 22.—The case of Fred Babcock and Elvira Gottschalk, for issuing and obtaining money on forged cheques, was heard at the Police Court yesterday. Babcock was found guilty of uttering and obtaining money on a forged cheque. He was sent up for trial. Elvira Gottschalk was released on suspended sentence.

FIGHTS FOR HIS LIFE.

Pet Deer of Chatham Township Farmer Turns on Him.

Chatham, Jan. 22.—News of a terrific fight for life between a man and a deer, which lasted an hour or more, came to this city from Chatham Township yesterday.

James Huson, aged 63, concession 6, Chatham Township, has for years kept two deers on his place. Sunday morning he noted that they had escaped from their enclosure. He secured a pan of oats and whistled for them. The buck was in bad humor, and a moment later it dashed at him. He grasped its horns, and an hour's tussel ensued. When nearly exhausted and blinded from blood, Huson was being pressed against a gate by the animal. While in this position he managed to get the gate opened, and, quickly letting go of the animal, he dashed through it and closed it after him.

He ran for his house, hardly reaching the door when the deer leaped over the fence and sprang after him. The deer next furiously encircled the house, waiting to continue the fight, when Huson emerged with a rifle and shot the animal. Huson's wounds, though bad, are not serious.

Hired Man Drowned.

North Toronto, Jan. 22.—A drowning took place on Sunday morning at 6.30 on the farm of Geo. S. Henry, reeve of York Township, when one of his hired men, Arthur Edge, met death. He was obliging a fellow employe who did not feel well in taking out the morning's supply of milk. He took a short cut over the Don, and rig, horse and man were carried down stream. The horse was found down the river practically uninjured, the rig was found in midstream and the body of Edge three-quarters of a mile down the river. He was an Englishman in the employ of Mr. Henry for about two months, a married man, his wife also being employed with Mr. Henry. Two children are still in England.

Shea Jury Disagrees.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—The jury in the conspiracy trial of Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, reported a disagreement yesterday. When discharged, the jurors stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction.

PILES

CURED QUICKLY AND PAINLESSLY—NO RISK, NO DANGER.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE TO CONVINCE SENT BY MAIL TO ALL WHO WRITE.

Common sense is just as necessary (even more so) in medicine as in business or the affairs of every day life. People are getting to know more than they used to. Not so long ago, it was the fashion to make all sorts of claims for a medicine, and wind up by asking the reader to go to a drug store and buy a bottle. People won't stand for that kind of thing now. They want proof—tangible proof. They want to try the remedy first and if they find it to be what is claimed they will be glad enough to go and buy it.

A CONVINCING ARGUMENT.

That is why we say to every person suffering from piles or any form of rectal disease, send us your name and we will gladly send you a free trial package. For we know what the result will be. After using the trial you will hurry to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box of Pyramid Pile Cure, now admitted by thousands to be one of the most wonderful reliefs and cures for piles ever known.

"Please excuse my delay in writing to you sooner in regard to what your Pyramid Pile Cure has done for me. I consider it one of the finest medicines in the world for piles. I suffered untold misery for four months when my wife begged me to send for a 50c box. When it was half gone I knew I was better and it didn't take any begging to get me to send for a second box. I think I am about well now, but it I feel any symptoms of a return I will order at once. I order it from the Pyramid Drug Co. to be sure of the cure. Tell all about this fine remedy for piles.

"And if there is anything in this letter you want to use do so. I received your letter a few days ago. Yours for a remedy like Pyramid Pile Cure. J. J. McELWEE.

"Honey Grove, Tex., R.R. 9, Box 29.

"P.S.—I only used two boxes and don't think I need any more. Piles of seven months' standing."

To get a free trial package send to-day, to the Pyramid Drug Co., 64 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan. It will come by return mail and the results will both delight and astonish you.

FORCE GETS THEM COAL

People of Grenfell, Sask., Hold Up C. P. R. Train.

With a Rail Across the Track to Hold the Train, a Number of Citizens Board a Car and Throw Off a Supply of Coal for Their Immediate Necessities—Make An Offer to Pay For It.

Grenfell, Sask., Jan. 22.—When the train pulled into Windthurst, about twenty miles south of here, last Friday morning the entire adult male population was there to meet it. They asked the conductor for part of a car of coal, and offered payment therefor, and on being refused nine of the men armed themselves with shovels and picks, which had been hidden in the snow, boarded the car and shovelled out the coal, leaving enough to run the train to the next station and return, while nine others threw a rail across the track in front of the engine and fastened it down with chains, and, despite the curses and threats of shooting, prevented the crew from moving the train. They gave their names to the conductor, and one of them drove to Grenfell yesterday morning and sent a report to the C. P. R. headquarters by mail, giving a list of the names and the amount of coal each one got and offering payment therefor. They are now awaiting developments, but will be able to keep themselves warm while doing so.

Coal Handlers' Strike.

Edmonton, Sask., Jan. 22.—The Coal Handlers' Union here struck Sunday for an increase from $1 to $1.50 per ton for hauling coal from the mines. The Miners' Union is behind them, and the situation is serious.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Debates Existence of Lumber Trust—Mr. Aylesworth's Railway Bill.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—On account of the state dinner to be given last night at Government House in honor of the American visitors, the House adjourned at 6 o'clock. Little was done except to debate the existence and evils of the lumber trust.

Mr. Oliver, on behalf of the Government, consented to the appointment of a committee of enquiry and investigation, but the debate went on, notwithstanding, and will be resumed on Wednesday.

Mr. Aylesworth introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act. The first section authorizes the Railway Board to apply to the Minister of Justice for the assignment of legal counsel, and authorizes the Minister to make such appointments. Another section deals with the registration of mortgages given by railway companies to secure bonds.

Another bill by Mr. Aylesworth confers some additional powers upon the commissioner of the Northwest Territory and commissioned-officers of the N.W.M.P.

$200,000 IN THE HOLE.

McGee of Montreal Has Got Away With Friends' Money, Too.

Montreal, Jan. 22.—The defalcation of W. J. McGee, secretary-treasurer of the People's Mutual Building Society, will, according to the latest computation, total up to the vicinity of $200,000.

His dishonest operations cover a period of something like ten years, and not only the society but a large circle of personal friends will suffer heavily.

One well-known restaurant keeper will lose $15,000 advanced at different times to McGee.

Property held by McGee, to the nominal value of some $50,000, has been turned over to individual members of the Building Society, presumably to cover that concern's losses.

The 2-Cent Rate.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—A point of considerable interest to travelers on electric railways has been brought before the Municipal and Railway Board, and the decision of the board establishing the two-cent a mile principle is the result. Complaint was made against the Woodstock, Thames Valley & Ingersoll Electric Railway, charging that excessive rates had been levied between Beachville and Woodstock and Beachville and Ingersoll. The board concluded that the intention of the act clearly was that no matter where a passenger boards a car, if the distance traveled is three miles, he should pay five cents. If he travels a distance exceeding three miles, the two-cent a mile rate comes into force for the distance actually traveled.

Will Now Use Force.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The City Council at its special meeting yesterday morning approved the motion of the Board of Control to have the City Engineer ask the aid of the police in compelling the Toronto Railway Co. to restore the Winchester, Bathurst and Arthur lines to the routes ordered by the City Engineer. The board of police commissioners will meet this morning. The order, if carried out must come from them.

Killed on Railway.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Jan. 22.—Yesterday morning William B. McDougall, blacksmith, aged 46, attempted to cross the track in front of the train coming into Coleman station. He was struck by the pilot of the engine, thrown under the wheels, to be picked up a mangled mass. He died in a few minutes.

Partner of Cecil Rhodes Killed.

New York, Jan. 22.—William C. Ashwell of the stock exchange firm of Ashwell & Co. was killed yesterday by a street car. Mr. Ashwell was one of the early partners of the late Cecil Rhodes in the diamond fields of South Africa. He was one of the world's leading diamond experts.

Root Proud Of Canada.

Speaks to the Canadian Club at Ottawa In Notable Address

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Closed a Happy Address With the Twin Sentiments; "God Bless the King; God Bless the President"—U.S. Secretary Leaves Ottawa Owing to Illness of Governor-General's Daughter.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—On account of the illness of Earl Grey's daughter at Government House, United States Secretary Root left Ottawa yesterday afternoon.

He was entertained at lunch by the Canadian Club, and made a notable address, which was received with enthusiasm.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier followed in a very happy speech, in which he proposed the sentiment, "God Bless the King; God Bless the President."

Mr. Root, after voicing his appreciation of the honor conferred on him by the presence at the luncheon table of the Governor-General and the Premier, said that another kindly greeting had been received since he took his seat at the table, "from a gentleman, who, for reasons which you will readily appreciate, was unable to obtain a seat in the room." He then read the telegraphic despatch from Jamaica to Washington, expressing Governor Swettenham's thanks for the "very practical aid so kindly given by Admiral Davis." His address was redolent of good-will to Canada, of which he was proud.

Mr. Root will be the guest of Lord Strathcona in Montreal until Thursday, when he will return to Washington.

VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.

Commons Bill of Fare—Strong Pleas Made for Measure of Protection for Vegetable Growers.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—In the House yesterday, upon the usual motion to go into committee of ways and means, Mr. Staples (Con., Manitoba) called attention to an order-in-council, whereby some 17 or 18 sections of swamp land in Manitoba had been leased to Senator Kirchoffer for 20 years at an annual rental of $3, being equivalent to 3-4 of a cent per acre. He reviewed generally the question of the swamp lands. They had been taken by the Dominion Government, and the province had suffered injustice. Extravagant charges had been made against the province on that account. He demanded that the Kirchoffer lease be canceled.

Mr. Schaffner (Con., Manitoba) objected to great tracts of land being leased to Senator Kirchoffer and other wealthy men for game preserves, instead of being thrown open for settlement.

Mr. Oliver claimed that this lease had not yet been executed. In view of the protests received, it would not be executed.

Tariff and Market Gardeners.

The House then took up the tariff, when the item of tomatoes on the agricultural schedule was reached, the duty being placed at 75c per 100 pounds. W. F. Maclean (South York) protested against the very small measure of protection thus offered to the market gardeners.

Mr. Blain (Peel) supported Mr. Maclean's contention.

Mr. Armstrong (E. Lambton) urged an increase on duty.

Mr. Clements (W. Kent) urged an increase, and Arch Campbell (Centre York) urged the Government to reconsider this item.

Mr. Fielding said he thought the tomato grower will be well content with this duty, better content than lots of interests that do not get quite all they wanted. The rate will probably be between 25 and 30 per cent.

After some further discussion, in which M. Lancaster (Lincoln and Niagara) and E. D. Smith (Wentworth) also participated, the Government permitted this item to stand over.

Preference Works Hard.

On the item of canned pickles Mr. Robitaille (County Quebec) made a strong protective speech.

Mr. Henderson (Halton) blamed the British preference for fostering a spirit among the people in favor of imported goods.

Mr. Wright (Renfrew) protested against a high tariff on fruit.

Dr. Reid (Grenville) intimated that he was opposed to the preferential tariff and to many other parts of the tariff, but the Government, he supposed, would stick to the bill as drafted, and pay no attention to any argument.

Dr. Sproule made a strong plea for a high tariff on fruit.

Mr. Paterson pointed out that the farmers of the Northwest were not fruit growers. They were consumers of fruit, and should be considered from that point of view.

Mr. Knowles (Lib., W. Assiniboia) opposed any increase in the duty on fruit, and Mr. Lancaster insisted upon an increase. The item was allowed to stand.

Mr. Macdonnell (S. Toronto) opposed a specific duty on melons, and this item also stood over.

CARRIED OUT ITS THREAT.

Street Railway Promptly Tied Up Toronto Cars as Reply.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—The city carried out its threat to call out the police and force the street cars back to their old routes yesterday morning, and the Toronto Railway Co. retaliated by refusing to run any cars which were not allowed to make the trips outlined by the management. As a result three lines, those on Bathurst, Arthur and Winchester streets, have been tied up and are without any service at all. The police took charge of the corners where the cars made the turns to which the City Engineer objected and refused to allow the trolleys to pass. Although the action was taken during the noon-hour, there was no disorder. The main lines were not tied up as the Winchester cars all ran into the barns.

The city council met yesterday afternoon and passed the following resolution:

"The Board recommend that an immediate application be made to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to forthwith compel the Toronto Railway Co. to operate the routes discontinued to-day and to take over the Toronto Railway Co.'s system and operate it pending the enforcement of the agreement between the city and the Toronto Railway Co., and to take other measures as they may see fit under the circumstances; also that the city engineer be instructed to confer with the owners of vans and other suitable vehicles, with a view to provide transportation facilities for those citizens who are inconvenienced by the discontinuance of the Bathurst street, Arthur street and Winchester street cars."

WAS OFFERED $4,000,000.

But Jas. Ross Refused It Because Other Shareholders Weren't In It.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—Recently reports have been current that when some Dominion Steel interests contemplated the purchase of the personal coal stock holdings of James Ross they offered him a little over $3,000,000 for his 40,000 shares. On good authority, however, it is said, that the amount offered was $4,000,000 cash. It is believed that the proposition was made by people who were close to Senator Cox. The latter would then have controlled the company.

The hitch came when Mr. Ross found that it was not the idea to buy out the rest of the shareholders on the same basis, as the plan was to give the shareholders a 5 per cent. debenture.

Want to Use the Wireless.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Jan. 23.—A telegram signed by Premier Peters, A. B. Warburton and L. E. Prowse, the Liberal candidates for Queen's; Mayor Paton and W. F. Tidmarsh, president of the Board of Trade, has been forwarded to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, asking him to have arrangements made with the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., Montreal, for transmission of messages between the island and the mainland until the broken Anglo-American cable is restored. Owing to the ice in the strait, repairs cannot be made till the spring.

Eiffel Tower For Wireless.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The Government has decided to use the Eiffel Tower, 900 feet high, in the army's wireless telegraph system.

As the days grow longer the cold grows stronger.

But what's a little thing like 8 below zero at 8 a.m.? How would you like to live in Calgary, where it was between 30 and 40 below zero for a month straight?

But then, in the Northwest, you don't notice the cold—when you are alongside of a red-hot stove.

It would appear, judging from what took place in Prince Edward, that this is the open season for sheriffs.

In the matter of severity, Northwest weather may be in a class by itself, but for variety we easily have the N. W. beaten a block.

One of the County Councillors, who lives in the wilds of North Hastings, twenty miles from nowhere, left his election certificate at home in his other vest, which shows that it may be necessary, at the next session of the Legislature, for Mr. Whitney to pass an Act forbidding reeves and deputy reeves to have more than one vest.

To see the large number of distinguished visitors now in the city (County Councillors), one would almost be led to believe that another ballot-box trial was going on.

The town of Ipswich, England, has gone back to gas for lighting its streets. Though it had an electric plant of its own, the Council has given a contract to a private gas company to illuminate its streets, as being cheaper than the lighting could be done for its own electric plant.

In connection with any important proposed legislation the Ontario Government has adopted the common sense plan of consulting the various classes of the people who are interested and who have special knowledge of the matters to be dealt with. A new Joint Stock Companies' Act will be passed at the coming session. The widest possible publicity has been given to the draft of the new law and many bodies and individuals have been consulted. On Friday evening last, by appointment, the Provincial Secretary, the Hon. Mr. Hanna, and his deputy, Mr. Mulvey, K.C., met the council of the Institute of Chartered Accountants at their office in Toronto for the discussion of the bill. In addition to the Toronto members of the Council of the Institute, Mr. F. H. Macpherson, of Windsor, the president; Mr. J. W. Johnson, of Belleville, vice-president, and Mr. Bunnell, city treasurer of Brantford, were in attendance. The Institute of Accountants' interest in the bill is on behalf of shareholders, and Mr. Hanna has requested it to appoint a committee to be present at the house when the bill is in committee under discussion.

In one respect, at all events, municipal ownership of the lighting plant has not been successful in Kingston, where the News describes this peculiar state of affairs:

"There are numerous complaints from the patrons of the electric lighting plant regarding the cost of the light. In order to reduce it some have replaced 16 candle power lights by 8's, but it seems to make no difference in the bills. Others have decreased the number of lights but the charges are not affected. And altogether electric current consumers, if their statements are to be accepted at their face value, are taxed highly in this city. Indeed, though there was a reduction in price ordered by the committee about a year since, the cost is still greater to users than it was under private company management. Then the cost did not exceed a cent per hour for 16 candle power, now it is that for an 8-candle power. Compare this with Toronto, where with Niagara generating power a 16-candle power light can be run an hour for one-third of a cent. This shows that light in Kingston is at least three times as costly as in the big Ontario city. The new committee should face the question of the cost of light more seriously than has yet been done. For unless relief is afforded from the excessive charge it will be found that the patrons will be fewer rather than more."

The above would appear to show that there is force in the contention of many people — that municipal ownership is all right if the utilities are run in the same way a shrewd business man would run his own affairs. But are they? Evidently not in Kingston? And it is just possible there are other places besides Kingston where the candle is being burned at both ends in order to keep up appearances.

In the Canadian Law Times of December, 1906, appeared an article by Col. W. N. Ponton, of this city, headed: "The Law Merchant of A.D. 1906." The article, which is a long one, deals principally with the recent meeting of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, held in London, and in it Col. Ponton handles a rather dry subject in an interesting—nay, a sparkling way. The article bristles with apt quotation and clear reasoning, and will more than repay an attentive perusal.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF SENATOR ROSS SHARES IN THE GOOD THINGS.

London, Ont., Jan. 22. — Robert Boston to-day received notice from the department of Immigration, Ottawa, of his appointment as inspector of emigration. He will start on his new duties at once. Mr. Boston is a brother-in-law of Hon. G. W. Ross, and he receives the position as a reward for long and faithful services in behalf of the Liberal party in West and South Middlesex. He represented South Middlesex in the Commons from 1894 to 1896, when he was sidetracked for another candidate. Later he got the provincial appointment of county jailer, eventually resigning this and going into North Middlesex to oppose Valentine Ratz, Independent Liberal, by whom he was badly beaten.

Lord Selborne and the Bible at Johannesburg.

At the recent opening of the Bible Society's new premises in Johannesburg, by the Earl of Selborne, High Commissioner for South Africa, His Excellency said:

"I have no argument to address to you on the subject of the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society, because it seems to me that it is the one subject about which there can be no argument among Christians. Other causes require argument; some of them require much argument in order to secure commendation; but this work of distributing the Word of God, in every possible language among all races and in all climes, surely is a work on which there can be no argument among Christians. In the course of ages we Christians have unfortunately developed a great faculty for differing in opinion. We differ in respect of the interpretation of Scripture; we differ as to the particular forms of church government; and these differences of opinion have crystallized into what we call the different churches. But on this one point—the dissemination of the Holy Scriptures—we are absolutely united, because there can be no possibility of doubt as to our duty."

Coal Famine In the West.

Here is an illustration of how the natural wealth of the country is disposed of.

United States speculators control the market and leave Canadians to freeze.

Mr. Herron and other speakers in the House of Commons, while discussing the suffering of the people in the Northwest, owing to the scarcity of fuel, pointed out that coal lands had been sold by the Canadian Government for $7 to $10 an acre, that coal was shipped daily to the United States from Alberta by American mine owners, that one foreigner had bought a productive mine and closed it up, that hundreds of thousands of people living on the open plains, hundreds of miles from fire wood, were suffering from the cold, and that where coal could be had the price was four times what it ought to be. This view was supported by the other members from Manitoba and the West and the conditions of affairs above described is not disputed by the Government.

What the Government should do under the circumstances is to introduce a bill, prohibiting the exportation of coal until the wants of the Canadian people are supplied. This would be done if it were not that the Government is under the thumb of these speculators.

Petty Stealing.

The Opposition in the Commons is doing yeoman work in bringing to light the mal-administration of affairs at Ottawa. Much information has been obtained of late as to petty grafting that is going on. Mr. Oliver was compelled to admit that one officer was reported by the Audit Department as having claimed and received since July, 1905, the sum of $285 for Pullman expenses that were never incurred. Another received $239 on false claims of the same kind. A third obtained $339, a fourth $349, another $85, still another $136, and the sixth got off with $270. The same officers had charged and received from $200 to $600 each as expenses for meals which the Auditor on examining the vouchers had struck out. This discovery implicating half a dozen immigration officials, who worked and agreed together, simply shows that the system of graft established in high places in the Interior department is spreading throughout the ranks.

It is worthy of note that not one of these thieves was dismissed.

• • •

Here is another example of how pets are treated at the expense of the country. The Department of Railways seems to be an easy place for a tired official to work. Mr. Emmerson brought down a statement on Monday, explaining that one of his clerks, whose pay has been increased by 50 per cent. since 1899, had been absent 190 days since July, 1905. Part of the time he was on leave without any reason given, and for the rest he furnished a medical certificate. The superior officer at Moncton refused to certify the payroll in his case, but the delinquent went to the general manager, who consulted the Minister and payment for the whole time was ordered.

The Prince Edward Shrievalty.

The Ontario Government has done a wise and just thing in removing Sheriff Gillespie from office. Premier Whitney says the reasons which guided the Government are that numerous complaints have been received to the effect that he had interfered in elections; had taken the stump in Dominion and Provincial elections; had taken part in or interfered in the work of registration under the manhood suffrage registration act; used violent and abusive language; allowed election returns to be altered, and had been guilty of offensive personal conduct in several respects.

The wonder in the Bay Quinte district has been that this offensive official has been allowed to remain in office so long, he having for years been one of the most insolent of political partisans, not of the ordinary type either, but vulgarly offensive.

• • •

The appointment of Mr. James Gibson, of Cherry Valley, to the shrievalty of the county is one to which no objection can be taken. Mr. Gibson is a man of excellent character, courteous and gentlemanly in all his intercourse with his fellow-men. The Intelligencer compliments him on his appointment.

The County Council.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

Council met at 2 o'clock.

County Clerk Aylsworth read the names of those who were now qualified to sit in the Council, as follows:

Reeve—Wm. R. Martin.
WOLLASTON,
Reeve—C. S. Rollins.

The Clerk then requested that one of the Councillors be elected as Warden for the year. He also stated that three of the members' certificates of office had not been properly filled out and one member, Mr. McLean, Reeve of Carlow, had left his certificate at home. In his case it would take until the latter part of the week to secure the certificate. This was owing to the fact that he resided some 20 miles from any place of communication.

It was decided to go on with the business of the session and the members whose certificates were lacking were authorized to procure the same as soon as possible.

MR. KIRK IS WARDEN.

Mr. S Vandervoort moved, seconded by Mr J. Best, that Mr. A. Kirk, reeve of Hungerford, be Warden for 1907.

No other nomination being made Mr. Kirk was unanimously elected by a standing vote.

After subscribing to the oath the Warden requested the Clerk to address the Council, which he did, detailing minutely the work which had been done. The Warden-elect had been for many years a member of the Council. The Clerk referred to the progress of the work upon the House of Refuge, and the necessity of having the house completed this year.

When the Clerk had concluded his address, a motion prevailed that the Council adjourn until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

Council resumed at 10 o'clock, Warden Kirk in the chair.

A number of communications were read.

Mr. W. Crystal, a pedlar, claimed $80 damages from the County owing to an accident to his horse, which was injured by falling through a defective culvert on the road near Tweed. He claimed that the animal, a valuable one, was seriously hurt and he was compelled to hire another horse.—Referred to Roads and Bridges committee.

Communications were read from the Territorial headquarters of the Salvation Army and from the Prisoners' Aid Associations, asking for aid.—Referred to Ways and Means committee.

From Messrs. Porter & Carnew, stating that Mrs. P. Scrimshaw was injured on Dec. 5th, 1906, owing to an alleged defect in a bridge over Sucker Creek, in Tyendinaga township. The lady was thrown out of a buggy and her arm broken. She claimed compensation from the County.—Referred to the Roads and Bridges committee.

From the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital, asking for aid. — Referred to Ways and Means committee.

From the hospital, Toronto Sick Children's, asking for aid.—Referred to Ways and Means committee.

A communication was read inviting the members of the Council, whilst in the city, to take advantage of the reading room in connection with Bridge St church.

The communication was received, and the Clerk requested to acknowledge the same, with thanks.

STRIKING THE COMMITTEES.

Mr. Vandervoort moved, seconded by Mr. Farley, that the Gravel Roads and Bridges committee be composed of the following members: Messrs. Cornell, Wright, Ketcheson, Newton, Bonter, Vermilyea, Birkett, Collins and Hanley.

Mr. Vermilyea moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Mather, that all matters appertaining to the roads and bridges be dealt with by the Council as a whole. He contended that it was not necessary for a chairman to travel so much over the roads as has been done in the past The Superintendent was a person who was conversant with the roads and he could give all details to the Council.

Mr. Mather spoke in support of the amendment.

The original motion prevailed.

Mr. Dryden moved, seconded by Mr. Best, that the House of Refuge Committee be composed of the following members: Messrs. Vandervoort, Rollins, Draycup, Mather, McDonnell, and Dr. Bowlby.—Carried.

Moved by Dr. Harper, seconded by Mr. Collins, that the following members be appointed on the Executive Committee: Messrs. Dryden, Nickle Simpkins, Best, Farley, Mawson and Dr. Harper.—Carried.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

On motion the Council went into Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means, Mr. Vandervoort in the chair.

A communication was read from Police Magistrate Flint, stating that Mr. Thos. Huntley was a dangerous lunatic and he (the magistrate) could not send him to jail. He desired to know what he would do in this matter.

The Clerk stated that the Statute told what the magistrates had to do in relation to these matters.

A motion prevailed that no action be taken.

Wedding Bells.

CLAPSADDLE—WILSON.

On Saturday, Jan. 19th, at high noon, the home of Mr. John Wilson, Township of Huntingdon, was the scene of a happy event, when his eldest daughter, Alice, was united in marriage to Mr. W. Clapsaddle, of Port Huron, Mich. The bride wore her travelling dress of blue cloth and carried a bouquet of roses. Rev. W. Spencer, of St. Paul's Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate relatives. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wilson, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. J. Waterhouse, Frankford, and Miss Pearl Clapsaddle, of Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Clapsaddle are visiting friends in Prince Edward and Roslin for a week before leaving for their home in Michigan.

ROBINSON—POST.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shaw, Keller's Bridge, Madoc, on the evening of Dec. 19th, 1906, when their sister, Lottie Post, was united in marriage to Mr. John H. Robinson, of Wallaceburg, in the presence of about 70 guests. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Connell, under an arch suitably decorated for the occasion, from which hung a large white bell. The bride, who was given away by her brother, looked very pretty in a gown of white silk, trimmed with chiffon over lace and ruching, and wore a bridal veil fastened with bridal roses. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with smilax, tied with white ribbon. Miss Mary Post, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and looked very pretty in a dress of cream cashmere. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Hugh Empey, of Pleasant Valley, ably supported the groom. Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered by Miss Lottie Shaw. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, which showed the esteem in which she was held. After congratulations and good wishes all joined in partaking of a rich and dainty repast. The bride's travelling suit was of fawn lady's cloth, with hat to match. The happy couple left on Christmas eve for their future home in Wallaceburg, their many friends wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

SETTLED COLDS

DANGEROUS BECAUSE HARD TO CURE.

AN OFFER TO THE PEOPLE OF BELLEVILLE FROM OUR WELL KNOWN DRUGGIST, J. S. McKEOWN.

Our well known druggist, J. S. McKeown, claims he has a cure for colds and coughs, and if it fails he will refund your money. The remedy is Vinol, and we have heard such wonderful results from it that we advise every person in Belleville who is suffering from a cold or cough to try it on his guarantee.

A hard cold and hacking cough may be the means of undermining your constitution and terminate in consumption. Cough syrups, while they temporarily allay the spasms of coughing, owing to the opiates they contain, upset the stomach and do not cure the cause; old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions are so nauseating that few can take them.

Vinol is delicious to take, and contains all the active curative principles of cod liver oil in a highly concentrated form, and it is, therefore, the greatest specific known, for coughs, colds and bronchial troubles.

You would not eat an egg, shell and all. For the same reason you should not take old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions, just to get the medicinal curative elements which they contain.

The Vinol manufacturers separate them for you, throw away the useless oil and give you in a delicious, concentrated form all the healing and life giving elements which are to be found in fresh cod's livers. That is what gives Vinol its wonderful power to cure coughs, colds and all throat and lung troubles, and makes it the greatest tonic reconstructor known to medicine. J. S. McKeown, druggist.

Religion is a seed which planted in daily living makes life glorious with its beauty, but hoarded it becomes a stench in the nostrils of men.

You can tell a good deal about a man by the things that appeal to his sense of humor.

BLOOD DISEASES

Guaranteed Cured or No Pay.

If you ever had any constitutional, acquired or hereditary blood disease, you are never safe until the virus or poison has been removed from the system. You may have had some disease years ago, but now and then some symptom alarms you. Some poison still lurks in your system. Can you afford to run the risk of more serious symptoms appearing as the poison multiplies? Beware of mercury or mineral drugs used indiscriminately—they may ruin the system. Thirty years' experience in the treatment of these diseases enables us to prescribe specific remedies that will positively cure all blood diseases of the worst character, leaving no bad effects on the system. Our New Method Treatment will purify and enrich the blood, heal up all ulcers, clear the skin, remove bone pains, fallen out hair will grow in, and swollen glands will return to a normal condition, and the patient will feel and look like a different person. All cases we accept for treatment are guaranteed a complete cure or no charge.

Reader if in doubt as to your condition, you can consult us FREE OF CHARGE. Remember the old adage, "a stitch in time saves nine." Beware of incompetent doctors who have no reputation or reliability. Drs. K. & K. have been established over 27 years. You can pay after cure.

WE CURE Nervous Debility, Varicocele, Stricture, Blood Diseases, Secret Diseases, Kidney and Bladder Complaints. Consultation Free. If unable to call, write for a Question List for Home Treatment.

TIMELY TOPICS.

A WEDDING INVITATION.

(London Tribune.)

Mr. Black regrets that he Must impart the information
That he can't accept with glee,
Mrs. White's kind invitation.
Candidly he must avow,
Risking being thought unpleasant,
That his means do not allow
Of the purchase of a present.

Mr. Black, too, would remind
Mrs. White, without evasion,
That they've met, through fate unkind,
Only upon one occasion.
As for the prospective bride,
Her no doubt delightful daughter,
If her form he'd ever eyed
Something he perhaps had brought her.

Mr. Black must, therefore, state,
Taking all things, in conjunction,
That he can't participate
In this fashionable function,
He is neither millionaire,
Nor a dog inclined to mangers;
He's just one who cannot spare
Charities for perfect strangers.

At Moosomin, N.W.T., witnesses before the grain commission swore that it was necessary to bribe train crews to get freight cars. It was alleged that for $10 a piece paid conductors plenty of cars could be had even during the "famine." If this be true, the rascals should have a few months in prison breaking stones.

• • •

In Australia the Anglicans and Presbyterians have come to an understanding on practically everything but the historic episcopate and the validity of non-episcopal ordination. The obtacles thus left in the way of union are not numerous, but they may be found difficult to get round. There are those who attach no importance to ordination or the circumstances attending it, and there are those who regard them as essential, and the latter are often the most earnest supporters of their church's work. They will be hard to reconcile with what their consciences do not approve of.

• • •

In Canada strikes have resulted in destruction of property, lawlessness of most every kind, and unfortunately in the loss of life, all without compensating results to the strikers. In Mexico lately thirty men were killed and eighty wounded in a strike riot at Nogales. President Diaz's country is sharing in what is unsatisfactory as well as in what is good connected with modern progress.

• • •

Labor and Unionists are noted for tyranny, and a desire to compel others to obey their behests. Mr. Verville, M. P., who represents the labor unions of Montreal, complained in the House of Commons the other day, that his fellow members generally throw the copies of the Labor Gazette they receive on the floor, and that, too, without looking at them. M. P.'s seem to have about the same opinion as other observers as to the value of the publication, who throw the precious document when received, into the waste basket.

• • •

"It's a sad fact," remarked the moralizer, "that nowadays nearly every influential man has his price." "And sadder still," replied a Grit M. P., "to think that half the time he can't get it."

• • •

The row between Senator Choquette and the Hon. M. Parent, late Premier of Quebec, is not yet settled. The appeal court in Quebec has dismissed with costs Choquette's appeal. Now, Senator Choquette, let's have the trial and facts. Is the late Premier as "big a — —" as you say he is? If so, Parent says prove it.

• • •

Well put. By the Ontario Government the sum of $178,500 has been received for the right to mine in Kerr Lake. It is well to remember that the Government was offered $51,000 for this privilege, but refused the proposition. Public tenders were called for, and the province gets $178,500, or $127,500 more than was originally thought possible. Suppose a property of this character was at the disposal of Messrs. Laurier, Sifton, and Oliver, how much would the Public Treasury get out of it? The country would get a few dollars and a gang of grafters standing close to the ruling politicians would get the balance.

• • •

The press is commenting somewhat freely upon the last appointments to the Senate. Le Soleil, Sir Wilfrid's organ in Quebec, says: "John Costigan was for years a Conservative. But he rallied to the Liberal Government, and the elevation to the Senate "is a just recompense for the service he rendered!" " It is doubtful whether the Hon. John will thank the Laurier organ for such a compliment.

• • •

Another journal says, "Mr. Beith is given his seat in the Senate because he gave the riding of West Durham, which he had formerly represented, to Mr. Aylesworth." That is he gave Mr. Aylesworth a chance to be elected, but he was not. It is to the credit of Mr. Aylesworth, however, that he kept his promise, though it was at the expense of Sir Wilfrid and Sir Richard. Nathanael, get Aylesworth's promise.

• • •

Another says these appointments are not much better than the sale of Senatorships at $10,000 each — which, according to the evidence of Mr. H. H. Cook, was the price the Laurier Government was asking during the early period of its term.

• • •

Let Topics add another. Mr. Gillmore, a resident of Montreal, was cajoled into contesting Charlotte, N. B., with a promise that if not elected, he should have his deceased father's vacant seat in the Senate. He expected to win on the reputation his father left. He failed and is now rewarded. With such men is the Senate being filled.

• • •

The Hartford Courant remarks "that the one redeeming feature about the numerous and costly and largely unnecessary fires on this continent is the heroism shown by the men employed to fight them." The Montreal Gazette adds: "An unredeeming feature is that this heroism is often so badly directed that it is ineffective of the purpose in view." With which sentiment we are in full accord. No men do more noble work, and no men are so little appreciated.

TWO TASTES AND $30 IN CASH

The first taste you like it. Use it a month, a year—the last taste proves it the most delicious part of every meal.

The finest wheat scrubbed, washed, steamed-malted, flaked, toasted into rich, golden brown flakes that are crisp, dainty, satisfying. That is "Orange Meat." From kernel to table, no hand touches it. Machinery does it all.

Besides premiums you get THIRTY DOLLARS if you send in the largest number of coupons taken from the 15c packages.

"Orange Meat" contains more wheat sugars, the strength giving elements, than any other cereal. And each package of Orange Meat is a third larger than any other.

Save the coupons and get $30.00. Coupons must be mailed or delivered on or before March 30th, and must reach the office of "Orange Meat," Kingston, before March 30th, when the prize will be awarded.

Earl Grey's Daughter Ill.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—The announcement was made yesterday that Lady Victoria Grenfell, eldest daughter of Their Excellencies Earl and Countess Grey, is suffering from typhoid fever.

Probably a Total Loss.

Havana, Jan. 23.—Doubts are entertained whether the British steamer Arcola, which grounded on rocks close to Morro Castle shortly after midnight yesterday can be refloated.

The Caterpillar.

The female of one species of caterpillar tears off the fur from the extremity of her abdomen to make a soft bed for her eggs and to preserve them from the cold. Yet she never sees her young, for after she has accomplished the task of laying the eggs the caterpillar invariably dies.

Eyelashes In Marble.

Only one marble statue of the human figure with eyelashes is known. It is one of the gems of the Vatican, the Sleeping Ariadne, and was found in 1503.

Burning Meteors.

It is supposed that meteors begin to burn when they are within about 125 miles of the earth and that combustion is completed and they disappear at from thirty-five to fifty miles above the earth. When we see a falling star, therefore, we may consider that we have watched it through a flight of about a hundred miles before it finally burns out and disappears from view.

Distant Stars.

There are stars so distant that a flying machine moving at the rate of 500 miles an hour would require 500,000,000 years to reach them.

Bats That Eat Fruit.

Fruit eating bats eat fruit only and are confined to Asia, the islands of the East Indian archipelago being one of their principal habitats. They cover the trees in daytime in vast multitudes, looking like a large flock of crows.

Toy Wagons.

It must be that the toy wagon is the favorite plaything of children the world over, for there is no country in which grown up wagons are used that has not toy wagons just like them except in size, and in those countries where wagons are never used there are always substitutes.

NEW YORK DAIRY MARKET.

New York, Jan. 22.—Butter—Firm; receipts, 7191; street price extra creamery, 30½c to 31c; official prices creamery, common to extra, 21c to 30c; held, common to extra, 20c to 29c; renovated, common to extra, 16c to 23½c.

Cheese—Steady to firm; prices unchanged; receipts, 1882.

Eggs—Fairly active and steady; prices unchanged.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables About Steady—Hogs 5 Cents Higher at Chicago.

London, Jan. 22.—Liverpool and London cables are higher at 10½c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9c to 9¾c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Receipts of live stock at the city market since last Friday as reported by the railways were 80 car loads, composed of 1333 cattle, 910 hogs, 1132 sheep and lambs with 70 calves. Trade was brisk and prices outrageously high, when the quality of the offerings is considered.

Exporters.

Not many shipping cattle were on sale, and prices ranged from $4.90 to $5.25 per cwt. Export bulls sold at $3.00 to $4 per cwt.

Butchers.

Picked lots sold at $4.40 to $4.80; medium to fair at $3.80 to $4.25; common mixed, with cows, $3 to $3.70; common cows, $2 to $3; canners at $1.25 to $1.50 per cwt.

Milch Cows.

There was a good demand for milkers and forward springers and prices ranged from $35 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices for good to prime calves were firm, but there were few of them. Prices ranged from $3.50 to $6.50 per cwt. Prime new milk-fed calves are worth $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The quality of the bulk of the sheep and lambs offered on the market to-day was not good and a positive disgrace to Canadian farmers. The lambs especially were a skinny lot, that would drive trade away from any butcher that would dare to hang them up in his shop when dressed. Prices for lambs were quoted at $6.25 to $6.75 for good quality and $5 to $6 for common; export ewes, $4.50 to $5 per cwt.; culls and rams at $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris got about 1000 hogs on the market. Prices are off 20c per cwt.; selects, $6.60; lights and fats, $6.35 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 22.—Cattle—Receipts, 700 head; good demand and steady; prime steers, $5.65 to $6.15; shipping, $5 to $5.75; butchers, $4.50 to $5.50.

Veals—Receipts, 250 head; active and steady; $4.25 to $9.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 5100 head; active, 5c to 10c higher; heavy and mixed, $7 to $7.05; Yorkers, $7 to $7.10; pigs, $7.25 to $7.35; roughs, $6 to $6.35; stags, $4.50 to $5.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 3000 head; sheep steady; lambs, 5c higher; lambs, $5 to $7.85; yearlings, $6.50 to $6.65; wethers, $5.50 to $5.65; ewes, $4.75 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $3 to $5.25.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Jan. 22.—Beeves—Receipts, 920; feeling steady; dressed beef slow, 7c to 9c per lb. for common to prime native sides. Exports to-morrow, 930 cattle, 1230 sheep and 5500 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 258; veals slow and barely steady; barnyard calves nominally weak; western calves not wanted and the four cars offered were carried over; fair to prime veal sold at $8.50 to $9.50 per 100 lbs.; city dressed veals slow at 8c to 14c per lb.; country dressed were at 7½c to 12c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 1812; market slow, but steady. Three cars unsold; sheep sold at $4 to $5 per 100 lbs.; culls at $2.50; lambs at $7.50 to $8; culls at $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 4347; feeling steady to firm; state and Pennsylvania hogs, including lightweights, are quoted at $7.10 to $7.35.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Cattle—Receipts, about 7000; market steady; common to prime steers, $4 to $7.30; cows, $2.75 to $4.75; heifers, $2.60 to $5; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $2.75 to $8.75; stockers and feeders, $2.75 to $4.90.

Hogs—Receipts, about 25,000; market 5c higher; prime shipping, $6.70 to $6.72½; choice butchers' weights, $6.67½ to $6.70; packing, $6.62½ to $6.70; assorted light, $6.62½ to $6.67½; pigs, $6.20 to $6.60; bulk of sales, $6.65 to $6.70.

Sheep—Receipts, about 18,000; market strong; sheep, $3 to $5.75; yearlings, $4.60 to $6.60; lambs, $5.75 to $7.90.

Fuel Famine at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 23.—Where Winnipeg is to get a fuel supply adequate to requirements of its residents for the remainder of this winter is a problem which is worrying the dealers as well as those who are dependent on the former for their supply. One local dealer suggests that the board of control take charge of the situation.

The Central and Balmoral hotels at Virden, Man., are entirely out of coal. Many of the citizens and farmers have not a pound of coal.

Town In the Dark.

Carleton Place, Jan. 23.—A breakdown in the plant of the Carleton Place Electric Light Co. will deprive the town of lights for a week or two.

Cure Every Form of Indigestion

ROYAL NAVY CUSTOMS

ONE OF THEM DATES BACK BEFORE THE DAYS OF DRAKE.

Senior Officer Must Always Enter a Boat Last and Leave It First—The Scran Bag and Its Contents—Admiralty Lords More Generous Now In Replenishing It Than Formerly—Some Quaint Rules.

In the British navy, to say that a thing is a custom of the service is to say that it must be done that way and no other.

It is nowhere laid down, for instance, that the senior officer shall always enter a boat last and leave it first; but the expression on a certain captain's face might have led one to believe that one of the laws of the Medes and Persians had been broken when, on taking the newly-joined chaplain ashore with him on one occasion, he said, "Now then, padre, jump in," and the reverend gentleman politely replied, "After you, sir."

This custom is one of the oldest in the service, says The Grand Magazine. It doubtless dates from before the days of Drake, if not, indeed, from those of Noah himself, probably the last to enter the Ark after all his juniors and proteges had been safely embarked.

The gunroom mess consists of the sub-lieutenants, all other commissioned officers of equivalent rank and all midshipmen and cadets. Midshipmen are divided into two lots, "senior" and "junior." The former are over 18 years of age, and are allowed many privileges, such as smoking and so on, denied to the juniors.

As a specimen of the customs which remind the juniors that they are still in bondage, the one known as "Fork in the Beam" is worth notice. It may be sprung upon its victims at any time during or after dinner.

When the president of the mess sticks a table fork into one of the beams overhead it is a signal for all juniors to clear out of the mess as fast as legs, arms or anything else can carry them. The last out receives several good whacks with a dirk scabbard on the most convenient part of his body as he disappears through the door. The scramble that results would disturb the equilibrium of most older and more sedate diners than those usually found in a gunroom.

The Scran Bag.

One of the most important and best known institutions in the service is the scran bag. It is well known that the allowance of paint and materials for keeping a ship clean, as laid down by the British Admiralty, is quite inadequate for that purpose. My Lords are much more generous nowadays than they used to be, but the first lieutenant or commander has still to put his hand in his pocket if he wishes his ship to look really smart.

The small supply of these necessities which the Admiralty provides for cleaning brasswork, etc., is augmented from the takings of the scran bag. A ship must be spick and span and tidy as any housewife could wish to see her home.

Nothing must be out of place, and nothing must be left lying about; but sailors, like other mortals, are only human, and, consequently, leave articles of clothing and personal property in places where they ought not to. This is an offence for which they are liable to disciplinary punishment; but a brilliant, though unknown, officer many years ago devised a scheme by which all the articles thus found are promptly seized by the ship's police and placed in the scran bag.

There they remain until the next Thursday afternoon, which is the time set aside for men to make and mend clothes. The bag is then opened by the master-at-arms, and the owners may redeem their lost property by paying a fine of an inch of yellow soap for each article.

The price of this soap is a penny an inch, and the fine is usually paid in cash, not in kind.

Some Quaint Rules.

Several quaint rules are enforced in the officers' messes, the origins of which are lost in the oblivion of antiquity. For instance, one rule lays down that no officer may place his feet on the table unless he has sailed around both capes—i.e., Cape of Good Hope and the Horn. Any one not eligible found in this elegant attitude is fined drinks around by all the members who happen to be in the mess.

The same penalty is enforced if an officer happens to unsheath his sword in the mess. It is very difficult to see why this should be regarded as an offence, unless that in olden days, when times were harder and men rougher, swords were sometimes drawn in earnest among officers.

One sometimes hears one officer remark to another: "I say, So-and-so, your sword looked pretty rusty at divisions." Thereupon, perhaps, the unsuspecting victim draws the maligned weapon to prove its cleanliness, only to be greeted with a shout for drinks.

If any one mentions a lady's name, or makes a bet at dinner before the King's health has been drunk he is liable to be called on by the president to pay for a round of port at dessert.

When an admiral or captain comes on board a ship he is piped over the side; that is to say, as the boat comes alongside a boatswain's mate gives forth a shrill crescendo pipe and repeats it as the officer steps on to the quarter deck, every one present saluting at the same time. The origin of this is to be found in the privilege which all officers of a certain rank enjoyed many years ago of being hoisted on board in a chair slung from the main yard of the old three deckers. The sacredness of the quarter deck is well known to all; no person in His Majesty's navy goes on to it without saluting—be he the humblest boy or an admiral of the fleet.

LIFE GROWING SHORTER.

Are We Really Dying Earlier Than Our Grandparents Did?

In part one of the third volume of the United States census for 1900 will be found a tabular statement which shows in a very striking way the rise in the death rate during the decade from 1890 to 1900 for all ages from sixty up. The figures given are now six years old, and so I have brought them up to date with the help of fresh information from Washington, a matter of no little importance, inasmuch as the increase has been marked ever since 1900. Thus corrected for accuracy the reckoning shows that since 1890 there has been this increase in the death rate for the entire United States:

For people of ages from 60 to 64, 7 per cent.
For people of ages from 65 to 69, 6¼ per cent.
For people of ages from 70 to 74, 16½ per cent.
For people of ages from 75 to 79, 7 per cent.
For people of ages from 80 to 84, 15 per cent.
For people of ages from 85 to 89, 12 per cent.
For people of ages from 90 to 94, 20½ per cent.
For people of ages from 95 and up, 20½ per cent.

These figures tell the story more clearly than the most eloquent discourse on the subject. They show that, notwithstanding improved medical knowledge and the benefits of modern sanitation, we are dying earlier than our grandparents did. The reason why offers a topic for a considerable discussion and is not to be summed up in a word. But one may discover it without much difficulty in the more complex and luxurious life that we lead. The lives of our forbears were comparatively simple, and their constitutions, unweakened by the luxury and intense nervous strain of an existence like that of today, were stronger than ours and better able to withstand the approaches of disease.—Reader Magazine.

Defying the Tooth of Time.

The Hungarian chemist Braun claims to have discovered a liquid chemical compound which renders certain kinds of matter proof against the effects of time. He asserts that it doubles the density of nearly every kind of stone and renders it waterproof. It imparts to all metals qualities which defy oxygen and rust. The professor says that while traveling in Greece some twenty-five years ago he noticed that the mortar in stones of ruins which were known to be 2,000 years old was as hard, fresh and tenacious as if it had been made only a year. He secured a piece of the mortar and has been working on it ever since, until now, when, he says, he has discovered the secret. His discovery, he claims, will at the least double the life of metal exposed to the air, such as in bridges, railroads, vessels and tanks. — Consular and Trade Reports.

A Jewish University.

By the will of Moses A. Dropsie a sum of money has been set aside for the purpose of founding a Jewish university. At a meeting held at the home of Judge Mayer Sulzberger in Philadelphia, at which Judge Sulzberger, William B. Hackenberger, Dr. Cyrus Adler and Oscar S. Straus were present, it was decided to apply to the commonwealth of Pennsylvania for a charter for an institution to be known as "The Jewish university, founded by Moses A. Dropsie." The university will be established in Philadelphia, and it is expected that it will co-operate with other institutions which have been established for the promotion of Jewish learning.

A Geological Curiosity.

In excavating for the new reservoir on Auburn Heights, Me., the workmen came upon a singular geological formation the other day. In a crevice in the rock was some foliated sandstone that was twisted and rolled in the most fantastic forms. At some time in the cooling process of the earth's surface this had been molten and had run into these forms as a candle is run into a mold. The different layers lap and overlap each other in a manner that makes them a geological curiosity. When disintegrated these coils became sand, and this has been used for tamping in the dynamite charges. Some particularly fine specimens were preserved.

FOUND A HOLE FOR HIM.

Experience of a Fresh Young Man In His Start In Business.

Here is something that should appeal to every young man starting out in business: "When I came to New York," said a bright fellow to me, "I engaged by the year as entry clerk with a large dry goods house. I soon found out I couldn't get along with the superintendent, a dictatorial, domineering man. Being young and brash, I 'sassed' him, which made matters all the worse for me. At last my position became unbearable, and I quietly looked around for another place. The manager of a great grocery house asked where I worked and why I wanted to make a change. I told him in all frankness, and he asked me to come around in a few days. I guess I talked altogether too much. When I called he said, 'I have no place open at present, but I guess I can find a hole for you.' That was enough. I went back to my store and resigned.

"The next morning I presented myself before the manager of the grocery house. 'As I told you,' said he, 'I have no place open at present,' and walked away. 'But,' said I, 'didn't you tell me you would find a hole for me?' 'I did,' he answered back. 'Ain't you in it?' He then added, 'Mr. R., the superintendent of the firm you have been working for is my brother.' I have worked since then with my hands in my pockets, and the lesson took a good deal of the freshness out of me. It taught me to look before I leaped."

WEIGHT FLUCTUATIONS.

A Man May Gain and Lose Five Pounds In the Day.

"A dinner like this increases one's weight two and a half pounds," said a physiologist as he finished his more than generous meal. "An average dinner increases the weight two pounds two ounces. Did you ever consider how the weight fluctuates night and day?

"We lose in bed at night two pounds six ounces. Between breakfast and lunch we lose fourteen ounces. Between lunch and dinner we lose ten ounces more. Total loss, four pounds fourteen ounces. That goes on every day of our lives.

"At breakfast we gain one pound twelve ounces; at lunch, one pound; at dinner, as I said before, two pounds two ounces. Total gain, four pounds fourteen ounces.

"Thus, day by day, gaining nearly five pounds, our weight remains uniform. If we ate but a half or a third what we do, it is logical to suppose that our organs, digestive and so on, would have but half as much work to do and that our brains in consequence would be able to do twice as much. That is the logical supposition, and no doubt it is the correct one, but man is still too nearly animal to eat only what he needs. He insists upon eating till he can hold no more."

Saved by the Apostles' Creed.

The value of a religious education was once experienced by the skeptic Hume. He fell off a temporary bridge connecting old and new Edinburgh and sank in a bog. After many cries for assistance an old woman drew near and began to make preparations for saving him. But as soon as she saw who it was she would save she desisted and bade him stay where he was. "I am no atheist," protested Hume. "I assure you, good woman, you are mistaken." "Well, then, if you are not an atheist," she cried, "you can say your belief, and if you cannot do that I will be no aid to save an infidel." Hume accordingly, embogged in the swamp—de profundis—recited the Apostles' Creed and, having made no mistake in the recital, was duly saved by this severe Samaritan. If he had failed—

Exhibits In Law Cases.

What are known as "exhibits" in law cases range from sheets of paper to boilers and other large articles. At various times an omnibus, a motor car and a cab have been on view in the private roadway by the side of the London law courts, and as they could not be brought into the witness box the judge and jury have had to go out and inspect them in the open. One of the most ponderous "exhibits" of this kind was a large ship's boiler furnace, which was conveyed from Swansea for inspection.—London Standard.

Cool and Thoughtful.

"Yes," said the warden, "he was the coolest and most thoughtful convict who ever broke jail."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the visitor.

"Yes; he left behind him a note to the governor of the state beginning, 'I hope you will pardon me for the liberty I'm taking.'"

The Intention Was Good.

Governess—You're a naughty little girl, Christabel, to kick your cousin like that. Christabel—I didn't kick her. Governess—Oh, hush, dear! I saw you kick her several times. Christabel—I didn't. I missed her every time.—Punch.

Jumping at Conclusions.

"I see that the 'human ostrich' is no more. He's the chap who swallowed nails, needles and hatpins. And he chewed glass too."

"I see. He chewed so much glass that he got a pain."

Value Received.

"It costs more to live than it did years ago," said the man who complains.

"Yes," answered the man who enjoys modern conveniences, "but it's worth more."—Exchange.

SCALDED BY BOILING FAT

COULDN'T USE HAND FOR A MONTH.

Zam-Buk Then Applied and Gave Instant Relief.

As accident in a Toronto home the other day might have had very serious consequences had it not been for Zam-Buk. Miss Martha Green, of 9 Claremont St., in taking a pan of boiling fat from the oven split it over her right hand. "The boiling fat ran into the palm of my hand," she says, "and over all my fingers. You may well imagine the agony I suffered in consequence. I was almost wild with the pain. The hand became swollen, and large blisters formed all over the palm and along the fingers. For over a month I was unable to use the hand at all. I tried several kinds of salves and liniments, but the wound seemed apparently no better. It was altogether too severe for these preparations to heal. About this time I was advised to try Zam-Buk instead. The very first application soothed my hand and seemed to draw out the fire and inflammation; and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the blisters gradually dried up and disappeared. In a very short time the scald was healed completely."

This is but one instance of the uses to which Zam-Buk can be so advantageously applied. It is equally effective for burns, cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains and stiffness. It also cures eczema, ulcers, sores, blood poison, ringworm, scalp sores, chronic wounds, acne, blackheads, pimples, cold sores, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well on to the chest, in cases of cold, it relieves the aching and tightness, and applied as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c a box, or it may be obtained from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

A BOLD PROJECT.

The Scheme by Which Malet Nearly Captured Paris In 1812.

A bold scheme was that engineered by Malet, a Frenchman. Malet had been a republican general, was ruined by the rise of Napoleon, betook himself to plotting, was arrested and finally put in a madhouse. During the emperor's absence in Russia in 1812 Malet escaped one night from his prison, obtained a general's uniform and with an accomplice dressed as an aid-de-camp made his way to the prison of La Force, where the unsuspecting governor released on his command two other ex-republicans, Generals Laborie and Guidal, prisoners on a like charge to his own. Together they proceeded to a neighboring barracks, announced to the commandant that Napoleon was dead and that they were acting by the decree of the senate, ordered the troops to be paraded and dispatched bodies of men upon various duties. Some arrested Savary, the minister of police; others the police prefect. Another battalion seized the Hotel de Ville. Everybody obeyed Malet implicitly, even the prefect of the Seine, and he would undoubtedly have gained possession of Paris had he not been recognized by Laborde, chief of the military police, as an escaped prisoner. He was arrested after a scuffle, the plot was unraveled, and in due course Malet, with twenty-three of his abettors, was shot.

HOW WATER ACTS.

Its Expansion and Contraction and Its Solvent Powers.

Water contracts as it falls from the normal boiling point, 212 degrees, until it reaches 39 degrees. Below that degree it expands, and at 32 degrees, the freezing point, it will expand enough to burst pipes and vessels holding it.

When the pressure of the air is below normal, water boils at a lower temperature than 212 degrees. This is noticed before a rain, when the barometer shows by a falling mercury a decreased air pressure. This also explains why water boils away more rapidly, quickly or at a lower temperature in the mountains, where the pressure of the air is less than on the seacoast or in the valleys. If sugar or salt is added to water the temperature of the boiling point is raised a few degrees. As a rule, as water is heated it will hold a greater amount of a substance in solution. A familiar exception is the fact that ice water will dissolve twice as much lime as boiling water. At the other extreme boiling water will dissolve seventeen times as much saltpeter as will cold water. But water varies in its solvent powers regardless of heat. One pound of water will hold two pounds of sugar in solution, but only two ounces of common salt.

Frankincense.

Frankincense is the purest of all incense. It is a gum resin from an Arabian terebinth. To obtain this a deep incision is made in the trunk and below it a narrow strip of bark peeled off. When the exudation has hardened, the incision is deepened. In about three months the resin has acquired a sufficient degree of consistency. It is gathered in large quantities and packed in goatskins. It was formerly believed that the trees which yielded frankincense were infested by winged serpents, and the only way to be rid of them and to get at the treasure was by burning gum styrax, an odoriferous balsam of aromatic smell. Frankincense was forbidden to be used for embalming, as it was sacred to sacrificial purposes. The Israelites were strictly prohibited from compounding it. Now it is used largely in Roman Catholic and high church ceremonies.

A PATRIOT'S PRAYER.

Though we must die, let me not die
  In ignominious strife,
With fate invincible, and sigh
  To linger out my life;
With powers decayed, enfeebled mind
  And slowly slackening breath,
Burden of pity to my kind
  And dead before my death.

No, let me perish, sword in hand,
  At honor's sudden call,
Guarding my menaced motherland
  And for her safety fall.
Or mount the scaffold with firm gaze,
  Martyr to some great cause,
And end my not inglorious days
  For freedom's outraged laws.

What is this life except a trust
  For nobleness and right,
The torch which, while we may, we must
  Still bear and keep alight;
And when, from our exhausted will
  It flickers, hand it on,
That it may burn and beckon still,
  Till time itself be gone.

But if, in unheroic days,
  No great deed may be done,
Let me at least deserve this praise:
  "He lived and died as one
Who looked on life with fearless eyes,
  And with intrepid mind;
So leaves, where now he silent lies,
  An honored name behind."
—Alfred Austin.

RENOVATING THE ABBEY.

Westminster Abbey Begins to Show Effects of Time's Hand.

Like others of England's historic cathedrals—Westminster and Exeter, for instance—Westminster Abbey has begun to show the effects of the hand of time, and the ravages of London's atmosphere.

Repairs upon the Abbey have now been begun, under the direction of the architects of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and for several years there will be work going on behind unsightly palisades and scaffolding, much to the disappointment of French and American visitors to London.

Motor omnibuses are held to be partly responsible for making repairs necessary, and residents in Dean's Yard, adjoining the Abbey, are outspoken in their complaints against the vibration which accompanies the motor omnibus traffic to Victoria. A new line has recently greatly augmented the number now passing the north front of the Abbey.

North Front Damaged.

It is to the north front that the greatest amount of damage has been done. Scaling of the stone has become general, and spread along the entire front, seriously affecting the effigies of several bishops and martyrs. A few days ago a large section of stone fell just after the passing of a motor omnibus.

A policeman on point duty near the Abbey front said, that the jarring is plainly felt inside the Abbey. The Victoria bound motors are worst, he said, and the amount of vibration appears to depend upon the manner in which they take the curve into Victoria street.

The architects admit that in every case where appreciable portions of stone have fallen flaws have been discovered, due to the encroachments of time and weather.

$100,000 For Repairs.

Lack of means has delayed the work of renovation during recent years, but as there is now available some £20,000 a year, the north front is to be re-faced, practically in entirety.

The vibration is distinctly perceptible to worshippers.

How advisable it is to look to the repairs of our historic abbeys and cathedrals is well illustrated in the case of Exeter Cathedral, where the dean has just made the disquieting discovery that the south tower is resting on falling foundations. In the thirteenth century Bishop Quivil removed the fourth wall in order to throw the chapels at the base of the tower into the transepts—a fact which may have helped considerably to bring about the present condition of things. It is all the more serious in the case of Exeter, as the tower contains one of the heaviest peals of bells in the country.

Rothschilds Never Prosecute.

While the Bank of England makes it a point never under any circumstances to relinquish the prosecution or to refrain from the punishment of those who have defrauded it in the slightest degree, being willing, if need be, to spend thousands of pounds to capture and prosecute people who have robbed it of even a few shillings, the Rothschilds make it a rule never to appeal to the courts or to the police in such matters. Of course, they are, like every other banker, the victims of dishonesty, but neither the police nor the public ever hear about the matter. This has always been a principle of the heads of the house, who take the ground that it is better to bear the loss in silence than to disturb popular confidence in the safety of the concern by allowing it to be seen that its treasures are not adequately safeguarded.

Du Maurier Heroines.

When Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett was first presented to Du Maurier, who was, in point of fact, rather an undersized man, she exclaimed:

"Oh, I am so glad that you are not six feet tall!"

"But why?" asked Du Maurier.

"Because for these many months," replied Mrs. Burnett, who is considerably below the medium height, "you have simply denied us the right to live. You have made us feel that a woman who is not six feet tall has not the right to exist."

"Oh, that is only a trick of mine!" laughed Du Maurier. "I have started again and again to make my heroine a little woman, but before I know it she has somehow grown way beyond my own recognition."

WOMEN IN HOSPITALS

Experiences of Mrs. Rockwood and Miss Tierney

A large proportion of the operations performed in our hospitals are upon women and girls for some organic trouble.

Why should this be the case?

Because they have neglected themselves, as every one of these patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in those dragging sensations, pains at left or right of abdomen, backaches, nervous exhaustion, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, and other organic weaknesses.

All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female system and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has saved hundreds of women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured more cases of feminine ills than any other one remedy. Such letters as the following are constantly being received by Mrs. Pinkham to prove our claims.

Mrs. C. A. Rockwood, teacher of Parliamentary Law, of 58 Free St., Fredonia, N. Y., writes:

"For years I suffered with female trouble. It was decided that an operation was necessary, and although I submitted to a serious operation my sufferings continued, until Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it proved a marvelous remedy, so quickly did it restore my health. I cannot thank you sufficiently for the good it has done me."

Miss Margaret Tierney, of No. 328 W. 25th Street, New York, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"When only eighteen years of age our physician decided that an operation was necessary to permit of my womanly organs performing their natural functions. My mother objected and being urged by a relative to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did so. I soon improved in health, the proper conditions were established and I am well and strong, thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

No other remedy has such unqualified endorsement as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No other remedy in the world has such a record of cures of female ills.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that may help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

THE LAND OF ROMANCE.

Spain and the Peculiar Temperament of Its People.

If I were asked to sum up the dominant impression that the survival in Spain of the old world mediaevalism makes, I should say that Spain is in the precise and specific sense of the word the home of romance. The special character of the Spanish temperament and of Spanish developments in literature and in art is marked by a quality, rising and sinking with the rise and fall of Gothic, which we call the romantic spirit—a mixture, that is, of the mysterious and grandiose with the grotesquely bizarre of the soaringly ideal with the crudely real, a mixture which to us today has the cunning fascination of art, but was really on both sides the natural outcome of the experiences and feelings of the men who created it. This romantic spirit was once the common possession of all Christendom, but the Spanish temperament peculiarly lent itself to the romantic attitude, and it is in Spain today that we may catch its final vanishing echoes. It is the church, always the most powerful stronghold of tradition among any people, which enables the stranger most vividly to realize how well the romantic spirit has been preserved in Spain. Notwithstanding invasions from without and revolutions from within, especially during the early years of the last century, Spain is still the country where the mediaeval spirit of romantic devotion is most splendidly embodied and preserved.—Havelock Ellis in Atlantic.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

A Member May Drink There, but Is Not Allowed to Eat.

The British house of commons has its own code in regard to the partaking of liquid and solid refreshments. A member making a long speech may take a drink, and the house is liberal enough not to care whether the color of the contents of the glass is white or brown or black, whether, in fact, the glass holds water or whisky or beer. Mr. Gladstone's egg flips, which his wife carefully compounded for him and he brought to the house in a bottle, are classic.

But woe betide the man who scorns drink and must have meat. Contemporary recollection only recalls one member rash enough to disregard this rule. It was a number of years ago, in the stormy time of the home rule debates, that an Irish member, in the small hours of the morning, produced from his pocket a paper bag and drew out a bun, which he proceeded calmly to eat. The house was instantly in an uproar. There were loud cries of "Order! Order!" and that bun was never finished.

No member may read a newspaper in the house. If he had the temerity to smoke, the sergeant at arms would quickly place him under lock and key.

Mexican Church Legends.

Queretaro was a town before the Spanish conquest and was made a city in 1655. A legend of Queretaro is that an Otomite chief, Fernando de Tapia by name, undertook to convert the city to Christianity in a way that seems novel to us, but was common enough to his day. He came from Tula with a challenge to the people of Queretaro to a fair stand up fight. If he won, the people surviving were to be baptized. The challenge was accepted, but while the fight was in progress a dark cloud came up and the blessed Santiago was seen in the heavens with a fiery cross, whereupon the people of Queretaro gave up and were baptized. They set up a stone cross to commemorate the event on the site of the present church of Santa Cruz. There is scarcely a church in Mexico which has not a legend of this kind attached to it.

Misjudged.

The manager of an office had advertised for an office boy. In consequence he was annoyed for an hour by a straggling line of boys of all sizes, claiming various accomplishments.

"Well," he said to a late applicant, "I suppose you can read anything, and write anything, and figure a little, and use the typewriter a little, and"—

"Naw!" interrupted the boy. "If I could do all them things I'd strike yer fer yer own job. I ain't nothin' but an office boy."

He got the position.—Bohemian.

Remedy For Excess In Eating.

A hint to those who may thoughtlessly at some time or other indulge in excess in eating. If this indiscretion is committed, especially in high seasoned things with rich sauces, a draft of cold water acidulated with lemon juice will take off the sense of weight at the stomach and assist the digestive process by moderating the alimentary fermentation.

Old English Elections.

As an illustration of the violence that was once common during political campaigns in England is a quaint bill from a lawyer after an election at Andover in 1768: "To being thrown out of the George inn, Andover, to my legs being thereby broken, to surgeon's bill and loss of time and business, £500."

A Loophole.

"But, Tommy," said his mother, "didn't your conscience tell you you were doing wong?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy, "but I don't believe everything I hear."

Engines as Freight.

A freight car as a buffer is used by locomotive manufacturers when shipping more than one locomotive in the same direction at the same time. Of course great loss would follow the wreck of a locomotive, so the manufacturers have adopted the plan of placing a freight car between every two engines in transit. In this way if there should be a wreck the freight car would be smashed, while the engine would most likely be unharmed, just the same as the ordinary passenger coach is generally telescoped while the stronger built Pullman is not damaged so much.—Philadelphia Record.

Paper.

When the editor man of this paper was a "bound boy" in Missouri forty years ago his copy paper at school was so scarce that he had to write on both sides of the paper and then crosswise of the first writing to save paper. Although the paper we now use for copy costs only 3 cents a pound, our early experience will not permit any waste without annoyance. — Concordia Kansan.

ROBINSON & THOMPSON.

TURNER'S SETTLEMENT.

The Baptists of this place held anniversary services on Sunday last, and on Monday evening a grand tea meeting was held, which was a huge success. Very spirited addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Brace, of Peterboro, and other able speakers. The proceeds amounted to $130. Mr. Wm. Tufts, of Halloway, in a very able manner, acted as chairman.

There are quite a number sick here with colds, and some cases of la grippe, and the two medical men of Foxboro, are busy looking after them.

Mr. Wm. Ward and wife, former resident here, who moved to Belleville last fall, are among us this week visiting relatives and calling on old friends. Both are looking well.

Our day school is going right along under the able and up-to-date teacher, Miss Broadworth, who has been a very successful teacher in Manitoba for some years, and began here on the 3rd of this month.

On looking out here during the day you will see the pleasant faced farmers coming from all directions with their teams loaded with all sorts of wood for next year's supply, and it would seem to the casual observer that if any people should be happy it should be the ruralites, as they are free from the perplexities of city life.

The rain on Saturday took away most of our snow. We are down to the old ice again. The wind was terrible on Saturday night and Sunday. A lot of trees will have to be cleared away from the bush roads.

A lot of men are busy getting out lumber and telegraph poles.

HOLLOWAY.

A goodly number from here attended the tea meeting on Monday evening at the Sidney Baptist church, which was a decided success.

Mr. Thos. Carter left here Thursday morning for a trip to Spokenham, where he has two brothers residing.

On Sunday morning last fire broke out in the grist mill here, which caused quite a confusion. The neighbors extinguished the fire before it did much damage.

A very pleasant surprise was given last Wednesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bird, of Holloway, who are moving to Belleville, when their friends and neighbors met at their home and presented them with a hall rack and Miss Hattie with a rocking chair, accompanied by a suitable address.

Mr. H. B. Chisholm occupied the pulpit here last Sunday.

HAROLD.

Say, you should see our cheesemaker, Mr. John West, he just smiles all the time—It's a boy.

Mr. W. Gay, who spent last week with his sons at Niagara is much taken up with the place.

Miss Annie Ashley, of Madoc, is the guest of Mrs. Jas. Bailey.

Mr. S Armstrong lost his horse last week. It died of distemper.

Mr. and Mrs. Runnell's returned to their home here after spending a pleasant time with their son William, who resides at Prescott.

Miss Estella Kirk has returned to her home at Chapman.

A large number from here took in the oyster supper at Wellman's.

Mrs. S. Bailey, who left for California the last of December, arrived safely, is well and enjoying the warm climate immensely.

Mrs. Norris, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. Heath, is ill with la grippe.

Mr. Geo. Martin returned with his bride the 16th. A reception was given the happy pair at the home of his brother.

Mr. Geo. Cotton has purchased a new cutter; also a new horse.

Miss Reid visited friends in Sidney and Marmora last week.

Mr. Harry Horton has purchased a new buggy, horse and harness.

SECOND LINE THURLOW.

Mrs. P. Stickney is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bird, Stirling.

Mrs. O. Clement spent a few days with her parents at Colebrooke.

Miss Ethel McDonald, front road, is visiting friends on this line.

Mr. James Walker took a trip to Madoc last week.

COE HILL.

Mr. McIntosh, our school inspector from Madoc, is visiting the schools in this section.

Mr. W. Gunter, merchant of this place, met with a sad accident on Saturday. He went to do his chores and fell and broke his arm.

Mr. Jack Kirby was out with others in the woods chopping. A tree lodged and they were trying to bring it down. The tree bounded and struck the young man on the left leg. The doctor hopes that he will be able to save the limb.

WOMEN DOG THIEVES.

Pets Stolen on London Streets and Afterward Disposed Of.

Dog thieves have been very busy recently in the neighborhood of Oxford street, Regent street, and Piccadilly.

The police believe that there is an expert and highly-organized gang at work. The ordinary dog thief with his sack for small dogs and a stout piece of rope for the larger ones is always at work; but recent losses point to a more daring method of appropriation. It is believed that many of the thefts of smaller dogs are committed by women. They hang about on the outskirts of crowds of ladies looking into the shop windows, and the small terrier is snapped up and either concealed under the cloak, or the thief hails a passing hansom. As the female thieves are invariably well dressed, the fact that they have a more or less protesting small dog under their arm occasions no comment.

Of the larger types, collies and poodles are the most sought after by the dog thieves, because they seem to be more easily handled by strangers, and because they always command a good market on the Continent, especially in France. The smaller dogs have various fates. They may be "faked" to some extent and sent down to "Club Row," in Shoreditch, where there is a regular dog market every Sunday market, and where ten or fifteen shillings can easily be obtained for a good terrier, the purchaser, of course, having to run the risk that the dog is stolen and may be claimed. Another method of disposing of them is through the medium of various papers, and a third resort is to hold them to ransom. This last method is by far the most profitable way of realizing, but it requires to be carefully carried through.

To show the extent to which dog stealing is carried on, it may be mentioned that at Vine Street Police Office there were recently eight notices offering rewards for "lost" (the polite way of putting "stolen") dogs, and at Marlborough street and all the other west-end offices a correspondingly large number. The rewards offered ranged from a minimum of £1 up to £20.—London Daily Mail.

Whistler's Magic With the Brush.

Whistler was a whimsical genius even as an art coach, and Mr. Cyrus Cuneo gives with pen and pencil in the November number of "The Pall Mall Magazine," some interesting reminiscences of the way in which "The Master" used to touch up a student's drawing into a burlesque or a masterpiece, according to his humor.

We all crowded around breathlessly watching his every movement; this was certainly a treat never to be forgotten. Intense interest was depicted on our eager and pleased faces, and I am sure we all inwardly felt horribly elated and a great pity for those of our fellow students who were not present.

There stood frail little Whistler staring at the model as though she were a ghost; open eyes and mouth, working on the palette, he held his breath, then, slowly extending his arm, and gently but firmly drawing the brush along the canvas, he uttered a deep sigh, almost a puff of relief, ending with the finish of the stroke. This painful process was repeated at almost every touch, and was exceedingly comical. It was marvelous though, to see the transformation he wrought; from an ordinary study he changed it to a canvas containing all the qualities of a great master.

As the time went on uneasiness prevailed; we shifted from one foot to the other, leant on each other's shoulders, and exchanged glances of sympathy with the model, who was lifting first one leg, then the other, in a wild endeavor to get the blood to circulate, making horrible faces as she looked at the clock. (Whistler would only have women models, never men.) This had not the slightest effect on Whistler, who became more and more excited, his strokes more energetic, and the white lock reared itself defiantly in his disheveled hair.

With a louder puff than any that had preceded it, Whistler suddenly laid down his brushes, saying, I think that's better."

We surged around the picture, and several laughing offers were made for it; but the lucky possessor carried it off triumphantly, for I am sure that up to the last moment he had expected Whistler to say: "I'd better take this with me."

London's Dinner Hour.

A momentous change has been decreed in the habits of London society, initiated by the King, says a note in the society columns of a London paper. His Majesty disapproved of the tendency to make the dinner hour later and later and has decreed that hereafter the fashionable dinner hour shall be from 6.30 to 7.30. Before this change was instituted society dined from 8 to 9. The new dinner hour, which is a return to earlier manners, is welcomed by everybody. It will benefit the theatres, which have lost many patrons through the late dinner hour, and it will also send more people to the restaurants for supper. People who dined at 8 o'clock were not always inclined for supper afterward and could not reach the theatre before the middle of the performance.

London's Juggernauts.

Horse drawn vehicles still hold pride of place in the list of London's juggernauts despite the popular impression that the various forms of motors hold the lead. A return supplied by the Home Secretary for the past month shows that the accidents numbered 3,058, with personal injuries in 968 cases and 28 deaths, of which 23 were caused by horse drawn vehicles. The following is a summary of the return: Horse drawn vehicles, 602; electric tram cars, 129; motor cars and cycles, 155; motor omnibuses, 95.—London Express.

HOW THE RAIN CAME.

A Terrifying Event to a Stranger in the Philippines.

For a real lively matinee performance the coming of the rainy season in the Philippines has no end of right to be considered.

This is the experience of one woman who supposedly arrived during the dry season:

Seated at her window she could hear a roaring tattoo in the grove of abaca palms to the south. The noise neared, rose, thundered.

Long, lithe cocoanuts began an inexplicable bending to and fro, their tops circling in trembling descent almost to the earth, then swinging back to the spring of the bow tense trunks in a movement exaggerated and violent, like that of some stage tempest.

Out in the grove, beaten, trampled down, there advanced into the open a black wall of rain, perpendicular from earth to sky. Ahead of it dust, twigs, rubbish, suddenly ascended to heaven in rotary spirals. Trees were flayed of their leaves. Roofs flew up like gigantic bats.

Then her own house, strongly built, shook as with earthquake. The thatch of the roof sprang vertical, like that stiffens with fear, and between the interstices she saw the muddy sky stream by.

A powder of debris, of dry rot, snowed. Down upon the table, the books, the chairs, little lizards, unperched, struck the floor with a squeak like that of a mechanical doll, remained as dead for a long minute, then scampered across the room and up the walls again. Great black spiders, centipeds, scorpions, fell; sometimes a large rat.

Then the nipa clicked back to position as a box is shut. Breathless silence, a heavy immobility, petrified the world. There came three or four detached, resounding raps upon the roof, and suddenly a furious roaring beating as of stones coming down, great stones chuted in thousands, in millions, and the church, the plaza, the mountain, the whole land, disappeared in a yellow swirl of water.—McClure's Magazine.

GOUDEAU'S SHEEP.

It Matched His Dog and Satisfied the Tax Collector.

Emile Goudeau, a celebrated character of Paris, was one of the most confirmed bohemians that ever lived.

There is a story of him and a certain black spaniel which followed him with the faithfulness with which the historic little lamb attached itself to the historic little Mary. Goudeau and the dog, in fact, were never separated.

It dawned upon the tax gatherer of the neighborhood that Goudeau had not paid his dues for the "inferior brother."

He approached him, therefore, in as friendly a spirit as possible, being, indeed, an old acquaintance, and said, "M. Goudeau, I must ask you to pay your tax for the spaniel."

The bohemian was immensely surprised, or affected to be. "But don't you know, my dear sir," he said in a tone of remonstrance, "this is a sheep dog, useful to me in my work and consequently exempt from the tax?"

"But you are no shepherd," returned the tax gatherer; "you are a poet."

"No shepherd!" replied Goudeau. "Every poet is a shepherd. Have you not heard of Virgil and Theocritus"—

The poet would have recited twenty other names if the tax gatherer, alarmed at such a display of learning, had not stopped him. "But at least you have no sheep," he said.

"No; I admit that," said Goudeau. "It is because I am too poor. But I will rectify that."

And he did. Next day he was observed promenading the streets of Montmartre with the same old black spaniel, but with a newcomer in the shape of a real, live, woolly sheep.—London Sketch.

The Word "Cutler."

"Cutler," according to its present use, should mean a man who makes things that cut, but really it has no more to do with "cut" than "cutlass" and "cutlet" have, which is just nothing at all. "Cut" has some Teutonic origin, but "cutler" comes through French from the late Latin "cultellarius," which meant either a soldier armed with a knife or a knifemaker, and "cultellus," a little knife, was the diminutive of "culter," which, among other things, meant a plowshare or "coulter." "Cutlass" comes from the same source, and "cutlet" is "cotelette," a little rib.

One Thing Lacking.

"I hear," said Ill Tragedy, "that while you were playing in one of the country towns a fire broke out in the theater."

"Yes," said Low Comedy, "and there might have been a horrible panic but for one thing."

"What was that?"

"There weren't enough people in the audience to create one."—Moonshine.

The Regular Charge.

"I've come to pay my bill," said the patient; "$120, I believe?"

"Yes," replied Dr. Soakem, "making a total of $122."

"Er—I don't quite understand."

"That brings it up to date, including today. I charge $2 for office visits, you know."

A Loophole.

"When in doubt," said the weather prophet, "always predict something disagreeable."

"What for?"

"If you're wrong, people are so pleased they don't criticise you."

The fate of all of us, men and women alike, is to be forever wanting what we have not.—Jerome K. Jerome.

Come Join Me In This Honest Way To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--

A square and open offer--

A plan by which we can all make money

Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining Properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my Pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just, what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity—man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in, all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 4,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once; if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better, I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

BRAIN STRAIN.

In the long history of the past, glasses were resorted to for the purpose of correcting imperfect vision only. More especially during the later years it has been observed that glasses now and again have relieved nervous disorders, and the more closely we have studied and observed the effects of properly adjusted glasses in disease, the more convinced we have grown that eye strain is the cause of many serious disorders, and that its correction will in a great measure relieve troubles that have heretofore baffled the skill of the medical profession. When evidence comes from here and there of cure of diseases that have always been considered fatal, it awakens, at first, incredulity; but if we are able to offer good and logical reasons why eyestrain has such a powerful influence over the entire body, then we will be able to dispel the unbelief.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The directors of the Y.M.C.A., at a special meeting, unanimously decided to take steps towards securing a site for a new building. They desire to secure funds for the purchase of a site which is centrally located and on which a limited option has been secured. It is to be hoped that our public-spirited citizens will manifest their interest in this very worthy object and assist the directors in securing the site while it is available. Contributions may be made to Messrs. Graham, Sinclair or Clapp, of the committee.

ICE TROTTING.

First Day at Peterboro.

Peterboro, Jan. 22. — The first day's racing of the Peterboro Turf Club's winter meet was held this afternoon, and some splendid sport was seen. Nearly all the horses entered were Toronto animals. The track was in good condition. In the 2.35 class King Bryson and Smutt had two heats each, the time being faster than in the 2.17 class. It was agreed to award first money to King Bryson. This was the fourth straight victory for Ald. McBride's little trotter, who won at Dufferin Park, Port Perry and Lindsay.

Frank McKinney won the 2.17 class without trouble. The summary:

HOCKEY.

Belleville Won at Brockville.

Brockville, Jan. 22.—The Belleville and Brockville O.H.A. juniors met here to-night in the return match of the series, when the visitors again carried off the honors by 8 goals to 3, in a strenuous struggle, marked by much rough checking and tripping. Belleville had the advantage in weight, which served them well in blocking Brockville's rushes. The locals started off at a good clip, notching two goals in quick succession. Belleville had not apparently got their bearings, but when they did they went with hammers and tongs, evening the score in a short time. The half closed with 3 to 2 for Belleville. Brockville disputed the last goal awarded by a visiting supporter, F. Arnott, and he was replaced by George Bawden. Belleville set a hot pace in the second half, and kept raining in tallies with great regularity, getting a lead of five goals. Brockville managed to put one past Boland near the call of time. In the second period both sides roughed it, Belleville being the greater offenders, the penalties inflicted causing them to be a man short almost constantly. Spangenberg was on the fence four times, Serviss 2, Allen 3, McGuire 1, Mackay 1, O'Donoghue 1. Belleville's great superiority was in shooting, and in this respect Brockville proved themselves miserably weak. Spangenberg was the visitors' star, taking five of the eight goals. Kehoe and McCrimmon starred for Brockville.

Picton by 7 to 4.

Picton, Jan. 22.—In the fastest and cleanest game of the season in the junior O.H.A. series, Picton defeated Kingston to-night to the tune of 7 to 4. The arena was packed with the grandest crowd of the winter. The teams were well matched, and the scoring fairly indicates the strength of the two. The scoring was principally the result of individual playing, both teams showing a noticeable lack of combination work. Bedborough played the star game for the winners. At half-time the score stood 3 to 0 in favor of the locals. The teams:

Kingston—Goal, Lumb; point, Lemmon; cover-point, Dowsley; rover, Crawford; centre, Ainsley; right, Cooke; left, Gravelle.

Referee—Chaucer Elliott.

SPORTING NOTES.

Well, the Belleville boys did their duty in Brockville last night, as they were expected to do, and cleaned up the Crescents handsomely. Belleville now leads the eastern group of the junior O.H.A., and cannot be headed, though Picton may, and probably will, tie us. Following is the present standing in the district:

	Won.	Lost.	To play
Belleville	4	2	0
Picton	3	2	1
Kingston	2	3	1
Brockville	1	3	2

Only two games remain to be played in the district, namely, Brockville in Kingston on January 25, and Brockville in Picton on January 31. It would not surprise anybody very much if Brockville defaulted both games, as the eastern boys are pretty sure to lose them, anyhow.

It looks very much like Belleville and the Pea Canners for home-and-home games. The Boulterville boys have got into their stride and are now a pretty tough proposition, but it is altogether likely the locals can outscore them in two games. Certainly they should, judging by the form shown by the two teams here.

The O.H.A. was rather lax in the matter of a referee for the Belleville-Brockville match last night. Manager Arnott found, when he got there, that no referee had been appointed, and it was a case of stand for a Brockville referee or no game. So the Bellevilles stood for a Brockville referee, and the way he soaked Belleville, they say, was a shame. However, the boys played gilt-edged hockey, and won handsomely. Every man played his position, and the score, 8—3, shows that they made a runaway race of it. It seems a pity now that, Brockville having no chance, would not default the rest of its games and give the leaders a chance to fight it out. That would appear to be the most sensible plan, though it is just possible Brockville might go to Picton and win, in which case, of course, Belleville would have the district championship. This, however, is not likely.

It looks like as if professional hockey will be the thing about Toronto next year. And then watch how the Toronto papers will make fun of the hockey in the bush leagues.

There is little love lost between the Ottawas and Wanderers, as may be judged from the following, from the Ottawa Citizen: "Hundreds of Ottawa people rejoiced when the news that Kenora had won was flashed into the Capital. The Russell House, where the bulletins were posted, was crowded with excited hockey enthusiasts, and eagerly the crowd scanned the bulletin boards for news of the struggle then being enacted at the Arena, the scene of so many glorious hockey battles. When the Wanderers scored the crowd cheered softly; when the Thistles tallied they fairly raised the roof. In the closing moments of the game it looked like a Wanderer victory, but things suddenly changed and when: "Game over: Kenora wins by 8 to 6" was heard, the cheer that followed might have been heard blocks away."

Hockey results last night: Lindsay 6, Cobourg 2 (Lindsay won their district): Houghton 2, Canadian Soo 1; Pittsburg 7, Calumet 4.

Little Mercer, with Port Hope juniors last season, is in the limelight. He has been playing with Guelph juniors this season, and the O.H.A. has asked him to make a statutory declaration that he is an amateur. This Mercer has declined to do, and the O.H.A. executive sat on his case yesterday, with the result that he was expelled from the O.H.A. Three other Guelph players were also expelled, as well as the president of the club.

The New Warden

SKETCH OF MR. ANDREW KIRK, WHO WILL THIS YEAR PRESIDE OVER THE DELIBERATIONS OF THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

Mr. Andrew Kirk, the popular Reeve of Hungerford township, who was on Tuesday afternoon elected Warden of Hastings County, is a gentleman who is well known in this section of the community. Some 58 years ago he first saw the light of day, having been born in the township of Hungerford, where he has spent all his life. He is regarded as one of the foremost yeomen of this county, his farm being situated in the 8th concession of Hungerford township, near Chapman post office. Here the result of Mr. Kirk's life's work is to be seen, and the excellent condition of farm and home is but an index of the character of the man. Mr. Kirk has been fortunate in having a devoted partner in life, whose aim has ever been to make home what it was intended to be.

For the past ten years Mr. Kirk has been a member of the County Council, and has always taken an active part in the deliberations of this important body. His worth and length of service were fittingly recognized by his fellow-councillors. That he will worthily fill the position to which he has been elected there can be no doubt.

In politics Mr. Kirk has always been an active Conservative and political honors have more than once been tendered him, but he has invariably respectfully declined. He has always, however, been an active worker for the party, whenever necessary.

Mr. Kirk is an adherent of the Methodist church. For a number of years he has been a member of the Orange order and has occupied positions of prominence and trust in connection therewith.

Mrs. Petty Dead

After a week's illness, Mrs. Chas. Petty, who resided on Dundas St., died at an early hour this morning. Deceased, who was 50 years of age, was born at Lochiel, Glengarry county, Ont., but had resided in this city the greater portion of her life. Mrs. Petty was a member of the John St. Presbyterian Church. She had many friends in this city, who will regret to learn of her demise. A husband but no family survives.

Death Of Mrs. Ellen McCullough.

Mrs. Ellen McCullough, relict of the late Allan McCullough, died at her home, near Guelph, on the 13th inst., at the extreme age of eighty-four years. Her vivid recollection of the past, did not prevent a continued interest in present affairs until the solemn and irrevocable decree of death terminated her earthly life. She was the mother of Dr. McCullough, of this city.

Have Heard From Gov. Swettenham.

BUT BRITISH GOVERNMENT IS NOT YET IN POSITION TO MAKE STATEMENT.

London, Jan. 23.—(Special) — The Government here has heard from Governor Swettenham of Jamaica concerning the incident involving the withdrawal of the American warships from Kingston.

No statement can be made at present, as the Foreign Office officials desire to have all the facts the Governor wishes to present before shaping their course.

Shot Himself In Head.

UNKNOWN ENGLISHMAN COMMITS SUICIDE AT MADOC WITH REVOLVER.

Madoc, Ont., Jan. 22.—Early this morning, at the home of Leslie Smith, who resides a few miles out of Stoco, Hastings County, an unknown Englishman committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. He came to Mr. Smith's the evening before, and requested a lodging for the night. He used a 32-calibre revolver, which he evidently brought with him to commit the act. He carried with him a hand-satchel.

Married In Toronto.

NAMES OF MANY BAY OF QUINTE PEOPLE MENTIONED IN THIS ARTICLE.

A quiet, but exceedingly pretty, wedding was solemnized at the home of W. N. Alcombrack, 140 Havelock street, Toronto, on Wednesday, December 26th, when his eldest daughter, Effa Stewart, was married to Lieut. Edwin P. Roblin, U.S.A., eldest son of J. F. Roblin, of Adolphustown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. O. Johnston, in the presence of nearest friends and relatives.

Mrs. A. E. Frizzell played the wedding march as the bridal party entered the drawing-room, which was decorated for the occasion. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory silk eolienne, with trimming of applique, a veil and wreath of lily-of-the-valley, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel, who was in white organdie, with insertions of Valenciennes: she also carried white carnations. The bridegroom was supported by Arnold Conger, of Toronto.

After the ceremony the guests adjourned to the dining-room. Mr. and Mrs. Roblin left by the evening train for an extended tour.

On Monday, Dec. 31st, after a delightful trip, Mr. and Mrs. Roblin arrived at their home, "Bay View," Adolphustown, where they purpose spending the ensuing summer. They were received by a small party of friends, among whom were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Boyce, James Dorland, M. D., and Mrs. Dorland, Adolphustown, and J. W. Alcombrack, Hawley. At 6 p.m. all were invited to the dining-room, where a delightful repast had been prepared by the hostess, Mrs. J. F. Roblin, and after an evening spent in small talk and laughter, all dispersed to their homes, taking with them many pleasant thoughts, and leaving behind them "best wishes" for a bright future for the happy couple.

JOKE BY SWETTENHAM

Millionaire Reference Was Merely a Jocular Parallel.

Jamaica's Governor Says He Did Not Ask Rear-Admiral Davis to Land Troops on British Territory—His Cablegram of Thanks to the United States and to Admiral Davis—Quakes Still Continue.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 23.—The correspondent of the Associated Press sought Governor Swettenham yesterday, and spoke to him of the Davis incident. The governor said that he had not invited Rear-Admiral Davis to land sailors. He was asked if he endorsed the action taken by Rear-Admiral Davis, the governor replied: "That is a matter between myself and Rear-Admiral Davis, to whom I must refer you." The governor said that his reference in his letter to Rear-Admiral Davis and the pillaging house of an American millionaire was merely a jocular parallel.

Swettenham's Thanks.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The State Department yesterday made public the following cablegram:

"Jamaica, Jan. 20.—The Hon. Elihu Root, State Secretary, Washington, D. C.: Jamaica profoundly grateful for expression of sympathy and for the very practical aid so kindly given by Admiral Davis and the entire particular service squadron of the United States navy.—(Signed) Governor."

London Awaits a Report.

London, Jan. 23.—The text of Governor Swettenham's despatch, received undated yesterday morning, but presumably filed Jan. 20, follows:

"Slight earthquake shocks continue. Confidence is restored. The population is returning and the weather is fine. H. M. S. Indefatigable with stores from Trinidad, arrived here today. Both banks have re-opened."

The Lord Mayor of London yesterday afternoon cabled to Governor Swettenham at Jamaica $75,000, the first instalment of the Mansion House fund, which now totals $100,000.

The American charge d'affaires called at the Foreign Office last evening. The officials there were without any advices from Gov. Swettenham concerning the Davis incident.

Sorry They've Gone.

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—In response to an offer of aid sent by Mayor Weaver of this city, this cablegram was received yesterday:

"Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22.—Many thanks. Money and building material urgently required. Departure of warships deplored by people.—(Signed) Tait, mayor."

Will Use U. S. Tents.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The United States Secretary of War received a cablegram from Gen. Wint at Havana, commanding the American forces in Cuba, saying that at the request of the British Minister at Havana, he had made arrangements for the shipment of army tents to Kingston for the shelter of the people in distress. The Secretary has approved Gen. Wint's action.

More Shocks.

New York, Jan. 23.—A despatch yesterday from Kingston says: A heavy earthquake shock was felt here at 3 o'clock Monday morning and a still heavier one at 2.45 this afternoon.

Toronto Boy Killed In Quake.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—The 3-year-old son of Roger D. Stovel was killed in the Kingston earthquake, according to a cable received yesterday by A. W. Smith, from his daughter, who says she and Mr. and Mrs. Stovel and Miss Birchall who were staying at the Constant Springs Hotel, are well.

"RED SUNDAY" COMMEMORATED.

Strike at Lodz Successful—All Business Was Suspended.

Lodz, Russian Poland, Jan. 23.—The strike planned in commemoration yesterday of "Red Sunday" was successfully carried out. Factories, stores and restaurants were closed, newspapers and the street car service were suspended, and may arrests were made. At Warsaw the attempt failed.

Newspaper Workers Strike.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Yesterday afternoon almost all the newspaper compositors joined the strikers, The Novoe Vremya being the only paper to come out.

Fires Lit At Every Corner.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 23.—Workmen in 12 factories struck half the day in memory of "Red Sunday." There was no disorders.

Thermometers registered 20 degrees below zero and troops Monday night patrolled the streets to succor benumbed wayfarers. Fires were lit at every corner. Many deaths from cold are reported from the provinces, where the temperature varies from 45 to 50 below zero.

CATHOLICS READY TO DIE.

Will Defend Churches With Arms Declares French Deputy.

Paris, Jan. 23.—M. Delahye, Conservative, in the Senate yesterday declared that the Catholics were ready to die for their faith, and that if attempts were made to close the chapels of Notre Dame de Lourdes and of Montmartre they would defend them with arms. The Senator added:

"MM. Combes, Clemenceau and Briand cannot suppress God."

The Cabinet yesterday approved the bill suppressing the formality of requiring a declaration before holding a public meeting, as required by the law of 1881, thus creating a modus vivendi, under which the churches can remain open for public worship, even though the Vatican authorities persevere in their present attitude. The new bill was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

BAD FIRE AT TOKIO.

Important Public Building Burned With Loss of $500,000.

Tokio, Jan. 23.—The Department of Communications Buildings were destroyed yesterday with a loss of $500,000. Most of the documents were destroyed.

Douks to Be Brought In.

Winnipeg, Jan. 23.—The Dominion Government is bringing pressure upon the Doukhobors to induce them to become British subjects, and to occupy and cultivate their lands individually, like other citizens. Circulars printed in both Russian and English have been sent out to the elders and people of every village, advising them that their grants will be cancelled if the land is not occupied and cultivated.

Damage Exaggerated.

Buffalo, Jan. 23.—Officials of the Great Gorge Road, stated yesterday that they have found that the washouts by Sunday's storm were not near so great as at first reported. The gorge road will be in operation in a few days. The loss will not exceed $5,000.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A PLEASANT, SIMPLE, BUT SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR IT.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs, and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and Fruit Acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but to-day I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation, as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of Stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

BRIDANT TELLS STORY

Wife Asked For Dr. De Voss and Pills Were Bought.

Told Him She Injured Herself By Elm Bark Used Under Instructions of Mrs. Miller—Medical Men Tell of the Constitution of the Pills—Mrs. Bridant's Sister Furnishes a Motive For a Crime.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—The Bridant murder case will go to the jury to-day.

The cross-examination of Bridant was not concluded, as the crown prosecutor wished time to read letters, that were put in as exhibits.

Sergt. Duncan described the visit to the Bristol apartments shortly after the woman's death. Bridant, after being cautioned in his room, acted frankly, and gave information which led to the invading of the premises of "Dr. De Voss" (Mrs. Miller), and the seizure of a large quantity of pills, etc., etc.

Pills Contained Ergot.

Drs. A. R. Pyne and Johnson testified that these pills contained iron, sulphate, licorice and something else, which they could not determine. These pills were similar to those sold in drug stores. Dr. Johnson said they were of a mixture which at times had been used for the purpose of abortion. In this case, Dr. Johnson, who made the post-mortem, was of the opinion that death was due to blood-poisoning.

The father of the deceased, Ernest Villard, testified that on one occasion when she visited Kingston he found a box of "Dr. De Voss" pills in her possession and threw them in the fire.

Mrs. Bridgeon, a sister of deceased, testified that on her deathbed Agnes (Mrs. Bridant) told her, "He forced me to take them because he didn't want any more little ones around to make his home unhappy."

Accused On Stand.

Then Mr. Neville, for the defence, called his client, the accused. Bridant stood his examination and cross-examination well. He was cool and collected all through, but evidently on the defensive, thoroughly realising that every word he spoke would tell for or against him.

Bridant said his wife was continually complaining of her health, but objected to having a regular physician see her. She preferred "Dr De Voss," and gave as her reason that there was a lady attendant. He went with her to see the "Dr.," and met Mrs. Miller, who asked Mrs. Bridant a number of questions, and finally sold her some pills, for which she paid $5.

Witness denied emphatically knowing anything about the elm bark slips, or that his wife had gone back to Mrs. Miller for a second treatment, until the midnight before she died. Then she asked him to get her morphine to deaden her suffering. She said she had hurt herself, and directed him to a drawer in the dresser, where he found two pieces of elm bark, which she said she had used on herself, under instructions from Mrs. Miller.

Unhappy Married Life.

Witness further swore he never struck his wife. They were married on July 27, 1902. They lived together for six months after marriage, were parted for six months, were together again for 13 months, and separated for 16 months. Witness reiterated that he did not know what his wife was trying to do when she took the pills. He thought his sister-in-law was angry at him because he found fault with her actions. He blamed her for some of the trouble between his wife and himself. The sister-in-law said to him, "You should cover up what Agnes (the wife) did last summer."

Crown Attorney Corley told of the visit to Mrs. Miller's, when Bridant was arrested. They met a young woman there waiting to see Mrs. Miller. Bridant said to the young woman, "Do not take any of her medicines; she has caused my wife's death."

Mr. Neville then called Dr. Sloan, surgeon at the Central Prison, but Chief Justice Meredith refused to admit his evidence. Mr. Neville wished to prove that letters Mrs. Bridant wrote about Driscoll were lies, and that any statements she made verbally might be doubted.

The cross-examination of Bridant this morning will send the case to the jury.

POISONED BY STRYCHNINE.

Verdict of the Jury Which Enquired Into Henry Perkins Death.

Canfield, Jan. 23.—"We find that Henry Perkins died by the administration of strychnine poisoning, but by whom we cannot say."

Such was the verdict of Coroner Arrell's jury given at the inquest yesterday at Canfield, upon the death of Henry Perkins.

After an array of witnesses in quick order by Crown Attorney Murphy, the jury returned their verdict in 15 minutes.

Four doctors present, when asked, after the evidence was in, for the cause of death, all swore that death was due directly to strychnine poisoning, administered in large quantities.

Rumors of suicide are scouted from the fact that deceased had dictated a telegram to a friend a couple of hours before his death, to come at once. William Spencer of Welland arrived too late.

Campaign Of Calumny.

Montrealer on Jamaican Food For American Readers.

Says Governor Swettenham Can Be Excused—Conduct of United States Sailors and Tourists Was Not Proper—Were Quick to Exaggerate, and Swaggered and Grumbled Instead Of Giving Real Help.

Montreal, Jan. 21.—"I am just back from Kingston and I feel hot about it all yet, I can tell you. The newspaper despatches to the American papers seem to be a tissue of lies. Certainly Governor Swettenham, the captain of the Port Kingston, and others, have been cruelly misrepresented. The whole affair is a campaign of calumny."

This is the opinion of A. Stuart Ewing of the firm of Gault & Ewing, who has just returned from Jamaica. He was in Kingston when the earthquake occurred, and through the following days of horror. He says:

"The swagger of the American sailors was intensely irritating, the more so because we were smarting under the knowledge that there were only 200 white troops in the island. The Imperial Government is making a terrible mistake in the withdrawal of white troops in the island. Little wonder that the governor was angry at the landing of an armed party without his permission.

"The dead had all been dug out by that time I should shy, and there was no necessity for the Americans coming in. As it was, when they came, all the American tourists of the island—and Jamaica is full of American tourists—kicked up a terrific row, cheering and shouting. Before then they had been groaning and grumbling all the time. Their behaviour was disgusting to all of us.

"Stretched" It.

"They were doing disgraceful things in the line of disseminating gross exaggerations about the disaster, too. I went on board the Port Kingston soon after the earthquake, and when I got on board I found one of them about to send a telegram. He was reading it aloud, and it said that there had been 40,000 people killed, hundreds of thousands ruined, and that the whole island had been practically destroyed. I protested against any such telegram being sent. I told him he had no right to send such lies, that I had a mother at home who had a weak heart and that the receipt of such news would kill her.

"Then Sir Alfred Jones came along and asked what was the matter. I told him, and he said that he would not allow any such rubbish to be cabled, that it was disgraceful, and that it should certainly not be sent.

"That is a fair sample of the sort of stuff that has been sent to the American papers by their correspondents down there. The man who was at the bottom of it all, and who was fomenting feelings against the governor all the time, was one Brandenberg, a correspondent of The New York Herald and Collier's Weekly. When I protested against that telegram being sent the man who had written it said that it was a private message and was none of my business. I told him that it was a public matter and that he was doing a great wrong and a great injustice to the people of the island and to everybody else by sending it.

Yankees Grumbled.

"While the commodore of the Hamburg-American Line and the captain of the Port Kingston were doing all in their power to assist the people, giving provisions and helping the wounded, the American tourists were grousing and grumbling all the time.

"Take that penitentiary yarn, I talked with the guards of the prisoners. They were in charge of a few men, about 20 prisoners to each man. There were nothing like 600 prisoners in the penitentiary, nor was there at any time the slightest danger of any riot or outbreak among them. I talked with a number of them, and there was not the slightest bad behaviour. They were all quiet and well conducted, and their guards never had the slightest trouble with them at any time during the earthquake or afterwards. There were six of them killed in the earthquake.

"All the people behaved well, exceptionally well, on the whole."

MONTREAL MAN'S ESCAPE.

Five of Montreal Man's Party Killed In Kingston Street.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—V. S. Vipond, manager of the Canadian Produce Co. at Kingston, Jamaica, arrived home yesterday. He had a miraculous escape. When the "quake" came he rushed into the street with the others in his store. Five of the party were killed by falling walls. In a block and a half he counted 35 bodies. The desolation was complete, and for the first two days there was hunger and misery. Then food came in from the province and no outside aid was needed.

When shown the despatch about the Americans on board the Prinz Ettel Friedrich drawing up the protest against Captain Parsons and against the English generally for ill-treatment after the disaster, he characterized it as false.

Everybody Treated Alike.

Everybody was treated alike, but when Captain Parsons' ship was full he had to refuse many others who wanted to get on board, and some of these were Americans. The captain did all he could in the way of shelter and succor, but some of the Americans wanted attention before all those. The protest, he said, was selfish and ungrateful in the extreme.

Governor Swettenham he knew, and could not understand the quarrel with Davis. The governor worked night and day. One thing that caused friction was that when American sailors landed they enquired for the Americans, and gave the impression the food was for them alone. Finally the food was distributed to all. Another thing, there was practically no looting, and the presence of armed troops was not at all necessary.

OFFICIALLY ADVISED.

Colonial Office Now In Possession of Governor's Story.

London, Jan. 24.—The Colonial Office is now in possession of official advices from Sir Alexander Swettenham, the governor of Jamaica, concerning the exchange of letters between him and Rear-Admiral Davis. The extent of these advices has not been disclosed.

Uncle Sam Is Not Mad.

Washington, Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt has finally dismissed the Swettenham-Davis incident, as is shown in the following letter, made public at the State Department yesterday, addressed by Acting Secretary of State Bacon, to Charge Howard:

"State Department, Washington, Jan. 23.—To Mr. Esme Howard, charge d'affaires, ad interim: The British embassy, Washington: Sir,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of yesterday's date, by which you communicate the substance of instructions received by you from Sir Edward Grey, in reference to the Jamaica incident.

"I hasten to assure you, on behalf of the President, that this Government will pay no heed whatever to the matter, and very much appreciates the frank and ready courtesy and consideration shown in this despatch by Sir Edward Grey.

"I can only repeat to you in this formal way what I said to you personally last evening, assuring you of the President's sincere appreciation of the cordial spirit shown by your Government. It is especially gratifying to the President to feel that it has been possible for this country to show in any practical way, however small, its friendship to a community of your people in a time of such suffering and need."

Another Quake.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22.—Two earthquake shocks, the heaviest since the destructive ones of Jan. 14, were felt here at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Several buildings were thrown down and there was great alarm among the people. No one was injured.

DIABOLICAL TORTURES.

Michigan Robbers Amputate Hermit's Fingers and Toes.

Euclair, Mich., Jan. 24.—The body Daniel Heaston, a wealthy hermit, was found late Tuesday frozen in his own blood in a small hut near the house where he had been living alone.

There were evidences that the old man had been tortured to make him reveal the hiding place of his money.

Amputated fingers and toes lay scattered about and the appearance of a heavy rope and of a beam over which it hung, coupled with marks on the victim's neck, indicated that he had been strung up to the rafters for a time.

Apparently a blow on the head with a hatchet had finally ended his sufferings.

It is thought that the murderers secured the booty they sought, as no money was found.

$50,000 Grant Made.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—A grant of $50,000 has been made for the erection of a hygienic institute at London by the Provincial Government.

Mgr. Sbarretti Coming Back.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Mons. Sbarretti, papal ablegate in Canada, who is in Rome, will return to Ottawa in the spring.

The very large majority of British and Canadian newspapers have been industriously engaged — ever since the recent incident occurred—in jumping with both feet on Governor Swettenham, of Jamaica. They did not have time to wait for the other side of the story. Perhaps it did not strike them that there could be another side to the story. Governor Swettenham may be an autocrat and an ass, but it does not necessarily follow that he is because he ordered a possibly over-officious Yankee admiral from British soil. It might have been just as well if British and Canadian papers had not been in such a hurry to fizz up like a seidlitz powder—at least till they knew a little more about the case.

After the County Council have installed that up-to-date heating service in the new House of Refuge, they should put one in their Council chamber, then, perhaps, the reporters would not feel as though they were on a north pole expedition.

It may be none of our business, of course, but we rise to remark that it's pretty tough to see 30 able-bodied County Councillors in the city and no winter trotting races.

It is whispered that one of the County Councillors will probably wear a somewhat smaller hat by the time the present session is over. The hard-headed County Fathers have very little use for peanut politicians.

The Czar is reported to be in robust health and good spirits, which leads to the inference that he thrives on excitement, and that dodging bombs must be a fairly healthy occupation, after all.

The report of the Geological Survey presented to Parliament this week, show that the mineral production of Canada for the last twenty years has increased from $10,200,000 in 1886, to $68,500 in 1905, and $70,000,000 in 1906.

Messrs. Gordon, Ironsides and Fares, of Winnipeg, have won the distinction of having shipped more cattle than any other firm in the world last year. They exported 50,000 head from Western Canada, 23,500 from Ontario, also 41,000 sheep—thus Winnipeg leads the world in the live stock business, and it is destined to occupy the same position in the grain business, and that at an early date.

The Toronto City Council got decidedly the worst of its first round with the Street Railway company. The matter was up before the Railway Board yesterday, and the Board granted an order for the Street Railway company to restore the service on the three lines affected on the routes which they had been operating, and enjoining the city and its agents from interfering with the proper conduct of the service until the matter is settled in the courts. Thus ends the first round in the fight, which was all in favor of the railway company.

* * *

The Thaw trial in New York promises to be quite a spectacle. There will be 200 reporters present, many from London and Paris. This shows what happens when a wealthy man commits murder in the United States. Had Thaw been a poor man he would have been railroaded to the electric chair. As the case now stands, his social position and wealth bid fair to obscure the fact that he murdered a fellow-man in cold blood, without even giving him half a chance to defend himself.

* * *

Municipal ownership, though it may not have been such a shining success in Kingston, appears to have more than filled the bill in Brockville where, according to a despatch, the municipal gas and electric plant has just closed another successful year's operation. The gross revenue amounted to $45,523.07 and the current expenditure $29,785.14, leaving a profit of $15,737.95. Out of this, however, was paid a debenture debt, with interest, $11,735.35, which left an available surplus of $4,002.58 in the hands of the commissioners.

* * *

Brockville, it would appear, can safely be complimented on having probably the best-managed municipal utility in Canada—if one judges by results. The present splendid showing, of course, was not brought about without considerable early expenditure. Perhaps Belleville may make as good a showing some day. Our citizens would be delighted to see it.

* * *

It appears that the people of Kingston, Jamaica, are not by any means unanimous in condemning Governor Swettenham for requesting Admiral Davis to "skidoo!" It is now thought that the gallant admiral took altogether too much on himself when he landed an armed U. S. force on a British possession with Old Glory flying and his men carrying arms. Davis must have thought Jamaica was on a par with some of the South American republics, where they have a revolution every morning before breakfast, and where the natives are only too ready to kow-tow to Yankee dominance. The following despatch from Kingston shows pretty plainly how one class of people in Jamaica view the incident—and that same class, by the way, are not, as a rule, given to the habit of speaking first and thinking afterwards. The despatch says:

"The Scotch Presbyterian clergymen expressed strong approval of the Governor's action. They said that Jamaica is not Spanish territory or a Latin-American republic. The United States had no right to land troops here."

DIVISIONAL COURT.

Before Falconbridge, C.J., Britton, J., Riddell, J.

McCaw v. Nichols. — E. G. Porter (Belleville), for plaintiff, appealed from judgment of MacMahon, J., dated 13th November, 1906. The plaintiff is a horse and cattle dealer residing at Bancroft, in the County of Hastings. The defendant is a horse dealer carrying on business at Lakefield. In June, 1905, plaintiff purchased from defendant the stallion "Cay Keswick" for $365. By a written agreement defendant was to have the use of the stallion until the 15th July following, and to deliver the same at Lakefield, where plaintiff was to call for it. After 16th July plaintiff was to be responsible for all expenses of keep. The plaintiff alleges that the horse was not delivered on the date agreed upon. The defendant alleges that it was. On the 16th July the horse died. Plaintiff sued for $500 damages. The action was tried at Peterboro and dismissed with costs. O. A. Langley (Lakefield) and H. S. White, for defendant, opposed appeal. Appeal dismissed with costs.

RINGS

ARE FASHIONABLE.

More so now than ever before. As usual we have provided for the demands of fashion, and display fully as fine an assortment of Rings as ever shown in Belleville.

In addition to a beautiful assortment of single stone Pearl and Diamond Rings ranging from $3 to $200, we show almost every desirable combination of these two and other stones.

Signets

In the matter of Signet Rings (Ladies' and Gentlemen's) we don't hesitate to state that such a line has never been shown in the city. You'll have to admit this if you just call and compare. Artistic relief designs in the very popular "Rose" finish at no more than others ask for the ordinary old style ones

How the Yankees Are Enriched.

One of the first acts of the Laurier Government in 1896-7, was to terminate the arrangements by which the Canadian British American Bank Note Company did the engraving for the finance, post office, and inland revenue departments. A new contract was made with a New York concern called the American Bank Note Company, which has done most of its work in New York.

Here is the result. A statement made by Mr. Fielding in the Commons may help the reader to understand how much the Government has saved by going to New York. In the year following the change Mr. Fielding's own Department paid $44,833 for engraving. Last year his payments climbed to $159,973. In the same period the contractor increased his receipts from the Post Office Department from $27,849 to $70,789. The Inland Revenue engraving increased in the same eight years from $17,543 to $39,032.

Altogether the American Company received $270,000 last year, whereas in 1898, when the contract was new, the payments to that concern were only $90,000. It is obvious that the New York parties could well afford to persuade Mr. Fielding that he would make money out of the change, when they had in view the possibility of trebling their income from the Government in eight years.

Remember all the profits of these enormous sums go to the United States.

Will There Be An Election Soon?

The Canadian Courier discusses the possibility of a Dominion election this year, and makes reference to the failing health of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as a reason why such will not occur. "It is only young men who can toy pleasantly with the notion of stepping aside from the battle of life, and ending their days in calm and comfort and intellectual ease," says the Courier. "Older men are too near the borders of compulsory retirement — feel too chill upon their cheeks the icy breath of man's last resting place—to look upon the cessation of activity as anything but a prelude to the cessation of life. They have all but too few years before them, and they feel that they must live them—every minute. The young man thinks of retirement as a state of leisure from which he can return at will. To the old man, it has the dread sound of an euphemism for "the end." The Courier goes on to say that the rumor of Sir Wilfrid's retirement is as little credited as the advertisements of the farewell tours of artists, but that the tradition of bad health as he grows older is bound to weaken the party, especially in Quebec.

There may be a whole lot in what the Canadian Courier says, an exchange thinks, but no one can deny that indications point to an election in the very near future. The position of the Ottawa Government is weakening, and Sir Wilfrid may seize the opportunity to regain a few years' further lease of office, and thus stave off the collapse which is almost inevitable. This, in addition to the failing health of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the widening breach in the ranks of the party in Quebec, occasioned by the bolt of Mr. Bourassa, strongly suggests action before many months have passed.

Just what would be the result of a general election were it brought on at once is only a matter of speculation. Some think that it would be impossible to remove the Government from power with their present tremendous majority, and aided as they would be by the interests of large corporations with which they are so closely allied. But Sir John A. Macdonald always said that an election "was as uncertain as a horse race," and the truth of his words might be shown in the pending general election.

The trend of public feeling is rapidly changing, and the Ottawa regime is fast losing favor. The people are dissatisfied with the regime of graft, and if an opportunity were presented would likely strike to remove from office the party that has proven false to the interests of those whom they were elected to serve.

THE RAVAGES OF RHEUMATISM

ARE CHECKED BY BILEANS.

A WOMAN'S SENSATIONAL CURE.

Mrs. Selina Davis, a resident of Abington, has proved how wonderfully effective Bileans are in cases of rheumatism and debility. She says: "I had pains in the limbs and across the back, weighing down symptoms and great weariness. Two years ago the pains in the back and about the loins became almost unbearable. This condition continued, and so worked upon me that last year I was completely laid up. I tried various pills and physics, and still found no relief. In October came a crisis. I was rendered completely helpless by acute rheumatism. By the doctor's advice I went into hospital, where I remained under treatment for nine weeks. On returning I was confined to my bed again for seven weeks. I read a description of the good work Bileans were doing. This induced me to obtain a supply. By following the directions given for their use I improved in health from day to day. After a little while I regained the use of my limbs, and after that my progress was rapid. For some time now I have been able to resume my ordinary life and work, and am altogether a different person from what I was during the last few years."

Rheumatism is due to the presence of certain poisonous acids in the blood. The "filter beds" for the blood are the liver and the kidneys. Through these organs the blood passes, and when the organs are in healthy operation they filter out the harmful substances. When they are not in healthy operation they fail, and rheumatism is one of the many serious results. Bileans do not act directly on the blood, but they act upon and correct the liver and kidneys. They thus correct the real cause of rheumatism by an indirect action, just as indirectly the flagman stops a train! Bileans are also a sure cure for indigestion, liver troubles, headache, gas, belching, pains in the chest, constipation, piles, female ailments, and all blood impurities. All druggists sell at 50c a box, or post free from the Bilean Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

Partisan Dismissals.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir,—I see you compliment the Ontario Government for dismissing Sheriff Gillespie, of the County of Prince Edward, and also say that the Sheriff was not only an "insolent partisan," but "vulgarly offensive," and that the wonder is how he was kept in office so long.

Now, sir, I like the position you have taken in this case. Let me ask why the same principle is not applied to "offensive political partisans" in the County of Hastings? You know them, don't you? Come, let's have your views upon this point. A good many people would read them with interest.

Yours, etc.,
"QUESTIONER."

Belleville, Jan. 24th, 1907.

EDITOR'S NOTE. — Your queries, "Questioner," are neither ill-timed nor inappropriate. It is quite true that we have among us officials who, in the past, have been offensive and whose conduct, in some instances, has bordered upon insolence, though we do not say, in their case "vulgarly insolent."

Having admitted this let us ask, did you, "Questioner," read Premier Whitney's reasons for dismissing Sheriff Gillespie as attentively as you did our few remarks justifying the dismissal? If you did, you know that the Sheriff got the bounce for the reason that good and valid complaints of his partisan conduct had been laid before the Government. Somebody took the responsibility of making these complaints and gave evidence of their truth, and that, upon the complaints being sustained, Premier Whitney, in this, as in other pledges made by him, hesitated not to dismiss the "offensive partisan." "Questioner," go and do likewise, and you may rest assured the Premier will not hesitate to do his duty in the premises. Don't ask him or his colleagues to act upon mere rumor. Let those who are clamoring so loudly about dismissals assume a little responsibility themselves and satisfactory results will follow.

The Liberals in the Ontario Legislature affirmed the principle by resolution, that offensive partisan office-holders should be dismissed upon charges being sustained. Let this policy be acted upon by those complaining in Ontario, and we vouch for it that their most ardent desires for non-partisan officials will be met and that, too, promptly. That's our answer, and we hope it's satisfactory.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The County Council.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Good Roads Association requested that at least two delegates be sent to the Association's annual meeting, to be held in February; also asking for a grant.

On motion no action was taken.

The communication from the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children, asking for aid, was taken up, and a grant of $10 was made.

No action was taken on the communication from the Prisoners' Aid Association, asking for a grant.

A motion prevailed that no action be taken in the communication from the Gravenhurst consumptive sanitarium, asking for aid, after Dr. Harper had stated that the management of the sanitarium was to be investigated. This was owing to a complaint having been made, by one of the patients.

No action was taken re application of the Salvation Army for assistance in their work of assisting the fallen.

The following accounts were passed:

T. S. Carman	$19.65
Intelligencer Printing Co	45.75

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Council resumed at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Hanley, that this Council hereby agree to convey the land necessary for the extension of Bridge street to Herchimer avenue, across the House of Refuge farm, to the township of Thurlow, and that this matter be referred to the House of Refuge Committee to report to this Council.

The mover contended that the opening up of this road would be a great advantage to the township of Thurlow and the residents of that locality.

Mr. Dryden thought it would be a benefit to the farm to have the road opened up, and he would favor selling what land was necessary for the said road.

After some other members had spoken to the motion it was unanimously carried.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on communications, Mr. Vermilyea in the chair.

No action was taken on the communication from the School Teachers' Association of Ontario, in reference to sending one or more delegates to the annual meeting to be held in the near future.

The committee on ways and means resumed, Mr. Dryden in the chair.

The following accounts were passed:

Municipal World	$ 2.25
Industrial School	42.25
Township of Thurlow re conveying lunatic to asylum	24.20
Township of Bangor	23.80
Municipal World	30.94
J. W. London	25.40
W. S. Harper	7.11
Greenleaf & Sons	9.95

Moved by Dr. Harper, seconded by Mr. Nickle, that the usual grant of $100 be given to the Madoc Model School,—Carried.

Police Magistrate Jarman, of Bancroft, addressed the Council requesting that a sum be fixed for travelling expenses and also to provide him with an office. The sum he asked for was $50 per annum for travelling expenses and $50 to assist in keeping an office. His travelling expenses were large, as he had much territory to cover.

The chairman stated that the matter would be dealt with in open Council.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

CONVENTION IN MARCH.

The seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Consumption and other forms of Tuberculosis will be held in Ottawa the 13th and 14th of March next. A public meeting of the members of the association and of the citizens generally, at which His Excellency will preside, will be held in the Assembly Hall of the Normal school there on Wednesday evening, March 13th, at which Dr. Sheard, the chairman of the Ontario Provincial Board of Health, will deliver a lecture upon "Home Treatment of Consumption."

A Newspaper Dog.

Out from the breezy west comes a cheerful word for and about the country editor. The Vermilion, Alberta, Signal believes that the country editor's life is not half bad, and in fact is a fascinating vocation. The editor then tells a tale of how a faithful newspaper helper took it to heart when kept away from the business. Out in Olds, in the early days, there was a newspaper run, so far as the machinery was concerned by dog power. One night a fire wiped out The Chronicle. The editor felt sad, but he sent away for a new outfit and settled down to the process of waiting, but the dog didn't understand and was not consoled. The tale proceeds: "Knowing that this was the day on which the paper should appear, the dog went round to mount the treadmill and start the wheels. But he found no mill, no press, no type, no nothin'—not even the editor, who was receiving the consoling attention of friends over a tall tumbler of liquid delight. The dog was heart-broken. He took a farewell turn around the town, curled up on the corner opposite the ruins of The Chronicle and died."

Cut this out and take it to R. Templeton & Co.'s drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For biliousness and constipation they are unequalled. They improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels.

IT IS FOR LADIES, TOO,

They Can Stop Their Hair Falling Out With Herpicide.

Ladies who have thin hair and whose hair is falling out, can prevent the hair falling out, and thicken the growth, with Newbro's "Herpicide." Besides, Herpicide is one of the most agreeable hair dressings there is. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ that eats the hair off at the root. After the germ is destroyed, the root will shoot up, and the hair grow long as ever. Even a sample will convince any lady that Newbro's Herpicide is an indispensable toilet requisite. It contains no oil or grease; it will not stain or dye. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. J. S. THE CANDIDATE.

(Toronto Star.)

Sure some will run because they hear
Stern duty's clarion call,
And some would gain experience dear
Whose pride will have a fall,

And some will run because they think
They may by chance get in,
And some will run at whom we wink,
And some at whom we grin,

And some will boldly sally out,
But find the going rough,
And some will run, we have no doubt,
Whose running is a bluff,

And some will run for whom we'll vote,
Because we think they'll do,
And some on party waves will float
And so be carried through,

With some this running is a vice,
A habit hard to break,
And some will run who have the price,
And some for glory's sake,

And some have found a habit bad
Of running every time,
Their conduct makes us very mad,
And yet may lead to crime,

And some will run a manly race,
With nothing to regret,
And some we fear, to their disgrace
Have never done so yet,

And some will run, with courage bold
While hostile critics storm,
And some will run, we have been told,
Just merely to keep warm,

But still, no matter why they run,
If you their course condemn:
You know you do not have, my son
To go and vote for them,

The Halifax, N. S., Herald says: It will be a surprise to some readers in this part of Canada to learn that at London, Ontario, the people are asking for the abolition of toll-gates. Toll-gates in this free country! Young Nova Scotians cannot comprehend it. But the antiquated thing appears to be common in the upper provinces. A contemporary reports toll-gates in the vicinity of many Canadian cities. It says Quebec has them; Montreal has them; Ottawa has them bad, on the Hull side; London has them. But in Nova Scotia there is no such a thing as a toll-gate on a toll-bridge.

The Galt Reformer is not pleased at the elevation of Hon. Geo. W. Ross to the Senate. It says: "Hon. G. W. Ross has earned a berth in the Senate—if a berth in the Senate is earnable—but there are thousands of Liberals, not the life-long, letter-writing and disgruntled Liberals, who will regret his translation from the active leadership of a party, which, while down, is not moribund, to Canada's political morgue. The Hon. Geo. W. Ross should have remained leader of the Liberal party in Ontario. Accepting a Senatorship is equivalent to acknowledging the uselessness of continuing the fight. There may be conditions which we do not fully appreciate, such as his physical inactivity, but we must confess that our confidence and admiration for the Hon. G. W. Ross has not been increased. To admit that the prospect of regaining the confidence of the people of the Province is remote is an admission of which we thought Mr. Ross incapable. Josh Billings luvs a rooster becaus of his krow and becaus he has the spurs to back up his krow wid. That was our feeling toward Mr. Ross. Now he has lost his spurs."

HOW IT SPREADS

The first package of Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid (the infallible Pile cure) that was put out went to a small town in Nebraska.

It cured a case of Piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread, and the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is being sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of Piles.

ELOPING GIRL ARRESTED.

Spends Night In Cells and Is Then Freed to Get Married.

Peterboro, Jan. 24.—Edith Pritchard, aged 16, of Hamilton, ran away from home and came here to marry Ernest Armstrong. Her parents objected and the police were advised to arrest her.

When the officer knocked at the front door she jumped out of a second-storey window.

The girl was arrested and spent the night in the cells and yesterday morning permission from her parents were obtained by telephone and the wedding took place.

The Lay of the Hen.

Investigation of the capacity of hens to lay eggs results in the discovery that the egg production of hens decreases considerably after the age of four years. Thus a hen lays at the age of one year about 20 eggs; at the age of two years, about 120; at the age of three years, about 135; at the age of four years, about 115; at the age of five years, about 80, and at the age of six years, about 60. These figures go to show that hens should never be kept in the poultry yard more than four years, for after the lapse of this time they do not yield a proper return on the food they consume.

Great Value of Honey.

"Honey, one of the most nutritious and delicate of foods, should be eaten more than it is," writes a cooking expert. "Bought in the comb, it is bound to be unadulterated and will keep one free from sore throat and bronchial troubles. I know a number of ladies who use honey as a cosmetic. They apply it to the skin, rub it in well, then wash it off with hot water. The result is a finer complexion, a glowing color, a young, fresh look."

Reassured.

"Did you hear that noise? What can it be?" demanded the janitor of the fashionable apartment house.

His wife went out into the hall and returned. "It was nothing but a rat," she said.

"Ah," sighed the janitor, greatly relieved. "I thought it was a child."—Bohemian.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—(Special.)—Receipts were 700 cattle, 25 milch cows, 800 hogs, 200 sheep and lambs and 100 calves. In addition to the above there were a number of carloads detained on the way, which did not reach the market until late in the afternoon, and the drovers complained bitterly. The feature of the trade was the weakness in the market for live hogs, and prices declined 20c to 25c per cwt. The demand was good and sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 to $7.40 per cwt., weighed off cars. There were no really prime beeves on the market, and 4½c per lb. was the highest price paid, and from that down to 3⅝c per lb. for pretty good cattle, while the common stock sold at 2½c to 3½c. There seemed to be little demand for milch cows, as the weather was rather cold for driving them any distance. A few good lambs were sold at about 6c per lb., and sheep at 4c to 4½c, while calves brought $3 to $8 each.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 23.—Cattle—Receipts, 100 head; slow; shade lower; prime steers, $5.65 to $6.15; shipping, $5 to $5.75; butchers, $4.50 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts, about 40,000; market a shade lower; prime shipping grades, $6.67½ to $6.70; choice butchers' weights, $6.67½ to $6.70; packing, $6.62½ to $6.65; assorted, light, $6.65 to $6.67½; pigs, $6 to $6.60; bulk of sales, $6.62½ to $6.67½.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, about 22,000; sheep 15c lower; lambs steady; sheep, $3 to $5.75; yearlings, $4.00 to $6.60; lambs, $5.75 to $5.80.

Regina Is Shivering.

Regina, Sask., Jan. 24.—A furious blizzard is sweeping over the prairie and traffic, already dislocated, promises to be completely tied up for several days unless the storm suddenly moderates. For the first time this winter, this city is fearing a fuel famine, having hitherto escaped owing to Regina being the provincial distributing point for the principal western coal mines. Never since 1881 have conditions been so bad, both in regard to blizzards and intense cold.

No man finds salvation until he finds himself.

The Samaritans

By C. B. LEWIS

Miss Duella Mims, as her cards read, was an elocutionist and quite willing to help others over the same road for pay. So long as her ambition was kept within bounds and her prices were not too steep her native town of 5,000 inhabitants supplied a fair number of pupils, and the local press now and then referred to her in a way that was pleasing.

One unfortunate day Miss Mims decided that elocution such as hers should have no limits. The village boy who fell into the frog pond decided that if it was good for him it ought to be good for the whole United States. Miss Mims reasoned after the same fashion. She collected her bills, packed her trunk and set out for the metropolis, and never was a young woman more sanguine.

In a week she was surprised. In a month she was tired. In two months she had decided to drop elocution and look for a place as a typist and stenographer. Her mind was fully made up on this point, and yet she could not let go of elocution with a bang. She must part from it by degrees and make the parting less painful.

Miss Mims sat at the open window of her boarding house and dallied with elocution. In her well modulated voice she went over three or four of her choicest gems and then brought out "The Wanderer."

She had always made a hit in this. It was about a lovely girl who left her village home for a great city, and after using up all her money and pawning everything that her uncle would advance on she committed suicide, and the landlady found her dead when she went in to collect her week's rent in advance.

In elocuting this pathetic appeal Miss Mims had to simulate discouragement, sorrow, grief, appeal, resignation and several other things calculated to arouse human interest, and she had an audience without knowing it.

On the floor above was a young man who had been in the boarding house almost as long as she had, but they had not been introduced and had taken very little interest in each other. He was the audience on this night. Miss Mims' voice floated up to him, and he listened and became interested. Gradually be found his sympathies aroused. From what he could make out she was clean discouraged and ready for the deadly fumes of charcoal. She was even hungry for food at that moment, and there was no one in the great city to whom she could turn.

The young man was deeply affected. Here was a case right under his nose where sympathy and cash were required, and only that evening he had dodged the landlady when he came in. He was perturbed and upset for a few minutes, but finally reasoned it out that if the poor girl stuck to her programme and died it would save her being disappointed in love in the future.

When a long silence had followed her tearful appeal to heaven he brought out a manuscript and began to read aloud. He was no elocutionist. He might have been one had he not become a dramatist at an early age. The manuscript in his hands was a play written by himself. It is needless to give it a name, but it may be said to have been pathetic. It had a hero, and the hero went through trouble enough to swamp a canal boat within five miles of Troy. He kept hoping and hoping, but it was no use. As soon as he came in sight of a good thing it vanished. He hung on and hung on until the beef trust made its last raise, and then he starved to death with the same dignity that he had lived.

What the dramatist was reading was the soliloquy of the hero when he had abandoned all hope and decided that mince pie was no longer for him. The reverie of the elocutionist below was broken by his reading and raving. She listened, and tears of pity came to her eyes. She had thought the world was harsh to her, but here was a worse case than hers. She hadn't gone hungry yet, but here was a young man literally starving to death. She had heard him say that even the mice had abandoned his room and that, unable to find another morsel of food, the cricket no longer sang for him.

Miss Mims did what a practical young woman should do under the circumstances. The hour was not late, and she put on her hat and went downstairs and hunted up a delicatessen store and bought some smoked tongue and crackers. These would keep the spark of life in the young man over night, and next day things might turn for the better with him.

When the dramatist had concluded reading his hero's soliloquy—it was the millionth reading—his thoughts turned once more to the young woman below. He still had a couple of dollars left and he could not see her die for want of sustenance. In handing in the sustenance he would also hand in his sympathies and encouragement. If he found her obstinately determined to die he might even promise her a leading part in his comedy drama when it was finally put on the road.

He did the only sensible thing he had done since he spelled down a country school and got the idea therefrom that he was born for a dramatist. He put on his hat and went down and went to a saloon. He bought a bottle of beer and from the remains of the free lunch he gathered up some cheese and pretzels. Beer, cheese and pretzels, as he had read in a medical magazine, will keep a young woman alive for a whole week after she has determined to die.

The two Samaritans did not happen to meet at the door of the boarding house or on the stairs. They went to their rooms for a moment and then emerged on the errand of mercy. They met in the lower hall. The dramatist was the first to speak.

"My dear Miss Mims—you see I have heard your name," he began—"I have learned quite by accident that you are in a bit of trouble and need a friend. I have here some beer and cheese and pretzels, and if you could manage to make them do for a lunch this evening we will talk matters over in the morning."

"You—you are also in trouble, I learn," she stammered in reply. "I have some smoked tongue and crackers here, and if you can get along with them this evening"—

"My dear Miss Mims"—

"My dear Mr. Davis"—

"You surely don't think I'm starving?"

"And you can't think I have fasted all day?"

They sat down on the stairs and compared notes and soon got at the right of things and then sat down on the window seat at the end of the hall and formed the two lunches into a trust. As they ate and drank they learned each other's history. When they had finished she asked:

"How long have you been trying to place your play before the public?"

"Five years," he sighed. "How long have you been trying to get the people of this town to elocute?"

"Two months," and she sighed as well.

"Miss Mims," said the dramatist as he sought to take her hand, "I have known you but a brief half hour, but during that time"—

"Yes!"

Then the landlady appeared and said that altogether too much gas was being used throughout the house and it must be cut off in the halls; also that it was against the rules of the house to leave cracker crumbs around.

Next morning Miss Mims got a place with a hardware firm, and two days later Mr. Davis was seen bareheaded and with a pencil over his ear in front of a shoe store where they sold manufacturers' samples only—every pair warranted as represented or money refunded. The elocution, the dramatic, the sentiment, were there, and the landlady is expecting an announcement any evening.

Mixed Metaphors.

A minister said to his congregation, "Brethren, the muddy pool of politics was the rock on which I split."

An orator is credited with a peroration in which he spoke of "all ranks from the queen sitting on her throne to the cottager sitting on his cottage."

"My client acted boldly," said the counselor. "He saw the storm brewing in the distance, but he was not dismayed. He took the bull by the horns and had him indicted for perjury."

A Hindoo journalist, commenting on a political disturbance, said, "We cannot, from a distance, realize the intensity of the crisis, but it is a certain thing that many crowned heads must be trembling in their shoes."

An old negro woman whose needs were supplied by friends never failed to express her gratitude in original language: "You is powerful good to a pore ole 'oman like me, wid one foot in de grabe an' de oder a cryin' out, 'Lawd, how long, how long?'"

No one could imagine what a speaker meant when he said, "Biddy, diddy" and then stopped and after a moment of confusion said, "Diddy, biddy," and then, with a scarlet face and coldly perspiring brow, gasped out, "Diddy, hiddy, biddy doo?" Then he had to sit down and rest awhile before he could say, "Did he bid adieu?"—Christian Register.

The Shah and the Asparagus.

When Muzzaffar-ed-Din, shah of Persia, paid his first visit to England he was the guest of King Edward VII., then prince of Wales. On the evening of his arrival a banquet was held at the palace, and on the menu was asparagus. As it happened, the shah had never heard of, much less tasted, asparagus till that evening. When the dish was brought on he helped himself to half of it, picked each stalk up in his fingers, nibbled gingerly at the head and then threw the stalk on the carpet. To have let it remain on his plate would have been a breach of Persian etiquette. All eyes turned to the Prince of Wales. What was he going to do? The prince, tactful as ever, glanced at those about him, then at his plate; then he picked up stalk after stalk, ate what he wanted and threw the balance on the carpet behind his chair. A moment later thirty people in that room were eating asparagus in Persian fashion, and the attendants, who are trained to look more serious than ever on such occasions, never moved a muscle.—Black and White.

A Starveling Greyhound.

One rarely hears of a stray dog found practically starving in the streets of a city rising to fame and bringing fortune to its benefactor. Such, however, is the history of the celebrated dog Brigadier, which many years ago, after being hustled about the streets of Manchester, found a sympathetic friend in the late Mr. Foulkes of that city. Finding the dog in the streets homeless, Mr. Foulkes took it home, and with it, after careful training, succeeded in winning the Waterloo cup. With the money thus won Mr. Foulkes purchased a hotel at Withington, a suburb of Manchester, which he renamed the Waterloo hotel. In a quiet spot of the hotel grounds stands a tombstone erected to the dog's memory.—London Graphic.

WOMAN'S WORLD

DR. E. M. ANDERSON.

Head of Women's Insane Department, Philadelphia Hospital.

Dr. E. M. Anderson is a woman with a high medical reputation in Philadelphia, where she holds a responsible and trying position under the municipal government.

Perhaps of all the positions the city can offer to women none calls forth the need of the womanly qualities of patience, tenderness and tact to such a degree as those dealing with the poor and unfortunate in the almshouse and the municipal hospital.

In these two places woman has found her sphere, and it is that of an angel of mercy and compassion. As every one knows, the berths in these institutions are not sinecures—the poor pay, the long hours, the disagreeable incidentals which are inseparable from such work, make them tests of sincerity and nobility of character.

DR. E. M. ANDERSON.

No woman who is not deeply in earnest and attached to her calling for its own sake could endure the ordeal which Dr. Anderson, as chief physician in the woman's insane department at Blockley, has undergone for nearly ten years. Dr. Anderson graduated from the Woman's college in Philadelphia in 1893, and since then has devoted all her time to the study of lunacy in Philadelphia and in New York institutions.

She is ably assisted in her work by Dr. Elizabeth B. Brickner, who passed an examination qualifying her to hold the position as second physician in this department.

These two women, with Miss M. I. Clements, supervisor of the woman's insane wards, who has seventy-five nurses under her direction and nearly a thousand patients in various stages of insanity, have the entire care of this department, under the supervision of one of the heads of the institution.—Philadelphia North American.

You Can Cultivate a Pretty Foot.

All feet may not be naturally small, but all can be made to look small. All feet are not naturally slender, but all can be made to look slender. And all insteps can be made to look arched.

The woman who wants to make her foot look small should try to wear the high heel. At first it will make her muscles ache, but after a few days they will adjust themselves to the new state of affairs, and the high heel will be more comfortable than the low. It will support the instep better.

There are women who cannot wear high heels, and for them there is not very much hope. The feet will never look very small unless, indeed, they be naturally little.

If you want your feet to look small you must buy your shoes very carefully. Shoes ill bought will look big and ugly no matter how small they may be. The woman who wears a No. 4 shoe can, if she buys her shoes correctly, make her feet look as though they were clad in No. 2's. And the woman who wears a No. 3 can make her foot positively tiny. There is even hope for the woman with the No. 6.

"Don't settle down to a state of big feet even if yours happen to be large," says a dealer. "Select shoes with low vamps; wear your heels high and broad and don't forget that pointed toes are always good."

Crossing the knees is never permissible unless one be of the very petite type. The little girl of five feet one or two, slender as a reed bird and graceful as a little swan, can cross her knees and look pretty, but the tall girl cannot do this.

Crossing the feet is apt to be pretty if one does it prettily. It is a graceful thing to stretch out one's feet so as to show the line of the skirt and to cross the feet. This gives a very pretty pose, and one that makes the feet seem smaller.

Feet placed close together always look smaller than feet that are stretched wide apart. Feet placed at right angles to each other look smaller than feet that are placed side by side. Feet prettily posed in any position look smaller than feet carelessly posed or awkwardly placed.—Boston Traveler.

Her One Regret.

Some years ago there passed away one of those lovely souls whom we call "saints on earth." Her whole life had been one of inspiration and help to all around her, and her end was not less triumphant. One by one her friends were summoned to her bedside to receive her farewell blessing, and each felt as she left her that she had been on hallowed ground. One day her niece, who cared for her, said, "Oh, aunt, what a wonderful thing it is that you can look back over your long life and find that there is absolutely nothing you have ever done that could cause you regret!" The feeble old lady smiled a little sadly and said:

"But there are things I regret."

"You, aunt!" cried her niece, incredulous. "What could you find to regret?"

"I regret," she replied, "the good times I might have had and did not!"

There is a deep lesson in this. The conscientious housewife is apt to be a Martha, "cumbered with much serving," and in her absorption in her daily routine she lets the opportunities for change and recreation slip by her. This is a wrong to her household as well as to herself. She owes her family the cheering atmosphere that can only come from a happy, well balanced nature. To keep at her best the homemaker must have an outside stimulus, so begin the domestic year with the resolution that you will not let imaginary obstacles stand in the way of your enjoyment.—Harper's Bazar.

Dining Room Chairs.

Unless a dining room be finished in Gothic style, with massive sideboards to match, there is no reason for buying high backed dining room chairs. The present way of serving by having things passed at the left while the plate is withdrawn from the right is unhandy enough for both servant and person at table without a high backed chair to provide additional chances for trouble. People do not lean back at formal dinners, and low backed chairs that do not reach the shoulder are correct. In the simple home the prestige of larger chairs may be given to the father and mother at table, while if there be an invalid or aged person the stay at table should be made as comfortable as is possible by the use of cushions and shoulder rests.

Buttermilk a Beautifier.

Good buttermilk, the country cousin of the sophisticated, city dairy variety, is a sure charm to capture beauty. It should be welcomed both internally and externally, and its continued use will make beauty more than skin deep. A true milk peptone is the real buttermilk and is very easily digested. It is also a decided laxative, and for kidney trouble, diabetes and dyspepsia it has no rival in the drug store. Rheumatism flees before it and gall stones lose their sting if enough of it is taken. With one's "works" in good order the complexion naturally clears up, but even more swift is the return of rosy cheeks if the buttermilk is also applied externally.

Glass Candlesticks.

Glass candlesticks are much in demand. The pressed glass can be had at remarkably low prices, while the cut glass is not prohibitive in price. Many persons object to touching any brass object and also dislike the labor of cleaning brass. Glass is more desirable on this account and looks very pretty upon the dining table, either with or without shades. It is growing to be more and more a glass age. Glass shelves are used in cabinets and china closets, and in up to date bathrooms even the tub is of heavy glass.

Cleaning Knives.

After the knives have been washed and wiped moisten a little ordinary knife powder with water. Then take a clean cork, dip it in the mixture and rub each blade quickly up and down on both sides several times. Every stain will disappear, and the blades will be brighter than if rubbed on the board in the usual way. They will want another rinse in water and a final polish with a cloth. If the knives do not seem quite sharp enough by this plan, a weekly rub on the steel will do all that is required.

To Brighten Up a Carpet.

A carpet looks much cleaner and brighter if just before sweeping some salt is thrown upon it, or if, after it has been swept, it is wiped over with a cloth or sponge wrung out of clean salt water. This quite removes the dusty look which so soon gathers upon carpets and will brighten the colors. A cupful of coarse salt to a basin of water is the right proportion.

The Use of Rouge.

If a suggestion of rouge makes you look younger and brighter there's no particular law against your using it. The only trouble with things of this sort is that after a time a woman becomes careless and uses her makeup too freely, after which she may expect all sorts of unkind criticisms from all beholders.—Exchange.

For Baby's Cot.

A very nice quilt may be made for baby's cot from some old shawls. Cut all worn parts away, join the pieces together flat, and cover both sides with cretonne. Then put tapes to each corner to tie to sides of cot, and you will have a very warm and exceedingly light quilt.

Use ordinary burlap to cover a screen and you will get a pretty effect if you first have the stuff dyed some appropriate color. When fastened to a frame the burlap will look as artistic as a more expensive material.

Books with delicate bindings, which have become soiled through much handling, can be satisfactorily cleaned by rubbing with chamois skin dipped in powdered pumice stone.

The one who wishes to gain flesh can never do so if she worries, is harassed or permits her nerves to get the better of her.

Milk changed from a cool atmosphere to a hot kitchen will sour in a very few minutes.

MANNERS AT TABLE.

The Etiquette of Eating in the Seventeenth Century.

An account of hospitality in 1629 gives a good idea of the manner in which a country gentleman of the period lived. Dinner and supper were brought in by the servants with their hats on, a custom which is corroborated by Fynes Moryson, who says that, being at a knight's house who had many servants to attend him, they brought in the meats with their heads covered with blue caps. After washing their hands in a basin they sat down to dinner, and Sir James Pringle said grace. The viands seemed to have been plentiful and excellent—"big pottage, long kale, bowe of white kale," which is cabbage; "brach soppe," powdered beef, roast and boiled mutton, a venison pie in form of an egg, goose. Then they had cheese, cut and uncut, and apples. But the close of the feast was the most curious thing about it.

The tablecloth was removed, and on the table were put a "towel the whole breadth of the table and half the length of it, a basin and ewer to wash, then a green carpet laid on, then one cup of beer set on the carpet, then a little long lawn serviter plaited over the corner of the table and a glass of hot water set down also on the table; then be there three boys to say grace—the first, the thanksgiving; the second, the Pater Noster; the third, prayer for a blessing of God's church. The good man of the house, his parents, kinfolk and the whole company then do drink hot waters, so at supper, then to bed, the collation which (is) a stoupe of all."

BRAIN QUALITY.

It Is of Just as Much Importance as the Quantity.

The brain of Daniel Webster weighed fifty-six or fifty-seven ounces, that of Napoleon Bonaparte about the same. This is about three pounds and a half. These were exceeded by the brain of Cuvier, the great French naturalist, which weighed between fifty-nine and sixty ounces, and that of the French surgeon Dupuytren, which weighed fifty-eight ounces. The average weight of the brain of man is about fifty ounces and of women forty-five ounces. The maximum weight of the healthy adult brain is about sixty-four ounces and the minimum thirty-one ounces. Men of great intellectual power have generally if not always possessed large brains. The quality of the brain is, however, quite as important as the quantity, so that a large brain does not of necessity constitute a great man. The size of the brain is not in proportion to the physical development of the body, either in animals or in man. The horse has a brain less in weight than the smallest adult human brain; that of a whale seventy-five feet long was found to weigh not quite twice as much as that of a man. Even in men there is no fixed relation between the size of the body and that of the brain. A small man may have a large brain and a big man a small brain.

Warship Models.

Paraffin wax models of all proposed British battleships are used by the admiralty for tests before the keels of the ships are laid down, the miniatures being tested in a great tank. The models are from twelve to twenty-four feet long, the tank being 400 feet long and twenty feet wide. The models are made of wax because it is a material which does not absorb water or change its weight, so that alterations can be easily made, and the material can be melted up and used again. The American naval authorities also have models of all their hulls constructed, but these are much more elaborate than the British, being formed of white pine and fitted with rudders, false keels, propeller shafts and all et ceteras.

Mixed Metaphors.

Sir Robert Purvis, addressing his old constituents at Peterborough in defense of an act of parliament under whose operation some of them had gone to prison for a week, said: "That, gentlemen, is the marrow of the education act, and it will not be taken out by Dr. Clifford or anybody else. It is founded on a granite foundation, and it speaks in a voice not to be drowned by sectarian clamor." In an address to the Kaiser Wilhelm's father a Rheinlander mayor said, "No Austria, no Prussia, one only Germany. Such were the words the mouth of your imperial majesty has always had in its eye."

London's Fogs.

November is London's worst month for fogs. During a good year the Londoner may have to breathe only fifty fogs. In a very bad year he may have to endure as many as eighty. London's countless coal fires, mingling soot with mist, concoct the Londoner's fog for him. The great majority of fogs in the metropolis begin to form between 7 and 8 in the morning, just when most fires are being lighted.

Changed.

"Hello, Pepper, old chap!" exclaimed a man to another. "You have altered—scarcely knew you."

"My name—haw—is not Pepper," protested the other haughtily.

"Ah," remarked the first speaker, in no way abashed, "then your name has altered too! By-by."

Clear, Frosty Winter Weather

Is so bracing, and invigorating that it often tends to over exertion, without our being aware of it.

Most of us lead such sedentary lives that when we take much exercise we often feel fatigued and depressed instead of refreshed. At such times a cup of will supply the nourishment, and stimulation required, sending a glow through the entire system.

"Hot Bovril"

For a change, try it some time with a dash of cold milk.

Add milk to suit your taste as if you were preparing a cup of tea.

Ancient Warfare.

At the storm of Magdeburg by Tilly in 1631 this noted authority on the art of war laid down the general maxim that after a successful assault the soldiers ought to have three hours of pillage.

The Franks.

The Franks took their name from the francisques, or battleaxes, which they threw with deadly effect.

Coal.

Coal is comparatively a modern product. History shows that it was first used in England during the ninth century. In 1318 the king prohibited its use on the ground that it was injurious to health, but the high price of wood finally compelled the Londoners to use it again.

Cynical La Bruyere.

When asked for his married experience La Bruyere replied, "Few wives are so perfect that they do not give their husbands cause at least once a day to repent of matrimony."

The Smokers.

The greatest smokers are unquestionably the Dutch, each inhabitant consuming about 3,110 grams of tobacco a year. Their neighbors, the Belgians, come next, with 2,488 grams; then follows Turkey, with 2,177 grams. The United States, Germany, France, Italy and Spain consume on the average about 1,866 grams, while the English content themselves with about 715 grams each a year.

Plants Near the Sea.

Plants growing near the sea have thicker leaves than those growing inland. Apparently the sea salt is the cause of this phenomenon, as plants cultivated in artificially salted soil yield thicker leaves.

Quaint Yorkshire Custom.

A quaint custom is still in vogue in winter at Bainbridge, a Yorkshire village. Every night at 9 o'clock a huge horn is blown on the village green, so that any one lost or rambling on the surrounding fells may be guided to safety. Very welcome has the sound often been to many a wayfarer lost in snow or fog on the cheerless moors.

Tallest Britishers.

The tallest people in the British isles are to be found in the district of Galloway, in south Scotland, where records of the stature give an average height of five feet ten and a half inches. The shortest stature is found in Wales and southwest England.

Pulled Bread.

For those to whom coarse breads or even light fine wheat flour breads are indigestible and unappetizing a form of the latter known as "pulled bread" may be welcomed. Simply pull out the crumb part with forks in long strips after the loaf has been cut in quarters. Toast these in the oven and keep in a dry place. So prepared they cost less than the zwieback which is on sale.

The Wolverene.

The wolverene, now almost extinct, is one of the greatest gluttons and thieves among animals. It robs the hunter's trap of his game and his hut of blankets, gun, ax, knife and dishes. When any one approaches it sits up on its hind legs and shades its eyes with its paws.

Chocolate.

Chocolate was first introduced into England from Mexico in 1520. It was made from the flower of the cocoanut, soon became very popular and was generally used in the London coffee houses.

Hawthorn Buds.

Hawthorn buds are known among English children as "bread and cheese" and are sometimes eaten by them. They have, however, poisonous qualities, due to the presence of calcium oxalate, and a girl at Penrith died after eating some.

Chinese Mourning Custom.

During thirty days after a death in China the nearest relatives of the deceased do not shave nor change their clothes.

Reboiling Eggs.

When on removing part of the shell of a boiled egg you find that it is not cooked at all or else too soft to suit your taste if you will put a tablespoonful of vinegar in the water in which it is to be reboiled or if you will shake a little salt and pepper in the open egg you can then drop it in the water until it is cooked without spilling even a taste.

Copper Coins.

In 1620 the first large copper coins were minted in England, putting an end to private leaden tokens.

Pickled Herrings.

The mode of pickling herrings was invented by a Dutchman named Benkels about the year 1370. The Emperor Charles V., who was fond of pickled herrings, one day visited Benkels' grave and ordered a handsome stone tomb to be erected to his memory, a memorial which makes the deceased pickler famous even to this day.

The Sausage in Vienna.

In the homes of the great middle class of Vienna, says a paper of that city, the sausage is a necessity. It appears at the table at least once every day, and the variety is so great that there may be a certain kind for every day.

Largest Size Paper.

The largest size of paper is known as "antiquarian." The sheets are 53 by 31 inches.

The Flute.

Conductors of orchestras find that the flute is far more often played out of tune than the violin, the reason being that many of its natural notes are not strictly in tune with the rest of the band.

A Queer Scottish Custom.

In Scotland the custom still prevails of taking down the window blinds when there is a corpse in a house and hanging white sheets across the windows. The custom also prevails in some parts of England, particularly in the northern part, and in many families a special "death sheet" is reserved for the chamber in which the corpse may lie and is often used for many generations.

SIDNEY CROSSING.

Jan. 21. — The home of Mr. W. W. Kelley was the scene of a pleasing event on Friday night when a goodly number of the congregation of White's Church assembled there to present him with some token of their high esteem and appreciation of his services as choir leader for the past 38 years. Mrs. Chas. Moon read an appropriately worded address and Mr. Geo. Taylor presented Mr. Kelley with a handsome mantel clock. Rev. H. W. Foley, pastor, ably acted as chairman of the evening, and after a dainty lunch served by the ladies, speeches, games, etc., were indulged in and much enjoyed by all. The address was signed on behalf of the choir and congregation by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Waldron, Mrs. Chas. Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Judson Kelley, Sam Kincaid, Pearl Dainard, Geo. Saylor, Dolly Moon, H. W. GIFTS TO A WIFE.

The Sentiment That Is Dear to the Heart of a Woman.

In a recent divorce case the husband, when asked if he ever made his wife any Christmas or birthday presents, replied:

"No; I am sorry to say I never did. I gave Mrs. —— power to draw on my bank account and to buy anything she wanted. I was mistaken. That was not all I should have done. That did not take the place of my buying things and taking them home to her."

It is astonishing how little even the majority of husbands know about the feminine nature. I recently heard a young wife say that she would rather have her husband bring her a bunch of violets than give her ten times the money they cost. But she said she could never make him appreciate the fact that money was not all that she needed.

I know men who never think of taking home a bunch of flowers to their wives. They either think it unnecessary extravagance or that if their wives want flowers they can get them themselves. They do not realize that women prize the little courtesies, the little attentions and evidences of thoughtfulness more than money. It is the invitation to the little outing or vacation, the little trip to another city, the bringing home of tickets to the theater or opera or to the concert or lecture—it is the hundred and one little things that make the average woman happy and not merely the fact that her imperative wants are supplied in a lump sum.

Most men overlook the fact that it does not take so much, after all, to satisfy the average woman. It is largely a question of the right spirit, of doing the things which indicate thoughtfulness. Just giving a wife a check once in awhile, no matter how large it may be, or telling her to draw as much as she needs from your bank account will not satisfy a womanly woman. It is yourself she wants with the money.

STORE WINDOW LIGHTS.

Regulations For Their Control as Applied in Berlin.

The regulation of artificial lighting in connection with window displays is a subject which has been given comparatively little attention by the municipalities of this country, considering the extent to which it is used for this purpose in these days. That this phase of the lighting question demands closer scrutiny there can be no doubt, and it might be well for information on the matter to look to those cities which have given it study. Stringent regulations have been adopted in Berlin and other European cities, where merchants were inclined to take advantage of laxity in the premises. In Berlin lamps outside shop windows must not be lower than ten feet above the pavement or project more than forty inches from the wall. Where the lighting in the windows is done by oil, petroleum, gas flame or Welsbachs there must always be a sheet of glass not less than one-tenth of an inch thick under the lamps and running the whole length and breadth of the shop windows, so as to completely cover the articles in the window, and nothing is to be put above the lamps. The lamps must be at least forty inches below any inflammable part of the construction and ten inches from any such part horizontally.

There are also regulations as to iron screens where there is bare wood and as to efficient ventilation. Bare flames are not allowed in igniting the gas. This must be done by chemical or electrical kindlers or by electric distance spark kindling arrangements especially sanctioned by the authorities. The regulations for incandescent electric lamps are about equally strict.—Municipal Journal and Engineer.

Friendship.

Friendship, this beautiful relation of life to life, soul to soul, is of most serious import. It sometimes makes our warmest friend in reality our worst enemy. Bad qualities in a friend are false lights—they lure to evil. Many of us are constituted so that it is easy for us to form friendships. Let us be careful of those thus brought under our influence and power. Let us keep them unsoiled. Let us feel that grave responsibilities lie in our friendships and that they also enshrine glorious opportunities.

STEAMBOAT DRAMA.

Floating Palaces That Furnish Entertainment For River Towns.

Anybody who lives in a town on the banks of the Mississippi river and hears a calliope play at 5 o'clock in the morning knows that it is not a circus that is coming to town. It is the floating palace, which is the name given to a unique form of theatrical transportation entertainment that is used only on the river and its tributaries, the Ohio and the Missouri.

There are at the present time more than a dozen floating palaces. Each of them carries a well equipped stage, a company of from sixteen to thirty-five actors and actresses, and has seating capacity for from 200 to 700 persons. Each of the boats has a steam piano with which the people from the countryside are called to the landings where the shows are given on the boats, and most of the boats carry pretty fair bands.

Nowhere else in this country or abroad is the drama carried up and down rivers on steamboats. Barring the railroad, the favorite means of transportation in England and in continental Europe is the wagon. There are many wagon shows in this country, but they would find it difficult to reach all the towns that are easily reached by the floating palaces. Many of the towns that get all their dramatic sustenance from these floating playhouses have no railroad connections whatever. If it were not for the shows that float down or up to them by boat they would have to go without theatrical fare.

Mark Twain, who knows the big river about as well as anybody, used to be well acquainted with the old time managers of a few of the floating palaces. He introduces one of them into "Huckleberry Finn." But times change, and men change with them, and the floating palace of today is much more elaborate and much finer than were the floating palaces of the older time.

They play to thousands of persons each season, and they give pretty good shows. Their managers, who live in Cincinnati and St. Louis, make good profits on the investment.—Chicago Tribune.

The Pace of Admiralty.

It is reported that Japan will see the Dreadnought and go Great Britain 3,000 tons better, laying down a battleship of 23,000 tons service displacement. Of course the mistress of the seas will not ignore the challenge, and we must prepare to hear of a British battleship of 26,000 tons. The Japanese, being a proud and progressive people, will not sit still and may be counted on to push the building mark on their side to 29,000 tons. By that time our own big ship enthusiasts will wake up, and the taxpayers will be invited to contribute the cash for a floating fortress of 32,000 tons. So does the race for naval supremacy go, the mind of the competing world being at present fixed upon displacement as if there was no other factor to be taken into account.—Boston Transcript.

Eating Soap.

From a communication read to the Association of Belgian Chemists it seems that continental bakers are in the habit of mixing soap with their dough to make their bread and pastry nice and light. The quantity of soap used varies greatly. In fancy articles like waffles and fritters it is much larger than in bread. The soap is dissolved in a little water. To this is added some oil, and the mixture, after being well whipped, is added to the flour. The crumb of the bread manufactured by this process is said to be lighter and more spongy than that made in the ordinary way.

An Overworked Title.

A New York book publisher declares that the house business in recent literature has been overdone. "No house book will come from our presses from now on," he says. He cites "The House of Mirth," "The House of Fulfillment," "The House on the Hudson," "The House With the Green Shutters," "The House of a Thousand Candles" and a half dozen other literary structures of like character erected recently as an evidence that architecture is being overdone by the makers of books of fiction, to say nothing of "The House That Jack Built."

Mexican Holidays.

El Mundo, a Mexican evening paper, in referring to the labor situation in Mexico, complains of the excessive number of holidays which the peon thinks he is entitled to and which he takes regardless of considerations. Out of 365 days of the year, according to that newspaper, 131 are devoted to obligatory and traditional idleness. The appalling calculation is made up as follows: Sundays, 52; saint Mondays, 52; solemn feast days, 15; holy days, 3; national feasts, 3; family feasts, 6; total, 131.

Indians in Connecticut.

Connecticut still has a few Indians in its midst. The secretary of the Home Missionary society of the state, Rev. Joel S. Ives, recently preached to a native audience at Mohegan, a Congregational church under the care of the society. There are about twenty-five members, and a young woman has recently taken charge there. The place is between Norwich and New London.—Indian's Friend.

Voting on a Play.

M. Boggiano's voting apparatus at theaters has received but scant notice. When the spectator leaves his seat he is presented with a disk, which he throws into a certain aperture if he considers the piece good and into another if he thinks it bad.—Paris Journal des Debats.

Come Join Me
In This Honest Way
To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity —man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profits.

As I do not need all the money at once if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better: I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

Copyright 1906 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

All the work connected with the function of vision is done at the base of the brain. We do not see in the eye. It is simply a mechanical instrument similar to a photographic camera for focusing the rays of light on its posterior part, the retina. From here these delicate impressions are conveyed over nerve fibres to the gray matter cells lying in the outer part of the posterior portion of the brain. It is in the back of the brain that vision takes place. This is the largest centre in the entire nervous system. To this we must add the centre that governs the movements and adjustment of the eye for far and near vision. The centre that governs the focusing of the eye lies in the 3rd ventrical, the cells governing the converging of the eyes, when they are being used for reading, sewing, writing, or any close work, are in the aqueduct of Sylvius, while those governing the external muscles that turn the eye outward are in the floor of the 4th ventrical of the brain, and at its extreme base, at the top of the spinal column.

County Council Notes.

The chairmen of the various committees have been selected, namely, Mr. J. Dryden for the Executive; Mr. S. T. Vandervoort for the House of Refuge and Mr. L. Cornell for Roads and Bridges.

Of the thirty members who constitute the present Council, seven were in last year's Council, one from each of the former seven divisions in which the county was divided.

This evening the Warden will entertain his colleagues and a few friends at a banquet to be given at the Windsor Hotel.

Hardware Company's Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Belleville Hardware Company, was held in the rooms of the factory on the 23rd inst., the President, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, in the chair.

After the treasurer's report had been read, received and adopted, the following directors were elected:

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Allan McFee, R. J. Graham, W. C. Springer, S. Burrows, E. G. Sills, Walter Alford, W. J. Gibson, M.D., and H. C. Hunt.

At a meeting of the directors, held subsequently, Sir Mackenzie Bowell was re-elected President; Allan McFee, Vice-President; W. C. Springer, Managing Director, and H. C. Hunt, Secretary-Treasurer.

Peterboro Romance Ends in Wedding.

YOUNG GIRL WHO JUMPED OUT OF WINDOW TO JOIN THE MAN OF HER CHOICE.

A somewhat romantic wedding, says the Peterboro Review, took place in the city clerk's office at 11 o'clock this morning with the chief of police as a witness. Some time ago Miss Edith Pritchard, sixteen years of age, whose relatives live in Hamilton, worked in Peterboro. She became acquainted with Mr. Ernest Armstrong, a young man of this city, and it was arranged that they should be married. The girl was sent a few days ago to Hamilton by the police, her relatives objecting to the wedding. Mr. Armstrong went to the city after her and brought the young lady back to Peterboro. The police were informed of the occurrence and instructed to arrest the girl. P. C. McBarry yesterday afternoon at four o'clock went to a house in the east ward to take the girl captive. She asked for a moment's delay under the pretence of getting on her coat and hat. She took advantage of the privilege and jumping from an upstairs window got away. The drop was fourteen feet, but she escaped injury.

About eight o'clock last evening the police again visited the house just as the wedding was about to take place, and the clergyman, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, who was totally unaware that the girl's relatives were opposed to the marriage, was about to start out to perform the ceremony. The girl was arrested and spent the night at the police station.

This morning, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt communicated with the young lady's relatives in Hamilton, at her request and obtained their permission by wire to perform the ceremony. The nuptials accordingly took place in the city clerk's office, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt officiating. Chief of Police Roszel was present during the ceremony. All objections on the part of the bride's relatives had been removed and the young people were made happy.

Mr and Mrs. Armstrong will reside in the city.

Oldest Engineer Undergoes Operation

Mr. John Merrin, formerly of this city, now of Kingston Junction, is said to be the oldest engineer on the G.T.R. system. It will interest many people in this city, his former home, to learn that Mr. Merrin was on Monday last conveyed to the Kingston General Hospital, and underwent a successful operation yesterday. At last accounts the old gentleman was doing well.

Mother Promised To Thrash Her Son.

Peterboro Review: County Magistrate Edmison was at Havelock yesterday disposing of the case of the two Cordova youths charged with setting fire to a neighbor's hay stack last autumn. One of them, Lindsay by name, confessed that he had set fire to the hay, the value of which was about $2.00. The Magistrate let him off on suspended sentence for six months on condition that his mother would give him a good trouncing when she got him home. This she faithfully promised to do. The other boy, Dufrane, was let off, as the evidence of Lindsay showed that he was not guilty.

Magistrate Mathison, of Havelock, assisted Magistrate Edmison on the bench.

Local Masons Honored.

ICE TROTTING.

Second Day at Peterboro.

Peterboro, Jan. 23.—The second day of the winter meet of the Peterboro Turf Club was characterized by good racing. There were two events, a named race and the 2.22 class. The named race was taken by Ed. Pasco, Geo. Powell, Orillia, in 3 straight heats. Nettie Star was second, and Hazel Wilkes third. Summary:

Ed. Pasco, Geo. Powell, Orillia 1 1 1
Nettie Star, W. Duncan, Peterboro 2 3 3
Hazel Wilkes, L. Bennett, Port Hope 4 2 4
Brown Gyp., Dr. Johnson, Lindsay 5 4 2

Time — 2.35, 2.35, 2.37 1-2.

The following also competed: Little Will, Brian Boru, Peggy, May Bell and Why Not.

There were five horses in the 2.22 class, and the result was as follows:

Minnie Bell, Geo. Powell Orillia 3 1 1 2
Joe Allen, W. Simpson, Lindsay 1 2 2 3
Lady Gothard, Marten Conners, Peterboro 5 4 3 1
Little Girl, Jas. Elmherst, Keene 4 5 4 4

To-day's racing concluded the meet.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Brockville Times admits that the Belleville team outclassed the Crescents in the recent game there, and has this to say of the match: "In the early stages of the contest it looked like a victory for Brockville, the locals taking the first two goals in easy style. After that the westerners pulled themselves together, allowing Brockville only one more tally, while they shot eight past Vance, making a runaway contest of the second period. The visitors had a decided advantage in weight, which they used to the full extent in checking and breaking up the rushes of the Crescents' forward line. Their defence was particularly of the stonewall variety, while their shooting had Brockville discounted blocks. It seemed no trouble for Pepper, Connolly or Allen to lift the puck accurately from their own nets on the Brockville flags; indeed, there was more end-to-end shooting than seen in a match here for some time past. Belleville also had the faculty of checking back faster and resorted to more effective combination. The Crescents displayed great weakness in shooting and thereby lost numberless chances to tally on what looked like easy chances. But they were not there with the goods.

Brockville Times: R. Arnott, owner of Belleville's new skating rink, and manager of the hockey team, accompanied the hockeyists to Brockville yesterday. A contingent of about twenty admirers were also on hand to cheer their boys to victory. Some of the Belleville players, may be eligible for the junior class, but they have long since reached the age to grow whiskers. If they are bona fide juniors, wonder what the Belleville men look like.

The attendance at Monday night's Stanley Cup game was considerably larger than on the occasion of the first match. The registered figures for Monday were about 5,500, this being about six hundred in excess of the figures for Thursday. Estimates of the club's share in the gate receipts place the figures at about $1,800 each for the two games.

The rink manager in Kenora has telegraphed that as one result of the cup victory a new rink, to rival the Montreal Arena, will be erected, at once for the future struggles of the cup holders.

In the event of Pittsburg winning the championship of the International League, they will challenge the Kenoras for the Stanley Cup.

The Kingston Whig has this to say of the match with Picton on Tuesday night: "In Picton, on Tuesday night, the Frontenac hockey team was defeated by the crack junior aggregation of that place. The Kingston team are not kickers, but would like a little more light than supplied by the management of the Picton rink. At half-time the score was, Picton 3, Frontenacs 0, and every goal was scored on a long lift. In the second half, Frontenacs, by forcing the play, kept the puck on the ice, and in this style of play tied the home team in the second half. The score at the finish stood, Picton 7, Frontenacs 4. The game put Frontenacs out of the running, the first game with Brockville proving most unfortunate, as it was the only game Brockville has won this season, Picton and Belleville both having defeated the Island City bunch in Brockville. The district championship now lies between Picton and Belleville, and the Frontenacs think they could trim either team to a finish on neutral ice.

Hockey results last night: Toronto Argonauts 10, Midland 7; 14th Regiment of Kingston 17, Marlboros 5; Cobourg 6, Whitby 4; Montreal Vics 12, Montreal 6.

Ottawas beat Kenora 8—3 in an exhibition game last night. The cup chasers did not try very hard.

Guelph threatens to kick up an awful row because their teams have been pitched out of the O.H.A. Guelph men say they have evidence enough to professionalize many clubs. It's to be hoped the matter will be shown up. Then, perhaps, the organized hypocrisy might come to an end.

Mrs. A. W. Vermilyea Died This Morning.

After an extended illness, borne with Christian fortitude, Mrs. A. W. Vermilyea passed away this morning at the family residence, corner of Catharine and Coleman streets. Deceased, who was 68 years of age, was married a few years ago to Mr. Vermilyea. Previous to her second marriage she resided in Napanee for many years. Mrs. Vermilyea was a true Christian lady, esteemed by all who knew her. She was a member of Bridge St. Methodist church. Some months ago she was taken ill with a malady which defied medical skill. A husband and a number of near relatives survive.

Pretty Wedding In The City Yesterday.

BROWN-MINNS NUPTIALS TOOK PLACE UNDER AN EVERGREEN BELL — BAPTISMAL CEREMONY FOLLOWED.

A very interesting event took place in the city yesterday at one o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, on Commercial St., in the presence of a number of friends of the family, and under a tasteful evergreen bell, when Miss Hattie Elena, eldest daughter of Mr. W. S. Minns, of the D and D. Institute staff, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert Ellis Brown, of Toronto Junction. The impressive ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. H. Leitch, pastor of Holloway St. church, who, after congratulations had been showered on the bride and groom, administered the sacrament of baptism to the youngest son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Minns. Ample provision was made for the company to enjoy the bountiful menu and the after dinner toasts and music. Among the numerous and useful presents were a Japanese tea service from fellow-employees, with a Japanese biscuit jar and salad bowl to match, from McIntosh Bros., and a set of handsome furs from the groom. The happy young couple left for their new home in Toronto by the evening express.

A Small Fire.

The firemen had a run this morning to Woodley's fur store, on Front St. It seems that a plumber, in a cellar, was thawing out water pipes, and in some way loose straw caught fire, filling the upstair premises with smoke. But little damage was done.

The Last Rites.

Many citizens were this afternoon in attendance at the obsequies of the late Mrs. A. G. Northrup. Services were held at the house on John St., conducted by the Rev. A. H. Drumm, pastor of John St. Presbyterian church. Many beautiful floral tributes were placed upon the casket. The bearers were: Messrs. R. J. Graham, D. V. Sinclair, R. Templeton, J. McKeown, J. Taylor, and W. B. Robinson.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE WAR CORRESPONDENT."

Humor as quaint and refreshing as the epigrammatic flashes and homely sayings of George Ade, is seen in the libretto of "The War Correspondent," an original English military musical play, which is the work of Hough and Adams, the authors of "The Umpire." In "The War Correspondent" they have probably the most successful and certainly one of the most interesting plays yet produced. This fine production will appear at the opera house on Tuesday, Jan. 29th. Plan opens Saturday morning.

to customers who had made the rounds of the 20 per cent. discount shops and the reason we sold to them was because we gave better values. This is not mere talk, it is a fact, and we stand ready to give you just as good bargains. Don't for one minute think we are going to sit round like a bump when there is something doin' in the discount line. We are in this business for our health just the same as are the other merchants of this city. And if 20 per cent. discount won't get us our share of health (and business) we will have to make it 30, that's all.

JURY FREES BRIDANT

Though Charge of Chief Justice Was Against Him.

"It Is Between You and the Almighty Whether You Are Guilty or Not," Said Judge In Discharging the Prisoner—Charge of the Chief Justice and Addresses of Counsel for Defence and Crown.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—After a little more than an hour's discussion of the evidence, the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty," in favor of Edward Bridant, charged with the murder of his wife, by furnishing her with noxious drugs.

In discharging Bridant, Chief Justice Meredith remarked that he did not agree with the verdict, in view of the evidence given.

"It is between you and the Almighty, whether you are guilty or not. You are discharged," were the parting words to Bridant.

The Judge's Address.

Chief Justice Meredith in his address to the jury explained clearly the charge upon which Bridant was being tried, as laid down in the criminal code. He had no doubt Mrs. Bridant had been pregnant for three or four months. Did the prisoner know her condition? It seemed impossible that he did not. After reviewing the evidence his lordship asked, "Would a woman, knowing she was about to pass into eternity, who asked her mother to kneel and say the Lord's Prayer, and repeated the words of the prayer until her strength failed, be liable to accuse her husband falsely?"

Referring to the correspondence between the woman and Driscoll, the only reason it was admitted, was that it might throw some light on the question as to whether there had been any complaints of cruelty to the wife by the accused. The defence had not clearly proven that the letters had been written by Mrs. Bridant. Driscoll was in the Central prison and could easily have been called by counsel for the defence had he so desired.

Is Bridant Unsophisticated?

"You can judge by Bridant's evidence whether is unlettered, ignorant boy, as counsel would have you believe. Did he show care and coolness when in the witness box? If you consider him shrewd, you may not give his evidence as much consideration as if you thought him unsophisticated and innocent," said the justice.

There was no doubt but death was caused by septic poisoning, from the use of an instrument. If a man knew what the pills were for, and they were not effective, might he not go further and resort to the use of an instrument? If the jury consider he had a guilty knowledge of the pills, might he not also have a guilty knowledge of the probe?

The Ominous "If."

If Bridant compelled, aided or assisted in the use of these drugs, knew it was wrong and should have known it was wrong, he was guilty of murder.

Mr. Neville's address to the jury lasted over two hours. He dwelt largely on the correspondence which took place between the deceased and Driscoll, and the deceased and her husband, which was read in court during the morning. His object was to throw discredit on the evidence given by Mrs. Bridant's relatives.

Mr. Lynch Staunton, the crown prosecutor, briefly laid the evidence before the jury, and impressed upon them the necessity of bringing in a verdict in accordance with the testimony.

The case went to the jury at six o'clock.

McINTOSH BROS.

TERMINALS DISCUSSED

G. T. P. at Quebec City and Lake Superior End of Trent Valley.

Over Quebec Bridge Eight Railways Are to Pass and Be Brought to Tide Water In Front of City—Hon. Mr. Emmerson Promises Plans and Surveys of Trent Canal Within a Week.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—In the House yesterday, in reply to a question by Mr. Maclean (South York) the Minister of Railways and Canals stated that the original grant of water to the Cataract Power Co. from the Welland Canal was 100 cubic feet per second. On Dec. 31, 1902, the company had the amount increased to the extent of 700 cubic feet per second.

Mr. Foster learned that the North Atlantic Co. had a claim against the Government, and still being adjusted amounting to $31,804.

The Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Bennett (E. Simcoe), urged that Port Severn be the Georgian Bay terminus of the Trent Canal.

Mr. McCarthy (N. Simcoe), urged the Nottawasaga River route.

Mr. Hall (W. Peterboro) charged that Conservatives were the enemies and the Liberals the friends of the Trent Canal.

Hon. John Haggart replied that the present Government was merely carrying out the contracts made by the Conservative Government.

Mr. Emmerson said that the canal should be built on business principles. He expected to lay all the surveys and plans upon the table within a week. The Minister intimated that he had leaned towards the Severn River route. The experts, however, found objections. His mind was still open.

Quebec City Terminus.

Mr. Lavergne (Montmagny) moved for copies of all correspondence between the Government and the National Transcontinental Railway Commission concerning the erection of a railway station at Quebec city.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier admitted that there was dissatisfaction in the City of Quebec. The proposed station, however, was to be built by the Quebec Bridge Co. Over this bridge would pass eight railways. Where should this station be located? Personally the Premier suggested some point on the Plains of Abraham. The City of Quebec was bound to grow rapidly and to become a very busy port. Beauty might have to be sacrificed to utility.

W. F. Maclean (South York) said that Quebec had a magnificent future as an ocean port. The location should be fixed by the Government in the public interest.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: In our plans the works of the bridge company are to be part of the transcontinental railway, and, according to the law which has been passed by Parliament, the railways are to be brought to tide water in front of the City of Quebec.

R. L. Borden: It seems to me a little unfortunate that neither the Railway Commission, the Transcontinental Railway, the Government or Parliament has anything to say about the location of what has properly been described as a great national work.

Lavergne's motion carried.

Denatured Alcohol.

Mr. Miller (S. Grey) presented a resolution declaring "that in the opinion of this House the subject of denatured alcohol and legislation permitting the manufacture and use of the same free from excise duty, for fuel, light and power, and in the industrial arts, is one which should receive the early and careful attention of the Government and the Parliament.

The United States had been led to this legislation by the example of Germany. He believed that in Canada, as in Germany, the farm still could be introduced and every farmer be thus enabled to use corn cobs, rotten fruit and many other waste products to furnish light, heat and power for his house and barn. In Canada denatured alcohol was made solely by the Government, and at a prohibitive cost. The Department should make alcohol at a cost of not more than 30 cents a gallon. It should be cheaper than either coal oil or gasoline, and it is far more efficient.

Mr. Perley (Con., Quebec) said it was a question of price. If he can get denatured alcohol even at twice the cost of kerosene he is benefited.

Mr. Templeman moved the adjournment of the debate.

Marine Certificates.

The special committee of the Commons on Mr. Lancaster's bill to provide that masters' and mates' certificates be granted only to British subjects, had another meeting yesterday morning.

The Minister of Marine said that his information was that during the past ten years of 82 certificates issued for inland and minor waters only 10 had been issued to foreigners, and of these only four to Americans. It was believed that there were on American ships at least a thousand masters and mates whose families lived in Canada.

Mr. Lancaster questioned the accuracy of the Minister's figures, and the president and secretary of the Masters' and Mates' Association will be summoned to give evidence.

Militia and Strikes.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—In the Senate yesterday, papers referring to the calling out of the militia in the strikes at Buckingham and Hamilton were moved for by Senator David, who made a speech in favor of Government paying the militia while on strike duty.

After speeches by Senator Power, Senator McMullen, Senator Sullivan and Senator Cloran, Hon. Mr. Scott said he could not concur in the proposal that the Government should relieve municipalities of the cost of calling out the militia to deal with strike riots.

SIX FREEZE TO DEATH.

Galicians Who Leave Snowbound Train, Meet Death on Prairies.

Winnipeg, Jan. 24.—News reached the St. Boniface police yesterday that on Saturday night last a party of Galicians were on a C. N. R. train bound for a settlement near Starbuck, Man.

The train became snowbound, whereupon the Galicians left the train, thinking they had no more than a mile to reach their homes. Apparently they misjudged the distance, and five men and a woman are believed to have been frozen to death. The body of a Galician woman with a child in her arms, still living, and the body of a man have been found. Search is being made for the missing men.

Wm. Carter Hanged Himself.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—William Carter, aged 57, and living at 274 East King street, was found hanged in his room yesterday morning. He had thrown a rope over the transom of the door and tying a clothes-line around his neck, allowed himself to strangle. More than $1,000 was found among his possessions.

William Sharp, aged 45, was found dead in his room at 63 West Richmond street. Heart failure was the cause.

Suffering In Paris.

Paris, Jan. 24.—The cold prevailing in Eastern Europe has extended its grip westward. In France yesterday the temperature was 10 to 17 degrees below zero, centigrade, resulting in considerable suffering and a number of deaths from freezing. The River Seine and the lakes of the parks of the capital are frozen and the Parisians are enjoying the unusual sport of skating in the open.

Dies From Injuries.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—William Johnston, 7 Lima place, who, after paying a visit to his friend, the watchman at the old St. Lawrence foundry, who fell into a pit on the 15th inst., and was later taken to St. Michael's Hospital, died there of his injuries last night. He suffered from a fractured skull and various bruises on the body.

PILES

CURED QUICKLY AND PAINLESSLY—NO RISK, NO DANGER.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE TO CONVINCE SENT BY MAIL TO ALL WHO WRITE.

Common sense is just as necessary (even more so) in medicine as in business or the affairs of every day life. People are getting to know more than they used to. Not so long ago, it was the fashion to make all sorts of claims for a medicine, and wind up by asking the reader to go to a drug store and buy a bottle. People won't stand for that kind of thing now. They want proof—tangible proof. They want to try the remedy first and if they find it to be what is claimed they will be glad enough to go and buy it.

A CONVINCING ARGUMENT.

That is why we say to every person suffering from piles or any form of rectal disease, send us your name and we will gladly send you a free trial package. For we know what the result will be. After using the trial you will hurry to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box of Pyramid Pile Cure, now admitted by thousands to be one of the most wonderful reliefs and cures for piles ever known.

"Please excuse my delay in writing to you sooner in regard to what your Pyramid Pile Cure has done for me. I consider it one of the finest medicines in the world for piles. I suffered untold misery for four months when my wife begged me to send for a 50c box. When it was half gone I knew I was better and it didn't take any begging to get me to send for a second box. I think I am about well now, but if I feel any symptoms of a return I will order at once. I order it from the Pyramid Drug Co. to be sure of the cure. Tell all about this fine remedy for piles.

"And if there is anything in this letter you want to use do so. I received your letter a few days ago. Yours for a remedy like Pyramid Pile Cure. J. J. McELWEE.

"Honey Grove, Tex., R.R. 9, Box 29.

"P.S.—I only used two boxes and don't think I need any more. Piles of seven months' standing."

To get a free trial package send to-day, to the Pyramid Drug Co., 64 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Michigan. It will come by return mail and the results will both delight and astonish you.

BRITAIN'S PRESTIGE SUFFERS.

London Globe Commends Speech of W. F. Maclean At Ottawa.

London, Jan. 24.—The London Globe says: "To all those who have taken upon themselves to congratulate Haldane and the rest on their proper obsequiousness to the United States, we would commend some extracts from the speech delivered yesterday in the Dominion House of Commons.

"'I take this opportunity,' announced W. F. Maclean, 'to say for myself and perhaps for many of my fellow-Canadians, that I regard certain incidents connected with the Jamaica earthquake a distinct loss of imperial prestige on this continent—a thing all Canadians took pride in. Mr. Maclean went on to deliver sentiments that did not come altogether well from the member of a colony which refuses all subscriptions to the imperial navy, but in this sentence he spoke what every colony feels."

Secretary Root's Visit.

London, Jan. 24.—(C. A. P.)—The Times says the very fact of Root's visit and his discussion with leading Canadian statesmen, coupled with the belief that the visit is only a prelude to some comprehensive attempt to settle all outstanding diplomatic differences, is in itself a recognition of Canada's stature, which American statesmen have not hitherto conceded her. Such recognition is most satisfactory, but it is far more important that the recognition should come even more clearly from our side.

It is good business for Root to get into touch with Canadian sentiment. To do so is Sir Edward Grey's imperative duty.

At the same time it will recognize with perfect frankness that there be yet another source of weakness apart from any possible want of appreciation of Canadian interest by our diplomatist. That weakness lies in the actual disparity of national strength on two sides, 4,000 miles of frontier separating Canada and the United States. Canada for her development will need an army and a navy. This is no easy matter if she has to acquire them for herself, but easy if she steps into her place as a full partner of the British empire.

Canada's interests lie in the wide sphere of reciprocal arrangements provided by the British empire.

The Irish View.

The Freeman's Journal says Root declared he and the United States were great admirers of the Canadian people. This may be, but Canadians by no means return the compliment. The idea of Root and Grey and Laurier discussing Newfoundland fisheries seems almost comic in view of the Jamaica incident. It is to be feared that while Grey and Root have been talking in the semi-Arctic zone they have been thinking in a tropical one.

The Journal's London correspondent, referring to Root's visit, refers to past hostility of the American Senate to British treaties, and says the understanding with the United States can only be attained through a previous settlement of Ireland's just demands.

7 MEN NEARLY ASPHYXIATED.

While Installing Apparatus In Sarnia Tunnel Are Overcome by Gas.

Sarnia, Jan. 24.—Seven men employed in installing the electrical equipment in the St. Clair Tunnel narrowly escaped asphyxiation from coal gas.

They were found unconscious near the Sarnia entrance by a train crew.

They were taken to the Sarnia hospital and medical assistance revived them. None apparently will suffer any serious effect.

The tunnel will be equipped for the operation of electric engines in about three months.

BIRRELL FOR IRELAND.

Becomes Chief Secretary, and McKenna President of Education.

London, Jan. 24.—(C. A. P.)—It is announced that Augustine Birrell will become Chief Secretary for Ireland, being succeeded as president of the Board of Education by Reginald McKenna, M. P.

Street Cars Run Again.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board showed splendid form yesterday morning. Acting in the interests of the citizens at large, it promptly issued an order to the Street Railway Co. to resume the service discontinued the previous day, and instructed the city authorities not to interfere with the operation along the routes they have condemned until the whole matter can be threshed out. By noon the service was in operation as usual. Both parties have ten days in which to enter an appeal.

The Canadian Tariff.

London, Jan. 24.—The Scotsman, discussing the Canadian tariff, says the Radicals here are satisfied to recite the shibboleth of Cobdenism. On the other hand the Canadian Government approaches the fiscal question from the point of view of good business for the Dominion, and at the same time for the Empire, and completes a fiscal system to meet all cases.

Donald McMaster, K. C., spoke at Dundee yesterday on behalf of tariff reform.

Harry Thaw On Trial.

New York, Jan. 24.—Harry Thaw was put on trial for the killing of Architect Stanford White. The selection of two jurors was the total of the day's work done by the court.

Prospector Frozen to Death.

Cobalt, Jan. 24.—Word has been received here that a prospector in the Larder Lake district has been lost in the woods and frozen to death.

The Legislature.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—The Ontario Legislature will be opened this afternoon at 3 o'clock with the customary ceremonies.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick and Mrs. Fitzpatrick left for Washington, where they are invited to dine with President Roosevelt.

Provincial Legislature.

Formal Opening Attended By A Brilliant Assemblage.

Speech From the Throne Deals With the Creation of a New Judicial District, the Securing of Cheap Power, the Prison Labor Problem, the Taxing of Mining Companies and Many Other Questions.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—The opening of the Legislature was the event of social and political interest at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. Before two o'clock the floor of the Chamber was crowded by visitors and members awaiting the arrival of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. The Chamber presented an attractive appearance, with its blazing chandeliers, richly-gowned ladies, robed judges, and other dignataries, and crowded galleries. A great crowd outside watched the military advent of His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor Mortimer Clark, who, after the salute and the playing of the national anthem, proceeded to the Legislative Chamber, where he was received by Hon. J. P. Whitney, Prime Minister of Ontario.

In a distinct and clear voice His Honor then read the speech from the throne, as follows:

The Speech From the Throne.

"Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly: It affords me great pleasure to again meet you as representatives of the people in Parliament assembled.

"Once more we realize that our thanks are due to Almighty God for a bountiful harvest. The prosperity which has been enjoyed by our farmers for a number of years has been continued for another year, while the steadily increasing enterprise and commercial activity shown by our people afford good ground both for satisfaction and thankfulness and are indications of future prosperity.

The Interprovincial Conference.

"The sittings of the Interprovincial Conference at Ottawa in October last were attended by the Prime Minister and two of his colleagues. The deliberations of the conference will, I have reason to believe, result in an amendment to the British North America act by which the amount of the annual payment by the Dominion Government to the Province will be increased by about $800,000. A report of the proceedings of the conference will be laid before you.

"On the invitation of the Government of Canada, certain of my Ministers attended at Ottawa with reference to the proposed extension of the boundaries of Manitoba. The claims of the Province of Ontario to its hinterland were pressed upon the Dominion Government, my Ministers urging that the boundaries of Manitoba be extended northward to Hudson Bay by producing the eastern boundary of that Province northward until it strikes the Churchill River, and then by following the middle of the channel of the said river until the latter debouches into Hudson Bay, and that for geographical and other reasons the remainder of the Territory of Keewatin lying east of the suggested eastern boundary of Manitoba contiguous to Ontario and bounded on the north and east by Hudson Bay and James Bay be allotted to the Province of Ontario. A decision is expected shortly.

More Farm Laborers Wanted.

"Better accommodation has been provided for the increasing number of immigrants, and my Ministers intend to make additional efforts to induce farmers and farm laborers to settle among us.

T. & N. O. Railway Loan.

"You will be pleased to know that the loan of three millions of dollars authorized by the act of last session for the completion of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway was successfully floated in Canada at par and without any expense other than that of advertising.

Revision of the Statutes.

"After the close of the last session of the Legislature my Government, in accordance with precedent, appointed a commission, consisting of certain members of the Judiciary, the members of the Executive Council and others, for the consolidation of the statutes of the Province, and subsequently a supplementary commission was issued extending the powers of the commissioners. Substantial progress has been made by them, but owing to the great volume of work and the care and thoroughness with which it is being done the revision cannot be completed earlier than next year. Certain of the changes recommended will, however, be submitted to you at as early a day as possible during the present session.

A New Judicial District.

"Owing to the steady increase of population in northern Ontario it has become necessary, in the interests of the proper administration of justice, to create an additional judicial district.

The Railway Board.

"In accordance with the legislation of last session the Railway and Municipal Board has been constituted. Although it has been in existence only a few months, the board has already considered and disposed of many questions coming within its jurisdiction. It has also proven an efficient agency for enforcing the electric railway rates specified by this Legislature and for adjusting disputes between labor and capital in respect of street railway operation. A report of the work of the board since its formation will be laid before you.

Cheap Electric Power.

"I am glad to be able to inform you that, under the provisions of the act of last session, very satisfactory progress has been made in the direction of procuring cheap electric power for consumers.

Extension of the T. & N. O. Railway.

"Tenders have been called for the extension of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway to a point of junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and the receipts for passenger and freight traffic show a large increase over the preceding year.

Mining Tax.

"The great value of the mineral deposits in the Cobalt district is becoming more and more evident, and the future is full of promise both to the investor in mining properties and the people of the Province. The rights of the Province in these deposits have been kept steadily in view by my Ministers, and accordingly a measure providing for the taxation of mining properties will be submitted to you for consideration. I think it well to draw to your attention the fact that a tendency to hasty and reckless investment and speculation is abroad, and, it is to be hoped, will be kept in check by the good sense of our people.

Public School Act Amendments.

"The amendments of last session to the public school act have given general satisfaction. The experience of the past year with reference to the working of the act has shown certain amendments to be desirable; a measure embodying them will be laid before you. The Education Department is now dealing with the question of the price of text-books, and expects, during the present session, to make a satisfactory arrangement with reference to this very important matter.

Prison Labor Problem.

"My Ministers have, for some time past, been considering the question of prison labor, with a view to avoiding all possibility of its being put into competition with free labor. It is a subject of the utmost importance, and cannot be dealt with hastily. Some facts with relation to it will be laid before you.

Some Other Measures.

"Bills will be laid before you relating to colonization roads; providing for the taxation of mining properties; consolidating and amending the companies' acts; amending the act creating the Railway and Municipal Board; the mines act; the public school acts; the act respecting the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway; and the volunteer land grant acts.

A Good Surplus.

"It affords me great pleasure to inform you that the revenues of the Province are largely in excess of the estimates, and more than sufficient to meet the Provincial expenditure during the year.

"The public accounts will be laid before you for your consideration at the earliest moment, and the estimates for the coming year will be also submitted for your approval at an early date."

New Members Introduced.

After the speech from the throne two new member were introduced, Mr. Allan Studholme, East Hamilton, by Mr. Beck and Mr. E. J. B. Pense, Kingston, and Mr. Alex. Ferguson of Cardwell, by Hon. Mr. Montieth and Mr. J. S. Duff, West Simcoe.

It was resolved that the speech of the Lieutenant-Governor be taken into consideration to-day, and that select standing committees be appointed, two novelties in this list being agriculture and colonization and fish and game.

The House was then adjourned.

Press Gallery Officers.

The Press Gallery met after the adjournment and organized for the session, William Banks, jr., of The Globe, being elected president; H. Anderson, The News, vice-president; W. A. Wallis, the Mail and Empire, secretary; W. B. Roadhouse, The Telegram, A. E. S. Smythe, The World, and George J. Ashworth, The Star, members of the executive.

• • •

The directors of the local branch of the Y.M.C.A., we are told, are hot-foot after a new building, and have excellent prospects of getting it. An option has been secured on an admirable site, and many conditional subscriptions have been promised. One former Bellevillian, now living in Montreal, has promised a thousand dollars if the total amount needed is raised within a year, and the gentlemen composing the subscription committee have received other assurances which have encouraged them greatly. Four hundred dollars is already in hand. It is to be hoped that success may crown the efforts of the local branch, for a new building is badly needed here if the work is to be successfully carried on. And why should it not be in Belleville as well as in other places? The young men here are just as valuable as they are elsewhere, why should they not have the same advantages as their contemporaries in other places.

• • •

One thing the local Y.M.C.A. is fortunate in—it has a Ladies' Auxiliary loaded up with all sorts of enterprise and courage, and if the ladies don't make things hum before this year is out your Uncle Percival has another think coming. The Ladies' Auxiliary, we are told, have pledged themselves to raise a thousand dollars for the new building fund during the present year. Everybody should help them along. The Y. M. C. A. is a worthy institution, with good aims and should be encouraged by all people who have Canada's interests at heart. No nation has a more valuable asset than its young men—except, possibly, its young women—and that depends a lot on the point of view.

"A Taxpayer" writes: "Sir,—I have noticed during the present January, as well as in previous ones, that most of the cities and towns of the Province that own waterworks, gas works and other utilities, publish promptly in the press the result of the year's operation. Here is Brockville's statement:

"Brockville, Ont., Jan. 22.—Brockville municipal gas and electric light plant has just closed another successful year's operation. The gross revenue amounted to $45,523.07 and the current expenditure $29,785.14, leaving a profit of $15,737.93. Out of this, however, was paid a debenture debt, with interest, $11,735.35, which left an available surplus of $4,002.58 in the hands of the commissioners."

"Will you please request our City Treasurer to announce, as above, the result of running the Waterworks for 1906, and ask the manager of the Gas Works to furnish the same information respecting that department; the fuller statements, showing the DETAILS of revenue and expenditure, and the assets and liabilities as on December 31st, 1906, to be given later if they are not yet ready? We have heard of the number of new services put in and of the extensions, interesting information of course, but the financial results, net profit how much, or net loss how much; and the financial standing assets how much, liabilities how much — are the facts we want."

• • •

The questions asked by "A Taxpayer" are fair ones, fairly asked, and, we think, should be fairly answered. Would it be too much trouble for the new chairman of Gas, Ald. Green, and the chairman of Water, Ald. Vermilyea, to interest themselves in this matter, so that "A Taxpayer's" laudable curiosity may be satisfied? Many other citizens, besides him, would read the balance sheets with interest.

A Winnipeg wholesale clothing manufacturing concern, says the Montreal Witness, has adopted a drastic plan for dealing with a strike of its employees. Its directors have decided to remove the business and plant to Montreal, and let the strikers settle the question of employment as best they can. This is another proof of the truth of the old proverb about killing the goose that lays the golden egg. It should impress upon working people the wisdom of gravely considering the probable results of a strike in all their bearings. The Winnipeg tailors lose their means of livelihood and the city is deprived of a valuable industry. The facts seem to prove that the workers were correct in assuming that they had their employers in a position to be coerced, but they did not calculate on so complete a victory.

COLD KILLS THE GERM.

Lieut. Perry Says There Are No Bald Heads in the Arctic Region.

The people who come back from Klondike testify to the fact that no native bald heads are there. The evidence is that the cold climate kills the germs that eat the hair off at the root. Lieut. Perry, who went to the Arctic Regions, gives the same evidence. Newbro's Herpicide has the same effect as the cold climate. It kills the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, and the hair grows again. Herpicide is the first hair remedy built upon the principle of destroying the germ that eats the hair off. Its phenomenal sale demonstrates the correctness of the scalp germ theory. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit. Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

It is just possible that, when Byron O. Lott and Frank Reilly called on Mr. George P. Graham at Brockville, while returning from Watertown, where they had been arranging for the manufacture of the bogus ballot-boxes, they did not even dream that some day Mr. Graham would occupy the proud position of leader of the forlorn hope in the Ontario Legislature.

• • •

This will cause the Brockville Times man's cup to overflow. At this distance, almost, we can hear him ringing up Mr. Graham on the long distance telephone, and asking the old, old question, "Who printed those fraudulent ballots in the Comstock-White by-election?"

The Coming Elections in British Columbia.

The Provincial election campaign in British Columbia so far encourages the expectation that the McBride Government will be sustained by a majority of ten or twelve.

The Opposition under the twin-leaders, Messrs. Macdonald and McInnes (the latter sent by the Ottawa Government), has completely failed to declare a definite policy, relying upon the "scandals" which have been threshed out in the House to the vanishing point. The News-Advertiser qualifies this statement, however, by saying that Mr. McInnes certainly did explain that his policy—formulated as he admitted before he left Ottawa and under the direction of the Federal authorities who accepted his resignation—was that he was to be appointed a Cabinet Minister at $4,800 per annum—an amount $800 more than the present scale of Ministerial salaries in British Columbia. Mr. McInnes announced in grandiose fashion that he would rather have this position than be Governor of the Yukon at $12,000. In all else, the paper says, the Opposition policy is merely the ravenous desire of three or four men for Provincial place and pay.

The Vancouver Province, on the other hand, says there is an issue squarely before the elections, viz., whether the Dominion or the Province shall govern provincial affairs. It charges the Federal Government with a desire to favor the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company at the expense of the public domain, to subsidize the railway corporation with large blocks of the provincial estate in defiance of the wishes of the people. The Province says:

"The Grand Trunk Pacific must be appeased, and, after pledging the credit of the whole of Canada for the purpose of that undertaking, Sir Wilfrid will hardly hesitate to force a special contribution from this province, toward its construction, if he can induce the people to elect a legislature subservient to his will. It is to induce them to elect such a Legislature that he has sent Mr. W. W. B. McInnes here to direct and manage the present campaign for the local Liberal party. His obvious intention of obtaining, through the compliance of a government of which Mr. McInnes would be the head, the land grants which the McBride Administration refused, should in itself prove sufficient to awaken the active hostility of a free province."

The County Council.

THURSDAY MORNING.

Council resumed at 10 o'clock, Warden Kirk in the chair.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS.

A communication was read from Mr. W. J. Diamond, Secretary-Treasurer of the Belleville Board of Education, suggesting that a committee from the County Council meet a committee from the School Board in reference to fixing terms of payment to be made to examiners for school examinations.

Superintendent Bleecker presented a report in regard to the condition of certain bridges in the county.—Referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

GRAVEL ROAD MATTERS.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Farley, that hereafter the amount to be paid to the chairman of the Gravel Roads Committee shall not in any year exceed $150 per annum. The mover of the resolution said that for years past he considered the amount paid to the chairman of Gravel Roads was excessive, and for this reason he had introduced the motion.

Mr. Dryden was in full accord with the motion, and would be in favor of making the amount $100 per annum. He moved an amendment to that effect.

Mr. Collins was in favor of the Reeves of the various municipalities accompanying the Superintendent over the roads in the municipalities, without remuneration. He moved an amendment to the amendment that this rule prevail.

Mr. Dracup seconded this amendment.

Dr. Harper was in favor of the amendment to the amendment. The Reeves of the various municipalities could, during the season, spend a day or two in going over the roads with the Superintendent.

Mr. Dryden withdrew his amendment and said he would support the amendment proposed by Mr. Collins.

Mr. Vandervoort said he was not in favor of the Reeves doing this work. The chairman should accompany the superintendent over the roads.

Mr. Best said if it was necessary to have a chairman of Gravel Roads they should have one, and if it was not necessary to have a chairman then let the Superintendent and the Reeves of the municipalities look after the matter of building and repairing roads.

Mr. Vermilyea said that too much money had in the past been spent by the chairman of Gravel Roads, and his motion had for its object the cutting down of expenses. The chairmen of this committee, whoever they may be in the future, should be treated uniformly.

Upon a vote being taken, the amendment prevailed.

NOTICES OF BY-LAWS.

Mr. Vandervoort gave notice that he would introduce a by-law re House of Refuge Committee.

Mr. Vermilyea gave notice of a by-law to appoint a member of the Board of Audit and High School Trustees.

Mr. Bonter gave notice of a by-law to appoint a Board of Examiners.

Mr. Dryden gave notice of a by-law re loan from the Merchants' Bank.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Dr. Harper moved, seconded by Mr. Collins, that the Executive Committee be composed of Messrs. Dryden, Nickle, Farley and Dr. Harper.

The mover stated that at a previous session seven were named upon this committee, whereas the by-law only allowed four members.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on Roads and Bridges, Mr. Hanley in the chair.

The communication from Mr. Thos. W. Christie claiming damages to the extent of $60 for injuries inflicted upon a horse belonging to him, was taken up. He alleged that a defect on a county road was the cause of injuries to the animal.

Mr. Collins said he knew the horse was injured, but he did not know the circumstances of the case.

A motion prevailed that this matter be referred to a committee composed of the Clerk, Superintendent and Dr. Harper, to look into and have power to act.

The communication of Messrs. Porter & Carnew, claiming damages on behalf of Mrs. P. Scrimshaw, for injuries she sustained owing, it is alleged, to a defect in a culvert on a road on the boundary line between Tyendinaga and Richmond townships, was taken up.

A motion prevailed that this matter be referred to a committee composed of the Reeves of Deseronto and Tyendinaga, they to confer with a committee from the adjoining County of Lennox and Addington.

The report of the Superintendent of Roads and Bridges, as to the condition of certain bridges, was read. There were a number of bridges which needed repairs.

Mr. Dryden said it was no doubt a fact that the county had to face an expenditure of a considerable amount to build bridges.

The Clerk stated that the county would have to rebuild some bridges, and the work would have to be done this year.

Mr. Hanley moved, seconded by Mr. Dryden, that the Superintendent report as soon as possible as to the condition of the wooden bridges in the county, with a view of having the same rebuilt or repaired.—Carried.

Council adjourned until 2 p.m.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Council met at 2 o'clock.

On motion the Ways and Means Committee resumed, Mr. Vandervoort in the chair.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Farley, that the Auditors' report be received and adopted, and that the same be published as heretofore.—Carried.

Mr. Best moved, seconded by Mr. Wright, that the salary of Mr. Geo. J. Jarman, Police Magistrate for North Hastings, be increased from $400 to $500.

Mr. Vermilyea thought that no action should be taken at present in this matter.

Mr. Best was of the opinion that Mr. Jarman was not asking too much, as he had a large territory to travel over.

Mr. Dryden said that the matter of salaries to the Police Magistrates of the county was one that should be adjusted.

After some discussion it was decided to lay the matter over until the June session.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

N. Allen	$351.25
C. B. Scantlebury	1.50
Dr. Moore	16.00

INTRODUCTION OF BY-LAWS.

On motion rule 37 of the procedure by-law of the Council was suspended for the day, for the purpose of introducing the following by-laws:

Mr. Vermilyea introduced a by-law to appoint a member of the Board of Audit and High School Trustees.

Mr. Vandervoort introduced a by-law re House of Refuge.

Mr. Dryden introduced a by-law re loan from the Merchants' Bank.

Mr. Bonter introduced a by-law to appoint a Board of Examiners.

On motion the Council went into committee of the whole on by-laws, Dr. Bowlby in the chair.

The by-law re House of Refuge was taken up and passed through. It gave the committee power to proceed with the erection of necessary outbuildings.

A by-law to appoint a member of the Board of Audit and High School Trustees was read a second time. Mr. W. R. Aylsworth was appointed a member of the Board of Audit. The High School Trustees appointed were Dr. G. W. Faulkner for Stirling High School; Mr. W. J. Allen for Madoc High School; Mr. A. G. Bogart for Deseronto High School, and Mr. J. Harry for Trenton High School.

A by-law to borrow the sum of $55,000 from the Merchants' Bank was read a second time.

A by-law to appoint a Board of Examiners to examine certificates for teachers, etc., was taken up. The blanks in the by-law were filled in with the names of Messrs. J. Johnston, W. Mackintosh and G. E. Kennedy.

A by-law received its second reading which had for its object the assuming by the county of a piece of road in the Township of Tudor and Cashel as a county road.

Council adjourned until 10 o'clock Friday morning.

DELICATE CHILDREN.

PARENTS SHOULD KNOW HOW TO KEEP CHILDREN WELL—EXPERT ADVICE BY A BELLEVILLE DRUGGIST.

Said Mr. J. S. McKeown during a recent interview:

"If we could only make all fathers and mothers in Belleville regard what we say, especially if their little ones are delicate, how glad they would be afterward. They can make their children strong and well. They can lay a foundation stone in their little lives that will give them joy and happiness in years to come and they will become strong and hearty men and women, if they will only believe what we say about Vinol and follow our advice."

Remember Vinol contains all the active curative principles taken directly from fresh cods' livers without grease or oil, and its taste is delicious, and that is what gives it such power to assist the stomach of the little ones to properly assimilate the food which they eat. It is the means by which rich, red blood is made; strong bone structure is built; hard, firm flesh tissue is created, and healthy, sound nerves maintained.

Not only for children, but for adults do we recommend Vinol as the greatest strength creator and rebuilder of health, without reservation, and stand prepared to refund all money to those who do not find absolute satisfaction in its use. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

SPORTING NOTES.

Poor old Toronto! Once upon a time she had hockey teams worthy of the name, but now, alas! her fourth-rate dubs are getting beautifully plastered in every direction. Peterboro walloped the best of them on their own ice; Kingston made the Marlboros look like a plugged nickel. Who is to blame for Toronto's plight? The O. H. A., which refused to keep up with up-to-date conditions, with the result that, nowadays, there is hardly a fair senior hockey team in the Association, let alone Toronto.

The Picton ice races have been cancelled.

Doesn't the following, from the Guelph Mercury, remind you greatly of Belleville's case and Belleville's experience with the O.H.A.: "The state of hockey affairs in Guelph reminds me of a 'coon' with a club awaiting for a coon to crawl out of his hole. Every time his head appears there is a swish in the air and the coon retires. So it is with the hockey team. For about ten years winter sport has lain practically dormant in the Royal City. This year a team got into the ring, but because they won a couple of games and looked dangerous swish goes the O.H.A. axe, and Guelph as a hockey centre sinks into oblivion for perhaps another ten years' term."

The Guelph people, it would appear, mean business in their efforts to "get even" for being downed by the O.H.A. They have mentioned several star players who, they allege, should be asked to make the amateur declaration, among the number being no less a person than our old college chum, Whitcroft, of Peterboro. Well, say, wouldn't that jar you off your perch?

Marks, formerly of this city and a few other places, is now holding down left wing for the Canadian Soo, and, according to despatches, is making his check look like an auto run out of gasolene.

Warrants have been issued for Alf. Spittal, Harry Smith and Alf. Smith of the Ottawa hockey team, in connection with the recent Ottawa-Wanderers' hockey match. The Ottawa men are charged with assault on Wanderer players. The complaint was made by C. C. Cotton, a Montreal lawyer.

They play fierce hockey in the pro. league. A despatch says; Pittsburg defeated Calumet again in to-night's International League hockey game, 8 goals to 3. It was one of the fiercest hockey games ever seen here. Tripping, cross-checking, slashing and slugging were common, and at times five or six men were on the bench. Calumet played part of the second half without Bellefeuille, who was carried off the ice senseless, and Pittsburg refused to drop one of their men to even up.

The Kenoras, Stanley cup holders, play in Toronto to-night.

The Wanderers will go after the Stanley cup in March next, providing they win the championship of their league, which seems likely, they think. They will probably strike an awful snag in Ottawa, however.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE WAR CORRESPONDENT."

No stronger combination of talent than that in "The War Correspondent" is to be found anywhere this season. The company is headed by Mabel McCane, a young prima donna who is destined to become one of America's big favorites. Miss McCane is a graduate of the University of Music at Milan, Italy. With this big company will also be found the most prepossessing chorus ever seen with any musical attraction. "The War Correspondent" will appear here on Tuesday, January 29th, at the opera house. Plan opens Saturday morning.

Agreeably Surprised

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Hogle, who reside in the 2nd concession of Sidney, were agreeably surprised by a large number of friends who invaded their home. The object of the gathering was soon apparent, for after a few well-chosen remarks by one of those present, Mr. and Mrs. Hogle were presented with a handsome hall rack. After the presentation had been fittingly acknowledged by Mr. Hogle, refreshments were served and an hour spent in social intercourse. Mr. and Mrs. Hogle intend to take up their residence in the city soon.

TIMELY TOPICS.

THEY DON'T KNOW YOU.

Of course it riles you through and through
To have a clerk get gay with you,
A man you're certain cannot get
One-half your salary, and yet
He acts as if he owned the town
And has the nerve to call you down,
But don't let that your temper mar;
Perhaps he don't know who you are.

When the conductor on the train
Will not allow you to explain,
But wants to put the blame on you
Because he passed you going through
And says you tried to beat your way
And didn't really mean to pay,
Don't rise and throw him from the car;
Perhaps he don't know who you are.

When the policeman swings his club
And says, "Move on you dub,
And take away that ugly mug,
Or I will land you in the jug."
Don't answer him, "The street is free
And part of it belongs to me."
But quickly hie yourself afar;
Perhaps he don't know who you are.

How can the man with but two eyes
Know you are great and good and wise?
You do not bring your pedigree
Along for every one to see,
The multitude can't understand,
That Sullivan once shook your hand
And that your father saw the Czar;
Perhaps they don't know who you are.

GREAT FIRE AT POLOTSK.

Central Part of One of Russia's Most Ancient Cities Destroyed.

Bad Blaze at Brampton.

Brampton, Jan. 25.—The most stubborn fire here for some years broke out at 9 last night in the planing mill of the Irvine Lumber and Fuel Co. The adjoining room was used as a drying kiln and was filled with lumber. The three-storey building of the Canada Shoe Co. adjoins the room in which the fire started. The firemen succeeded in saving the shoe factory, although considerably damaged. The sash factory was completely destroyed with a large quantity of lumber. The loss is heavy, partly covered by insurance.

London, Jan. 24.—Liverpool and London cables are higher at 10½c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9c to 9¼c per lb.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Jan. 24.—Receipts of live stock at the city market as reported by the two railways since Tuesday were 121 car loads, composed of 1841 cattle, 1828 hogs, 858 sheep and lambs and 90 calves. The quality of fat cattle as usual was not by any means good, with a few exceptions. Trade, considering the quality of fat cattle, was extraordinary good. Prices were firm for all classes of fat cattle.

Exporters.

There were a few loads of exporters, which were bought at prices ranging from $4.40 for light to $5.05 for those of heavier weights. Export bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt. More good exporters would have sold.

Butchers.

Prime picked loads of butchers, of which there were few, sold at $4.50 to $4.70 per cwt.; loads of good at $4.35 to $4.65; fair to good at $4 to $4.25; medium butchers and good cows at $3.40 to $4; common cows at $2.70 to $3.25; canners at $1.25 to $1.75 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

Two loads of stockers and light feeders, weighing from 735 to 825 lbs., were bought by Harry Murby at $3 to $3.25 per cwt.

Milch Cows.

The quality of milkers and springers was not as good as the trade demands, but there was a good trade at prices ranging from $25 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

About 100 calves sold at prices ranging from $3.50 to $6.50 per cwt., with prime new milk-fed calves worth $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs was not large. Export ewes sold at $4.50 to $5 per cwt.; culls and rams, $3 to $4.25 per cwt.; lambs of good to prime quality at $6.50 to $7; common lambs at $5 to $6 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts were moderate, 1800. Mr. Harris reports prices steady at $6.60 for selects and $6.35 for lights and fats.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 24.—Cattle—Good demand and steady; prime steers, $5.85 to $6.15; shipping, $5 to $5.75; butchers, $4.50 to $5.50.

Veals—Receipts, 2200 head; active, 25c higher; $4.25 to $9.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 2200 head; active; pigs steady, others 10c lower; heavy and mixed, $6.95 to $7; Yorkers, $7 to $7.10; pigs, $7.25; roughs, $6 to $6.20; stags, $4.50 to $5.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7000 head; sheep active and steady; lambs, $5 to $7.85; yearlings, $6.50 to $6.75; wethers, $5.50 to $5.75; ewes, $4.75 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $3 to $5.25.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Jan. 24.—Beeves—Receipts, 134; nothing doing; feeling full steady, with 20 cars expected for to-morrow's market; dressed beef slow at 7c to 9c per lb. for common to choice native sides; extra beef, 9½c to 9¾c.

Calves—Receipts, 193; veals nominally steady; westerns not wanted and weak; no sales; dressed calves slow; city dressed veals, 8c to 14c per lb.; country dressed, 7½c to 13c.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2078; trade very dull and nothing doing of importance. A few sold at $6 to $6.62½; sheep nominally steady; lambs, 10c to 25c lower; quotable at $8.25 to $7.85.

Hogs—Receipts, 3852; nominally weak.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Cattle—Receipts, about 8000; market beats steady, others weak and dull; common to best steers, $4 to $7.30; cows, $3 to $4.75; heifers, $2.50 to $5.50; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $2.50 to $8; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.90.

Hogs—Receipts, about 33,000; market strong; choice heavy shipping, $6.60 to $6.65; light butchers, $6.60 to $6.62½; light mixed, $6.57½ to $6.62½; choice light, $6.60 to $6.65; packing, $6.50 to $6.62½; pigs, $5 to $6.35.

Sheep—Receipts, about 18,000; about 10c lower; sheep, $3 to $5.75; yearlings, $4.00 to $6.40; lambs, $7.75 to $7.85.

A ROMANTIC LEASE.

One Sweet Red Rose as the Rent For a Pennsylvania Farm.

The public is generally conversant with the annual custom of paying "one red rose" as ground rental in eastern Pennsylvania churches to the descendants of those who gave the ground for the edifices, but it is not generally known that hundreds of owners of farms are under a similar obligation, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"Red rose rent" is yearly paid every second Sunday in June in the Lutheran church at Manheim, Lancaster county; in the Tulpehocken Reformed church, about sixteen miles west of Reading, and in several edifices in Lebanon county, while several congregations in Berks are entitled to observe the event, but do not.

Roses paid on these occasions to representatives of families whose ancestors made such provisions are treasured as priceless heirlooms, and at Manheim they have come from many states.

It is known to few that more than 100 years ago great tracts of farm land were sold around Reading with the same stipulation. It is estimated that at least 20,000 acres of land in Berks are subject because of a clause in the original deeds to an annual ground rent of one red rose.

Records of the Berks courthouse show that many years before Baron Stigel provided for the payment of red rose rent by the church at Manheim Caspar Wistar sold land containing the same clause.

Red rose rent is mentioned in connection with land in Tulpehocken, Marion, Maxatawny, Oley and other townships. It dates back to 1738.

The Tulpehocken Reformed church is built on land that is subject to "one red rose" quit rent. The land was owned by Caspar Wistar, brass button manufacturer of Philadelphia. The red rose rent has been paid to the Philadelphia descendants of Caspar Wistar for some years. The most notable observance was in 1902, when thirty prominent Philadelphia Wistars attended the services and were paid 157 red roses in payment of arrears of rent,

John Page, described as "a gentleman from London," was another extensive real estate speculator in the early colonial period. He planned to establish a feudal barony along the Tulpehocken in 1735. Every deed of land sold by him contained the red rose clause.

Not That Strap.

"Why don't you get up and give that seat to your father, Bobby?" reprimanded the woman. "Doesn't it pain you to see him reaching for a strap?"

"Not on a train," chuckled Bobby.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Give Fair Play to

A really reliable remedy for headache—Zutoo.

If you have got it into your head that Zutoo Tablets will hurt you, you are mistaken.

It isn't fair to us for you to judge Zutoo by the drug cures.

It isn't fair to yourself to suffer from headache, when this really harmless vegetable headache cure is within your reach.

The fair thing for both of us is—to judge Zutoo on its merits—to test it.

If you find it does not cure your headache, sick, nervous or otherwise, in twenty minutes, and leave you feeling good every time—no bad after effects, then discard it.

But do not condemn it unfairly without a trial, and keep on suffering from headaches. You really do not have to, and one trial of Zutoo will prove it.

All we ask for Zutoo is fair play—that you give it a trial before concluding as to its merits or demerits.

Wont you do this? You'll be glad ever after if you do.

We'll send trial tablets for nothing, or you can buy them at dealers in 10c. and 25c. packages.

VALUE OF OLIVE OIL.

It Is Good Either Taken Internally or Used Externally.

Various forms and kinds of oils form a large stone in the foundation of beauty culture. Only the thoughtful observer realizes their importance and that they were indispensable to the belles of old time—to the Greeks and Romans and eastern beauties of ancient days.

Olive oil was the most luxurious, as well as the most common. It was taken internally and externally; they rubbed with it, bathed in it, drank it and used it in a hundred ways. Olive oil is still olive oil, though not so many people recognize its value except as an ingredient of salad dressing.

It is excellent for the digestion and may be taken in doses of from one to nine or more teaspoonfuls a day. Some people find it is distasteful taken clear. In that case it may be disguised in wine or lemonade or some pleasant drink, which of itself should agree with the individual's system.

Olive oil is a good flesh builder. If rubbed into the skin, it not only accomplishes this with faithful applications, but makes the skin soft and velvety. Being a vegetable oil, it has absolutely no tendency to stimulate a growth of hair.

Olive oil is used in a hundred other ways, but the sum of its virtues lies simply in this—it is gentle in its action, soothing, nourishing and strengthening.

THE ALFALFA PLANT.

It Was Cultivated In Asia Long Before the Christian Era.

Alfalfa is a native of southwestern Asia and five centuries prior to the Christian era had been carried to and cultivated in southern Europe. The Romans used and appreciated it as a feed for their chariot and war horses before the birth of Christ. From Italy, in which country its growth has been maintained continuously to the present day, it found its way into Spain and France.

The Spaniards during the Spanish invasion carried it into South America and Mexico. During the middle of the nineteenth century it was introduced into this country through California by the Chileans. Since then it has gradually spread eastward until today there is probably not a state or territory in the Union in which this oldest of cultivated forage plants is not grown to some extent. Where this plant has come to us from Spain, directly or indirectly, it is known as alfalfa, while if brought from other countries of Europe (and it is in isolated instances here and there) it is generally called lucerne, from a valley in Switzerland by the same name in which it grows well and in large quantities.

Pretty Names For Books.

The following are some of the curious titles of old English books:

"A Most Delectable Sweet Perfumed Nosegay For God's Saints to Smell At."

"Biscuit Baked In the Oven of Charity, Carefully Conserved For the Chickens of the Church, the Sparrows of the Spirit and the Sweet Swallows of Salvation."

"A Sigh of Sorrow For the Sinners of Zion Breathed Out of a Hole In the Wall of an Earthly Vessel Known Among Men by the Name of Samuel Fish" (a Quaker who had been imprisoned).

"Eggs of Charity Layed For the Chickens of the Covenant and Boiled With the Water of Divine Love. Take Ye Out and Eat."

"The Spiritual Mustard Pot to Make the Soul Sneeze With Devotion."

Most of these were published in the time of Cromwell.

Lawyers at Westminster.

Of the professions and trades represented in the house of commons the law holds first place, but in early days no class of men gave greater trouble than the lawyers, and many were the attempts made to keep them out of the house. James I., when the parliament of 1624-25 was to be chosen, advised electors "not to choose curious and wrangling lawyers, who may seek reputation by stirring needless questions." This and other antagonistic counsel in the past and present has, however, done little to stem the tide of lawyers which flows at each election into the house.—Strand Magazine.

The Ideal Life.

To live content with small means, to seek elegance rather than luxury and refinement rather than fashion, to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quickly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars, babes and sages with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never—in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious grow up through the common.—William Henry Channing.

Those Good Old Days.

"Dear, I wish you would lay down your novel and come and button my shirt for me."

"Dear me, I never saw such a helpless man! I'd like to know how you buttoned your shirts before you were married."

"My shirts had buttons on them in those days."

Modest.

"Is that all the work you can do in a day?" asked the discontented employer.

"Well, suh," answered Erastus Pinkley, "I s'pose I could do mo', but I never was much of a hand foh showin' off."

Absence of occupation is not rest; a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.—Cowper.

THE "LIVING IN" SYSTEM.

Hardships of Shop Assistants In English Business Houses.

"Shop assistants" and clerks in retail and wholesale houses and similar establishments in England often endure great hardship on account of the survival of the mediaeval "living in" rules by which they eat, sleep and work all under the same roof. A determined effort is now being made to do away with the evils of the system. J. Macpherson, general secretary of the Union of Shop Assistants, quotes Dr. Norman Kerr as follows: "It is impossible for me to find language strong enough to convey a hundredth part of the mischief which I have seen arise from the excessive hours of labor of shop assistants who have been under my professional care. The great length of the hours at work I have seen break down strong constitutions, seriously aggravated as the evil has been by the dyspeptic misery and disease induced by the necessary bolting of food through the far too short period allowed for meals."

Secretary Macpherson writes: "The following house rules indicate the 'homelike' nature of the accommodation provided, not only for young people, but equally for adult men and women: 'No pictures or photos are to disfigure the walls. Any one so doing will be charged with the repairs. All bedrooms must be cleared by 8 a. m. On Sundays bedrooms to be cleared by 10:30 a. m. and not entered again till 12:30 p. m. Assistants must not lean out of the window or loiter in the passages or doorsteps or pavements near the house and are on no account to bring strangers into the house. No flowers to be put in water glasses or bottles. House door is closed at 11 p. m. Gas turned off fifteen minutes later. Any one having a light after that time will be discharged.'

"That the employers will not relinquish such a profitable source of revenue without a struggle is obvious," the same official continues. "Take the following illustration: An employer boards and feeds a staff of 500 assistants. He decides to reduce the cost of breakfasts to the extent of 1 penny a head per diem. This economy in housekeeping gives him an additional profit of £760 ($3,800) a year on the cheeseparing of one meal alone. The unfortunate assistant, 'who can leave if he doesn't like the food provided,' must deplete his meager wage to buy extra food to satisfy hunger or to tempt the palate to swallow the unappetizing fare provided by the firm."

A Modern Samson.

Possessed of Samsonlike strength, Albert Fisher of Quebec saved his life by a remarkable exhibition of his power. Fisher was employed at a stone crusher, and his duties consisted in feeding rocks into the huge machine. To aid this he stood on a platform just above the crusher. He had just dropped a fifty pound bowlder into the machine when his foot slipped and he fell headlong between the steel jaws.

No person was near to stop the engine. Bracing his shoulders against the steel crushers, which were slowly closing, the sturdy workman exerted all his great strength in one powerful effort. For a moment the machine stopped, then the massive sides drew apart, and finally there was a rending of the steel joints, and the crusher fell to pieces.—Philadelphia North American.

Frugal King Leopold.

A few years ago King Leopold of the Belgians made a Norwegian tour and in due course drove overland in a chaise to Stavanger, where one of the large hotels was stirred by the news that it was about to be favored by royal patronage. The dinner hour of the other guests was postponed in order that the king might have the huge dining room for his sole use, and other preparations were made for the adequate entertainment of his majesty. The sumptuous repast was served in style, apparently to the king's complete satisfaction. At the end of the repast he beckoned to the maitre d'hotel and without a word handed him in settlement a tourist's coupon. Even when on pleasure bent King Leopold has a frugal mind.

Bad Men of the West.

Searchers for real western color with which to illuminate their tales of the frontier have for some time been complaining that all the snap and ginger of the old life in the west had departed. To a certain extent this is true. The genuine Indians have nearly all followed the buffalo over the divide into the happy hunting grounds of the Great Spirit. The modern cowboy is less careless with his shooting iron and his branding iron than he was in the old days, but it is an error to believe that all of the picturesque deviltry which gave color to early days in the west has been eliminated. The bad man with the gun out on the fringe of civilization is fully as bad as his predecessor of earlier years.—Portland Oregonian.

The "Bobs" of America.

A London writer calls General Miles the "Bobs" of America. In describing the famous soldier this writer says: "Despite his valorous record and his sixty-seven years he is a Beau Brummel. With his perfectly fitting frock coat, gray tie, gray suede gloves, tan spats, tan waistcoat and gleaming patent leathers, this grizzled campaigner could give points to any Burlington Bertie. He is remarkably handsome too. With his Roman nose and pointed chin, his upturned eyebrows and mustache and his piercing eyes, he reminds one of an eagle scenting its prey from afar. It is a soldier's face, and the man's whole aspect is militarism personified."

SELECTIONS

FLATS IN ANCIENT ROME.

Big Apartment Houses and Concrete Foundations Are Old.

"How an old Roman would laugh if he should suddenly pop in here and hear us talk about the apartment house as a product of modern civilization!" the Washington Post quotes a scholarly looking gentleman as saying.

"'Get up to date,' he would probably say. 'Why, we had apartment houses as early as 455 B. C., and big ones, too, some of them sixty and seventy feet high. Why don't you think of something new?'

"Those apartment houses were called insulae (islands), and a very appropriate name it was, considering that they housed a floating population. And the tenants had their troubles, too, just as they have today.

"There was the same hue and cry then about the height of the buildings, and in the time of Augustus there was a law restricting the height of dwelling houses to seventy feet, but this law was evaded with all the impertinence of the twentieth century. And the offenders were unpunished, for there were in Rome at the time of Augustus over 1,500,000—which was crowding the city some—and, of course, the natural tendency was to build up rather than out.

"As for skyscrapers—well, those old Romans knew something about them. The pediment of the Temple of the Sun rose about 260 feet above the Campus Martius, in which it was situated. The palace of Septimus Severus rose to a height of 225 feet above the arena of the Circus Maximus.

"Another thing that would make an old Roman howl with delight is the enthusiasm with which we call attention to the glorious future in store for concrete. We point out that houses of great excellence are to be built of it; that roads are to be paved with it; that it is to enter widely into manufacturing processes; that it has properties of endurance never before dreamed of in a building material.

"An old Roman would probably shout: 'The future of concrete? My dear fellow, don't you know that concrete has a glorious past and that it was the agent that made Rome an eternal city? Don't you know that, although all the rest of Rome decayed and crumbled away, its wonderful concrete structures remain today as substantial as when they were built?'

"The stories of the destruction of temple after temple of magnificent marbles, brilliant mosaics and massive foundations always concluded with, 'Only the concrete base remains.'

"Now, the Roman temples were set on high foundations of this cement, called podiums. The podium consisted of four stone walls, forming a box, into which concrete was poured even with the top. These podiums you will see now in Rome, but nothing but the ruins remains of the magnificent structures which were set on them."

The scholarly looking man settled his spectacles a little more comfortably on his nose.

"There is nothing which will so take the wind out of the sails of our boasted up to dateness as a little contemplation of ancient Rome," he said as he dodged into his own insulae.

The Lock Canal.

The time required for the construction of the lock canal at Panama is about eight years, or virtually one-half the time that the sea level would consume in its construction. The expense in round numbers, including the interest on the investment during the additional eight years that the sea level canal would take for building and the loss of profit during those eight years from the tolls which would be earned with a lock canal would make the difference in cost between $150,000,000 and $300,000,000. In other words, the time and cost of the sea level canal are just about double that of the lock canal.—From Secretary Taft's "The Panama Canal" in Century.

The Fall of a City.

The inhabitants of an industrial town seeking to abandon it in a body—a strange incident of modern times—is now to be witnessed in Spain. The town is that of Bejar, near Salamanca, whose people are using their utmost endeavors to have themselves distributed—men, women and children—among the South American republics. Bejar was once a flourishing town with a reputation for its cloth fabrics. Fifty years ago the population numbered 22,000, but the place has gradually declined and today has only 9,000.

The Drama In France.

The mayor of Toulon has had posted at the local municipal theater an order which reads, "Nobody will be allowed to hiss, to make audible remarks, to applaud ironically or to yawn noisily, to use bad language or to otherwise disturb the dignified calm necessary to the proper enjoyment of the drama." We trust that it is the translator and not the mayor who is responsible for the split infinitive.—Boston Globe.

Mexican Economy.

There is probably no more economically governed country in the world than Mexico. New York city spends more than a hundred million dollars, gold, a year for municipal government, while Mexico, a vast nation with several times as many people, an army and foreign relations, is governed for less than that amount in silver.—Modern Mexico.

TIRED AND SICK YET MUST WORK

"Man may work from sun to sun but woman's work is never done."

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo and often suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these women that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, comes as a blessing. When the spirits are depressed, the head and back aches, there are dragging-down pains, nervousness, sleeplessness, and reluctance to go anywhere, these are only symptoms which unless heeded, are soon followed by the worst forms of Female Complaints.

MRS. AUG. LYON

keeps the feminine organism in a strong and healthy condition. It cures Inflammation, Ulceration, displacements, and organic troubles. In preparing for child-birth and to carry women safely through the Change of Life it is most efficient.

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"For a long time I suffered from female troubles and had all kinds of aches and pains in the lower part of back and sides. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and following the advice which you gave me I feel like a new woman and I cannot praise your medicine too highly."

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of her vast volume of experience she probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and always helpful.

BLUEBEARD.

Two Different Stories as to Who Was the Original.

Like many of the other heroes of the nursery tales, Bluebeard once lived in the flesh and blood, if the old chronicler Holinshed, from whom Shakespeare got so much of his material, is to be believed. According to that writer, the original Bluebeard was Giles de Retz or de Raiz, marquis of Laval, who became marshal of France in 1429. He is described as an impious and debauched man, a devotee of the black art, who enticed young men and women to his castle and killed them in order to obtain innocent blood for his magical enchantments and who also murdered six or seven of his wives. His crimes were discovered, and he was burned at the stake in 1440 at Nantes.

According to an old French legend, however, the original Bluebeard lived in Brittany in the sixth century and was known as Count Conomer. After seven of his wives had disappeared he became enamored of Triphyna, the daughter of Count Guereck of Vannes. The wedding was celebrated at Vannes, and Conomer took his bride home.

Before a year had passed Triphyna noticed a change in her husband's manner, and, fearing the same fate that had met her predecessors, she fled from the castle, but was overtaken by Conomer, who struck off her head with a single blow. St. Gildas, by whom the unfortunate wife had been educated, happened to pass the spot soon after, and, seeing the body, he tenderly replaced the head and by prayer restored Triphyna to life. The story does not relate the end of Conomer.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

Effect of Boxing on the Mental and Moral Faculties.

Boxing is an exercise which is not only of the most marked benefit in a purely physical way, but it is of the utmost value as a means of training the mental and moral faculties. One of the most unfortunate whimsicalities of our very whimsical day is the prejudice against boxing as a sport and exercise. There is no sport in which there is provided such splendid exercise for body and mind and spirit as in boxing.

The physical influence of boxing is superb. Every muscle and organ is brought into active use. So far as mentality is concerned, the perception, imagination, judgment, discretion, self confidence, aggressiveness and will are all brought into active and rapid use. The boxer who fails in perceiving his opponent's intention, who misses in judging the power or reach of his blow, who is lacking in self confidence, will power or aggressiveness, who fails for one moment to remember all the weak points of the man against whom he is working—that boxer is likely to fail, to lose what we all value—that is, reputation, public confidence and income. Among the many sports and games which are of value in training the mind I place boxing as by all means the most valuable.—W. R. C. Latson, M. D., in Outing Magazine.

An Extraordinary Migration.

One of the greatest mysteries to scientists, one for which there seems to be no reasonable explanation, is that concerning the migration of the lemming, or Norway rat. Instead of taking place once a year, these migrations occur only once in eleven years. When the time comes for the exodus the little animals journey westward from Scandinavia, allowing nothing to stop their movements, which virtually amount to a headlong flight. They swim the lakes and rivers and climb the highest mountains in incalculable numbers, devastating the whole country through which they travel. Naturalists attribute the movement to some inherited memory of a flight to escape an expected cataclysm, but this seems somewhat far fetched.

An Old Roman Mint.

A completely equipped Roman mint was discovered in a cave in the neighborhood of Kayosovar, Hungary. Besides crucibles, which still contained bronze, there were three dies for the production of gold coins, dies of silver, bronze and iron ore and 300 coins. The investigation made showed that the workshop dated from the first century of the Christian era. A number of neatly worked earrings, bracelets and other objects of bronze, as well as tools, such as hammers and tongs, were also found.

The Yankee In German Eyes.

The Yankees are a joyous people. They are before everything optimists. Why should they not be? They dwell in a spacious land full of the treasures of the earth. They are not overladen with knowledge, but learn for practice, and during the greater part of the year a blue heaven stretches over them. For all those reasons the Yankees may well laugh. The Americans are, moreover, born humorists.

Her Cost.

Young Jobson is of an exceedingly statistical turn of mind. He got married lately, and at the railway station he had his wife weighed; then he took out a little hand book and made some calculations, muttering: "Wedding expenses, ——; railway expenses, ——; divide by ——. I say, my dear, you have cost me exactly fourpence halfpenny a pound."

It is well for one to know more than he says.—Plautus.

WHEN REST IS NEEDED.

Feeling of Uncertainty In Performance of Routine Work.

"When people fall into the habit of wondering whether they have done routine things it is high time for them to consider the advisability of a rest," said a physician. "There is no surer sign, to my mind, that the system is becoming overtaxed than this feeling of uncertainty.

"I was staying with a friend the other night—spending the night with him, in fact. He's a man whom I know pretty well, and I thought at dinner and through the evening, from a little nervousness in his conversation and manner, that things weren't all right with him, but I wasn't absolutely convinced till bedtime approached. We were sitting upstairs in his study, his family having retired, and he asked me to excuse him while he saw that the house was locked up. It was a still night, and I could follow his progress around the various rooms on the first floor. He seemed to me to be unnecessarily long, and, without being inquisitive, I really became interested to know whether he wasn't making the rounds twice. Finally I heard him go into the parlor, a room I was sure he had visited at least once before. When he came upstairs I asked laughingly how many times he had seen that each window was fastened. But he wasn't in a laughing mood at all.

"'It's a funny thing, old man,' he said, 'but I've been fool enough to look at each window two or three times. Do you know, it would strike me after I had left a room that perhaps I hadn't put the catch properly on one of the windows there, and back I'd have to go to make sure. Being in there, I'd examine the other windows again. It's been that way for half a dozen nights. Somehow doing these things doesn't seem to make the impression on me that one would expect. This lack of sureness isn't confined to locking windows, either. I find myself at the office wondering whether I have given such and such instructions—instructions that are so much a part of my daily work that I suppose I give them mechanically and then forget them. Nine times out of ten I find everything is all right, but I'm not quite happy till I do. I guess I must be getting old maidish in my old age.'

"It was my turn to be serious then. I explained to him that his forgetfulness all came from being overtired. From habit he worked like an automaton, doing this, that and the other thing in his business or home life, but a great number of his actions were without the cognizance of the brain. He needed rest and if he did not take it he would break down.

"I got him away from cares for a bit, and the next time I saw him he laughed as heartily over the incident of the much locked windows as I pretended to. He doesn't know it, but he had a narrow escape. I'm telling this story that it may serve as a warning in an overstrenuous age.'

Whistler and Color.

Although Whistler did not care for music, he made use of his technical knowledge for themes. "Symphony In Gray and Green," "Variations In Blue and Green," "Nocturne: Opal and Silver," "Arrangement In Black and Brown," are examples of this particular trait. His most ambitious desire was to paint a grand concerto-like picture with the title "Full Palette," "just as in music," he explained, "when they employ all the instruments they make it 'Full Band.' If I can find the right kind of thing, I will produce a harmony in color corresponding to Beethoven's harmonies in sound."—Otto H. Bacher in Century.

A Big Saving.

"Listen!" said the man of middle age.

He was bending over the palmist, whispering excitedly in her ear.

"Listen!" he said again. "My wife is coming to you this afternoon to have her fortune told, and if you want to make some money on the side"—

He laid a bank note on the stuffed owl's head.

—"tell her on no account to buy a motor car, because you read in her palm that she is doomed to be killed in an automobile accident."

HOW WARRIORS DIED.

Grant, who time and again stood untouched amid a hail of bullets, finally died of cancer.

William the Silent survived numerous conflicts and campaigns, only to be assassinated after he was victorious.

Napoleon, apparently bullet proof and believed by his followers to bear a charmed life, died almost alone of a cancer.

Cortes, the conqueror of Mexico, after half a lifetime of desperate fighting, died in Spain of typhoid fever, neglected and despised by those whom he had benefited.

Washington survived the perils of the wilderness, the dangers of Indian warfare, all the bullets and balls of a score of Revolutionary battles and the hardships of a seven years' campaign to be bled to death by his doctors.

Lord Clive, the English conqueror of India, a bold, active warrior, exposed to death in scores of desperate battles and by several plots, fell a victim after his return to England to the opium habit and committed suicide.

Sorrows of an Artist.

A first class journeyman tailor who is both sensitive and ambitious must have more than his share of sadness and heartache. The completeness with which he is ignored by those who are made happy by his workmanship cannot fail to cause him mental agony. The bosses know him and appreciate his work, and so do his fellow craftsmen, but that is all. Beyond them he is unknown, unthought of. His work goes out into the world to delight and to be admired, but it brings to him neither fame nor praise. He is no more thought of or considered by those who wear with pride a garment he made than the sheep is from whose back the wool was sheared that went to its making.—American Tailor and Cutter.

Figs and Dates.

It is a good plan to wash figs and dates before giving them to children, or, for that matter, to any one. Their sweetness attracts insects, and their stickiness makes them a perfect home for dust and its undesirable germs. Yet most people seem never to think of this at all. Washing will not impair the flavor. On the contrary, it makes them more agreeable to the sight and touch as well as to the taste.

Versatile.

"It was as much as I could do to keep from laughing when Miss Guscher remarked that her fiance was 'so versatile.'"

"Meaning Dumley? Well, he is rather versatile."

"Nonsense! He's a regular idiot."

"Yes, but he's so many different kinds of an idiot."

Toughening Up.

They told the youngster to soak his feet in a tub of salt water if he wanted to toughen them. He soaked his hands too. "It's pretty near time for me to get a licking," he explained. "Tomorrow I'm going to sit in it."—New York Sun.

How He Remembered.

Professor Huxley had a funny way of remembering certain anatomical details of the human heart. On the left side of the heart there is a valve with two flaps resembling a bishop's miter and known as the mitral valve. The corresponding valve on the right side has three flaps. The only means by which he could remember their respective positions, said Huxley, with his skeptic's humor, was by the reflection that a bishop could never be in the right.

From Frying Pan to Fire.

"Life is full of contrariness and nonpayment of alimony," complained the woman as she took her seat reluctantly at her desk on the morning after the dance. "When I was married and had more leisure than anything else the days were long and deadly, but now that I am free and life might be one endless dream of gayety I have to work."

RHEUMATISM Yields to Zam-Buk

Not only is Zam-Buk unequalled as a healer of skin injuries and diseases, but it is an excellent embrocation, and speedy reliever of rheumatism, sciatica, stiffness sprains, etc. Its penetrating powers are great and it searches to the very seat of the disease. In many cases it has been found to relieve muscular rheumatism when all else failed. To farmers and out-door workers generally who are subject to cold and damp, and contract rheumatism so frequently, Zam-Buk is invaluable. A few minutes' trouble spent in briskly rubbing it in on an aching limb or muscle is rewarded by a warm glow in the member and relief from pain. Write for free sample box and prove its merit at our expense. Send 1 cent stamp for postage.

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES

Zam-Buk is a herbal balm and embrocation, a skin healer, an antiseptic dressing and a searching liniment, all combined! Rubbed well into parts affected it is a sure cure for rheumatism, sciatica, stiffness, sprains. Applied as a balm it cures eczema, abscesses, ringworm, scalp sores, burns, bruises, sore feet, chafing sores, chapped hands, etc. It stops bleeding, eases the itching and smarting of piles, and in a hundred ways is the handiest and best household balm. All druggists sell at 50 cents a box, or direct from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. (6 boxes for $2.50.)

A LADY'S GRATEFUL TESTIMONY

From East and West of this vast continent evidence is daily forthcoming of the value of Zam-Buk as a cure for rheumatism and similar trouble. Mrs. John Sidstone, of Swan Valley, Man., says:—"I have proved Zam-Buk to be all that it is represented. I tried it for rheumatism and its effects were so fine that I would not now like to be without it. You can publish this fact in the interests of other sufferers if you care. Enclosed you will find order for a further supply of Zam-Buk."

FARM AND FIRESIDE

Useful Hints Which Will be Appreciated by the Progressive Farmer and His Housekeeper.

Sheep Are Money Makers.

One of the greatest advantages of a flock of sheep on the farm is the economic way in which they can be carried. It has been established that it costs about a cent a pound less to produce mutton or lamb than it does to produce either beef or pork, and you can easily see that there is a great advantage there to any man who has the inclination to start breeding a flock of sheep, and that is largely brought about in the reduction of the labor.

It is not necessary to have an expensive outfit in order to start in the sheep business; very inferior protection from the weather is all that is required. In fact, except for a very short period of the year, I believe sheep will do better for the owner if they are not protected from the weather at all.

The greatest success can be had in sheep raising if they are left almost entirely out in the air, even in the fitting of sheep for show purposes.

One of the advantages of sheep raising is the small expenditure that is necessary to provide the building to take care of the sheep. Then the different kinds of forage that a sheep will devour and thrive on is another advantage; and it is a very considerable one. A great many farmers say that one of their objections to sheep was that they are very hard on pasture.

You can produce more sheep, more pounds of sheep to the acre, by 25 to 35 per cent., than you can of any other class of stock; that is, when they are living on the pasture alone. Lots of farmers will have all the cattle and horses on the pasture that the pasture is able to carry, and then they will put on a flock of 25 or 35 ewes and lambs, and, of course, those sheep are going to eat close.

Sheep naturally do bite close, and the cattle will have the pasture in such a condition that the sheep are compelled to bite close, and then, of course, you will have a short pasture. But if you will take twenty acres, and put cattle on ten acres of it, and stock the other ten acres with sheep, and stock both fields up to their full limit, you will find that you can carry from 25 to 35 per cent. more live weight of sheep on the ten acres than you will cattle.

Another advantage is that they will eat down the weeds that are a nuisance to this country; although they do not destroy the weeds entirely they prevent them from going to seed. You can never see any burdocks growing in a field where there is a flock of sheep, and other weeds are destroyed, and that is a considerable advantage in favor of the sheep.

Then the sheep are valuable in manuring the field, which will not be done so thoroughly by any other class of stock. Then the sheep raiser has an advantage; that any person who has an inclination to go on the farm and raise his family on the farm and who does not want to be burdened with the more laborious part of the farm work, can take a flock of sheep and can handle them without incurring a very large amount of labor, and yet they can produce a pound of mutton for a cent a pound less than it would cost to produce beef or pork, and it can be done without the labor that is so necessary in the production of beef and pork.

Then we get two crops from the sheep during the year; one of wool, and one of mutton, and that is something that we do not get from any other variety of stock. And when we take into consideration the price of wool at the present time, although it is not very high, yet it is double the amount it was a short time ago, and it is possible to keep a flock of sheep for the whole year for the value of the wool; and then we have the crop of lambs, that may be large or small according to the care and attention that is given to the sheep, and we have that clear profit; and by care and attention the number of lambs raised can be brought up to 175 per cent. of the ewes.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS.

Cut Ice.

Dairymen will find it to their interest to store a stock of ice at this season if they cannot buy a supply from some neighboring ice dealer at reasonable rates. The ice tools needed for cutting and storing it are not expensive, and a little practice will make any handy man expert in using them.

Sow Lettuce and Radishes.

The market gardener at this season is occupied with the care of his greenhouses and hot-beds, hauling manure for spring planting, and marketing the products of his glass structures and the roots and other field products stored since last season. Lettuce seed sown now will come to market in April, radishes in March

Root Crops for Cows.

Roots can form to advantage a part of many rations, particularly where silage is not available. They contain too much water to form the entire ration. Potatoes contain the largest amount of digestible matter, but are not readily eaten unless cooked. Mangels are the heaviest yielders, but contain so large a percentage of water that they are rather expensive to handle. Sugar beets contain much less water, but are more difficult to grow, and do not produce so heavy a yield. Artichokes often make a profitable hog feed, where the hogs are permitted to do the harvesting.

Formalin for Scours.

On account of the general importance and prevalence of scours among calves fed on skimmed milk, L. A. Klein, of the South Carolina Experiment Station tested the value of formalin added to the milk before feeding to the calves. In these experiments twelve calves were treated by adding formalin to the milk at the rate of one part to four thousand. Fifteen calves recovered without any further treatment — seven on the second day, three on the third and one on the ninth. In one case it was found necessary to administer castor oil, creolin and subnitrate of bismuth before a complete recovery was brought about. In three cases of scours in calves running at pasture and receiving grain at the same time the formalin treatment did not prove effective.

Good Value in Leaves.

The fertilizing value of various kinds of leaves has been worked out by a French authority, who finds them very rich in nitrogen and of excellent value as fertilizer, apart from the vegetable mould which they contain, which largely increases the bulk and absorbing power of manures in which they are mixed. According to this writer, the following are the contents of nitrogen in some of the leaves after they have fallen in autumn: Pear, 1.53 per cent., oak, 1.19; poplar, .75; beech, .78; locust, .72; elm, .73; grape, .35. The nitrogen he finds in one hundred pounds of average manure, only as much nitrogen as forty-four pounds of beech, 83 pounds of locust, 82 pounds of elm and 174 pounds of grape leaves.

AGRICULTURAL.

These figures strengthen the impression prevailing among those who use leaves freely in the stable that the value and bulk of the manure are greatly increased by the practice. It is not so commonly known, however, that some varieties of leaves are very much richer in nitrogen than others. Thus the leaves of pear and apple contain more than twice as much nitrogen as leaves of many common shade trees, the fact suggesting the importance of holding the fall of leaves in orchards by using a cover crop.

Luck has something to do with successful farming, but those who depend upon it never have much of it.

Keep accounts. If you can't keep them well, keep them as well as you can. They will stir your brains and save your purse.

Transportation eats up profits. The local market pays net to the grower. The people of your section wish to buy any farm product that you can raise if only you can find each other out. Drum up trade.

Steady farming is the most profitable. It is unwise to change the leading crop every year or two. The shoemaker does not turn out shoes one year and umbrellas the next. He sticks to his last, let prices for shoes be low or high.

The happy farmer is not the one who owns a big farm with a mortgage. He expects to be happy some time, but he isn't now. The fellow with only a small farm doesn't expect to get rich, but he is comfortably happy now. Which is the wiser man?

Will it pay the farmer to compete with the mechanic — the plumber, the blacksmith, the carpenter and other citizens — in their own fields? Sometimes it may. To be sure, the farmer knows his own trade best, and will earn more as a good farmer than as a Jack-of-all-trades. He must not neglect his potato field that would yield him two or three hundred bushels per acre in order to save two dollars per day for a painter or a barn shingler; but after the crops are gathered and the hired man is helping take care of the stock and doing the winter teaming, then, if the farmer can do a neat, quick job in putting the buildings and machines in repair, he will find the change agreeable, and will save many a hard-earned dollar.

Rainy, but warm winter days afford a seasonable chance to overhaul the tools, machines and wagons. A shed open at the sides is a good place for such work. Surprisingly good jobs of repairing can be done by any farmer who has the tools and a stock of patience. Unless there is plenty of material on hand much time will be wasted sending to a hardware store for supplies at every fresh undertaking. Besides the common farm tools for repairing have a good supply of bolts assorted from one-fourth to one-half inches and of various lengths. For lack of good bolts farmers often do a bungling job with screws and nails. The supply of screws and nails, however, should be liberal. Nothing is handier than a few pounds of assorted wire nails. A lot of rings, hooks and automatic chain links will prove useful in repairing whiffletrees and the rest of the plowing outfit.

Farmer Sloven's residence is a sight to make a tidy farmer groan at heart. It used to be a neat, trim-looking place, but it has been running down for years. Four or five of the blinds on the side and front are hanging by one hinge, giving a queer, out-at-the-elbow look to the house. Half of one blind has fallen off altogether, and lies under the window against the side of the house. The front porch sags badly in the middle, and one of its supports, which was broken, has been replaced with another of different size and set at a different angle. Just now one of Sloven's pigs is the sole occupant of the porch, but being a dirty, scrubby, long-nosed porker, he is no ornament. There was once a fence around the house lot, but the rails and pickets are missing to some extent, and one side has disappeared altogether, so that the pigs, cows and hens have their own sweet will. The hens, however, do not trespass so much as they would if there were not a large compost heap close to the side door of the house, where they scratch and cackle at pleasure. The heap is on the edge of a little duck pond and drains into it, but the ducks can stand it if Sloven can. Behind the house is a part of an old wagon and an uncovered stack of hay, and a wheelbarrow with one sideboard. The barn is in better repair than the house, but the side door hangs by one corner and a lot of old fence rails stand up against the front end. As we leave Sloven's residence, the last thing seen is the top of his chimney, with a deep notch in it, where some of the bricks have blown out, and, finally the dead branches which have been left in the top of his tall shade trees.

PLANETARY VITALITY.

Earthquakes Can Take Place Only on Living Globes.

A moon quake is now unthinkable, because the moon is as dead as a doornail. Our satellite is "ever foreshadowing our own ultimate doom, like the mummy at Egyptian banquets," but in the meantime, if the Edinburgh Review has correctly conceived the teachings of seismology, the inhabitants of earth may console themselves for the havoc wrought through earthquakes by reflecting that they demonstrate the vitality of our planet. In that distant past when the moon actually quaked there may—some scientists declare there must—have been forms of animation on its surface. "Though the moon, by reason of its smaller size, was bound to lose its atmosphere, it must have taken millions of years to do so, and there may have been time for the cycle of life, from the primeval germ up to sentient beings and down again to the hardiest lingering plant cells, to run its full circle." The writer in the Edinburgh Review continues to develop this line of thought:

"Earthquakes are a sign of planetary vitality. They would seem to be characteristic of the terrestrial phase of development. Effete globes like the moon can scarcely be subject to the stress to which they are due, nor can they be very suitably constituted for the propagation of elastic waves. Inchoate worlds, such as Jupiter and Saturn, are still less likely to be the scenes of reverberating concussions. Their materials have not yet acquired the necessary cohesion. They are pasty or fluid, if not partially vaporous. On the earth the seismic epoch presumably opened when, exterior solidification having commenced, the geological ages began to run. It will last so long as peaks crumble and rivers carry sediment, so long as the areal distribution of loads fluctuates and strains evoke forces adequate for their catastrophic relief.

"Our globe is by its elasticity kept habitable. The separation of sea from dry land is thus and not otherwise maintained. The alternations of elevation and subsidence manifest the continual activity of this reserve of energy. The dimensions of the globe we inhabit depend upon the balance of pressure and expansiveness. Relaxation or enhancement of either instantly occasions a bending inward or an arching outward of the crust. Just by these sensitive reactions the planet itself shows itself to be alive, and seismic thrillings are the breaths it draws."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Don't permit pretended friends to exaggerate your sorrows.

Any man is unreliable when talking about his side of the case.

Most people expect a dollar's worth of thanks for a fifty cent present.

Too many people think it isn't wrong to lie about a man who lives a hundred miles away.

After a man has earned your business don't give it to the other fellow just to be contrary.

The average woman keeps a cook just long enough for the cook to peer into all the closets and get good looks at the family skeletons.

Venison Once Cheaper Than Pork.

Time was, along in the early forties and the early fifties of the last century, that from the wilds of Morgan and Brown counties hunters would bring venison to market and sell it much lower than pork was sold in that day, pork being preferred by the Hoosier then to the red deer of the woods. It was in that time that an entire wild turkey, full grown, would sell at a price far below the present appraisement of a scrawny spring chicken, and a dozen quail could be bought for less money than it now takes to buy a dozen links of sausage—neither was the quail required to masquerade as "short billed snipe."

Loving Kindness.

My dog tried to bite me. I liked the dog, so I kicked him lovingly in the jaw. He understood that argument.

My grocer tried to cheat me. I liked the grocer. I did not kick him in the jaw, but I told him lovingly that I would not deal with him again. He understood that argument.

My baby tried to slap me. I liked the baby, but I did not kick her in the jaw or even cease to play with her. I kissed her lovingly on her cheek. She understood that argument.—Independent.

A Test For Eyesight.

An interesting test for eyesight may be had by observing Ursa Major—the Great Bear—on a clear starlit night. Not every one is aware that Mizar, the second star in the constellation, is a double star. To observe this doublet demands good vision. Some starry night look up to the sky and see if you can discern it. If you do see it, you can rest content in the knowledge that your eyesight is not defective.

Come Join Me
In This Honest Way
To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the reverest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity —man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something. when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in, all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares,— $1.000.000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once, if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better; I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

WILLIAM H. WILSON, Pres.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

Copyright 1903 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

MEN'S AND BOYS' SUITS

We have many broken lines of Suits that will be sold at a discount equally as great as that placed on our Overcoats.

Considering all of these centres that are concerned in vision, they occupy farmers often do a bungling joo ter area of the entire brain. The natural position of the eyes in a state of perfect rest is distant vision, as the eye approaches closer and closer, to an observed object, it is necessary to gradually increase its focus, which is done by work or strain in the gray matter cells in the 3rd ventrical. In approaching an object it is also necessary for the eyes to converge towards each other, that both may be fixed on the object simultaneously.

In view of the location of these nerve centres at the base of the brain in continuous close work great brain strain is the result. Looking off in the distance out of doors rests the brain and nerve centres, and this is the effect of the Repression Lenses we use, they have the same effect on the brain and nerve centres as looking off into the distance has, so

WARDEN'S SUPPER WAS AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.

TASTEFUL SPREAD AND BRIGHT SPEECHES MARKED THE OCCASION — MANY PROMINENT MEN PRESENT.

Last evening Warden Kirk entertained the members of the County Council and a number of friends to a banquet at the Windsor Hotel. Upwards of sixty were present, including prominent citizens of Belleville and the County. The spread provided by mine host Lee Ketcheson was all that could have been desired, and it is needless to say that ample justice was done to it. The banqueting hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

THOSE PRESENT.

Mr. W. R. Aylsworth, clerk of the County, occupied the chair, and Mr. T. A. Macfarlane, ex-Warden of the County, the vice chair. His Honor the Warden sat at the right of the chairman, and near him were seated Judge Fraleck, Mayor Sulman, Ald. Green, ex-Mayors Graham and Johnson. Amongst others present were Messrs. S. Russell, ex-M.P., County Registrar; J. K. McCargar, J. Elliott Walter Alford, J. M. Farley, P. J. M. Anderson, County Attorney; A. S. White, Clem Ketcheson, Geo. Nicolson, and Dr. Simmons, of Frankford. Regrets from many, who were unable to attend were read.

After due justice had been done to the good things provided, the following toast list was carried out, the various speakers doing ample justice to the subjects assigned them:

THE TOAST LIST.

"The King" — The National Anthem by the company.

"Parliaments of Canada" — This toast was most appropriately responded to by Messrs. J. W. Johnson, S. Russell, ex-M.P.P., and Dr. Harper. The first speaker, Mr. Johnson, referred to the Parliaments of Canada as composed of able men who were a credit to the country. He referred to the defence which Canada enjoyed by being a part of the Motherland, and especially so in regard to the navy. For this protection Canada did not pay one cent, and this he did not think was right. He thought that Canada should assist in keeping up this branch of protection.

"Financial Institutions" — Mr. J. Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank, was the first speaker to this toast, and after offering his congratulations to the Warden, referred to the banking institutions of this country and the prosperous condition in which they were at present. He also referred to the prosperity which the country at present was enjoying.

"The Learned Professions" —Judge Fraleck and Dr. Bowlby responded to this toast and did so in a manner that left nothing to be desired. His Honor the Judge grew eloquent in speaking of Canada and its possibilities.

"Dairy Industry" —Ex-Mayor Graham was the first speaker and referred to the time when the first cheese factory was built in this section of the county. His late father was the promoter of that factory. What a revolution had taken place since 40 years ago, when the first cheese factory was built. This was an age of improvement and in this respect the cheese industry was improving and the cheese manufactured in this section was amongst the best made in Canada. There was still room for more cheese to be made. He was proud to be classed as a farmer, and hoped he would always be in active touch with the tillers of the soil.

Mr. J. K. McCargar also responded in an appropriate manner to the toast.

"Municipal Institutions" — Messrs. J. M. Farley, D. Hanley and W. W. Collins upheld in an admirable way this toast.

"Educational Institutions" —Messrs. J. W. MacIntosh and J. Johnston, school inspectors of the County, and Dr. Simmons replied.

"Agricultural Pursuits" — Responded to by Messrs. G. Nicolson and H. Kells.

"Our Mercantile Interests" — Responded to by Mr. J. Dryden.

"City of Belleville" — Mayor Sulman and City Clerk Mikel responded to this toast. His Worship referred to the fact that the city was progressing, and the indications were that it would in the future continue to prosper. He spoke of the pleasant relations which had always existed between the County and City Councils, and hoped it would always be so. The County, as well as the city, we were all proud of.

"The Ladies" — Messrs. Clem Ketcheson, J. Best and C. S. Rollins were called upon and spoke very appropriately on behalf of the ladies.

"The Press" — Responded to by the representatives present.

"Host and Hostess" — Mr. Macfarlane spoke to this toast, returning thanks on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ketcheson.

Mr. J. W. Johnson proposed the toast of "The Warden," which was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Kirk, in replying, briefly said that he deeply appreciated all the nice things that had been said about him. He hoped all had thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and if they had he was pleased. He thanked his confreres in the Council for having elected him to the proud position of Warden of the County.

This concluded the speech-making, and the proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

George P. Graham Will Lead the Grits

OPPOSITION IN ONTARIO LEGISLATURE CHOSE A SUCCESSOR TO HON. GEO. W. ROSS THIS MORNING.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—(Special)— At a caucus of the Liberal members of the Legislature, this morning, Mr. George P. Graham, M. P. P. for Brockville, was elected leader of the Opposition during the present session.

Messrs. MacKay, Harcourt and Preston all retired in favor of Mr. Graham, who was made the unanimous choice of the party.

With Mr. Phillips As Local Manager

UNITED EMPIRE BANK WILL SHORTLY OPEN A BRANCH IN THIS CITY.

Mr. J. P. C. Phillips has resigned his connection with the Sun & Hastings Savings and Loan Company, having been appointed local manager of the United Empire Bank of Canada, which will open a branch in Belleville as soon as the fitting up of an office is completed. From Mr. Phillips' long experience in financial institutions, together with his straightforward and honorable dealings in all business transactions committed to his charge, citizens of Belleville will conclude that the bank has every reason to feel satisfied they have made a judicious choice in giving him the management of their branch here. The capital of the bank is $5,000,000. Mr. Geo. P. Reid, for 10 years general manager of one of the oldest banks in Canada, is the general manager. They have an office in London, England, under an English Board of Directors — the Canadian directors are all men of undoubted financial standing.

ENVELOPES — Bond, Laid, Wove or Manilla, sizes 7 and 8, printed with your business address, from $1.25 to $3.00 per 1000. A large range of business and calling cards—ladies' and gentlemen's — all prices. Menu Cards, Toast Lists, Invitations, Programmes and all kinds of printing at most reasonable rates, at The Intelligencer Job Department.

Mr. Morgan Installed Foresters' Officers

AGREEABLE EVENING AFTERWARDS SPENT BY THE BRETHREN AND THEIR GUESTS.

The newly-elected officers of the local lodge, I.O.F., were last evening installed by Bro. J. C. Morgan, of Foresters' Island, Grand Organizer. In addition to the officers many brethren were present.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremony a supper was partaken of in the ante room, adjoining the lodge room. This gathering was presided over by Bro. S. S. Lazier. The usual loyal and other toasts were proposed and responded to. During the evening the Grand Organizer gave an interesting address in reference to the order, which was much appreciated by all present.

Died In Ameliasburg.

Mr. S. Oscar Post, who resided in the Township of Ameliasburg, near the Village of Rednersville, died yesterday afternoon as the result of an attack of typhoid fever. Deceased, who was 41 years of age, had lived all his life in the township, and was well and favorably known. He was a member of the Canadian Order of Oddfellows and in religion was a Methodist. A widow and a family of four children survive.

LAW TO GOVERN RAILWAYS.

May Be One of the Fruits of the Alberta Legislature.

Edmonton, Jan. 25.—The Alberta Legislature opened yesterday.

The speech from the throne, referring to the conference of Premiers at Ottawa, said it was gratifying to observe that a fair basis of division as between the provinces and the Dominion had been arrived at.

Increased activity in railway construction made it imperative that provisions be made for a uniform law governing railways within the province. A measure providing for a complete system of administration of insolvent estates, upon the most approved lines, will be submitted, as will also an act respecting the custody of insane persons and the disposition of their property, including a scheme for the support of the insane out of their property where possible. A bill for the protection of game and game birds, and provisions for the further encouragement of secondary education are indicated; also a measure for the taxation of lands in the province outside of original school districts, for the support of education.

Fruit Men's Protest.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Objection was urged to the action of the directors of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association by a deputation yesterday before the Minister of Agriculture, insomuch as the association undertook to discuss with the United States growers a measure of reciprocity as regards fruit. The delegation claimed that the association had no authority to act in the matter. The Minister promised to look into the matter.

Blown to Pieces.

Foxwarren, Man., Pan. 25.—John Egan, foreman in the camp of Treat and Johnson, contractors on Grand Trunk Pacific construction 20 miles from this place, was blown to pieces in a dynamite explosion Wednesday night. Details are lacking, but it is supposed it was accidental.

Battleship Dominion a Hulk.

London, Jan. 25.—The Chronicle is informed that the battleship Dominion's backbone is broken, the engines thrown out of alignment and that the utmost that can be done is at patch her up for harbor service.

Senator Alger Dies Suddenly.

Washington, Jan. 25.—United States Senator Russell A. Alger of Michigan, died suddenly at his home here at 8.45 o'clock yesterday morning. There were practically no premonitory symptoms that the end was near. Mr. Alger had suffered for years from chronic vulvular disease of the heart. The Senate adjourned at 12.17 p.m. out of respect to the memory of Senator Alger. Senator Alger is survived by his widow and five children. The body will be taken to Detroit for burial.

Phone Service Dislocated.

London, Jan. 25.—The entire telephone service of London was put out of business yesterday by an electric power line becoming crossed with a long-distance line, and burning out the switchboard of the phone company. The damage sustained by the latter will be heavy, as business may not be resumed for a week, and a new switchboard will have to be secured.

Preparing a Mohawk Bible.

Detroit, Jan. 25.—Moses S. Martin, an 80-year-old Mohawk Indian from the Brant reservation, near Brantford, Ont., is spending the winter here, working upon a translation of the New Testament into the language of the Mohawk and Six Nation Indians, upon which he has been engaged over two years. When completed, it will be the only Mohawk Bible in existence.

Mr. Gault Elected.

McINTOSH BROS.

SLAIN BY ALLEGED SON

"Universal Provider" of London, Eng., Murdered in His Store.

William Whitely, Founder of the First Big Department Store in the Metropolis, Shot By Young Man, and Dropped Dead Where He Stood —Murderer Attempts Suicide—No Cause Known For the Crime.

London, Eng., Jan. 25.—William Whitely, founder of the first big department store in London, was shot and killed yesterday by a young man, who afterwards attempted to commit suicide.

Mr. Whitely was about to leave his store, when his assailant rushed up to him and fired several shots. The merchant fell dead where he stood. The assassin then emptied the revolver into his own body, inflicting what are believed to be mortal wounds.

The store was crowded with shoppers, and a seim-panic followed. A force of police was quickly on the scene, the public were ejected from the building and the doors were closed.

No reason for the act has been learned.

It appears that the murderer had been conversing with Mr. Whitely, and the latter was overheard to say as he walked away: "If you do not go, I shall call the police."

Mr. Whitely's murderer cannot recover. He gave the name of Cecil Whitely, and said he was a son of the murdered man. Relatives of the late Mr. Whitely who have seen the assassin say that they do not recognize him.

Persons who overheard Mr. Whitely and his visitor conversing declare that there was no quarrel.

The following pencilled statement was found on Mr. Whitely's assailant:

"To whom it may concern,—William Whitely is my father. This twofold tragedy is due to his refusal of a request which is perfectly reasonable. —R.I.P."

There was only a small sum of money in the man's pockets and other indications that he had come to the end of his resources.

William Whitely, from a small beginning, built up the largest departmental store in England, and this fact gave him the designation of "Universal Provider." He was 76 years old.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

Receives Announcement Quietly—Women Spectators Get Hysterical.

Hopewell Cape, N. B., Jan. 25.—For the murder of Miss Mary McAuley, cousin of Father McAuley, at New Ireland last August, Thomas F. Collins yesterday was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged Thursday, April 25. He received the sentence without any show of emotion.

Many of the women among the spectators became hysterical.

Collins, on the way to his cell, laughed and chatted with the constables in charge. Application was made for a reserve case.

Another McGill True Bill.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Another "true" bill was brought down by the grand jury against McGill, yesterday, that he did in the years 1899, 1900-1-2-3-4-5-6 steal $1,150,000 from the Ontario Bank.

Edmund Bridant, husband of the deceased woman, who was acquitted on the charge of murdering his wife, will be put on trial for furnishing drugs, etc., to his wife.

O. W. Rinker was sent to the Central for 15 months. He was arraigned on the charge of forging the name of H. Hyde to a promissory note for $125 and with uttering the same. The jury said not guilty on the first count and guilty on the second.

Seven Days For Farmer.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—W. A. Cook, the Richview farmer, who made a weigh ticket for a load of hay read 800 pounds too much, was sent to jail for a week.

Heavy Punishment.

Bryson, Que., Jan. 25.—Joseph Bertrand of Des Joachims has been fined $120 and costs and had his liquor license cancelled for selling liquor to a minor.

Five Thaw Jurors Now.

New York, Jan. 25.—After more than four hours of yesterday's morning and afternoon sessions of the court had been spent in vain efforts to obtain a single juror for the trial of Harry K. Thaw, for having killed Stanford White, there was a sudden change and within the last three-quarters of an hour three new jurors were accepted and sworn in. Thus when court adjourned for the day five jurors had been accepted.

Train Over River Bank.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Three trainmen were killed and one so seriously injured that he will die as the result of a freight train running over an embankment Wednesday night, at Longdale, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Killed In a Snowstorm.

Hagersville, Jan. 25.—Two sectionmen, John Fyle and Hiram Hendershot, were run over and killed yesterday near Dufferin by No. 3 eastbound express on the M.C.R. There was a blinding snowstorm at the time.

Trouble In G. T. R. Shops.

Montreal, Jan. 25.—Next month there is likely to be trouble in the Grand Trunk shops over the dismissal of men who are organizing a union there. A general strike may come early in February.

Mr. Bryce's Arrival.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The British embassy is informed that James Bryce, the newly-appointed British Ambassador to the United States, will arrive about Feb. 13.

Model Insurance Law.

Washington, Jan. 25.—President Roosevelt yesterday sent to Congress a message favoring a model insurance law in the District of Columbia.

A QUEER SITUATION.

Dominion Can Make Laws to Suppress Combines But Cannot Punish—The Inspection Act.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—The House spent two hours on the tariff last night and passed a number of items, having covered 200 of the total of 711, except a few reserved for future consideration.

An interesting discussion sprang up respecting the import duty on paper, and the advisability of an export duty on pulp. Mr. Fielding took great credit for suppressing the paper combine some years ago by removing the duty.

"Why were not the men who combined, the conspirators, proceeded against under the criminal code?" was asked by Messrs. Foster, Fowler and Sproule.

"That is the same question we had up the other night," said the Minister. "How often is it necessary for us to tell the House that this Government cannot enforce any criminal statute?"

Mr. Perley (Conservative, Quebec,) observed that it seemed peculiar that while a private citizen could cause an arrest, that the Government of this nation could not do so.

In committee the House took up Mr. Fisher's bill for the inspection of canned meat and fruit. There was a long discussion, in which the conservative members declared the bill was undigested legislation likely to prove unnecessary and costly to the country, but it passed through committee and stands for third reading.

Mr. Macdonell (South Toronto) introduced a bill to amend the copyright act, to abolish the lengthy formula now required, and to substitute the simple phrase "Copyrighted in Canada" and the name of the artist.

Mr. Fisher stated that the Government had decided to construct a permanent Marconi station on the mainland to insure transmission of messages to Prince Edward Island at any time when the cable is out of order.

CHIEF JUSTICE RESIGNS.

Sir Alexander Lacoste Will Become Consulting Solicitor For C. P. R.

Montreal, Jan. 25.—Six Alexander Lacoste, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals, has resigned, and will become consulting solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It is said that Justice Taschereau, who went to Ottawa yesterday, will to-day be chosen to replace Sir Alexander at the head of the Court of Appeals.

To-day, also, at the meeting of the Cabinet in Ottawa, Jaques Bruneau, M. P. for Three Rivers, will be appointed Solicitor-General.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A PLEASANT, SIMPLE, BUT SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR IT.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs, and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and Fruit Acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but to-day I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation, as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of Stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

JAMAICA CONDITIONS

700 Persons Were Killed and There Are 400 in Hospitals.

Governor Swettenham Also Reports That 3,000 People In Kingston Are Homeless—Admiral Davis Reports That He Was Invited to Land by Colonial Secretary and Police Inspector to Overawe Prison Mutiny.

London, Jan. 25.—The Colonial Office has received several telegrams from Sir Alexander Swettenham, the Governor of Jamaica, explaining the incident with Rear-Admiral Davis, but not one is of such a character that the authorities are prepared to make it public.

The Foreign Office says it has had no further communication from Washington, and that with the receipt of President Roosevelt's telegram, through Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, the international side of the question is settled. At the same time it is possible that when Governor Swettenham's explanation is received in full there will be further communication with the Government of the United States. The Associated Press gained the general impression at the Government offices yesterday that Governor Swettenham's career is at an end.

500 Bodies Buried.

Last evening the Colonial Office gave out two reports received from the governor on conditions in Jamaica.

Sir Alexander Swettenham says that up to date 500 bodies have been buried, besides a number of remains that could not be distinguished nor identified. The governor estimates that 200 bodies are still buried in the ruins, and that it probably will take 12 months to remove all the debris.

The main thoroughfares of Kingston have been cleared, the street car lines are in operation, and the people to-day are living in outhouses and the less damaged buildings. There are 3,000 homeless persons in temporary shelters erected in the gardens, on the public squares and at the racecourse. The number of homeless ones is being decreased, as work is plentiful, and many persons have been given free passage out of the city. There are still 400 patients in the hospitals, and many of the injured are being treated in their homes by relatives and friends.

Quakes Continue.

Slight earthshocks continue, but the weather remains fine.

Foreign Secretary Grey yesterday sent the following reply to Mr. Bacon through Esme Howard, the charge d'affaires of the British embassy at Washington:

"Please express to the Assistant Secretary of State my thanks for his message. The friendly attitude of the President and the American Government are warmly appreciated by His Majesty's Government."

INVITED BY UNDERSTUDIES.

When Governor Met the Admiral, the Withdrawal Came About.

Washington, Jan. 25—Secretary Metcalf late yesterday issued a statement, the gist of which is:

The Department has received the full text of the correspondence between Rear-Admiral Davis, commanding the squadron of naval vessels which recently visited Kingston, Jamaica, after the earthquake, and Sir Alexander Swettenham, Governor of Jamaica.

From this correspondence it appears that Admiral Davis landed a party of six men to guard and secure the archives of the American consulate, and another party of ten men to clear away the wreckage. Later, upon the earnest entreaty of the Colonial Secretary and the inspector of police, who spoke for the Governor (the Governor being absent from the city and at King's House, some three miles distant), 50 men were landed under arms from the Indiana to overawe an alleged mutiny at the penitentiary, containing five or six hundred prisoners. Admiral Davis was driven in a carriage to King's House. He found the Governor living with his family in tents, and he was accompanied back to the city by the Governor. That same afternoon, upon request of the Governor, the men were withdrawn from the city and returned to their ships.

Earthquake In New York.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A despatch to The Press from Prospect, a village 19 miles north of this city, states that three distinct earthquake shocks were felt in that place early yesterday morning, the severest being the last and felt about 6.30 o'clock. Enquiry revealed that nearly every family in the village had been aroused by the shock. Houses were shaken and dishes rattled and the inhabitants were considerably alarmed.

Two Prospectors Frozen.

Cobalt, Jan. 25.—Two men are reported to have been frozen to death while returning from Larder Lake this week. The bodies are said to have been found on Wendigo Lake and were brought to Haileybury yesterday. They are still unidentified. It is said they were walking when overcome by cold weather. It was 38 below zero yesterday morning.

Brantford Girl Asphyxiated.

Buffalo, Jan. 25.—Miss Agnes Wall, a domestic in the employ of Mrs. M. H. Kelleran, at No. 815 Elmwood avenue, was asphyxiated by gas in her room Wednesday night. Miss Wall was 23 years old and her home was in Brantford, Ont.

Wrestled For Gun; Is Dead.

Reston, Man., Jan. 25.—Three-year-old Fredie Lockhart was shot in the neck and died almost instantly. Fredie and his brother David were wrestling for possession of the gun when it discharged.

Hon. A. G. Blair Died Yesterday

End Very Sudden In Native Town Of Fredericton, N. B.

One of New Brunswick's Greatest Sons Passes Away With No Warning At Home of His Sister-in-Law—Engaged in Business Mission, and Complained Only Of a Cold—Resting on a Lounge When Heart Ceased Beating.

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 26.—The death of the Hon. A. G. Blair, former Minister of Railways, yesterday, coming so suddenly in his native city, caused a great shock to the citizens generally. It was altogether unexpected and followed an illness of only a few minutes duration. Mr. Blair came to this city on Thursday afternoon from Ottawa and stopped off here to visit relatives and look after some business matters. On his arrival he was driven from the railway depot to the home of his sister-in-law, Miss Thompson, where he usually stayed when in the city.

Yesterday morning Mr. Blair met J. H. Barry, K. C., solicitor for the telephone company, by appointment. During the morning he remarked to Mr Barry that he felt he should not have come out in such cold weather on account of his having a cold, but this was taken as a casual remark. However, on going to dinner about 1 o'clock Mr. Blair agreed to meet Mr. Barry at the telephone office at seven o'clock last evening, saying that he would stay in the house during the afternoon and see if he would not feel some better, and they could finish the business connected with the coming amalgamation of the New Brunswick and Central Telephone Companies in the evening.

HON. A. G. BLAIR.

After dinner Mr. Blair remained in the house and between 4 and 5 o'clock he was talking over the telephone, transacting some business, and did not seem to be in ill-health at all from outward appearance. When his sister-in-law came in between 5 and 6 o'clock she found Mr. Blair reclining on a sofa.

His Last Words.

After pleasant remarks Mr. Blair, in referring to Miss Thompson's work at the education offices, where she is employed, asked: "What progress have you made in your work to-day?"

These proved to be his last words. He soon collapsed, his head fell back and he commenced to breathe hard.

Next door lived Judge William Wilson, a former fellow-politician and a life-long friend of Mr. Blair. Miss Thompson called him in and Judge Wilson found Mr. Blair scarcely breathing. He felt for his pulse, but found that it had stopped beating. A few moments and the breathing ceased.

In less than five minutes from the time he was seized he was dead.

Death was due to heart failure.

It was a singular coincidence that Mr. Blair should have come to the city of his birth, which he had of late only visited for brief periods, when his end was to come.

His Family.

Besides his widow, a daughter of the late George Thompson, deputy superintendent of education, to whom he was married on Oct. 18, 1866, when he was but 22 years old, five daughters—Mrs. R. F. Randolph, this city; Mrs. Walter Clarke of Halifax; Mrs. D. P. Brewin of England and Mrs. Dr. McCarthy of Ottawa, and Miss Marjorie of Ottawa, and two sons, A. George Blair, Jr., of Ottawa, and Donald, also of Ottawa—survive. One sister, Mrs. J. A. Rossborough of Guysboro, N. S., and one half-sister, Mrs. Amy Fenely, aged 93 years, of this city, also survive. One daughter was drowned at Ottawa some years ago while skating.

The remains of the late Mr. Blair will be taken to Ottawa by C. P. R. for interment, leaving here this evening.

Mr. Blair's Career.

Born in Fredericton, N. B., March 7, 1844.

Entered New Brunswick Assembly as member for York County in 1878.

Chosen leader of the Opposition February, 1879.

Defeated Hannington Ministry, 1883; Blair Government sustained in general elections of 1886, 1890, 1892, 1895, though he was defeated in 1892 for York County, but was returned later for Queen's.

In 1896 he was invited to enter the newly-organizing Laurier Cabinet, in which he accepted portfolio of Railways and Canals, and was returned as member for Queen's-Sudbury. In 1900 defeated Hon. G. E. Foster in St. John, N. B.

He resigned from the Government July 6, 1903, owing to difference of opinion over the policy of constructing the G. T. P. Railway.

In 1904 he was appointed chairman of the Railway Commission for Canada.

A few months later resigned, previous to the general election of November, 1904.

In 1905 accepted the position of managing director of the Toronto Roller Bearing Co.

Resigned to become connected with the legal department of the C. P. R.

His re-entry into politics had been freely spoken of within the past few weeks.

His Chief Legislature Work.

Mr. Blair's chief legislative work was the Railway Act of Canada, creating a commission for the control of the railways of the country. In guiding it through Parliament he exhibited a knowledge of railways, railway law and railway operation that showed him to have greater powers of mind than had been conceded by ordinary observers and raised him in the estimation of Parliament and the country. By common consent also he was designated as the proper person to take the chief position on the commission his bill provided for, and his successor, Mr. Justice Killam, told the Canadian Club at Ottawa the great value of his work in this respect, in these words:

"There is one thing more I ought to say; I think this country owes a deep debt of gratitude to the first chief commissioner of the board of railway commissioners, the Hon. Mr. Blair. Mr. Blair is a very able lawyer; he had much experience as Minister of Railways, and as the head of the railway committee of the Privy Council he took great part in drawing up the Railway Act under which we are working at present, and in order to frame it he must have enquired fully into the different systems in vogue elsewhere. Mr. Blair went to the board of railway commissioners with a large amount of knowledge; more than any other man could have had in undertaking such work. He did great work in establishing the Canadian railway commission; he established it upon broad lines. I very much regret, and I think the country should regret, that he saw fit to retire so soon from the work of the board.

"I can only say that it appears to me, from my experience since I have been with the board, that any defects in the system, or in the organization of that board, are almost if not wholly in regard to matters as to which Mr. Blair's ideas were disregarded and overruled, rather than as to those matters with regard to which his ideas were carried out."

Greatest New Brunswicker.

St. John, Jan. 26.—Asked last night in reference to Mr. Blair's death, Hon. H. A. McKeown said: "A strong man has been called away while it was believed years of usefulness yet remained. Andrew G. Blair was the greatest living New Brunswicker, and for a quarter of a century the gaze of the people of the province centred upon him as upon no other public man."

Great Shock At Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—The announcement of the sudden death of Hon. A. G. Blair came as a great shock to the people of Ottawa. Many who heard the news were even then reading in the evening paper an interview but a few hours old with Mr. Blair at Fredericton, in which he had repudiated the idea that he would accept the Lieutenant-Governorship of New Brunswick. "I am not ready yet to be shelved," he said to the reporter.

MAY TAKE 3-CENT FARES.

Mackenzie and Mann, 'Tis Rumored, Will Surprise the C.P.R.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—It was rumored last night on the best authority that Mackenzie and Mann will spring a surprise on the C.P.R. by accepting the three-cent fare amendment to their bill respecting the Qu'Appelle Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway Co.

By agreement they are restricted to a three-cent fare in Manitoba, and they now propose to establish the same maximum fare throughout the entire west.

It is well for one to know more than he says.—Plautus.

A witty writer in the Buffalo Express thus hits off a matter which, directly or indirectly, has bothered many charitable organizations and churches. He says: "I don't know where the Rev. Mr. Helms obtained the figures for his estimate that $20,000 was spent on and at the Charity Ball, which realized but $4,000 for charity, but the proportions would hold true for any church entertainment. Ladies get new costumes for those events. The eatables and drinkables are 'donated.' Time and energy are spilled freely. And the financial outcome generally leads the committee in charge to wish that people would give directly to the church, instead of permitting themselves to be cajoled out of their dimes and quarters. Charity balls and church suppers are based on the same weakness in human nature. The organ has to play while the plate goes round."

A gentleman in this city has received a letter from a Lindsay firm, advising him to be on the lookout for certain parties who try to work an ingenious swindle, the modus operandi of which is as follows: The parties write a letter to a prominent firm for a lot of goods, saying they have a daughter in the west whom they wish to send a parcel to, and the firm are asked to leave the parcel in a certain hotel in the sitting room, between certain hours, and someone will call for it. The letter will be from one of the firm's good customers, and the party who is to call will be a neighbor, or someone well known. Or the scheme may be worked by means of a telephone message to put the parcel in the last car on a certain train, in the last rack on the left or right hand side. The game, we are told, nearly worked in Lindsay, but the swindlers were discovered and got away to Peterboro. They may try to work Belleville merchants.

A writer in the Napanee Beaver paints the following rather gloomy picture of agricultural affairs in Ontario:

"The farm situation has become serious indeed. Here we are, rapidly approaching the 1st of March, when all tenants and purchasers of farms should take their places,—and now at this writing not a few of our very best farms are lying unoccupied, and not a furrow ploughed on them for the coming season,—and not even an applicant to enquire the rental or purchase price of them. What is the cause of all this non-enquiry for farms? All the columns of the newspapers of Ontario are full of ads. of Farms for Sale or Rent, and cows paid over $50.00 per head at the factory last season, and crops large and prices good. Still no rush for farms and much less no enquiry for them. Labor is the startling fact. Farmers cannot compete in prices for labor as can railways, miners and manufacturers, which are all rushing madly for labor, to fill the wants of a rapidly settling country. Jim Hill, the railway king of the west, said in a speech he delivered a short time ago at the Auditorium Hotel of Chicago, that the United States and Canada wanted one hundred thousand miles of railway to move the freight and traffic of the country (above what they have) built and equipped at once, but the country had neither men, money or rails to do it with, and even though the money should come, the men and rails could not be got for years to come. Hence the labor question is the all engrossing one for a hundred years yet or more. The farmer who went to town too soon to wear kid gloves and depend on the rent of his farm for support, will have to cast them off again and return and milk cows and tramp clay or let the once beautiful farm return to its wild state again, and he pay taxes without returns."

FINKLE—GAY.

On January 23rd, a large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gay, Avondale, to witness the marriage of their only daughter, Blanche E., to Mr. Merritt Finkle, of Bayside. At 6.30 the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered the drawing-room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. (Rev.) Leitch. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. H. Leitch, of Belleville, assisted by Rev. H. W. Foley, B.A., of Bayside. After the ceremony about 65 guests sat down to a very inviting tea, at the conclusion of which Rev. R. H. Leitch, in his very pleasing manner, with a few appropriate words proposed a toast to the health and happiness of the bride. The esteem in which the young couple are held was evinced by the beautiful display of presents. After spending a very pleasant evening in social intercourse the friends dispersed, wishing the young couple bon voyage through life. Mr. and Mrs. Finkle will reside at Bayside.

A Judicial View

The Montreal Witness takes a judicial view of the Jamaican incident, which may prove after all to be the correct one. It says:

"Admiral Davis, no doubt with the utmost good-will and humanity of intention, landed armed marines, who practically took possession of some of the streets, and also erected a hospital tent under the United States flag. Those who are inclined adversely to criticize the Governor of Jamaica for putting an end to all this, should stop and ask themselves the question: "Would such a thing have been permitted on United States territory? Would armed marines and sailors of the British navy have been permitted to take possession in the way of charity of, say, San Francisco? Would the British flag be allowed to fly on such an occasion on any United States soil?' The truth is that Admiral Davis was officious to the point of offensiveness, and spoiled a mission that was intended for and accepted as an expression of international goodwill. We hope the stoppage of United States supplies will not add to the sufferers' distress, but unless a very different complexion is placed upon the incident by further cables, we cannot see that Governor Swettenham could have acted very differently."

It would be too bad if a British official who acted in the main part precisely according to a just conception of patriotic duty, should be sacrificed in a torrent of hysterical slobber, for the act of writing a letter that was at fault in true diplomacy.

An Expensive Place.

It is only a few years since the Liberals had a great deal of criticism to offer about the alleged extravagant expenditure in connection with the gubernatorial residence, Rideau Hall. Mr. Jas. McMullen, ex-M. P., used to be particularly sarcastic and denunciatory about the cost of the silverware, the table cloths, napkins, etc. Since the late representative for North Wellington has been given a comfortable berth in the Senate he has been strangely silent on matters which, previous to 1896, he was accustomed to deliver almost daily harangues in the Commons. Under the regime of the Conservatives the annual expenditure on Governor-General's residence at Ottawa never reached over $20,000. Last year under the economical and democratic Laurier Administration it amounted to nearly $82,000 — over four times as much.

The total outlay on Rideau Hall during the ten years of Liberal rule has reached close on to half a million dollars in repairs, maintenance and additions, and after all there is very little to show for it. There must be nice little graft somewhere. Here is the story of the outlay:

1897	$31,172
1898	20,582
1899	25,838
1900	46,316
1901	44,437
1902	38,556
1903	46,141
1904	34,867
1905	51,792
1906	81,730
Total	$487,051

The sum of $80,000 has been expended in construction and extensions, and yet the structure is a veritable barracks. No less than $200,000 has been spent on repairs and furniture during the last decade and the remainder has gone for maintenance. The question arises "are the people receiving any such value from Rideau Hall?"

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

FEW PEOPLE KNOW HOW USEFUL IT IS IN PRESERVING HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics, in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says. "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Unpleasant Side To Life In Northwest.

The following letter, which will prove interesting reading to Easterners, was received by one closely related to the Kingston News staff. The writer lives at a point on the railway between Regina and Prince Albert, and the views expressed are not the roseate one which find their way east in western newspapers, promoters of land companies, and the telegraphic despatches:

Wild land here is from $10.20 per acre according to nearness to railway. When a man spends $5,000 thereon for development and building his farm will cost quite as much as those in settled Ontario. Whilst here he pays one-sixth of his crop for freight thereon to his market, Port Arthur. The farmers here are as you know poor and to their poverty they have added a load of land—and 'pay day comes some day.' This year my 200 acres of wheat yielded 15 bushels to the acre and it was over the average. Wheat sells No. 1 hard, at 73c, Port Arthur; elevator charges 1 3-4c; freight 13 1-3c. So you see we net 59c if No. 1 Hard, but most of it grades but No. 2 North.

We have our sorrows as well as joys here. Two brothers settled near Pleasant Valley. One helped to harvest near Lumsden, and returned with typhoid-pneumonia. His brother and I buried him at Lumsden. Whilst there the brother complained, returned, lived three weeks, and now sleeps beside his brother. "Each in their narrowed cell forever laid, the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep." Poor fellows! What sad news to over-the-sea parents. A poor fellow was admitted to the overfull Moose Jaw hospital with pneumonia. Had been a vocalist, lapsed into unconsciousness, sang as long as his weakened voice could, "Crossing the Bar," exhausted, slept, awakened, sang, "God Save the King," and fell back dead. Poor fellow, too!

One of our boys was visiting at Hillingham, four miles southeast. Not returning at the fixed time I put on snowshoes and chased over. Finding him at 10 o'clock we started for home, 30 degrees below zero and northwest wind in dentals. His skis gave out, ploughed through snow 14 inches deep and with light crust for three hours; sundown at 10.20, night dark, no stars, lost. Got him by bullying, etc., to next neighbors, a quarter of a mile from home, exhausted, fell in a chair, asleep for two hours. My face frozen from chin to brow, frozen hard and black. December here was very cold. January is the same. Coal $15 per ton. Snow 14 inches deep. Thermometer 20 to 30 degrees below. Wells giving out, melting snow for stock, and drawing water from slough 4 miles off. When we can stand the weather out it is delightful, etc., and ravishing, intoxicating, etc., and were it not that my face has the habit of freezing I would enjoy it greatly.

There is nothing more pleasing than praise if it is honest and you believe you have earned it.

In Bombay cotton mill natives receive 32 cents for a 12-hour working day.

HOCKEY.

Bankers Beat Wanderers.

Last evening a hockey match took place between two local teams for the possession of the Corby trophy. The teams competing were the Bankers and Wanderers. The attendance of spectators was not large. As was generally anticipated, the Bankers proved to be easy winners, the score at the finish being 5 to 1 in their favor. At half-time the score was 2 to 0 in favor of the cash handlers. Mr. S. Burrows was referee and gave general satisfaction. The line-up was as follows:

CURLING.

Belleville Beat Kingston.

A curling match took place here last evening, being in connection with the Colts' series for this district. The visitors were from Kingston, and they met a defeat, as at the conclusion of the game the local rinks had a margin of 14 shots. There were two rinks competing, and during the match many spectators were present. At the finish the finish the visitors were entertained at the club room in connection with the rink. The players and scores were as follows:

Belleville.	Kingston.

SPORTING NOTES.

Toronto News: "It's a very strange thing," remarked a hockey official this morning, "that a club's affairs are never investigated until it should happen to reach a stage where a championship is a probability. Take the Guelph club, take the Marlboros some years ago, and take almost any club that has ever been thrown out of the association. They were all within reach of the cup before any action was taken against them. Why shouldn't the O.H.A. compel every senior player, or for that matter every player in the other series, too, to make declarations before the season is opened? That would clear the atmosphere."

The above is precisely the contention The Intelligencer made in Belleville's case when the Belleville club was twice penalized by the O.H.A. The club submitted the names of its players to the Association, and was told there was nothing against them. Then, with the championship in sight, charges were trumped up and the club railroaded out of the running. Had the Belleville club been a losing bunch nothing would ever have been heard of objections to its players. But why are not the players of a losing club as much amenable to the Association's laws as those of a winning team?

The O.H.A. hockey team was last night given a dainty spread by Mr. Black, of Black & Shea's restaurant. This was in honor of beating Brockville on their own ice. Mr. Harry Jones had previously given the team a spread in honor of their beating Brockville here.

Kingston Juniors beat Brockville 11—3 last night, and the Limestone City boys thus finish with 3 games won and three lost. There is one match yet to play in the district schedule, Picton vs. Brockville, in Picton, next Thursday night, and it looks, at this distance, as though the easterners have as much chance of winning as they have of growing wings.

Hockey results last night: Brockville intermediates 16, Cornwall 1; McGill 6, Queen's 5; Kenora 9, Toronto pros. 8.

Globe: The Guelph papers have looked everywhere but in the right quarter for the source of the information that the club was not run according to O.H.A. requirements. It was the saucy little bird on Nellie's hat that told.

The Ottawa hockey team refuses to go to Montreal to play the Victorias to-night, because warrants are out for some of the Senators.

Eddie Giroux, goal-keeper of the Kenoras, is getting a lot of praise these days, which reminds one that the Belleville intermediates got 20 goals past him in a match here a couple of years ago. But the Belleville team at that time could make any bunch go some. Will we ever have another like it.

York Springs Water will do your wife more good than medicine—and yet there is nothing medicinal about it. Few women drink enough pure water—the body needs ten glasses a day—less will not cleanse the system of its waste. Too little water causes indigestion, constipation, bad blood, nervousness—common ills with women. Needless ills, because drinking pure water will mostly prevent them. Women like York Springs Water because it is crisp and zestful to the palate, and entirely without the salty taste common to most bottled waters. Any dealer who discriminates can supply you with

SOCIALISTS SEATS GO

Lose Seventeen or Eighteen in the German Elections.

Definits Victory For the Government by 20 Seats—Liberal, Radical and Conservative Parties, Supporting Von Buelow's Colonial Policy, Win—Socialist Losses Occurred In Several of the Large Cities.

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The Government has won a definite victory in the general elections held yesterday for a new Reichstag. The Liberal, Radical and Conservative parties, supporting Prince Von Buelow's colonial policy, have won at least twenty seats. But more important for the Government than the success of its colonial plans, is the crushing defeat of the Socialists, who will lose a total of seventeen or eighteen seats.

This is the first election since 1887 that the Socialists have not increased their representation in the Reichstag by from five to twenty seats. They have lost especially in several large cities, among them Breslau, Halle, Madgeburg, Leipzig and Koenigsberg.

The Clerical Centre holds nearly every one of its former 100 seats. There is a possibility, however, that re-ballotings in the undecided districts may lose that party one or two more seats.

The Conservatives have won six seats, two of them from the Socialists. Re-balloting probably will be necessary in 175 constituencies, so that complete returns will not be in before Feb. 5.

Certain districts in Upper Bavaria that are snowbound have not yet been heard from, but they are considered safe for the Centre party.

ENTRY IN POISON BOOK.

Strychnine Ostensibly Purchased By Mrs. Perkins' Brother In October.

Cayuga, Jan. 26.—"Oct. 15, 1906, R. Curry, Cayuga, W.J.Q."

The above entry, which appears on the poison book of W. J. Quinsey, druggist and stationer of this village, was discovered on Tuesday night.

Thursday the book was locked up in the safe of J. A. Murphy, the county crown attorney, pending the action of the Government in the Perkins poisoning case at Canfield on Christmas day last.

The entry means that ten grains of strychnine poison were purchased on Monday, Oct. 15, 1906. The purchase was signed for by Ralph Curry and the sale was made by J. W. Quinsey. The poison was purchased ostensibly to kill rats.

Mr. Quinsey stated that as far as he could remember the purchase was made by R. Curry, brother of Mrs. Perkins.

It is currently reported that Detective Reburn of Toronto has been detailed on the case. He is said to have called on Dr. Snider Thursday and left here for Canfield last night.

WHITELY'S SLAYER.

Identified as Former Schoolmaster—Will Probably Recover.

London, Jan. 26.—The police have identified the murderer of William Whitely, the aged merchant, who was shot Thursday, as Horace George Rayner. He is supposed to have been a schoolmaster, but recently was unemployed and lived in a cheap hotel at Bloomsbury. He told the proprietor of the place that he was the son of a wealthy London business man hailing from Yorkshire, from which part of the country the late Mr. Whitely came.

The murderer was operated upon yesterday morning. His injured eye was removed, and the bullet which he fired into his forehead was extracted. The doctors believe that Rayner will recover. The motive for the crime is still a mystery.

Cattle Dying In Alberta.

Lethbridge, Alberta, Jan. 26.—The chinook of the last few days gave way at noon Wednesday to a fierce storm, which has since been raging continuously, covering the ranges with several inches of snow. The condition of the cattle is, of course, worse than ever. The big company at Raymond, it is said, anticipates the loss of $100,000. It is thought that about 25 per cent. of the cattle in the country will perish. Horse breeders report no losses and anticipate none, as the horses can paw their way to the food.

Seven Jurors In Thaw Case.

New York, Jan. 24.—Fifty-one talesmen were examined in fast time yesterday in an effort to complete the jury which is to try Harry K. One hundred and one talesmen have thus far been examined, and five jurors remain to be chosen.

Ends Life With Carbolic Acid.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—James W. Hackett, an engineer on the fire department, committed suicide at his home, about 6.30 last night, by drinking carbolic acid. He spent the afternoon at a theatre with his son, aged 12. The family were at supper when he arose from the table, saying he was going to the drug store. He returned in a few minutes, and went directly upstairs, saying good-bye as he went. At the top of the stairs he drank out of a vial and threw it downstairs. Death occurred in half an hour. No reason can be given for the act, except that he has been complaining of neuralgia in the head. He leaves a widow, three daughters, one married, and two sons.

Newbro's Herpicide

A "HAIR-SAVER" THAT GROWS IN POPULARITY

DANDRUFF IS A SIGN OF DANGER TO THE HAIR

Dandruff is now known to be a disease and a highly contagious one—that will in time destroy the hair and cause baldness.

The first indication of hair destruction is the appearance of dandruff, although there is always considerable injury to the scalp before dandruff finally appears.

The value of Newbro's Herpicide as an eradicator of dandruff and as a saver and beautifier of the hair, is now recognized by well-posted people everywhere It is the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ."

Herpicide is not a wonderful "discovery," nor is it the result of a dream or revolation It is simply a scientific germicide and prophylactic for the scalp and it is the first and only successful one to be compounded in harmony with Prof. Unna's theory Prof. Unna the dermatologist, of Hamburg, Germany (ask your doctor about him), was the first to advance the belief that dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair are caused by an invisible growth of vegetable character in the sebaceous glands of the scalp.

The investigations of Prof. Unna and other noted dermatalogists, prove what many have learned by actual experience, viz, that ordinary hair remedies are ineffectual to prevent hair loss and that to be successful, the dandruff germ must be destroyed and kept out of the scalp.

The success of Newbro's Herpicide has demonstrated to the people at large the incorrectness of old theories relative to treating the hair and scalp. Even the Manufacturers of other hair remedies recognize the inevitable and one by one, they are changing their remedies to conform to the germ theory of dandruff

But why experiment with remedies that have not been tried? Herpicide is the original success, so why bother with substitutes at any price?

More men and women have gotten positive results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide than from all other Hair remedies combined.

Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Company, Dept. L., Windsor, Ont.

THE STORY OF CAIN AND ABEL—GOLDEN TEXT: "WHOSOEVER HATETH HIS BROTHER IS A MURDERER."

HISTORICAL SETTING.

The time is unknown. According to Ussher's chronology it was B.C. 3875, But it is generally understood that this is not correct.

According to the history the lesson belongs 125 to 130 years after the expulsion from Eden, for Adam was 130 years old when Seth was born, which event is represented as not long after the death of Abel. Again, Cain's complaint (v. 14) implies that there was quite a population at that time, and this would require a considerable period Place.—Outside of the Garden of Eden, but probably in the same region, which whole region was called Eden, near the Tigris and Euphrates rivers.

The narrative in this chapter belongs to what the critics call the "J" (Jehovah) stories, being a continuation of the narrative in our last lesson. But it is to be remembered always that the date of the writing of an account is a very different thing from the date of the event recorded, and that whatever be the order of the dates of writing the history, the order of the events, and of the development of the race, must have been as given in Genesis.

There is nothing in the account to show that Cain and Abel were the only children of Adam and Eve up to the time of this story; but these two were selected because they were the beginning of two lines of moral divergence which have continued till to-day, the sons of Man, and the sons of God, together with the actions and qualities of each.

"The picture of Cain and Abel portrayed how from the first opposition has subsisted between good and evil, between faith and self-will, between obedience and lawlessness. The two brothers brought up in the same family, became the types, the one of sin, the other of righteousness."

3. In process of time. An indefinite note of time. It probably was many years. (See Historical Setting.) Cain brought of the fruit of the ground. The products of his business, as was natural and proper. An offering unto the Lord, Jehovah, who had made himself known in the garden, and probably since. Offering, a sacrificial gift to God. In what form were these offerings presented to God? Was there an altar of worship? What could be done with the gifts? Was there a family religious feast? They were certainly some form of worship of God. The offerings were the outward expression of religious feeling. Nor can we know how this method of worship originated — whether, as some think, it grew out of the natural instinct of worship, or whether it was taught by God to early man as the teaching by types and actions of great and needful truths, which early men could not originate themselves, but which were essential to best life and adapted to his needs.

4. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock. "Either the first-born, which God afterwards demanded (Ex. 13: 12), or the choicest and best (Job 18: 13.) And of the fat thereof. Literally, the fatness of them, i.e., the fattest of the firstlings, the best he had, or "their fat pieces," the part to be burned. The Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering. "It is impossible to know in what way the Lord showed his favor, but it was, in any case, a visible sign of satisfaction."

5. Unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. The difference did not lie in the offerings, but in the men, and in the offerings only so far as they represented the character of the men. Note that in the account of Man is put before the offering. 'Abel and his offering,' "Cain and his offering." The difference in the men is seen in what came from them. Anger, envy, hate, murder, and lying came from Cain, and proved that he was no true worshipper. (See 1 John 3: 12.) He offered the shell, not the meat, the purse, not the jewels, the body without a soul, the form without the spirit. The author of Hebrews (11: 4) tells us that "by faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent (a more complete) sacrifice than Cain." Faith implies here a heart of obedience and love, a right disposition toward God. Some one has said that "the best part of a sermon is the man behind it." It is equally true of every act of worship. "It would be strange if the gods looked to gifts and sacrifices, and not to the soul." (Alcib. II., 149.) "The fruit does not make a good tree, but a good tree bringeth forth good fruit."

Hence v. 7, the Lord said, "If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted?" or "lifted up,' (Am. Ver.) The fault lies in your own conduct. Look there, not at Abel. 5. And Cain was very wroth (literally, it burned with Cain exceedingly.) Anger is like an ungoverned fire in the soul. His countenance fell. "The expression originated in the fact that, under the influence of angry and moody feelings, men are apt to go about with their heads hanging down." Thus we say such a man is dejected, depressed, chap-fallen.

7. If thou doest not well sin lieth at the door. You, yourself, only are to blame. "The sin is not Abel's nor any one's but thine own, and, therefore, anger at another is not the proper remedy, but anger at yourself, and repentance." "The sinful act crouches greedily like a beast of prey at the door of his heart till he shall step out and fall a victim to it." And unto thee shall be his desire. Sin is as eager for your soul as a wild beast is for its prey. See Luke 22: 31; 1 Pet. 5: 8. And thou shalt rule over him. The pronouns "his" and "him' refer to sin here conceived of as a beast of prey. All ambiguity is removed in the margin of the revision by rendering "unto thee is its desire, but thou shouldst rule over it."

The First Murder.—8. And Cain talked with Abel his brother. "Hebrew, 'And Cain said unto Abel his brother'; after which there is, in many of the Hebrew copies, a blank space left, as if something had been omitted." He talked over the matter with his brother. He went on in familiar intercourse with him, and it was during one of these conversations that his anger was again inflamed. Others represent Cain as asking his brother to go away from the home into a lonely field for the purpose of doing evil to him. Cain . . . slew him. Whether he intended to kill, or struck a blow in anger, and the result was more than he expected, we do not know.

9. And the Lord said unto Cain. How God spoke we know not, but we know that, to us God speaks by the voices of His Word, of our consciences, and of his Holy Spirit, by society, by the consequences of our sin, asking us the same question he asked Cain. "Our sin is like touching the electric bells which people sometimes put on their windows to give notice of thieves. As soon as we step beyond the line of duty we set the alarm going, and it wakens the sleeping conscience." Where is Abel thy brother? The word brother is introduced no less than seven times in the short narrative, as if to call attention to the unnatural character of the crime." "As God asked Adam, Where art thou? he now asks Cain, Where is thy brother?" And he said, I know not. A direct falsehood. The current Moslem tradition is founded on a Jewish one, which states that "Cain was not aware of the Lord's knowledge of hidden things; he therefore sought to make one sin cover up another; but the denial only made two sins instead of one." Am I my brother's keeper? Is it my business to keep track of him, and know what he is doing? Have you placed me over him?

Only Cain-like men ask Cain's question. We all are our brother's keepers. God has made the circles of family, friendship, acquaintance, race, humanity, so that each of us has an influence in them, and we are responsible for that influence. No one lives or dies to himself. And God gives us wealth, position, intellect, not for ourselves alone, but that we may be better keepers of our brother. (1) We are keepers of our brothers, not by dictating to them, but by brotherly love; (2) by helping them, as the good Samaritan, or as the righteous in Matt. 25: 31-46; (3) by considering their welfare in all our business relations; (4) by using every influence for their good, doing to others in all relations "as we would that they should do unto us."

10. The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. On which it was spilled, or in which the body was buried. Abel's body was dead: but this cause was not dead, and his avengers were not dead. Cain's effort was a complete failure. No power on earth can silence the voice that demands the punishment of sin: for (1) the memories of it cling to the place where it was committed. (2) The fact of the sin can never be obliterated. (3) Everything associated with the sin recalls the sin itself.

11. And now art thou cursed from the earth. R.V., "ground." This means, as stated in the text verse (1) that the curse proceeds from the earth, which execrates and loathes him, and will refuse to bestow its gifts upon him or to tolerate his hateful presence; the personification is like that in Lev. 18: 25. (2) That "Cain is cursed by being driven from the cultivated soil, into the wild, uncultivated waste."

12. When thou tillest the ground, etc. The ground would not yield its strength to Cain, because (1) he was to wander away from the cultivated fields into the wilder regions. (2) His restless, roving life would keep him from giving his due attention to the soil, for the fertile valleys would be too populous.

13. My punishment. The word includes the sin, together with its guilt and punishment. Is greater than I can bear, endure. The character of Cain is shown in this plea. He thought more of relief from the consequences of his sin than of pardon and deliverance from his sinful nature. But the chief work of punishment is to show to men the evil of sin. It is the divine expression of its awful nature, written in language that all men can read.

14. I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond. Even in that little Oriental city he built (v. 17.)

15. Therefore, that no more blood be shed, no blood revenge be cherished. Sevenfold, completely, more severely than Cain, because it would be against more clearly defined law, against greater knowledge of consequences, over stronger barriers and warnings. Compare v. 24. Set a mark upon Cain. R.V., "appointed a sign for Cain." Probably some sort of sign on his person, since to have the effect mentioned it is almost necessarily to be thought of as constantly accompanying him, and, therefore, as attached to his person. With the sign on his forehead, or elsewhere, went the widespread knowledge that it was a warning against injuring him.

SPANISH CABINET OUT.

King Alfonso Will Probably Call on the Conservatives.

Madrid, Jan. 26.—The Cabinet has resigned as a result of dissensions between the Liberals and the Radicals over the law of associations. King Alfonso is consulting with the political leaders with regard to the formation of a new Ministry.

It was announced that the Marquis de Armijo had failed to reorganize the Cabinet, and that King Alfonso had approved a Conservative Ministry headed by Senor Maura.

The present Cabinet of Spain was formed on Dec. 4 last. For some time there have been indications that it would not last long. The principal point at issue is the proposed anti-clerical associations law, similar to the French law.

Vatican Pleased.

Rome, Jan. 26.—The fall of the Spanish Cabinet caused satisfaction at the Vatican, where it is considered that the return to power of the Conservatives would be the abandonment of the anti-clerical movement in Spain.

Overcrowded Street Cars.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—As a result of the city's application yesterday to the municipal and railway board Wednesday, 30th inst., was set for filing a reply, and Monday, Feb. 4, at 2 p.m., for hearing evidence on the overcrowding of Toronto street cars. Chairman Leitch announced that under the act the sheriff would have to supply a courtroom in the city hall, with all the paraphernalia of a high court, for the board, and that counsel must be properly attired. Corporation counsel denounced the overcrowding as flagrant and indecent.

Arrested For Fraud.

Hamilton, Jan. 26.—E. J. Breheny, a well-known tailor, was arrested yesterday and taken to St. Catharines on a charge of fraud. The St. Catharines branch of his business assigned and it is charged that part of the goods from the branch were removed to Hamilton.

Denatured Alcohol.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The compromise over denatured alcohol decided upon by the house committee of ways and means carries a provision that the measure shall not become effective until after Sept. 1, 1908.

Principal Kirk Dead.

London, Jan. 26.—George B. Kirk, principal of the model school, died yesterday, after an illness extending over three years. He was a graduate of Toronto Normal School.

Indian Lands Opened.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—Nearly 90,000 acres of land, heretofore held as an Indian reserve, between North Bay and Sturgeon Falls, have been thrown open for settlement. An arrangement has been arrived at between the Indians, who number about 250, and the Dominion Government. The Indians get $100 each and reserve a portion of the land for themselves.

Justice pleaseth few in their own house.—Herbert.

M. P. Operated On.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—Edward Cochrane, M. P. for East Northumberland, who has been ailing for some time past, was operated on at noon yesterday for cancer of the stomach.

Childhood Ailments.

As a remedy for all the ills of childhood arising from derangements of the stomach or bowels Baby's Own Tablets have no equal. You do not have to coax or threaten your little ones to take them —children like them. The ease with which they can be given as compared with liquid medicines will appeal to every mother. None is spilled or wasted—you know just how big a dose has reached the little stomach. And above all mothers have an absolute guarantee that the Tablets contain no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. They always do good, they cannot possibly do harm. Mrs. Edward Donovan, St. Agatha, Que., says: "I am delighted with Baby's Own Tablets. I know of no medicine that can equal them in curing the ills of young children." You can get the Tablets from any druggist, or by mail at 25 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Skin Disease is Blood Disease

"Fruit-a-tives" clean the blood of all impurities and clear the Complexion.

Pimples and Blotches—Redness—Boils—Eczema and other inflammations of the skin—mean Impure Blood.

A person with a bad complexion always suffers from poor digestion — non-action of the bowels (or Constipation) and often the kidneys are weak.

These unhealthy organs cannot rid the system of the waste matter. It is this waste—taken up by the blood and carried to the skin—that ruins the complexion.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure all skin troubles because they cure the kidneys and bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cause the eliminating organs to do their proper share of the work of ridding the system of waste. This purifies the blood — and instantly the pimples and blotches disappear, and the complexion clears. "Fruit-a-tives" cure skin troubles when everything else fails.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices, intensified, and combined with valuable tonics and antiseptics.

"Fruit-a-tives" are a wonderful cure for Pimples and Blotches on the skin.

They are without doubt the greatest blood purifier in the world. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all druggists.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SISTER SUFFERING FROM WOMEN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure — you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head; back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer, if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all woman's diseases and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write to-day, as you may not see this offer again. Address:

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1896, by HARPER & BROTHERS

CHAPTER I.

"MY dear madam, what you call heart does not come into the question at all."

Sir John Meredith was sitting slightly behind Lady Cantourne, leaning toward her with a somewhat stiffened replica of his former grace. But he was not looking at her, and she knew it.

They were both watching a group at the other side of the great ballroom.

"Sir John Meredith on Heart," said the old lady, with a depth of significance in her voice."

"And why not?"

"Yes, indeed, why not?"

Sir John smiled with that well bred cynicism which a new school has not yet succeeded in imitating. They both belonged to the old school, these two, and their worldliness, their cynicism, their conversational attitude belonged to a bygone period. It was a cleaner period in some ways—a period devoid of slums. Ours, on the contrary, is an age of slums, wherein we all dabble to the detriment of our hands—mental, literary and theological.

Sir John moved slightly in his chair, leaning one hand on one knee. His back was very flat, his clothes were perfect, his hair was not his own, nor yet his teeth, but his manners were entirely his own. His face was eighty years old, and yet he smiled his keen society smile with the best of them. There was not a young man in the room of whom he was afraid conversationally.

"No, Lady Cantourne," he replied. "Your charming niece is heartless. She will get on."

Lady Cantourne smiled and drew the glove farther up her stout and motherly right arm.

"She will get on," she admitted. "As to the other, it is early to give an opinion."

"She has had the best of trainings," he murmured. And Lady Cantourne turned on him with a twinkle amid the wrinkles.

"For which?" she asked.

"Choisissez!" he answered, with a bow.

The object of his attention was the belle of that ball, Miss Millicent Chyne, who was hemmed in a corner by a group of eager dancers anxious to insert their names in some corner of her card. She was the fashion at that time, and she probably did not know that at least half of the men crowded round because the other half were there. Nothing succeeds like the success that knows how to draw a crowd.

She received the ovation self possessedly enough, but without that hauteur affected by belles of balls—in books. She seemed to have a fresh smile for each new applicant—a smile which conveyed to each in turn the fact that she had been attempting all along to get her programme safely into his hands. A halting masculine pen will not be expected to explain how she compassed this, beyond a gentle intimation that masculine vanity had a good deal to do with her success.

"She is having an excellent time," said Sir John, weighing on the modern phrase with a subtle sarcasm. He was addicted to the use of modern phraseology spiced with a cynicism of his own.

"Yes; I cannot help sympathizing with her—a little," answered the lady.

"Nor I. It will not last."

"After all," she said, "she is my sister's child. The sympathy may only be a matter of blood. Perhaps I was like that myself once. Was I? You can tell me."

He fumbled at his lips, having reasons of his own for disliking too close a scrutiny of his face.

"That is more than probable," he answered rather indistinctly.

"Then," she said, tapping the back of his gloved hand with her fan, "we ought to be merciful to the faults of a succeeding generation. Tell me, who is that young man with the long stride who is getting himself introduced now?"

"That," answered Sir John, who prided himself upon knowing every one—knowing who they were and who they were not—"is young Oscard."

"Son of the eccentric Oscard?"

"Son of the eccentric Oscard."

"And where did he get that brown face?"

"He got that in Africa, where he has been shooting. He forms part of some one else's bag at the present moment."

"What do you mean?"

"He has been apportioned a dance. Your fair niece has bagged him."

The other young men rather fell back before Guy Oscard—scared, perhaps, by his long stride, and afraid that he might crush their puny toes. This enabled Miss Chyne to give him the very next dance, of which the music was commencing.

"I feel rather out of all this," said Oscard as they moved away together. "You must excuse uncouthness."

"I see no signs of it," laughed Millicent. "You are behaving very nicely. You cannot help being larger and stronger than—the others. I should say it was an advantage and something to be proud of."

"Oh, it is not that," replied Oscard; "it is a feeling of unkemptness and want of smartness among these men who look so clean and correct. Shall we dance?"

"Yes," she said, "let us dance by all means."

Here she knew her own proficiency, and in a few seconds she found that her partner was worthy of her skill.

"Where have you been?" she asked presently. "I am sure you have been away somewhere, exploring or something."

"I have only been in Africa shooting."

"Oh, how interesting! You must tell me all about it!"

She was watching the door all the while.

Presently the music ceased, and they made their way back to the spot whence he had taken her. She led the way thither by an almost imperceptible pressure of her fingers on his arm. There were several men waiting there, and one or two more entering the room and looking languidly round.

"There comes the favored one," Lady Cantourne muttered, with a veiled glance toward her companion.

Sir John's gray eyes followed the direction of her glance.

"My bright boy?" he inquired, with a wealth of sarcasm on the adjective.

"Your bright boy," she replied.

"I hope not," he said curtly.

They were watching a tall fair man in the doorway who seemed to know everybody, so slow was his progress into the room. The most remarkable thing about this man was a certain grace of movement. He seemed to be specially constructed to live in narrow, hampered places. He was above six feet, but being of slight build he moved with a certain languidness which saved him from that unwieldiness usually associated with large men in a drawing room.

Such was Jack Meredith, one of the best known figures in London society. He had hitherto succeeded in moving through the mazes of that coterie, as he now moved through this room, without jarring any one.

CHAPTER II.

MISS MILLICENT CHYNE was vaguely conscious of success—and such a consciousness is apt to make the best of us a trifle elated. It was certainly one of the best balls of the season, and Miss Chyne's dress was without doubt one of the most successful articles of its sort there.

Jack Meredith saw that fact and noted it as soon as he came into the room. Moreover, it pleased him, and he was pleased to reflect that he was no mean critic in such matters. There could be no doubt about it, because he knew as well as any woman there. He knew that Millicent Chyne was dressed in the latest fashion; no furbished up gown from the hands of her maid, but a unique creation from Bond street.

"Well," she asked in a low voice as she handed him her programme, "are you pleased with it?"

"Eminently so."

She glanced down at her own dress. It was not the nervous glance of the debutante, but the practiced flash of experienced eyes which see without appearing to look.

"I am glad," she murmured.

He handed her back the card with the orthodox smile and bow of gratitude, but there was something more in his eyes.

"Is that what you did it for?" he inquired.

"Of course," with a glance half coquettish, half humble.

She took the card and allowed it to drop pendent from her fan without looking at it. He had written nothing on it. This was all a form. The dances that were his had been inscribed on the engagement card long before by smaller fingers than his.

She turned to take her attendant partner's arm with a little flaunt, a little movement of the hips, to bring her dress and possibly her self more prominently beneath Jack Meredith's notice. His eyes followed her with that incomparably pleasant society smile which he had no doubt inherited from his father. Then he turned and mingled with the well dressed throng, bowing where he ought to bow, asking with fervor for dances in plain but influential quarters where dances were to be easily obtained.

And all the while his father and Lady Cantourne watched.

Behind his keen old eyes Sir John watched Jack go up and claim his dance at the hands of Miss Millicent Chyne. He could almost guess what they said, for Jack was grave, and she smiled demurely. They began dancing at once, and as soon as the floor became crowded they disappeared.

Jack Meredith was an adept at such matters. He knew a seat at the end of a long passage where they could sit, the beheld of all beholders who happened to pass, but no one could possibly overhear their conversation, no one could surprise them. It was essentially a strategical position.

"Well," inquired Jack, with a peculiar breathlessness, when they were seated, "have you thought about it?"

(To be continued.)

The County Council.

FRIDAY MORNING.

A number of by-laws were given their third reading and numbered respectively, 619, 620, 621, 622 and 623.

Moved by Mr. Ketcheson, seconded by Mr. McDonnell, that the chairmanship of the Gravel Roads committee be restored to its former status, according to the by-law.

Mr. Ketcheson thought that there should be a chairman of the Gravel Roads committee and not leave the matter of accompanying the Superintendent in the hands of the Reeves or Deputy Reeves.

Mr. Dryden said he could not support the motion as it meant the rescinding of a motion that was adopted the day previous.

Messrs. Best and Birkett spoke in support of the motion, believing a chairman should be appointed.

Upon a vote being taken the motion was carried.

Mr. Rollins moved, seconded by Dr. Bowlby, that the Clerk and Superintendent be a committee to inspect bridges in the county.

Mr. Vermilyea thought that this was a matter that could be dealt with by the Gravel Roads and Bridges committees. It was virtually taking power out of the committee's hands.

Mr. Dryden was of the opinion that it was a move in the right direction, as there were several bridges which needed inspection.

Mr. Bonter thought that by appointing this special committee the Council would override the work of the Gravel Roads and Bridges committee.

Mr. Collins considered that the County had a man who could do this work, namely, Mr. Inman, who was a practical bridge builder, and he could go with the superintendent and inspect the bridges.

Dr. Bowlby said that the motion was by no means intended to take any power out of the hands of the Gravel Roads and Bridges committee.

Mr. Hanley was in favor of leaving this matter in the hands of the committee.

Upon a vote being taken the motion was defeated.

Moved by Mr. Gunter, seconded by Mr. Mawson, that the Superintendent be instructed to inspect a culvert at Central Ontario Junction, near Millbridge, and have the same placed in a proper state of repair as soon as practicable.

A motion prevailed that the matter be referred to the Gravel Roads and Bridges committee.

The Ways and Means committee resumed Mr. McDonnell in the chair.

A motion prevailed that the Executive committee be empowered to make necessary repairs to the Shire Hall, both outside and inside.

After some discussion it was decided that but three copies of the Municipal World be procured, namely one each for the Clerk, Treasurer and Superintendent.

Mr. Cornell moved, seconded by Mr. McLean, that the usual grants be made to certain northern municipalities for expenditure upon the roads.

The Warden thought that it should be added to the motion that no further grants be made this year.

Mr. Vermilyea agreed with the Warden that no further grants should be made this year. Make the grants now as liberal as possible, and then make no more.

Messrs. Bonter and McLean contended that this should not be so recorded. A special case might arise, and aid upon a road would have to be given.

Mr Vermilyea moved, seconded by the Warden, that the words "and no further grants be made this year" be added.

After some further discussion the matter was left in abeyance until the afternoon.

Moved by Mr. Vermilyea, seconded by Mr. Bonter, that the name of Mr. W. C Farley be substituted on the Gravel Roads committee in place of Mr. Vermilyea's.—Carried.

Council adjourned until 2 o'clock.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

On motion the Ways and Means committee resumed, Mr. Vandervoort in the chair.

Mr. Rollins moved, seconded by Mr. McDonnell, that the grants to the northern municipalities, to assist in repairing and maintaining roads, be as follows:

Limerick	315
Tudor & Cashel	315
Wollaston	315
Faraday	315
Dungannon	315
Mayo	315
Monteagle & Herschel	390
Bangor, et al	390
Carlow	315
Bancroft village	150

The Warden suggested that this matter be left over until the June session.

Mr. Vermilyea, whilst desirous to meet the representatives of the northern municipalities in a fair manner, considered the amounts asked for were excessive.

Mr. Rollins spoke in support of the motion and said the township of Wollaston was badly in need of all the assistance it could secure.

Messrs. Best and Weaver spoke in support of the grants mentioned. They considered the amounts were not too large.

After some further discussion the amounts were lowered, as follows:

Limerick	$262.50
Tudor & Cashel	262.50
Wollaston	262.50
Faraday	262.50
Dungannon	262.50
Mayo	262.50
Carlow	262.50
Monteagle & Herschel	325.00
Bangor, et al	325.00
Bancroft village	200.00

A motion prevailed that no further special grants be made on roads this year.

Moved by Mr. Wright, seconded by Mr. Mawson, that a revote of $100 be granted for a road in the township of Limerick.

Moved by Mr. Cornell, seconded by Mr. Best, that the usual school grants be made to the various school sections in the northern portion of the county.—Carried.

Moved by Dr. Harper, seconded by Mr. Cornell, that a grant of $50 be made to the Hastings Mining Association.

Dr. Harper spoke in support of the motion. The mining men believe that there is mineral wealth in this county, and their object is to bring this before capitalists. This Association has been formed and the office is in Madoc village.

Mr. Vermilyea desired to know by what authority the Council could make such a grant.

Mr. Best thought it would be money well spent, as it would be the means of assisting in bringing the county to the attention of capitalists.

Mr. Hanley was of the opinion that this was a matter that the Ontario Government might deal with and assist in.

Mr. Cornell spoke in support of the motion.

The matter was finally left in abeyance, to ascertain if the grant was a legal one if given.

Moved by Mr. Hanley, seconded by Mr. Vermilyea, that a deputation consisting of the Warden, Clerk Treasurer, Mr. Dryden, and Dr. Harper be appointed to go to Toronto as soon as possible to interview the Government and to endeavor to have special legislation passed to enable the County of Hastings to get her due share of the special grant for roads, voted some years since by the Ontario Legislature.

The resolution was adopted after some discussion.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Ketcheson, that a committee composed of the Clerk, Messrs. Vandervoort and Farley be appointed to consult with a committee of the City Council in reference to the G.T.R. overhead bridge on the boundary line between Sidney and Thurlow.

The motion was adopted, after Messrs Vandervoort and Vermilyea had spoken of the necessity of having the matter attended to at once.

Council adjourned until 9 o'clock Saturday morning.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

Considering all of these centres that are concerned in vision, they occupy at least one-third of the gray matter area of the entire brain. The natural position of the eyes in a state of perfect rest is distant vision, as the eye approaches closer and closer, to an observed object, it is necessary to gradually increase its focus, which is done by work or strain in the gray matter cells in the 3rd ventrical. In approaching an object it is also necessary for the eyes to converge towards each other, that both may be fixed on the object simultaneously.

In view of the location of these nerve centres at the base of the brain in continuous close work great brain strain is the result. Looking off in the distance out of doors rests the brain and nerve centres, and this is the effect of the Repression Lenses we use, they have the same effect on the brain and nerve centres as looking off into the distance has, so

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE WAR CORRESPONDENT."

"The War Correspondent," an original three-act English military musical play by Howard Hough and Adams, will be seen in this city at the opera house on Tuesday, January 29th. The play is a funny creation, replete with amusing complications, original musical numbers, pretty girls, handsome costumes and produced by some of the foremost comedy players of the present day. The company, which is a large one, numbers forty people, and carries a carload of special scenic and electrical effects. Plan opens Saturday morning.

Brothers "Played Bear" And Younger Was Killed

NOW ALLEGED THAT YOUNG CLAUDE GODFREY DID NOT SHOOT HIMSELF ACCIDENTALLY, BUT WAS SHOT BY HIS BROTHER.

It will be remembered that, two weeks ago, The Intelligencer published a story to the effect that Claude Godfrey, a 13-year-old son of Marshall Godfrey, living on the Monk road, near Bancroft, had accidentally shot himself with a 22-calibre rifle. It was alleged that the boy was alone in the house, and that his brother, who was out at the barn heard the report of a rifle in the house, rushed in and found his brother lying dead with a bullet in his brain.

It now transpires that the brother, who was said to have been at the barn when the accident occurred, did the shooting. Says the Bancroft Times:

"According to his story he and his brother were "playing bear," and each had a gun. The one which he was handling happened to be loaded, although he claims he did not know it, and when he fired the fatal shot and saw what he had done he ran out to the stable. He is about eighteen years of age, but does not appear to realize his position. He treats the matter rather lightly, and his parents do not seem to be worrying themselves very much. It seems to us that the authorities should make an investigation."

At Sign of the Scales.

AGAIN REMANDED.

Robert E. Fullgeames, who is accused of selling picture frames for Mr. C. R. Ssantlebury of this city, and retaining the money, was brought up before the Magistrate this morning and again remanded for a week.

ASSAULT BY WIFE ON HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Hy. Renfrew was charged with assaulting her husband. The offence was proved and the woman was remanded to jail for some days. It is alleged that the unfortunate woman is not wholly responsible for her actions.

Received Their Savings.

The City Mission was the scene of an unusual occasion on Thursday evening, after the regular week night meeting, when the 28 depositors of the City Mission Savings Bank received their savings of a year, which were deposited weekly, and any amount from one cent could be placed to their credit. A little girl was the highest depositor, drawing $10. It made one's heart glad to note the depositors' anticipating joy and to hear such remarks as:

"Now I shall have a new pair of boots."

"My husband has been ill and out of work, and this money will come in good at this time."

Of course you could hear the usual "If I only had, and how it would have helped us through the winter," followed by "I shall save next summer," etc., etc. All depositors save three or four can at least buy a new pair of rubbers to-day, and all agreed that "a savings bank was a good thing."—Com.

Don't Serve Liquor to Railwaymen on Duty

"Every person who sells, gives, or barters any spirituous or intoxicating liquor to or with any servant or employee of any company, while actually employed in the course of his duty on a train or car, or while in uniform or in connection with the operation of a train or car, is liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding $25, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for a period not exceeding one month, or to both."

The above section of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1906, says the Toronto World, is said to be broken every day in the week by hotelkeepers. In fact, many of the city hotels pay no attention to the law in this regard, for the simple reason that they know nothing of it. The law relating to railways also relates to street cars, and their operatives, and is it not an everyday occurrence for a motorman or a conductor on street railways throughout the province to drop into an hotel while on duty for a drop of something hot?

And not only in the cities but in smaller towns and villages the law is broken at stations and hotels where engineers, brakesmen and conductors are sold intoxicating liquors.

It's up to the liquor seller to watch himself when a railway man enters in uniform and while on duty.

Mrs. Vermilyea's Funeral

The funeral of the late Mrs. A. W. Vermilyea took place this morning. Services were held at the residence corner of Catherine and Coleman streets, conducted by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., pastor of Bridge St. Church. The remains were then taken to the G.T.R. station and conveyed to Newburgh, where the interment took place.

Local Scots Celebrate Bobby Burns' Birthday

Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, last evening fittingly celebrated Burns' anniversary in their hall in the Alberta block. A large number of the members and a few visitors were present, and an evening of rare enjoyment was the result.

The first part of the evening was taken up in the installation of the newly-elected officers of the Camp. To the stirring strains of the pipes the officers were escorted to the chair of the Past Chief, Bro. W. B. Walker, who well performed the installation ceremony. The newly-elected Chief of the Camp, Bro. W. J. Campbell, then took the chair, and, after an appropriate address by him, a delightful programme was carried out. All who took part did well. The programme was as follows:

Songs by Misses L. Leslie, Charlotte Grant, M. Fargey (Winnipeg), Mrs. Wilson (nee Miss Falconer) and Miss Annie Ponton, duets by Miss Harriet and Master John McIntosh; duet by Mrs. Wilson and Mr. John McIntosh, the latter being encored, responded with "Annie Laurie."

Rev. R. S. Laidlaw gave an able and interesting address on "Burns," and Col. Ponton's address on his travels in the Old Land was highly appreciated and in keeping with the sport of the evening.

A bagpipe duet was given by pipers Albert Johnstone and Wm. McIntosh. A sword dance by Mr. A. Johnstone was a pleasing feature, as was also a Highland fling in costume by Mr. Peter McGregor.

Miss Jessie Tuite gave a delightful Scotch recitation with archness and splendid dialectic expression, which was very well received.

Miss Jessie McLean gave some Scottish selections on the piano which showed that she was a capable musician.

At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served.

The following verses, with their happy local allusions and personal touches, were read by Col. Ponton in "due and ample form," and were received with "all the honors":

To the friends and brither Scots—in Camp Rob Roy, Belleville, frae their auld Chief, T. C. Forrester, on St. Andrew's Nicht.

Wullie lad, play up fou weel
And mak yer pipes this nicht reveal
The love o' Scotia's sons for hame,
And country nane can e'er defame.

Major Stewart, bring in the Haggis
O' Puddins a' it still the chief is,
Mak sharp yer knife my kilted chiel,
Last year it wad hae beat the deil.

And Colonel Ponton, tell the story
Anee again o' "Annie Laurie,"
Hoo cheered were Britain's sodgers a',
In Crimean war 'mang driven snaw.

John McIntosh get up and sing,
O' singers Scotch ye are the king,
'Scots wha hae wi' Wallace bled,'
Yer strains wad rouse the very dead.

Brither Campbell, come awa' mon,
Gie us the history o' Loch Lomon,
Some guid tales tell wi' pawky humor,
Or incident o' Scottish valour.
[illegible]
There's Donald and guid brither Clary
And Peter, John and Walker Wullie,
Rise up and mak a merry quorum,
Dance Hielant Fling or Tulloch-gorum.

"He's o'er the border and awa',"
Among the Rockies tapped wi' snaw,
But still the heart o' Forrester burns
For Belleville as this day returns.

Ay, Friends, he's wi' ye a' the nicht,
Ye're in his mind, tho' oot o' sicht,
He'll join again yer social band
For Auld Lang Syne and the Dear Hameland.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Rev. Mr. Drumm will continue his talks at the Y.M.C.A. at 4.15 to-morrow; his topic will be "The Sacrifice Hit." Last Sunday he dealt with "Striking Out." He pointed out that men were not confined to one or even two opportunities in life, and that that comparatively few men seize the best opportunity. They are constantly hitting at and missing the varied curved balls and after a number of opportunities are retired. They have missed the ball! Hear Mr. Drumm to-morrow.

What Cheap Power Means to a Place.

Cobourg World: From the fact that three new banks have opened for business in Cobourg during the past week it appears that the banks of the country realize what cheap power means to a district, and are thoroughly awake to the possibilities before the district in the completion of the plans of the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, organized by the biggest manufacturers in Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton and Belleville, to provide cheap light and power for the lakefront district. Some few years ago cheap power from adjacent waterways was brought into the town of Peterboro. What was the result? A rush of manufacturing concerns into the city that increased the population in a short time by hundreds. Cheap power opened up three new banks in Peterboro within a very short time. From press reports we see that two banks have opened branches in Belleville recently. Belleville capitalists also are showing their interest and faith in the Trent River water powers in a practical and tangible manner. All this points to the same conclusion. Supply a district or a town with cheap power and it is bound to go ahead.

Situation Is Serious In Kingston, Jamaica

GOV. SWETTENHAM TO SAIL FOR ENGLAND—A THREATENED UPRISING — LOSSES VERY HEAVY AND TWENTY-FIVE LEADING MERCHANTS BANKRUPT.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 26. — (Special.) — Governor Swettenham will sail for England within a few days. He refuses either to affirm or to deny his reported resignation.

It is said his requested letter of apology to Admiral Davis has been sent to the British Foreign Secretary, who will forward it to Washington.

Last night the reserves were called out to check a threatened uprising of the blacks when the Governor's relief committee refused any aid except to church members.

The business losses on which no insurance can be collected will exceed $10,000,000.

Twenty-five of the leading merchants are bankrupt, and the resources of the island will be taxed to the limit to weather the storm.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. and Miss Bruce wish to express their gratitude to the friends who showed so much kindness during the last illness and after the death of their lad, Donald.

To-day's Market

The market to-day was not largely attended by either sellers or buyers. Prices, as usual, were rather high for what produce was offered for sale. Poultry was scarce and exceptionally dear, chickens selling quite readily at $1.00 to $1.25 per pair. A few geese and turkeys were offered for sale and brought good prices.

A Rare Combination

for Women

So Says the Doctor about

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets

We never object to showing the formula of Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets to any reliable physician.

We showed it recently to a doctor of many years' experience.

The other day he wrote us a letter. Doctor-like he doesn't wish his name published, but says we may publish the letter. Here it is.

Messrs. B. N. Robinson & Co.,
Coaticook.

Gentlemen,—I have studied carefully the formula for Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women, which you submitted to me, and I am free to admit that it is a rare combination to meet the various diseases to which women are subject, and shows that it has come from one who has mastered the art of healing the diseases peculiar to females.

—M.D.

The doctor speaks truly when he calls the remedy a "rare combination," for that is just what the tablets are.

They combine the very latest remedies for women known to medical science. There cannot be anything better until there are new discoveries in medicine.

If you have been taking the old remedies put on the market years ago, stop it. You can get something better, and the best is none too good for any sick or run-down woman.

In Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women, you will find all that medical science can devise to this date to make you a healthy woman, and you need nothing they do not contain.

They Make Healthy Women.

McINTOSH BROS.

NEW LIBERAL LEADER

Geo. P. Graham, M.P.P., Brockville, by Unanimous Choice.

Editor Accepts With the Condition That Party Throughout Province May Act as They Please—Ontario Surplus Totals $300,000, With Revenue of $7,000,000—Premier Whitney Announces Large Grant to Schools.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—George Perry Graham, M. P. P. for Brockville, was selected by the Liberal caucus of the local House yesterday as leader of the party for the present session.

Mr. Graham's Career.

Mr. Graham was born March 31, 1859, at Eganville, Renfrew County. He is rather over medium height and looks rather distinguished, with silvery hair and the urbane expression of a successful newspaper man. His first counter in the provincial field was against Premier Whitney in Dundas. That was in 1891. In 1893 he went to Brockville to edit and manage The Recorder. Previously he had held newspaper positions in Morrisburg and Ottawa. In 1898 he won the Brockville seat and in 1902 doubled his first majority of 155 votes. In 1905 he lost the advantage, but retained the seat. He has been chairman of public accounts committee and for three months in 1904 followed J. R. Stratton as Provincial Secretary.

"Sunny Ways" II.

Mr. Graham is a good speaker, ready and witty and always good-humored. His reputation in every respect is immaculate. He is a general favorite and with a clear-eyed smile of much sweetness exerts great personal magnetism. He is interested in amateur sport, hockey, lacrosse, baseball, football and rowing claiming him as officer or patron in the Brockville clubs.

He is a Methodist, a Freemason and has been grand master of the A. O. U. W. of Ontario. In 1882 he married Miss Carrie, daughter of Nelson Southworth, Morrisburg, and has two sons. His father was Rev. W. H. Graham of Stormont County, and his mother Eleanor Stephenson, from the north of Ireland.

Among other messages Mr. Graham received congratulations by wire from the Brockville Liberal Association.

Has Premier's Good Wishes.

Premier Whitney on rising in the House yesterday spoke of "his old friend who has become leader of the Opposition. We on this side wish him all the personal comfort and satisfaction and everything he may desire in that respect."

Apart from Hon. G. P. Graham's assumption of the Opposition leadership, and the Premier's announcement of an extra $240,000 grant to rural public schools, there was little noteworthy in the Legislature yesterday. The galleries were sparsely filled at 3.25 when the House opened, and some minutes were occupied with the presentation of petitions against the obnoxious clause 666 in the Municipal Act.

Surplus $300,000.

A preliminary vote on the estimates for $610,000 was passed through committee.

G. H. Ferguson (Grenville) moved that the House "thank his honor for the gracious speech his honor addressed to us." He spoke for 35 minutes and imparted the news that the Government surplus would be over $300,000, the revenue being in the neighborhood of $7,000,000. The prosperity of Ontario had exceeded the expectations even of the Government, and he congratulated them on having lived within their income. He then took up the various topics mentioned in the speech from the throne and discussed them briefly.

A Handicap to Farmers.

Donald Sutherland (South Oxford), who seconded the motion, spoke with greater fluency perhaps, and evidently felt at ease. He paid the usual compliments and proceeded to voice the complaint of the farmers for want of skilled help. They were all handicapped on this account, and skilled immigrants of this class must be encouraged from Great Britain. The Dominion spent $942,000 on this work, and Ontario paid 42 1-2 per cent. of the Dominion revenue. They had a right to some return, and the class of men sent by the booking agents was not what was wanted. He had heard little but approval of the Government school measure of last session; he praised the administration of the colonization roads; declared the County Councils Act had created enthusiasm—(applause)—and waxed eloquent over cheap electric power.

Mr. Graham moved the adjournment of the debate till Tuesday.

Russia Withdraws Its Troops.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—The Russian Government has decided to withdraw its troops from Manchuria immediately instead of awaiting the date, April 15, fixed by the Russo-Japanese agreement. The Governments of China and Japan have been notified of the decision, and of the steps already taken by Russia, assuring the completion of the evacuation at an early date.

TORTURING SCIATICA

A SEVERE CASE CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Fierce darting pains—pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh—in the thigh; perhaps down the legs to the ankles — that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture. But the sufferer need not grow discouraged for there is a cure—a sure cure in Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These pills make new blood, this new blood feeds and strengthens the nerves and frees them from pain. The pain is banished to stay banished—the cure is complete. Mr. Chas. B. Maclean, a prosperous farmer near Brockville, Ont., has been cured of a severe case of sciatica and wishes other sufferers to hear of his cure that they may benefit by his experience. He says: "For upwards of five years I was a periodical sufferer from sciatica. In the morning while getting up I would be seized with agonizing pains in my hips. Sometimes these pains extended down one leg, sometimes down the other; often down both. The pain was terrible. Imagine the agony caused by a red hot spike being driven through the flesh. That was just my feeling when the sciatica was at its worst. Often while carrying water to the horses the pain became so acute I had to drop the pail in the middle of the yard. I followed doctor's treatment but with slight relief. I then tried rheumatic plasters and liniments but these did not help me at all. Then I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. At first they did not seem to help me, but as they had been so highly recommended I persisted in the treatment and gradually noticed a change in my condition. The pain became less severe, I felt stronger and my appetite improved. I think I used the pills about four or five months before I was completely cured, but though that was two years ago, I have not since had the slightest return of sciatica. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a marvellous medicine and so does my wife who used them as a blood builder. She says they have no equal and never wearies of praising them to her friends."

Good blood is the secret of health—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the secret of good blood. That is why they cure sciatica, rheumatism, St. Vitus' dance, heart palpitation, indigestion and the ailments common to women and growing girls. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

AMPLE FOR RELIEF.

Governor Swettenham Cables Secretary of State For Colonies That Relief Funds For Relief Are Enough.

Kingston, Jan. 26.—Governor Swettenham has cabled to the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the provisions received are more than ample for the relief of the destitute, and that no further funds are needed except for the rebuilding of the houses of the lower and middle classes.

ROGER D. STOVEL DEAD.

Traders' Bank Accountant Dies In Jamaica Where He Sought Health.

Toronto, Jan. 26.—A cablegram received yesterday from Jamaica conveyed the intelligence of the death of Roger D. Stovel, for many years connected with the Traders' Bank, and who, with Mrs. Stovel, their little son and Miss Birchall, a friend of the family, left in the latter part of November for Jamaica with the hope of regaining the health of Mr. Stovel. A letter received from the party the day before the earthquake stated that Mr. Stovel was very ill, and a few days later a cable message acquainted the friends of the death of the little boy. Yesterday the simple message, "Roger dead" told the story of the doubly bereaved wife and mother.

Roger D. Stovel was born in Toronto, his mother being Mrs. A. W. Smith of 480 Jarvis street. Brothers are: C. J. of San Francisco, Roy of Seattle, and Rex, also of the U. S. Mrs. Stovel is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Davies, who was for many years principal of the Normal School here. Mr. Stovel was only 34 years old. He had been identified with the Traders' Bank for 15 years, and had risen from a subordinate position to that of assistant accountant in the head office. In the early period of his connection with the Traders' he was stationed in Orillia. He was a noted amateur photographer, and was last year president of the Toronto Camera Club.

MUST PAY FOR PRESTIGE.

Lord Brassey's Reference to Colonial Aspirations re. Treaties.

London, Jan. 26.—(C.A.P.)—At the annual dinner of the Huddersfield Chamber of Commerce, Lord Brassey, referring to the claim of the colonies, that they be consulted in negotiations of treaties, said: "If their claim to a larger share in the direction of imperial affairs be admitted, they must bear at least some part of the responsibility of enforcing the observance of international agreements."

Donald MacMaster at Hawick said he agreed with the German statesman who declared lately that if the Empire adopted Chamberlain's policy the Empire would be born anew. Was it possible the parent nation and her children were so absolutely lost to the inheritance from their forefathers they were incapable of coming round a family table and making a reasonable bargain for the mutual benefit?

Marshall Field's Estate.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—The executors of the estate of Marshall Field yesterday filled in the Probate Court their inventory of the estate. Counsel for the executors place the total value of the property described in the inventory at $75,000,000.

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Elections In British Columbia Cast Their Shadows Before.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—The coming general election in British Columbia casts its shadow before. In the House yesterday afternoon a long debate raged about the Kaien land scandal, and each side accused the other. Formally, the matter came up upon another transaction growing out of an order-in-council of the Dominion Government, by which 10,000 acres of Indian land was granted to the G. T. P.

R. L. Borden severely arraigned the Government.

Mr. Oliver claimed that the Indians agreed and will receive $7 per acre.

The House spent some time in committee of ways and means.

Sir Frederick Borden introduced a bill to amend the criminal code.

COLLISION WITH TROOPS.

Many Persons Injured During Eviction of Seminarists.

Van Ness, France, Jan. 26.—There was a fierce collision yesterday between 500 troops and the populace, led by the Marquis d'Angiade, during the eviction of the seminarists of St. Anne d'Auray.

The crowd cried: "Long live the Prussians!" and in the fight many persons were injured on both sides. The marquis knocked out the eye of a commissary of police with an umbrella. The Marquis d'Angiade was arrested.

Rideau Rink Burned.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—Rideau Rink, the scene of many great hockey matches in the past and the quarters of the Minto Skating Club, was burned yesterday morning to the ice. It was valued at $12,000. Five people in the caretaker's quarters had narrow escapes. The firemen had to go up two flights of stairs to rescue the inmates amid dense smoke and flames. The caretaker stayed behind to get out belongings, and was cut off, so a net was spread and he jumped safely.

Automatic Divorces.

Paris, Jan. 26.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday adopted the bill providing for the automatic granting of decrees of divorce if either party persists in a suit for three years. It was charged that the measure meant the disintegration of society, as it would make the family tie practically dissolvable at will.

More Quakes In New York.

Middleton, N.Y., Jan. 26.—Four earth tremors, distinct and severe enough to cause buildings to tremble and to startle the occupants, were felt in this city and vicinity yesterday.

Pimples Stopped In 5 Days.

EVERY POSSIBLE SKIN ERUPTION CURED IN MARVELLOUSLY QUICK TIME BY THE NEW CALCIUM TREATMENT.

SEND FOR FREE SAMPLE PACKAGE TO-DAY.

Boils have been cured in three days, and some of the worst cases of skin diseases have been cured in a week, by the wonderful action of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. These wafers contain as their main ingredient, the most thorough, quick and effective blood cleanser known, calcium sulphide.

Most treatments for the blood and for skin eruptions are miserably slow in their results, and besides, many of them are poisonous. Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain no poison or drug of any kind; they are absolutely harmless, and yet do work which cannot fail to surprise you. They are the most powerful blood purifier and skin clearer ever discovered, and they never derange the system.

No matter what you suffer from, pimples, blackheads, acne, red rash, spots, blotches, rash, tetter or any other skin eruption, you can get rid of them long before other treatments can even begin to show results.

Don't go around with a humiliating, disgusting mass of pimples and blackheads on your face. A face covered over with those disgusting things makes people turn away from you, and breeds failure in your life work. Stop it. Read what an Iowa man said when he woke up one morning and found he had a new face:

"By George, I never saw anything like it. There I've been for three years trying to get rid of pimples and blackheads, and guess I used everything under the sun. I used your Calcium Wafers for just seven days. This morning every blessed pimple is gone and I can't find a blackhead. I could write you a volume of thanks, I am so grateful to you."

You can depend upon this treatment being a never-failing cure.

Just send us your name and address in full, to-day, and we will send you a trial package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, free to test. After you have tried the sample and been convinced that all we say is true, you will go to your nearest druggist and get a 50c box and be cured of your facial trouble. They are in tablet form, and no trouble whatever to take. You go about your work as usual, and there you are—cured and happy.

Send us your name and address to-day and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 55 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Governor May Resign.

Sir Alex. Swettenham Tenders Resignation to Lord Elgin.

Government Aids People By Remitting All Taxes and Rates For Fifteen Months—Announcement By the Governor Received With Pleasure--Will Encourage the People To Start Re-building--Denials of Yellow American Yarns.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 28.—It is understood that Governor Swettenham tendered his resignation to Lord Elgin, Secretary for the Colonies, a few days ago in consequence of the Admiral Davis' incident and his inability to solve the problem created by the earthquake.

On Saturday the Governor visited the temporary offices of the municipal council and informed the vice-chairman, who is acting in the absence of Mayor Tait, who is injured, that the Government had decided to relieve the people of Kingston from all rates and taxes for fifteen months, beginning Jan. 1.

This announcement has been received with pleasure by the residents of the city, who will be encouraged to start the work of rebuilding as early as possible.

Americans Were Welcomed.

The correspondent of the Associated Press yesterday went on board the Port Kingston to interview her commander, Capt. Parsons, and Sir Alfred Jones, regarding the complaint made by the Americans who returned to New York from Kingston by the Hamburg-American steamer Prinz Eitel Frederich of the alleged ill-treatment accorded them in Kingston between Jan. 14 and 17 by certain Jamaican officials of rank, and specifically Captain Parsons.

The correspondent was told that Americans as well as all other refugees had been welcomed the night of the earthquake, Jan. 14, on board the Kingston. The refugees were put off the steamer the afternoon of the fifteenth, as she was filled to her utmost capacity. Sir Alfred Jones enquired if any among the refugees were destitute. He suggested that the American refugees go over to Port Antonio or Mandeville, the railroad to these points being in operation.

Deny Ill-Treatment of Americans.

At luncheon on board the steamer on Jan. 21, Sir Thomas Hughes, Sir Alfred Jones and Capt. Parsons gave emphatic denial to the statements that Americans had been ill-treated, and Viscount Mountmorris also declared that these complaints were baseless.

Christopher Boylan of 116 Lincoln Palace, Brooklyn, N.Y., and William J. Thompson, who is traveling in the interests of an American packing house, both expressed satisfaction with the treatment accorded them on board the Port Kingston.

The incident is deeply regretted by Sir Alfred Jones, Capt. Parsons and the passengers on the steamer. The Earl and Countess of Dudley, and Arnold Forrester, who came in on the Port Kingston, will leave here for Trinidad next Tuesday.

FIX LIMIT OF BATTLESHIP.

Italy Will Be Supported By Britain and United States.

Brussels, Jan. 28.—According to a special despatch received here from Rome, the Italian Cabinet has decided to introduce at the next peace conference at The Hague a proposal to fix a maximum limit on the tonnage of warships at 16,000, this being the tonnage of the new battleships which Italy is about to lay down.

This proposal, according to this special despatch, is to be supported by Great Britain and the United States, the matter having been arranged between Foreign Minister Tittoni and the Ambassadors at Rome of the two powers in question.

Robbed at Bank Door.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—H. J. Parsons, a pork dealer of Guelph, reported to the police that he was robbed of $200 in cash and cheques as he was leaving the Imperial Bank, Wellington street and Leader lane, at noon Saturday. He drew some money and placed it in his pocketbook, which he put in his inside coat pocket. At the door of the bank he was jostled by two men; when he felt for the pocketbook it had vanished. The only description he can give of the men is that they wore long black overcoats. The missing cheques are on the Toronto, Dominion and Standard banks.

Jap Pressure on Russia.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—The Associated Press learns that the decision of the Russian Government to withdraw its troops from Manchuria immediately, instead of on April 15, the date fixed in the Russo-Japanese Portsmouth treaty, was owing to a veiled request from the Japanese Government, which apparently foresees trouble in the matter of the administration of certain provinces of China.

Castro Not a Dictator.

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 28.—The first public utterance of President Castro since the beginning last August of his present illness, was printed Friday in El Constitutional. In it the president declares he has returned from death's door solemnly to proclaim that he neither is nor ever will be a dictator.

SOCIALIST NET LOSS 19.

But They Have Increased Their Total Vote By 15 Per Cent.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—According to the latest returns of the Reichstag election, held Friday, received by the Wolff Bureau, the Socialists have gained one and lost 20 seats. The clericals have gained two and lost four, the National Liberals have gained nine and lost an equal number, the Radical groups have gained five and lost two seats, the Poles have gained two, the Guelphs have lost three, and the Agrarian and Anti-Semitic groups have gained two and lost five seats each.

The Socialists have entered demands for 75 re-ballots. From these they are not likely to elect 19 members, hence their strength in the new Reichstag probably will be below 50.

The Clericals have demanded about 30 re-ballots and have chances of winning enough seats to retain their full strength in the new House.

The two Conservative parties have demanded 41 re-ballots, the National Liberals more than 50, the Radical groups 45 and the Anti-Semites, the Agrarians, the Poles, the Alsatians, etc., a total of 23. The Socialists probably have increased their total vote nearly from 10 to 15 per cent.

Paris Gloats Over It.

Paris, Jan. 28.—The Waterloo of the German Socialists in the Reichstag elections Friday was quite a surprise to France, and, while Emperor William's victory was not particularly welcome, some of the serious French papers manifest gratification at the check administered to Socialism.

The semi-official Temps regards the elections as evidence that the working classes of Germany are at last turning from the idealism of the Marxists and dogmatic collectivism, with the inevitable class war, toward the attainment of realizable reforms through the Liberal parties.

The Liberte says: "The defeat of the best organized Socialists in Europe marks an interesting step, the defiance of the extreme parties by the people, who are awakening to their true interests."

STRANGE CASE OF CRUELTY.

Young Stepmother Brands Two Girls, Who Made Too Much Noise.

New York, Jan. 28.—Two little children, Nellie, aged 7 years, and Jennie, two years younger, told Magistrate House in the Harlem Police Court Saturday how their mother, Mrs. Kate Gravius, had branded them on the hands with a red-hot stove lifter because, in playing, they made too much noise.

Twice during the recital, the prisoner, a woman of intelligent and pleasant appearance, not more than 20 years of age, fainted. When restored, she admitted that she had burned the children, but said that at the time she was possessed by an unaccountable mania.

The two girls, she said, had been playing with their dolls until the noise and confusion robbed her of her reason. Seizing the stove lid lifter, she pressed the glowing red on the back of the right hand of each child, causing scars that the little ones will carry to their graves.

A peculiar feature of the case was the apparent offection for the children felt by the prisoner. That the attachment was reciprocated was repeatedly demonstrated in court. When Mrs. Gravins lost consciousness, the children wailed in unison.

TE DEUM FOR KAISER.

Pope Pius Orders Ceremony For Protestant Ruler Without Precedent.

Rome, Jan. 28.—Vatican authorities expressed the opinion yesterday that the assumption of power in Spain by Premier Maura at the head of the Conservative ministry, the success of the Centre party in Germany, and the failure of the anti-clerical movement in Italy were significant of the attitude on religious matters of the countries surrounding France, where the anti-clerical movement is triumphant.

It is significant also that the Pope has ordered the celebration of a te deum next Sunday in the Austrian Church here, in honor of the anniversary of the birthday of Emperor William of Germany. Such a ceremony for a Protestant ruler is without precedent, te deums having been sung in the past only on the occasion of the birthdays of Catholic sovereigns.

Another vacancy in the Senate. That stalwart old gentleman the Hon. John Dobson, of Lindsay, who was called to the Senate in 1892, died at his residence in Lindsay on Sunday, 27th inst., about two o'clock p.m., in the 83rd year of his age, having been born in Fermanagh, Ireland, on the 8th of Sept., 1824. Mr. Dobson held many positions of honor in the town in which he has lived for the greater part of his life. He was a typical specimen of a fine old Irish gentleman.

Come to think of it, the vacancy in the Senate is not the one promised to our Thurlow friend. The gentleman whose seat he was promised by Sir Wilfrid is still in the land of the living.

On the death of Senator Kerr, of Cobourg, the Thurlow applicant for the vacant seat, sought and obtained the signatures of every member of the County Council, then in session, recommending his appointment. Don't repeat the indelicacy, until Senator Dobson is buried.

The Toronto News thinks that "an officer who has been thirty-five years in the service and is in his eighty-fourth year should be almost ready to retire." Nonsense, some men at 84 are better than some others at 64. It admits that Sheriff Gillespie "in days not at all recent, has been an active partisan." That's the reason and a good one for his dismissal.

The Laurier party is resourceful, especially in matters of this kind." What a lot of franchise thieves there appears to be.

The sudden death of Hon. G. W. Blair comes as a shock to men of all political parties, because of the position formerly occupied by him as leader of the New Brunswick Liberals, and his character as an able administrator. It is understood that he was entertaining proposals to re-enter political life, from which he retired when he denounced the G.T.P. railway project of the Federal Government. Of exceptional talents and uncommon energy, Mr. Blair's death brings to a close a public career of great activity. His demise is a loss to the country.

A Great Invention.

A Kansas City man has just succeeded in getting a patent on an energy motor fastened on a cow's back the electricity being generated by a dynamo attached to her tail. It strains the milk and bangs up the pail and the strainer. A small phonograph accompanies the outfit and yells "So!" when the cow moves. If she kicks a hinged arm catches the milk stool and lams her over the back.

Sinclair's WHITEWEAR SALE Sinclair's

Jauuary 30th to February 13th

Make Out Your Whitewear List For Next Summer

Now's the best time of all the year to buy Whitewear. This store has made it so. Naturally you would not associate whitewear with this season of the year, and that is the very reason why we do associate the two. For the natural demand being at low ebb, we can secure terms from the Whitewear factories such as you would scarcely believe. Therefore, we sincerely advise you to lay in a full supply now.

Now one other thing about our Whitewear Sales—Sinclair's Sales gives you daintiness as well as low prices, and every garment is cut in a liberal way. No skimping of sizes, nor skamping of workmanship—style, good taste, quality, daintiness and beauty. These are the features about Sinclair's Whitewear Sale that make its low prices distinctive and worth while.

The Speech From the Throne.

The Third Session of the Eleventh Legislature of Ontario was formally opened on Thursday last, and the speech from the throne foreshadows considerable legislation of importance. The programme outlined for the session is rather lengthy and involves measures of moment to the province.

One gratifying evidence of the prosperity of the times and progress of Ontario is that the revenues are largely in excess of the estimates and that there will be a substantial surplus on the operations of the past year.

Another proposition of interest is voiding all possibility of prison labor coming in competition with free labor. Various reforms are suggested and is is probable in this connection that a prison farm will be secured.

The Whitney Government, which has given the province such business-like, progressive and clean legislation since its accession to office two years ago has, among other important measures, passed valuable amendments to the Public School Act providing that teachers in all school sections must be paid fair living wages. The question of text books is now being dealt with and the school book ring, which has flourished so long, will be broken up. School books have been furnished in the past at a large cost to purchasers and great profit to the manufacturers, considering the flimsy character of the binding and material used in the books. As soon as the text book commission makes its report a new arrangement will be made and books will be supplied at greatly reduced cost and the burden on the parents considerably lessened. Other important measures touched upon in the speech from the throne were: Gratitude for the bountiful harvest and the further development of agricultural and commercial activity; Dominion Government's annual payment to the Province to be increased by $800,000; claims advanced by Ontario for new northern territory; better accommodation to be provided in Toronto for handling immigrants; announcement of the successful floating of the Provincial Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway; progress made in the consolidation of the Statutes; but it will not be completed until next year. Certain changes will be announced this session, an additional judicial district will be created in Northern Ontario; a report of the work of the Railway Board will be submitted; satisfactory progress is reported as to the enterprise of procuring cheap power for consumers; the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway will be extended to a point of junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific; a measure for the taxation of mining properties is promised; public is warned against reckless mining speculation and "wild catting."

CHURCH CHIMES OF YESTERDAY.

NOTES OF SERVICES IN BELLEVILLE'S DIFFERENT PLACES OF WORSHIP.

Baptist Church.

At the above church last evening the pastor, Rev. C. E. Emerson, preached a striking sermon, being the sixth in the course on the life of Joseph. Joseph forgave his brethren for the awful wrong they had done him, and there was a lesson in this for mankind to-day. If there is enmity between two men, it is from the man who has been wronged that overtures for reconciliation must come, as they did in the case of Joseph, and in the case of God Himself, who sent His only begotten Son to point the way of forgiveness to a sin-cursed world. No true Christian can treasure enmity in his heart; as he desires forgiveness himself he must forgive others, even as Joseph did his brethren, and as God stands ready to forgive those who will go to Him in the right way.

Emmanuel R. E. Church.

"Safe and Pleasant Paths for Young and Old" was the subject of the sermon last night preached by the Rector, Rev. A. M. Hubly. During the offertory Miss Lillian Hubly sang, very sweetly. "Star of the East."

Christ Church.

The third and last of a series of sermons on "The Bible and the Church" was preached last evening by the Rector, Rev. R. O. Blagrave. His text was from 2nd Thessalonians, 2nd chapter and 15th verse:

"Therefore, brethren, stand fast and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or our epistle."

The Rector was assisted in the service by the Rev. A. L. Geen.

St. Andrew's.

In the absence of the pastor yesterday, who was conducting anniversary services at Warkworth, Rev. J. F. Macfarlane, B.A., of Warkworth, occupied the pulpit, and delivered two discourses which were much appreciated. In the evening his text was from Habakkuk, 2nd chapter and 2nd verse:

"And the Lord answered me and said, Write the vision and make it plain upon tables that he may run that readeth it."

Miss N. Lazier rendered a solo entitled, "Come Unto Me," and in the anthem, "Nearer to Thee," solos were taken by Miss N. Lazier and Mr. C. Pratt.

Bethel Hall.

The interest in the special meetings continues to increase. A large audience assembled last night, and Mr. Crombie spoke from John 3, 16, speaking of God's great love, God's great gift God's great salvation. An after meeting was held, addressed by Mr. Irving, and many were personally dealt with concerning their soul's salvation. Meetings were announced for every evening this week, and on Tuesday evening Mr. Slomans will give an account of his conversion.

Tabernacle.

At this place of worship yesterday morning the Rev. J. P. Wilson officiated. His address was in relation to the superannuation fund of the Methodist Church, and a special appeal was made for assistance in maintaining the same. In the evening Mr. Bruce Hunter occupied the pulpit.

Holloway Street.

The services at Holloway St. were very well attended, the pastor's text in the morning being from Ps. 119, 126:

"It is time for thee, Lord, to work."

In the evening his text was from Isa. 61, 12:

"To-morrow shall be as this day and much more abundant."

Showing, first, the folly of to-morrowism, or procrastination of the highest and noblest obligations. That the vision of the prophet was the voice of a sot to a full cup and a full programme of debauch, forgetful of what must eventually follow, but the same terms may be employed by the saint who invites to the growing pleasures of Christian life and experience in a pathway of usefulness and devotion growing brighter into a to-morrow of eternal happiness and fullest fruition of pleasure forever more. The pastor made feeling reference to the promotion of the Rev. Bro. Steele, who died at church time Sunday morning. The choir sang, "O Come, Let us Worship," the quartette gave "God is Love," and the organ voluntaries embraced an appreciated programme of music.

CHANGING SENTIMENT.

Oliver Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

Goldsmith, in his "Deserted Village," spoke of a certain chapel where those who "went to scoff, remained to pray." So in life one often laughs at what he does not understand and later, when he does understand, his laugh turns to praise. There were some who doubted the merits of Newbro's "Herpicide," the scalp germicide and hair-dressing; but since they have tried it, they are now among its best friends and strongest endorsers. Herpicide kills the germ that eats the hair off at the root, and the hair then grows again. As a hair dressing it is incomparable, try it. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

HOCKEY.

Pace Was Too Fast for the Stone Grinders.

An interesting hockey match took place last Saturday night at the local arena, when the Belleville Portland Cement Company's team met their Waterloo at the hands of the bands of the Grand Trunk septette. The ice was in fine condition, and playing at times was inclined to be fast, but the Cement boys could not stand the pace set for them by the Railroaders, and the result was that they were beaten by the score of 7 to 2. The line-up of the teams were as follows:

Cement Co.		Grand Trunk.
	Goal.
K. Phillips		H. Pringle
	Point.
T. Ford		J. Ford
	Cover-point.

Guelph Means Business.

Guelph Herald; Mr. N. Irving returned from Toronto this morning full of confidence in the ultimate suspension of the whole senior series of the O.H.A. While in Toronto he saw President Darroch and some other officials of the Association and arranged with them on all the proofs he had secured with reference to certain players in practically all the clubs. The material will be forwarded on Monday morning. Among other matters papers will be sent to prove that "Maggie" McGinnis received $35 for one game with Preston while he was playing in Berlin. It will also be shown that Goaltender Cutten received $12 a week while in Berlin. $8 of which was paid by a store-keeper there, the rest by the Berlin Club. Further facts will be adduced with reference to the hold-up worked by Pete Charlton before the last game last season. It is said that he demanded $250 before going on the ice. Whether he got it is not known, but at any rate he has never been in Berlin since. The other proofs in possession of the local men implicate the Peterboro, Galt and Stratford teams. "They are saying that we have nothing," said "Buck," "We'll, we'll show them."

SPORTING NOTES.

Hockey results on Saturday: Peterboro 4, Argonauts 2; Wanderers 11 Quebec 3; Ottawas 12, Vics 10.

Lasker beat Marshall in the first game of their championship series, which began on Saturday.

Alf Smith, Harry Smith, and "Baldy" Spittal, of the Ottawas, were placed under arrest at Montreal on Saturday, a little after noon, for assault, with intent to do bodily injury upon Hod Stuart, Ernie Johnston, and Cecil Blatchford, respectively, Joint High Constable Cinqmars to whom the warrants were entrusted, had arranged that the men would be permitted to come to the court-house and give themselves up, and that bail would be immediately forthcoming, and that was what they did. The accused were admitted to bail in $500 each, to appear in court next Wednesday.

In the Markdale-Owen Sound Junior O.H.A. game at Markdale last Thursday, Cruickshanks, a forward on the visiting team, created a new hockey record. He started a rush in mid-ice, and had acquired considerable headway before being checked by the opposing cover-point. The latter's slash broke Cruickshanks' stick half-way down the handle, but the rubber was travelling along at fair speed, and the Owen Sound player, nothing daunted, kept on going. He guided the disc with the remains of his stick around point, and swerving in towards the net slid it past the net defender for a tally.

There is a rumor in circulation that Arthur Ross, late of the Kenoras, is to figure on the Wanderer team this season. Ross is still in Montreal, and it is said that the Wanderers are talking business with him. Roddy Kennedy has been anxious to drop out of the game completely, and it is not likely that he will figure in any more games here unless as an official. When questioned by a reporter, Mr. Jennings, secretary of the Wanderers, stated that, while nothing definite had yet been arranged, it was quite possible that Ross would play with the team. With Ross in the point position, working with Stuart and Hearn, the Wanderers will have one of the strongest defence divisions in the business.

New Yorkers Have A Graveyard Dance.

New York Jan. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brooks gave a spook party, a ghost dance, a revel of apparitions, in the Hotel St. James. Graveyards yawn, but never for an instant did the Brooks' guests weary of the fun they had.

The drawing-rooms were filled with weird creature clad in white, who might have been driven there in auto-hearses from comfortable cemeteries. The favors in the German were sweet little, toy skeletons. Deathheads whose orbits were illuminated by green electric lights, added to the decorations.

A Hindu palmist, under a canopy of crossbones, foretold pleasing events beyond the Styx.

The climax came at midnight. The lights were dimmed, chains clanked, tortured souls, in cosy corners, shrieked; the ghost dance grew more furious, then——

The costumes were cast off and from their winding sheets emerged lovely women in gay gowns and gallant men in swallowtails.

He Showed Them.

"I want to know," said the attorney for the plaintiff, who was cross examining the witness, "just what the defendant said when my client told him he was a bigamist and that the facts had been found out."

"He didn't say anything," answered the witness.

"Well, what did he do?"

"He acted kind o' hasty."

"I want to know exactly how he acted."

"Want me to show you?"

"Yes."

The witness suddenly reached over, grabbed the attorney by the hair, threw him down on the floor and proceeded to hammer him.

"This is the way he acted," he said, "till the other fellows interfered. Some of you chaps pull me off, will you?"

It was tough on the lawyer, but it won the case for him.—Chicago Tribune.

Just Possible.

"I waited fifteen minutes on the corner for a car this morning," said the landlady as she poured the tea, "and when one finally came along the motorman wouldn't stop for me."

"Had he ever boarded here?" asked the man at the pedal extremity of the mahogany.

"Not that I know of," replied the landlady. "Why do you ask?"

"Oh," replied the other as he continued to saw at his steak, "I thought perhaps he recognized you and didn't want you to board his car."—Chicago News.

In the Arctic Region.

"What's that thing yonder which looks like a barber's pole?" said the arctic explorer.

"That," said the scientist of the expedition, "is only a frozen rainbow."

"Alas," exclaimed the chief explorer, "I took it for the north pole and was about to suggest that we tie the flag to it and go home!"

"You forget," said the scientist, "that we ate the flag for dinner yesterday!" —Atlanta Constitution.

A Sense of Rectitude.

"Our corporation never does anything that I am not perfectly sure is right," said Mr. Dustin Stax.

"How can you be sure?"

"We have a fine staff of lawyers hired to demonstrate that anything we want to do is all right."—Washington Star.

The Bison.

The original home of the bison was in the Great Salt lake valley.

Court Hand.

All legal treatises and documents during the twelfth and two following centuries were written in a very stiff, affected and undecipherable hand called "court hand." It was intentionally illegible that the knowledge of the law might be kept from the common people.

The Italian Alphabet.

The Italian alphabet consists of twenty-two letters similar to the English, omitting k, w, q and y.

Peanuts.

Peanuts are harvested in October. The roots are first loosened by running a plow lightly through the rows. Then the vines are stacked much as the New England farmer stacks beans. The stacks are thatched with straw to keep the water out. Peanuts gathered in wet weather have discolored shells.

Oldest Thing In the World.

Mexican botanists believe they have discovered the oldest thing in the world in a cypress of Chapultepec, the trunk of which is 118 feet in circumference and the age of which is calculated as 6,200 years.

Snakes.

Of all the creatures to be seen at zoological gardens snakes are probably the most easy to ship from one country to another. Snakes take very little room and throughout a long voyage give not the least trouble. They do not require to be fed nor do they require looking after in any other way.

The wife is a laborer in Abyssinia. Wood is sold there by the "woman's load."

Stale Bread.

Bread which has been cut in slices and then allowed to become stale may be freshened by folding the slices in a napkin, putting them and the napkin into a paper bag and placing the bag in a hot oven for a quarter of an hour.

Mountains of the Moon.

The mountains of the moon are immense in proportion to those of the earth. The moon is but one forty-ninth the size of the earth, but its mountain peaks are nearly as high. Twenty-two are higher than Mont Blanc, which is within a few feet of three miles high. The highest is little more than four miles and a half.

Losses to Literature.

The ancient Persians burned the books of the Phoenicians and Egyptians; Romans burned the books of the Jews, of the Christians and of the Greek philosophers; Jews destroyed the Christian and pagan books, and Christians were equally destructive of pagan and Jewish literature.

Effects of Color.

The study of color will be one of the sciences of the future. Experts say that every known shade has its effect on health and character, and the most valuable are the primary hues—red, blue and yellow.

Vinegar on Meats.

Vinegar is seldom used on meats, and yet it might be very wisely, for it has the properties of softening and even dissolving the muscular fiber. Take, for instance, meat that is very tough. Lay it in a deep dish, cover it with diluted vinegar, allow it to stand overnight, and the next morning it will be found as tender as possible.

St. Anthony.

St. Anthony is claimed to have lived to the ripe old age of 105 years on a daily diet of twelve ounces of bread and water.

Rome's Marble Houses.

Most of the so called marble houses of the Rome of Augustus were not such in reality. The plasterer's art had then reached a high state of perfection and gave to stucco the appearance of the finest marble.

A Royal Almoner.

A royal almoner was an ecclesiastic attached to the mediaeval courts who took from the royal table and gave to the poor the first dish that was brought from the kitchen. By common usage it was always a dish of plain meat, with no seasoning. Sometimes special dishes of odds and ends, the leavings of former repasts, were prepared to be brought in first.

Air and Sound.

A tuning fork does not sound in a vacuum because there is no air to convey the vibrations to our ears.

Tarnished Brass.

Brass that is badly tarnished may be cleaned by dissolving in ammonia a small piece of scouring soap. Apply this to the surface with a soft brush and then polish well with chamois skin.

Thames Losses.

There are 8,000 detectives always watching the craft that lie at anchor in the Thames and the docks that line the river banks, and yet in spite of their vigilance thefts to the extent of £40,000 per annum take place on this great tideway.

Ostriches.

Ostriches, like all animals, exhibit interesting qualities strikingly like those of humankind to those who observe their daily actions. When they are sitting the cock takes his place on the nest at sundown and at sunrise is relieved by his wife, who assumes her position for the day. At the end of the six weeks' incubation both birds are miserably thin and weak.

TIMELY TOPICS.

THE COTILLION.

Long ago, when life's fair morning
  Rivalled sunny days in June,
And the air was crisp and bracing,
  And our voices were in tune;
Oft we'd hie where friendly neighbors
  Opened wide their ample doors,
To the dancing youths and maidens,
  For the country-side held scores.

And then "Honor to your partners"
  Called the man in gay attire,
With a waistcoat of black velvet,
  And its buttons bright as fire;
How we bowed to one another,
  With a tiny step a-back,
Even now those faces haunt me,
  As I view the backward track,

"First four right and left," the order—
  Ah, how light we skipped across,
Going thru' the many changes,
  With much pleasure and no loss,
And the fiddler on the platform
  With his foot beat measure true;
And one held my hand, at parting,
  'Neath the skies' soft mist of dew,

Feet that tripped to merry measure,
  In those rose-hued happy days,
Falter now, and almost stumble,
  As we walk the tangled ways.
But our dim eyes look with pleasure,
  On the cottage, and the manse,
Where the youths and maids assembled
  At the merry country dance,

To Annul a Railway Charter.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 28.—Attorney-General Young began mandamus proceedings Saturday in the Supreme Court to compel the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railroad Co. to show cause why its charter should not be forfeited. This company, formerly known as the Minnesota & Pacific Co. is the parent company of the Great Northern Railway Co., and the Great Northern is joined in this issue, as it is the owner of the Manitoba Co.'s stock. Chief Justice Start ordered the writ to be issued, and directed that a return be made on April 2 next.

SENATOR DOBSON DEAD.

Lindsay Mourns For Prominent Citizen—Appointed In 1892.

Lindsay, Jan. 28.—Senator John Dobson of Lindsay died at his residence yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock after a long illness.

Senator Dobson was born in Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1824. He came to America in 1852 and lived for several years at Rochester, N.Y. He moved to Toronto, but in 1862 took up residence in Lindsay, Ont., where he built up a successful grocery and liquor business, and for several terms was mayor of that town. He had been president of the Mechanics Institute, president of the board of trade, and chairman of the board of education. For years a prominent Conservative organizer in his district he was called to the Senate by the Earl of Derby in 1892.

He was a member of the Church of England, and married in 1846 Miss Catharine Graham, who died ten years ago.

Three Years For a Brute.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 28.—Donato Francesco, an Italian, who slashed his fiancee, Mame Conti, in the face with a razor a week ago, received his sentence from Police Magistrate Cruickshank Saturday evening, being three years in Kingston Penitentiary. The cutting was the result of a quarrel over ten dollars that Francesco had advanced the girl for wedding preparations, so said Francesco, though the girl told a different story, and said the man made an improper demand upon her.

Burnham at Sing Sing.

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 28.—George Burnham, jr., former vice-president of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Co., is in Sing Sing Prison, but has not yet been booked. Warden Johnston said yesterday he did not know what work Burnham would be put at.

Miss Beecher Stowe Dead.

Simsbury, Conn., Jan. 28.—Miss Harriet Beecher Stowe, daughter of the famous writer of that name, died here Saturday night, aged 70 years.

IMITATION ANTIQUES

THE WAY CABINETMAKERS CAN COPY ANCIENT FURNITURE.

Curious Inside Information That Was Gleaned by an Inquisitive Visitor at a Little Shop In an English Country Village.

Sober, he is one of the most interesting men I know. Unfortunately he is sober only three days a week. When I ask him the reason he merely says he doesn't know. Yesterday when I walked into the laboratory at the back of his little village shop he was a Band of Hope epitomized.

"There's something you'll like," he said, indicating a small bureau, old Spanish mahogany within, new satinwood veneer—so far unpolished—without. The veneer was inlaid with ebony lines and kingwood bands. The accuracy of the jointing was wonderful, the finish perfect.

"You must come in again when I've stained and polished it," he went on, "and then you'll think it one of the best Queen Anne pieces extant."

"Don't your customers ever find you out?" I asked.

"Lord, no, sir! When you've pulled seventeenth century furniture to pieces all your life and learned the things the tenons and mortises and the finish tell you, it's easy enough to get the right effect. The public hasn't any judgment, and, for that matter, many of the London dealers aren't much better."

"But this veneer—so very new," I hazarded.

"Ah, wait until you see it toned down and the drawers fitted with a set of old Boule handles and scutcheons I've got by me and a few little dents hammered here and there, especially about the feet, where they get kicked. You'll not know it then. See that little black knot I've left on the face of the third drawer? That knot would take in all Wardour street."

He is always frank with me about his fakes. He seems to take a pride in being able to deceive a trained eye and a satisfaction in explaining his dexterity.

I left the bureau and began examining a hoary looking oak settle gray with age.

"Looks ancient, doesn't it?" he observed.

"Looks!" I wondered. "Surely it's genuine?"

He shook his head with a wise old smile. "It's as genuine as dilute nitric acid can make it. Oh, you needn't go by the panels. They're purposely warped with hot ammonia. The sun and rain do the rest—bleach it, you know."

"But the carving?" I argued. "It's almost effaced in places."

"It would be after half an hour with a sand blast, a little thing of my own contrivance. The worm holes I make with a very fine punch. Beginners use shot, but that's a clumsy way. Of course the timbers it's made of are old. They are bits of a Charles I. table mostly. The hinges are ordinary trade copies that have lain in the wet all summer and got nicely rusted, and if you were to draw the screws that hold them you'd find they were rusty, too, and had no points. Those I filed off and then hammered the heads a bit."

"I didn't know you—treated metal as well as timber," I admitted.

"Sometimes. See that fireback?"

I went to the corner indicated and scrutinized the fireback. As far as I could tell, it was a beautiful specimen of hammer work bitten and worn by over two centuries of use, as its date, 1657, seemed to show.

"I bought a dozen of those of different dates from a man who makes them. They're only cast, but after they've had a bonfire over them in my yard for a week or two they get soft and look right enough, don't they?"

I admitted that they did, flinching a bit, though, at the adjective he used.

"There's a regular trade between the manufacturers of faked antiques and the country dealers—more than with the London ones. Why? Well, the manufacturers have discovered that people go into the country districts now hunting for antiques. They think the things they pick up there must be genuine. The simple countryman inspires confidence. There's nothing hardly that can't be imitated," he went on. "It's merely a question of time—and skill, of course—and it's only by accident, or talking as I'm doing, that the fact's discovered. But when a man knows he can take in an expert it's difficult for him to keep it to himself—that is, if he's got a sense of humor. Do you think that Syrian gold work they had at the Louvre would have been known as a forgery if somebody hadn't talked? No, indeed! There's china, now. People always think it's above suspicion, but you just look at those two china cows on the shelf there. One's genuine old Stafford. The other isn't. Can you tell the difference?"

I used a pocket magnifying glass this time, but at the end of several minutes I came to the conclusion that they were identical and said so.

"I gave one and nine for the imitation one, but I can't tell which now," he admitted.

"And the selling price?" I inquired.

"Six guineas each. One of them's worth that. After all, it doesn't really matter, for there's no difference between them intrinsically."—London Mail.

Angelic Temperament.

"He is good natured, is he?"

"Good natured! Why, I have known that man to wear a smiling face when he was speaking of taking off a porous plaster."

A civil guest will no more talk all than eat all the feast—Herbert.

CHAPTER I.

"MY dear madam, what you call heart does not come into the question at all."

Sir John Meredith was sitting slightly behind Lady Cantourne, leaning toward her with a somewhat stiffened replica of his former grace. But he was not looking at her, and she knew it.

They were both watching a group at the other side of the great ballroom.

"Sir John Meredith on Heart," said the old lady, with a depth of significance in her voice."

"And why not?"

"Yes, indeed. Why not?"

Sir John smiled with that well bred cynicism which a new school has not yet succeeded in imitating. They both belonged to the old school, these two, and their worldliness, their cynicism, their conversational attitude belonged to a bygone period. It was a cleaner period in some ways—a period devoid of slums. Ours, on the contrary, is an age of slums, wherein we all dabble to the detriment of our hands—mental, literary and theological.

Sir John moved slightly in his chair, leaning one hand on one knee. His back was very flat, his clothes were perfect, his hair was not his own, nor yet his teeth, but his manners were entirely his own. His face was eighty years old, and yet he smiled his keen society smile with the best of them. There was not a young man in the room of whom he was afraid conversationally.

"No, Lady Cantourne," he replied. "Your charming niece is heartless. She will get on."

Lady Cantourne smiled and drew the glove farther up her stout and motherly right arm.

"She will get on," she admitted. "As to the other, it is early to give an opinion."

"She has had the best of trainings," he murmured. And Lady Cantourne turned on him with a twinkle amid the wrinkles.

"For which?" she asked.

"Choisissez!" he answered, with a bow.

The object of his attention was the belle of that ball, Miss Millicent Chyne, who was hemmed in a corner by a group of eager dancers anxious to insert their names in some corner of her card. She was the fashion at that time, and she probably did not know that at least half of the men crowded round because the other half were there. Nothing succeeds like the success that knows how to draw a crowd.

She received the ovation self possessedly enough, but without that hauteur affected by belles of balls—in books. She seemed to have a fresh smile for each new applicant—a smile which conveyed to each in turn the fact that she had been attempting all along to get her programme safely into his hands. A halting masculine pen will not be expected to explain how she compassed this, beyond a gentle intimation that masculine vanity had a good deal to do with her success.

"She is having an excellent time," said Sir John, weighing on the modern phrase with a subtle sarcasm. He was addicted to the use of modern phraseology spiced with a cynicism of his own.

"Yes; I cannot help sympathizing with her—a little," answered the lady.

"Nor I. It will not last."

"After all," she said, "she is my sister's child. The sympathy may only be a matter of blood. Perhaps I was like that myself once. Was I? You can tell me."

He fumbled at his lips, having reasons of his own for disliking too close a scrutiny of his face.

"That is more than probable," he answered rather indistinctly.

"Then," she said, tapping the back of his gloved hand with her fan, "we ought to be merciful to the faults of a succeeding generation. Tell me, who is that young man with the long stride who is getting himself introduced now?"

"That," answered Sir John, who prided himself upon knowing every one—knowing who they were and who they were not—"is young Oscard."

"Son of the eccentric Oscard?"

"Son of the eccentric Oscard."

"And where did he get that brown face?"

"He got that in Africa, where he has been shooting. He forms part of some one else's bag at the present moment."

"What do you mean?"

"He has been apportioned a dance. Your fair niece has bagged him."

The other young men rather fell back before Guy Oscard—scared, perhaps, by his long stride, and afraid that he might crush their puny toes. This enabled Miss Chyne to give him the very next dance, of which the music was commencing.

"I feel rather out of all this," said Oscard as they moved away together. "You must excuse uncouthness."

"I see no signs of it," laughed Millicent. "You are behaving very nicely. You cannot help being larger and stronger than—the others. I should say it was an advantage and something to be proud of."

"Oh, it is not that," replied Oscard; "it is a feeling of unkemptness and want of smartness among these men who look so clean and correct. Shall we dance?"

"Yes," she said, "let us dance by all means."

Here she knew her own proficiency, and in a few seconds she found that her partner was worthy of her skill.

"Where have you been?" she asked presently. "I am sure you have been away, somewhere, exploring or something."

"I have only been in Africa shooting."

"Oh, how interesting! You must tell me all about it!"

She was watching the door all the while.

Presently the music ceased, and they made their way back to the spot whence he had taken her. She led the way thither by an almost imperceptible pressure of her fingers on his arm. There were several men waiting there, and one or two more entering the room and looking languidly round.

"There comes the favored one," Lady Cantourne muttered, with a veiled glance toward her companion.

Sir John's gray eyes followed the direction of her glance.

"My bright boy?" he inquired, with a wealth of sarcasm on the adjective.

"Your bright boy," she replied.

"I hope not," he said curtly.

They were watching a tall fair man in the doorway who seemed to know everybody, so slow was his progress into the room. The most remarkable thing about this man was a certain grace of movement. He seemed to be specially constructed to live in narrow, hampered places. He was above six feet, but being of slight build he moved with a certain languidness which saved him from that unwieldiness usually associated with large men in a drawing room.

Such was Jack Meredith, one of the best known figures in London society. He had hitherto succeeded in moving through the mazes of that coterie, as he now moved through this room, without jarring any one.

CHAPTER II.

MISS MILLICENT CHYNE was vaguely conscious of success—and such a consciousness is apt to make the best of us a trifle elated. It was certainly one of the best balls of the season, and Miss Chyne's dress was without doubt one of the most successful articles of its sort there.

Jack Meredith saw that fact and noted it as soon as he came into the room. Moreover, it pleased him, and he was pleased to reflect that he was no mean critic in such matters. There could be no doubt about it, because he knew as well as any woman there. He knew that Millicent Chyne was dressed in the latest fashion; no furbished up gown from the hands of her maid, but a unique creation from Bond street.

"Well," she asked in a low voice as she handed him her programme, "are you pleased with it?"

"Eminently so."

She glanced down at her own dress. It was not the nervous glance of the debutante, but the practiced flash of experienced eyes which see without appearing to look.

"I am glad," she murmured.

He handed her back the card with the orthodox smile and bow of gratitude, but there was something more in his eyes.

"Is that what you did it for?" he inquired.

"Of course," with a glance half coquettish, half humble.

She took the card and allowed it to drop pendent from her fan without looking at it. He had written nothing on it. This was all a form. The dances that were his had been inscribed on the engagement card long before by smaller fingers than his.

She turned to take her attendant partner's arm with a little flaunt, a little movement of the hips, to bring her dress and possibly her self more prominently beneath Jack Meredith's notice. His eyes followed her with that incomparably pleasant society smile which he had no doubt inherited from his father. Then he turned and mingled with the well dressed throng, bowing where he ought to bow, asking with fervor for dances in plain but influential quarters where dances were to be easily obtained.

And all the while his father and Lady Cantourne watched.

Behind his keen old eyes Sir John watched Jack go up and claim his dance at the hands of Miss Millicent Chyne. He could almost guess what they said, for Jack was grave, and she smiled demurely. They began dancing at once, and as soon as the floor became crowded they disappeared.

Jack Meredith was an adept at such matters. He knew a seat at the end of a long passage where they could sit, the beheld of all beholders who happened to pass, but no one could possibly overhear their conversation, no one could surprise them. It was essentially a strategical position.

"Well," inquired Jack, with a peculiar breathlessness, when they were seated, "have you thought about it?"

She gave a little nod.

They seemed to be taking up some conversation at a point where it had been dropped on a previous occasion.

"And?" he inquired suavely. The society polish was very thickly coated over the man, but his eyes had a hungry look.

By way of reply her gloved hand crept out toward his, which rested on the chair at his side.

"Jack!" she whispered, and that was all.

It was very prettily done, and quite naturally. He was a judge of such matters and appreciated the girlish simplicity of the action fully.

He took the small gloved hand and pressed it lovingly. The thoroughness of his social training prevented any further display of affection.

"Thank heaven!" he murmured.

The music of the next dance was beginning, and, remembering their social obligations, they both rose. She laid her hand on his arm and for a moment his fingers pressed hers. He smiled down into her upturned eyes with love, but without passion. He never for a second risked the "gentleman" and showed the "man." He was suggestive of a forest pool with a smiling, rippled surface. There might be depth, but nothing had yet reached beyond the surface.

"Well," inquired Jack, "have you thought about it?"

"Jack," said Sir John as they passed on, "when you have been deprived of Miss Chyne's society, come and console yourself with a glass of sherry."

The dutiful son nodded a semi-indifferent acquiescence and disappeared."

"Wonderful thing, sherry!" observed Sir John Meredith for his own edification.

He waited there until Jack returned, and then they set off in search of refreshment. The son seemed to know his whereabouts better than the father.

"This way," he said—"through the conservatory."

Sir John Meredith and his son stood in silence looking around them. Finally their eyes met.

"Are you in earnest with that girl?" asked Sir John abruptly.

"I am," replied Jack. He was smiling pleasantly.

"And you think there is a chance of her marrying you—unless, of course, something better turns up?"

"With all due modesty, I do."

Sir John's hand was at his mouth. He stood up his full six feet two and looked hard at his son, whose eyes were level with his own. They were ideal representatives of their school.

"And what do you propose marrying upon? She, I understand, has about eight hundred a year. I respect you too much to suspect any foolish notions of love in a cottage."

Jack Meredith made no reply. He was entirely dependent upon his father.

"Of course," said Sir John, "when I die you will be a baronet, and there will be enough to live on like a gentleman. You had better tell Miss Chyne that. She may not know it. Girls are so innocent. But I am not dead yet, and I shall take especial care to live some time."

"What is your objection?" inquired Jack Meredith after a little pause.

"I object to the girl."

"Upon what grounds?"

"I should prefer you to marry a woman of heart."

"Heart?" repeated Jack, with a suspicion of hereditary cynicism. "I do not think heart is of much consequence. Besides, in this case surely that is my province. You would not have her wear it on her sleeve?"

"She could not do that; not enough sleeve."

Sir John Meredith had his own views on ladies' dress.

"But," he added, "we will not quarrel. Arrange matters with the young lady as best you can. I shall never approve of such a match, and without my approval you cannot well marry."

"I do not admit that."

"Indeed?"

"Your approval means money," explained this dutiful son politely. "I might manage to make the money for myself."

Sir John moved away.

"You might," he admitted, looking back. "I should be very glad to see you doing so. It is an excellent thing—money."

And he walked leisurely away.

CHAPTER III.

JACK had an appointment with Millicent Chyne at half past 11 the next morning—an hour when Lady Cantourne might reasonably be expected to be absent at the weekly meeting of a society.

Jack went into the first jeweler's shop he saw and bought a plain diamond ring. Then he walked on to keep his appointment with his affianced wife.

Miss Millicent Chyne was waiting for him with that mixture of maidenly feelings of which the discreet novelist only details a selection. When Jack Meredith entered the room she was standing near the window, holding back the curtain with one hand and watching, half shyly, for his advent.

What struck her at once was his gravity, and he must have seen the droop in her eyes, for he immediately assumed the pleasant, half reckless smile which the world of London society had learned to associate with his name. She saw the diamond ring and looked upon it with the beautiful emotions aroused by those small stones in the female breast, but she did not seem to recognize her own finger within the golden hoop.

It was at this moment—while she dwelt in this new, unreal world—that he elected to tell her of his difference with his father, and when one walks through a maze of unrealities nothing seems to come amiss or to cause surprise. He detailed the very words they had used, and to Millicent Chyne it did not sound like a real quarrel such as might affect two lives to their very end. It was not important; it did not come into her life, for at that moment she did not know what her life was.

"And so," said Jack Meredith, finishing his story, "we have begun badly—as badly as the most romantic might desire."

"But it will be all right in a day or two, will it not? It is not serious." she said.

"I am afraid it is serious, Millicent."

He took her hand with a gravity which made matters worse.

"What is to be done, Jack?" she said, laying her two hands on his breast and looking up pleadingly.

"There are two things," he answered. "The first and the simplest," he went on in the tone of voice which she had never quite fathomed—half cynical, half amused—"is to pretend that last night—never was."

He waited for her verdict.

"We will not do that," she replied softly; "we will take the other alternative, whatever it is."

She glanced up half shyly beneath her lashes, and he felt that no difficulty could affright him.

"The other is generally supposed to be very difficult," he said. "It means—waiting."

"Why?"

"Because I am dependent on my father for everything. We could not marry without his consent."

"But we can surely get that, between us?"

"I propose doing without it."

"Do you know what I should like you to be?" she said, with a bright smile and one of those sudden descents into shallowness which he appeared to like.

"What?"

"A politician."

"Then I shall be a politician," he answered, with loverlike promptness.

"That would be very nice," she said, and the castles she at once began to build were not entirely aerial in their structure.

This was not a new idea. They had talked of politics before as a possible career for himself. They had moved in a circle where politics and politicians held a first place, a circle removed above the glamour of art and wherein bohemianism was not reckoned an attraction.

"But," he said, "it will mean waiting."

"I don't care," she answered.

"Of course," he went on, "I must go away. That is the only way to get on in politics in these days. I must go away and get a specialty. I must know more about some country than any other man, and when I come back I must keep that country ever before the eye of the intelligent British workman who reads the halfpenny evening paper. That is fame—that is politics."

"But you must not go very far," she said sweetly.

"Africa."

"Africa? That does not sound interesting."

"It is interesting. Moreover, it is the coming country. I may be able to make money out there, and money is a necessity at present."

"I do not like it, Jack," she said in a foreboding voice. "When do you go?"

"At once. In fact, I came to say goodby. It is better to do these things very promptly; to disappear before the onlookers have quite understood what is happening. When they begin to understand, they begin to interfere. They cannot help it. I will write to Lady Cantourne, if you like."

"No, I will tell her."

So he bade her goodby, and those things that lovers say were duly said; but they are not for us to chronicle.

CHAPTER IV.

IN his stately bedroom on the second floor of the quietest house in Russell square Mr. Thomas Oscard—the eccentric Oscard—lay, perhaps, a-dying.

Thomas Oscard had written the finest history of an extinct people that had ever been penned; and it has been decreed that he who writes a fine history and paints a fine picture can hardly be too eccentric. Our business, however, does not lie in the life of this historian—a life which certain grave wiseacres from the west (end) had shaken their heads over a few hours before we find him lying prone on a four-poster, counting for the thousandth time the number of tassels fringing the roof of it. In bold contradiction of the medical opinion, the nurse was, however, hopeful. Whether this comforting condition of mind arose from long experience of the ways of doctors or from an acquired philosophy it is not our place to inquire. But that her opinion was sincere is not to be doubted. She had, as a matter of fact, gone to the pantomime, leaving the patient under the immediate eye of his son, Guy Oscard.

During the last forty-eight hours Guy Oscard had made the decision that life without Millicent Chyne would not be worth having, and in the hush of the great house he was pondering over this new feature in his existence. Like all deliberate men, he was placidly sanguine. Something in the life of a savage sport that he had led had no doubt taught him to rely upon his own nerve and capacity more than most men do. It is the indoor atmosphere that contains the germ of pessimism.

His thoughts cannot have been disturbing, for presently his eyes closed and he appeared to be slumbering. If it was sleep, it was the light unconsciousness of the traveler; for a sound so small that waking ears could scarce have heard it caused him to lift his lashes cautiously. It was the sound of bare feet on carpet.

Through his lashes Guy Oscard saw his father standing on the hearth rug within two yards of him. There was something strange, something unnatural and disturbing, about the movements of the man that made Guy keep quite still—watching him.

Upon the mantelpiece the medicine bottles were arranged in a row, and the "eccentric Oscard" was studying the labels with a feverish haste. One bottle—a blue one—bore two labels; the smaller one, of brilliant orange color, with the word "Poison" in startling simplicity. He took this up and slowly drew the cork. It was a liniment for neuralgic pains in an overwrought head—belladonna. He poured some into a medicine glass, carefully measuring two tablespoonfuls.

Then Guy Oscard sprang up and wrenched the glass away from him, throwing the contents into the fire, which flared up. Quick as thought, the bottle was at the sick man's lips. He was a heavily built man, with powerful limbs. Guy seized his arm, closed with him, and for a moment there was a deadly struggle, while the pungent odor of the poison filled the atmosphere. At last Guy fell back on art; he tripped his father cleverly, and they both rolled on the floor.

The sick man still gripped the bottle, but he could not get it to his lips. He poured some of the stuff over his son's face, but fortunately missed his eyes. They struggled on the floor in the dim light, panting and gasping, but speaking no word. The strength of the elder man was unnatural—it frightened the younger and stronger combatant.

At last Guy Oscard got his knee on his father's neck, and bent his wrist back until he was forced to let go his hold on the bottle.

"Get back to bed!" said the son breathlessly. "Get back to bed!"

Thomas Oscard suddenly changed his tactics. He whined and cringed to his own offspring, and begged him to give him the bottle. He dragged across the floor on his knees—£3,000 a year on its knees to Guy Oscard, who wanted that money because he knew that he would never get Millicent Chyne without it.

"Get back to bed!" repeated Guy sternly, and at last the man crept sullenly between the rumpled sheets.

Guy put things straight in a simple, manlike way. The doctor's instructions were quite clear. If any sign of excitement or mental unrest manifested itself the sleeping draft contained in a small bottle on the mantelpiece was to be administered at once, or the consequences would be fatal. But Thomas Oscard refused to take it. He seemed determined to kill himself. The son stood over him and tried threats, persuasion, prayers, and all the while there was in his heart the knowledge that unless his father could be made to sleep the reputed three thousand a year would be his before the morning.

It was worse than the actual physical struggle on the floor. The temptation was almost too strong.

For a moment there was a deadly struggle.

After awhile the sick man became quieter, but he still refused to take the opiate. He closed his eyes and made no answer to Guy's repeated supplication. Finally he ceased shaking his head in negation and at last breathed regularly, like a child asleep.

Afterward Guy Oscard reproached himself for suspecting nothing, but he knew nothing of brain diseases—those strange maladies that kill the human in the human being. He knew, however, why his father had tried to kill himself. It was not the first time. It was panic. He was afraid of going mad, of dying mad like his father before him. People called him eccentric. Some said that he was mad, but it was not so; it was only fear of madness. He was still asleep when the nurse came back from the pantomime in a cab, and Guy crept softly downstairs to let her in.

They stood in the hall for some time while Guy told her in whispers about the belladonna liniment. Then they went upstairs together and found Thomas Oscard, the great historian, dead on the floor. The liniment bottle, which Guy had left on the mantelpiece, was in his hand—empty. He had feigned sleep in order to carry out his purpose.

They picked him up and laid him reverently on the bed, and then Guy went for the doctor.

"I could," said the attendant of death, when he had heard the whole story, "I could give you a certificate. I could reconcile it, I mean, with my professional conscience and my—other conscience. He could not have lived thirty hours. There was an abscess on his brain. But I should advise you to face the inquest. It might be"—he paused, looking keenly into the young fellow's face—"it might be that at some future date, when you are quite an old man, you may feel inclined to tell this story."

Again the doctor paused, glancing with a vague smile toward the woman who stood beside them. "Or even nurse," he added, not troubling to finish his sentence. "We all have our moments of expansiveness. And it is a story that might easily be discredited."

So the eccentric Oscard finished his earthly career in the intellectual atmosphere of a coroner's jury. And the world rather liked it than otherwise. The world, one finds, does like novelty, even in death. Some day an American will invent a new funeral, and, if he can only get the patent, will make a fortune.

The world was, moreover, pleased to pity Guy Oscard with that pure and simple sympathy which is ever accorded to the wealthy in affliction. Every one knew that Thomas Oscard had enjoyed affluence during his lifetime, and there was no reason to suppose that Guy would not step into very comfortably lined shoes. It was unfortunate that he should lose his father in such a tragic way, and the keen eye of the world saw the weak point in his story at once. But the coroner's jury was respectful, and the rest of society never so much as hinted at the possibility that Guy had not tried his best to keep his father alive.

Among the letters of sympathy the young fellow received a note from Lady Cantourne, whose acquaintance he had successfully renewed, and in due course he called at her house in Vere Gardens to express somewhat lamely his gratitude.

Her ladyship was at home, and in due course Guy Oscard was ushered into her presence. He looked round the room with a half suppressed gleam of searching which was not overlooked by Millicent Chyne's aunt.

"It is very good of you to call," she said, "so soon after your poor father's death. You must have had a great deal of trouble and worry. Millicent and I have often talked of you and sympathized with you. She is out at the moment, but I expect her back almost at once. Will you sit down?"

CHAPTER V.

"AND what do you intend to do with yourself?" asked Lady Cantourne when she had poured out tea. "You surely do not intend to mope in that dismal house in Russell square?"

"No, I shall let that if I can."

"Oh, you will have no difficulty in doing that. People live in Russell square again now, and try to make one believe that it is a fashionable quarter. Your father stayed on there because the carpets fitted the rooms and on account of other ancestral conveniences. He did not live there. He knew nothing of his immediate environments. He lived in Phoenicia."

"Then," continued Guy Oscard, "I shall go abroad!"

"Ah! Will you have a second cup? Why will you go abroad?"

Guy Oscard paused for a moment. "I know an old hippopotamus in a certain African river who has twice upset me. I want to go back and shoot him."

"Don't go at once; that would be running away from it—not from the hippopotamus—from the inquest. It does not matter being upset in an African river; but you must not be upset in London by—an inquest."

"I did not propose going at once," replied Guy Oscard, with a peculiar smile which Lady Cantourne thought she understood. "It will take me some time to set my affairs in order—the will and all that."

Lady Cantourne waited with perfectly suppressed curiosity, and while she was waiting Millicent Chyne came into the room. The girl was dressed with her habitual perfect taste and success, and she came forward with a smile of genuine pleasure, holding out a small hand neatly gloved in suede. Her ladyship was looking, not at Millicent, but at Guy Oscard.

"Ah!" said Miss Chyne. "It is very good of you to take pity upon two lone females. I was afraid that you had gone off to the wilds of America or somewhere in search of big game. Do you know, Mr. Oscard, you are quite a celebrity? I heard you called the 'big game man' the other day; also the 'traveling fellow.'"

The specimen smiled happily under this delicate handling.

"Mr. Oscard has just been telling me," interposed Lady Cantourne conversationally, "that he is thinking of going off to the wilds again."

"Then it is very disappointing of him," said Millicent, with a little droop of the eyelids which went home. "It seems to be only the uninteresting people who stay at home and live humdrum lives of enormous duration."

"He seems to think that his friends are going to cast him off because his poor father died without the assistance of a medical man," continued the old lady meaningly.

At this moment another visitor was announced and presently made his appearance. He was an old gentleman of no personality whatever, who was nevertheless welcomed effusively because two people in the room had a distinct use for him. Lady Cantourne was exceedingly gracious. She remembered instantly that horticulture was among his somewhat antiquated accomplishments, and she was immediately consumed with a desire to show him the conservatory which she had had built outside the drawing room window. She took a genuine interest in this abode of flowers and watered the plants herself with much enthusiasm—when she remembered.

Added to a number of positive virtues the old gentleman possessed that of abstaining from tea, which enabled the two horticulturists to repair to the conservatory at once, leaving the young people alone at the other end of the drawing room.

Millicent smoothed her gloves with downcast eyes and that demure air by which the talented fair imply the consciousness of being alone and out of others' earshot with an interesting member of the stronger sex.

Guy sat and watched the suede gloves with a certain sense of placid enjoyment. Then suddenly he spoke, continuing his remarks where they had been broken off by the advent of the useful old gentleman.

"You see," he said, "it is only natural that a great many people should give me the cold shoulder. My story was a little lame. There is no reason why they should believe in me."

"I believe in you," she answered.

"It was a very unpleasant business," he said in a jerky, self conscious voice. "I didn't know that I was that sort of fellow. The temptation was very great. I nearly gave in and let him do it. He was a stronger man than I. You know—we did not get on well together. He always hoped that I would turn out a literary sort of fellow, and

STOP WOMAN AND CONSIDER

First, that almost every operation in our hospitals, performed upon women, becomes necessary because of neglect of such symptoms as Backache, Irregularities, Displacements, Pain in the Side, Dragging Sensations, Dizziness and Sleeplessness.

Second, that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, has cured more cases of female ills than any other one medicine known. It regulates, strengthens and restores women's health and is invaluable in preparing women for child-birth and during the period of Change of Life.

Third, the great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time being published by special permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

For more than 30 years has been curing Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and Organic Diseases, and it dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. for advice. She is the Mrs. Pinkham who has been advising sick women free of charge for more than twenty years, and before that she assisted her mother-in-law, Lydia E. Pinkham in advising. Thus she is especially well qualified to guide sick women back to health. Write today, don't wait until too late.

A PUBLIC OFFER.

TO ALL PERSONS IN BELLEVILLE WHO WISH TO GAIN FLESH.

Some people do not need to gain flesh, but many must before health can be restored to a normal condition.

Are you thin? Do you require more flesh to be really well and strong? If you do I want you to commence a course of treatment now with Vinol, and I will agree that if after you have taken what I consider should be enough to restore your normal weight, and it has not succeeded, I will pay for all the medicine you have taken myself.

Now you will agree that I would ruin myself financially if I should make such a bold offer on an article of no merit, and I must know what I am talking about, or I would not guarantee the action of any medicine like that.

A prominent physician recently said: "The best way to gain good, solid, firm flesh is to take Vinol, for in it you get all the curative, flesh-making and strength-creating properties contained in that grand old remedy, cod liver oil, without the nauseating oil itself, and the weakest stomach can retain it. Thin people are usually weak and ailing, and Vinol is what they need."

We know what Vinol will do. You see it acts first upon the stomach, creates an appetite for good, wholesome food, and strengthens and tones up the digestive organs so the food is properly assimilated. Rich, red blood is sent coursing through every vein, solid, firm flesh is created wherever it is needed, and emaciated figures, hollow cheeks and sunken eyes are soon a thing of the past. Vinol makes firm, healthy flesh, and the weak strong, because it strengthens every organ in the body to do its work.

Try it on our guarantee. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

SELECTIONS

NEAR A GAS FAMINE.

New York Had a Narrow Escape In the 1902 Strike.

Few householders in New York city who were buying coal during the great strike of 1902 will ever forget that emergency. It was indeed a time to try men's souls—when no one knew whether the price of coal would become prohibitive the next week or the next month.

People were making all sorts of experiments with fuel—bricks soaked in oil, compressed peat and other things which had never been used for fuel before. The coal men did their best to husband the resources of the city, but as time went on they began to talk of refusing to sell to theaters and other places of amusement and of doling out the remaining supply in such proportions as to meet the need of all who would actually suffer without coal and let the loss fall on people who could stand it. It seemed as if the population were about to be ranged in two camps, the strikers and the struck, the struck being, as usual, the consumer.

In the memories of New York gas men there is an interesting little chapter of unwritten history which has to do with that strike. It never even happened to get into the newspapers, and no one suspected at the time how near the great city was to one of the most terrible crises it has ever known.

At the time of the settlement of the strike there was less than two weeks' supply of coal in the possession of the gas company and no more coal in sight.

Two weeks more and it would have been exhausted.

Four million people would have found themselves facing an unusually severe winter without an adequate supply of coal, without gas and with the price of oil and the price of oil stoves both higher than in ordinary times.

What is more, the order went out to close all sales departments where ranges and gas appliances were sold as soon as the strike assumed a threatening aspect. The men in control of the gas plant realized that if the people who had money to spare rushed to purchase ranges and heaters of all kinds and used gas altogether in their houses there might not be a sufficient supply to see the city through the strike and that every resource of the company must be carefully guarded against a possible period of actual famine. That this care was justified is shown by the fact above stated—that even with every possible precaution the available supply of coal would have been made to last only two weeks.—Gas Logic.

California Gallantry.

They tell me the story of a well known gentleman of San Francisco who, charging through all the smoke and flames and litter on the first day of the terror, came upon a fashionable lady of his acquaintance trudging along the middle of the street in her bedroom slippers, with a window curtain thrown over her shoulders. He stopped his automobile to offer her his assistance, explaining at the same time that the auto was all he had saved out of the wreck, and even that had been commandeered by the soldiery.

"I, too, have lost all," she sighed.

"All but your beauty," said he, with a courtly bow.

"And you all but your gallantry," she retorted, smiling.—Sunset Magazine.

The Metric System.

The greatest victory won for the metric system of an English speaking country within a generation was recorded of the metric standard in the great manufacturing works of Kynoch, limited, at Birmingham, England. This step will revive the hopes of the friends of reform in weights and measures and intensify the struggle between the meter and the inch. The significance of the event lies in the fact that this firm is one of the first, outside of a strictly limited field, to abandon the old standards and to attempt to overcome the apparently insurmountable obstacles to the change.

The Gielen Collection.

It is reported from Brussels that Joseph Gielen's collection of manuscripts and miniatures, often admired in art exhibitions, has been presented by the owner to the Royal library of Brussels. Among the precious "livres d'heures," illuminated by Flemish artists of the fifteenth century, is the prayer book of Marie Leszczynska, the wife of Louis XV. of France, for which 25,000 francs was once offered. The illustrations in the book were made by the painter Rousselet.

The Kaiser's Dish.

Escoffier, a famous French chef, who was the German emperor's favorite cook on his cruise last summer, tells a Paris reporter that the emperor eats more at breakfast than at dinner and that his favorite dish is chicken stuffed with tomato and paprika dressing. Every chicken served at the imperial table bears on its breast the imperial crown and eagle made of stiff white sauce.

Isolation of Nicholas II.

The czar lives alone, with the czarina and their children, in a little maisonnette at Peterhof, apart from the immense palace. It is the house of a bourgeois on holiday, quite isolated under great trees by the seashore. No guard is visible. Thus the master of Russia lives retired from his empire and even from his court.—Revue de Paris.

CLERKS' HOURS IN GERMANY

An Effort to Do Away With the Long Midday Interval.

A discussion is going on in commercial circles in Germany regarding the respective merits of the English and German systems of arranging the hours of work in banks, company offices and big business houses.

It has always been customary in Germany for clerks and accountants and all workers of this class to begin work considerably earlier than is the case in England and to terminate work in the evening much later than is usual in London. Work begins in German offices, as a rule, at 8 o'clock in the morning and is frequently not concluded before 8 o'clock in the evening. Partial compensation for the early beginning and late termination is obtained by taking a two hours' pause at midday, but even with this break the total hours worked in German offices considerably exceed those in English offices, especially as a half holiday Saturday is still an exceptional arrangement in Germany.

An agitation is now going on for the abolition of the long midday interval and of the introduction of the hours of work usual in English offices. Many German business men, however, resist the innovation and persist in maintaining the old fashioned system.

Many German stockbrokers, company directors, directors of banks and captains of industry adopt a curious arrangement by which they dine at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and afterward return to their offices from 6 till 8 o'clock in the evening.

Those Germans who have practical experience of office work in England are unanimous in declaring that English clerks do just as much in six or seven hours as German clerks in nine or ten hours and advance this as a strong argument in favor of the general adoption of the English hours of work in offices.

A few of the big banks in Berlin have already got as far as a working day of eight hours, from 9 o'clock in the morning till 5 o'clock in the afternoon, with two hours less Saturday, when they close at 3 o'clock.—Berlin Letter in London Standard.

Electricity In the Home.

In a $3,000 or $4,000 house it is a very common matter to wire for electric lights, but by giving the subject a little further attention with your electrical contractor and the architect it is possible to arrange outlets for lighting socket heating devices at very little extra expense. Such receptacles would be taken off from the lighting wires in a very simple manner. The cost of operating later at lighting rates would not be large, for the reason that the electrical devices which will be used on such a circuit consume only a small amount of electricity and are generally used for only short intervals. They would comprise, for example, the chafing dish, the coffee percolator, heating pad, cigar lighter, shaving mug, curling iron, baby milk warmer, small frying pan and many others.—Cassier's Magazine.

A Bale of Cotton.

In order to see how far a certain bale of cotton was shipped before being manufactured into goods W. H. Parks, Jr., of Ennis, Tex., placed a note in a bale which was shipped in the autumn of 1905 asking the person who finally received and opened it to write to him and tell him where the cotton was used and what price was paid. The bale traveled many thousands of miles, as is shown by this letter, which Mr. Parks received recently from Reval, Russia, which is situated on the Baltic sea:

> Reval, Russia, Aug. 23 (Sept. 5).
> The bale of cotton in which your letter and blank memorandum were found was received at the Baltic mill, Reval, Russia, via Bremen, bought from Gebruder Fritze of that city at 6.3d. a pound.

A Tree Freak.

A rare proof of the vitality of certain trees is offered by a poplar in the village of Gunten, on the Lake of Thun. When, about twenty years ago, a fountain was placed before the post-office building of that place the builders used for a shank and girder of the water conduit a young poplar trunk which they drove into the ground and in which the pipe was inserted. After a short time the trunk began to throw out shoots, and today it is a tall tree, with heavy foliage. The water pipe is now completely overgrown, and it is a strange sight to see a jet of water stream forth from the interior of the uninjured tree.

Chinese Pirates.

When Chinese pirates are caught and convicted they speedily pay the penalty of their crimes. A newspaper of the far east publishes this bit of news: "Seven of the pirates who took part in the attack on the river steamer Sainam were beheaded in Canton. The prisoners were brought on to the ground in baskets, from which they were immediately released. They were then made to kneel in a row. Promptly on the stroke of 12 the executioners took up their positions in front of the doomed men and cut off their heads in very quick succession, to the accompaniment of loud shouts from the Chinese spectators."

Balloon Ropes.

A New York concern has begun the manufacture of a specially made rope for balloon purposes. One prominent aeronaut has given it an order for 60,000 feet. Heretofore these explorers of the faithless upper regions have been compelled to import the rope needed for their excursions. The kind now being made in America is hand spun from the finest Italian fiber and laid up with the utmost care so as to produce the greatest possible tensile strength with a minimum weight.

Come Join Me In This Honest Way To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining Properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity —man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in, all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once, if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better, I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

Copyright 1906 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

that the result of wearing these lenses is that they enable one to do much more brain work, but at the same time rest the brain from the strain brought about by close work, and the ordinary glasses generally increase this strain by giving clearer vision. This is why so many chronic nervous diseases have been relieved and cured by these glasses, cases of St. Vitus' dance, partial paralysis, partial deafness, shaking palsy, kidney and stomach, and nervous diseases of long standing. We also cure stammering and many other nervous diseases by this system. The testimony of a leading American specialist before a large Optical Association recently, was that he had accomplished better and more satisfactory results in the cure of heretofore "incurable" diseases by this system in the past year than he had in all his previous twenty years practice.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET AT ALBERT COLLEGE.

WAS THE BEST IN THE COLLEGE'S HISTORY — DAINTY MENU, SPLENDID SPEECHES, AND A RECORD ATTENDANCE.

This is to be a memorable year in the history of Belleville's oldest college, the one that crowns the northern hill: Albert. For in July next the first half-century of its useful life is to be celebrated with great acclaim. Hundreds of its ex-students, from near and far, will be here to participate in the notable and joyous event, and doubtless our civic authorities will leave nothing undone to mark what it has meant to Belleville to have had so succe[illegible] educational institution e[illegible] re.

Whe[illegible] opened in September [illegible] students, in being welco[illegible] [illegible]nded that 1907 was [illegible] [illegible]kable year, and were [illegible] on being members of [illegible] at this epoch in its hi[illegible] [illegible] faculty and students [illegible] July reunion up [illegible] much, and in the [illegible] ly, and have resolved [illegible] function of the year [illegible] its predecessors.

[illegible] where was, that the annual ban[illegible] Friday evening was [illegible] the best that has been. The large dining-room was filled to overflowing, so much so that some could not be admitted. The entry of the students with military precision was admired, the movements of the trained body of attendants was noted with pleasure, and so admirably had every detail of the function been prearranged that there was not a hitch from beginning to end. It would not be possible to praise too highly the nine-course menu; no wonder the ninety minutes devoted to it sped all too quickly. This is where Miss MacBrien, the directress of the Domestic Science department, and her classes "proved to a demonstration" the quality of their end of the college curriculum.

Leaving aside the culinary department, the Committee of Management was composed of Prof. Dan A. Cameron, chairman; Miss F. M. Thorndyke, secretary; Misses MacBrien, Phillips, Dawson, Doxsee, Pettingill, Messrs. Hunter, Griffith, Wheeler, Clark, Perkins.

If to-day they hold their heads at a higher angle than ordinary they are entitled to do so, for it cost "brain sweat" and "midnight oil" to so well arrange everything.

After (in imagination) "the tables had been cleared," the Rev. Principal Dyer requested Mr. Wm. Johnson to be chairman and Mr. Henry Pringle vice-chairman, and the following toast list was proceeded with:

"The King."—Responded to by Mr. Johnson.

"Canada and the Empire." — Response by Prof. Bach.

"Alma Mater."—Responses by Miss Gardiner and Dr. Dyer.

"Graduating Class."—Responses by W. B. Benn, Miss M. Dawson and Mr. J. Goddard.

"Freshettes and Freshmen."— Responses by Mr. E. C. Hawley, Miss E. Dawson and Mr. R. A. Piper.

"College Societies."— Responses by Mr. S. Wheeler, Miss H. Pettingill and Mr. J. Bruce Hunter.

"Our guests."—Proposed by Prof. A. B. Fennell; responded to by Mr. Wm. Johnson, Mr. H. Pringle and Mr. James Dyer.

The responses to the toasts, except the first and last ones, which were impromptu, evidenced careful preparation by the young ladies and gentlemen, and were so well rendered as to call forth hearty plaudits.

During the three hours of the "feature of reason and flow of soul," "The National Anthem" and "The Maple Leaf" were sung by the audience: Mr. J. S. Dyer and Miss Thorndyke rendered vocal solos; Miss Baker, a reading; Miss Thompson and Miss Lavoie, piano solos.

The original vocal selections by the Girls' Glee Club and the Troubadours, a male organization, abounding in local hits, were clever productions set to catchy music.

The delightful and memorable evening terminated with a promenade.

Chicago Has Fatal Explosion To-day

Chicago, Jan. 28. — A terrific explosion occurred this morning at the Armour packing house in this city, and as a result a number of lives were lost and many were injured. A large vat of ammonia exploded causing the destruction. Considerable damage was done to the building where the vat was situated and also to surrounding buildings.

Rev. T. B. Steele Has Gone to His Reward.

There died yesterday, Rev. T. P. Steele, a Methodist minister recently stationed at Canifton, where his health failed about a year ago. After visiting Clifton Springs and Gravenhurst, he, with the family, retired to a residence west of the city on the 2nd con. of Sidney. Yesterday death came and relieved the patient sufferer, whose end was triumph and peace.

The Rev. Mr. Steele was born in Markham Township, York Co., in 1850. He entered the ministry in 1878, continuing in active work for twenty-eight years. Some of his circuits were Ameliasburg, Castleton, Fenelon Falls, Huntingdon and Canifton. He was a faithful pastor and friend, beloved by his people and his brethren.

Rev. Mr. Steele leaves a wife,—the second daughter of the late Wm. Anderson, of P. E. Co., and sister of Mrs. (Rev.) McCauley. Two daughters and two sons survive. Mr. Steele's mother also survives him at 83, also four sisters and three brothers who mourn his loss.

An Announcement.

We call attention to the advertisement in another column of the United Empire Bank of Canada, which will commence business to-morrow morning in their temporary office on Bridge St., a few doors west of the former office of the Sun & Hastings Company. More suitable premises are being procured, which will be fitted up with all the modern appointments and appliances of an up-to-date banking establishment. We predict for Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, the experienced manager, his full share of success.

Painful Accident

Mrs. Joseph Lutton, who resides on George street, last evening, whilst proceeding to Christ Church, met with a painful accident. She was walking up the footbridge gangway when she fell in such a manner that her right wrist was broken. As soon as possible the injured lady was taken home and the fracture reduced.

FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Rev. T. P. Steele, will take place from his late residence, 2nd con. of Sidney (near city), on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Services at Holloway Street Church, at 2.30.

Men's judgments often make a blunder, but their conscience never

Many Killed In Fire At Buffalo.

COLUMBIA BUILDING, VALUED AT $250,000, BURNED THIS MORNING.

Buffalo, Jan. 28. — (Special.)—The Columbia building, at 103-107 Seneca street, extending through to Carroll street, an eight-story power building, was burned this morning about 9.13 o'clock.

Two engine companies are buried by collapsing walls.

It is feared many men were killed.

At 10 o'clock four of the men were taken out of the ruins alive, and at 10.05 another man was taken out alive.

At that time it was said, five other men were in the ruins.

The Columbia building was valued at $250,000, owned by The Josiah Jewett estate, and pretty well insured.

The tenants consisted mainly of candy manufacturers, book-binders, jewelry case companies, and printers.

LATER. — At 1.15 o'clock this afternoon Chief McConnell said Lieut. Naughton and Pipemen Henkey and Meegan were still in the ruins.

Holocaust In Germany.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—(Special.) — One hundred and sixty-five lives were lost in an explosion to-day in a mine at Rhoden, near Essen.

LATER. — It is feared nearly 250 lives were lost.

One hundred and sixty-five mutilated bodies already have been lifted from the shaft. It is known that 110 men are still in the mine and it is feared all have perished.

Died At Ivanhoe.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. B. Rowe, a resident of Hastings County for over 30 years, passed away at her home at Ivanhoe after an illness of one week from tuberculosis. Deceased, whose maiden name was Lilian Gertrude Blakely, was born in Madoc township. In religion she was a Methodist. She is survived by her husband, an infant son, Earl Grey, nine days old, two brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Herbert and William, of Madoc township. The sisters are Mrs. R. K. Nickle, of Madoc, and Miss Annie, of Rochester, N.Y. The funeral was held on Monday, Jan. 21st, at one o'clock, service being conducted by Rev. J. A. Connell, of Eldorado, after which the remains were interred in Fox's cemetery, Madoc township. The pall-bearers were Hector and John Wood, John Fleming, Sam Rolins, Charles Mills and Thomas Tummon.

Former Resident Dies In Rochester.

Word was received in the city today announcing the death of Mrs. Harry Lazier, which occurred yesterday at St. Luke's hospital, Rochester N. Y. The cause of death was an attack of diphtheria.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Miss N. Cole, was known to many in this city, where she resided for some time. Mrs. Lazier was a young lady, and had been married but a few years. Her parents at present live in the city. Owing to the nature of the disease, the remains cannot be brought here for interment. In addition to the husband an adopted child survives.

A Small Flood.

RESIDENTS OF LOWER PART OF CITY HAD TROUBLE ON SATURDAY.

On Saturday, especially during the afternoon, a number of residents living on the lower part of Mary, Colborne, and Dundas streets, near Holton's mill, were considerably inconvenienced by high water. About some of the houses there was upwards of two feet of water, which filled many cellars.

The trouble was caused by continued cold weather, which caused the anchor ice to come down the river in large quantities.

The water did not overflow along where the revetment wall is built on the west side of the river, but the overflow came through Mr. Allen's coal yard and through Mr. Holton's mill yard.

The authorities were soon made aware of the trouble and everything possible was done in the way of assistance. Lumber and scantlings were used to make, in some cases, an elevated walk, so that residents who were compelled to get out for necessaries could do so.

His Worship the Mayor and Ald. Panter, chairman of Public Works, were upon the scene, rendering what assistance they could.

During Saturday evening the weather moderated somewhat, and as a consequence the water lowered. Yesterday many were skating about the streets and vacant lots which were flooded.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

TO-MORROW NIGHT.

"The War Correspondent," a new three-act English military musical play, comes to the opera house on Tuesday, January 29th. The characters in this delightful success, termed "the show with music," are all consistently drawn and interpreted by one of the best companies on tour this season. The company, which includes some forty members, is composed of some of the most prominent and successful farce players in America. The chorus has been selected with regard to musical ability, as well as to the personal appearance of its members, and comprises twenty of the most beautiful show girls ever brought together.

PREVENTED WIFE'S RESCUE.

Negro Holds Off Neighbors While She Is Burning to Death.

Gulf Port, Miss., Jan. 28.—At Seria City William Smith, colored, was Saturday night arrested charged with having burned to death "Pinkey" Tigg, with whom he formerly lived.

Neighbors were prevented from rescuing her by Smith, who stood guard.

The dead woman is thought to have been tied.

She continued to scream for help until the flames reached her.

Judge Roasts John Burns.

London, Jan. 28.—Justices Darling and Phillimore, in the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, Saturday refused to commit John Burns, president of the local Government Board, for contempt of court in publicly commenting on statements made by a London newspaper for which it was being sued for libel by members of the London County Council. The justices, however, said the speech was "very unusual and regrettable," and they could not "recall a previous instance where a Minister of the crown had thought it consistent with his public duties to take sides in a litigation before the courts."

Schooner Crushed by Icefloes.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 23.—The British schooner Robin, laden with fish for Lisbon, Portugal, was crushed by the icefloes off the northern coast of Newfoundland Friday night. The crew of the Robin were saved.

The mailboat Portia was obliged to abandon all efforts to reach ports on the northern seaboard because of the ice-pack.

The west coast of Newfoundland also is blockaded with ice from the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Warrant Against Brantford's Mayor.

Brantford, Jan. 28.—A big municipal sensation was sprung here Saturday afternoon, when A. G. Montgomery, one of the defeated candidates in the recent mayoralty contest, took out a warrant before Police Magistrate Woodyatt, charging Mayor Bowlby with publishing defamatory libel on Dec. 28 last. The circular reflects on the personal character of Montgomery. Mayor Bowlby has denied all knowledge of the circular.

Tariff May Teach.

London, Jan. 28.—(C. A. P.)—The Financial News lengthily discusses the Canadian tariff and says the most important change is the introduction of the intermediate scale. History shows that the operation of tariffs is a singularly uncertain quantity, and the changes made in the new tariff may therefore result in a good many things of which there is yet no inkling.

Winnipeg Gets Coal.

Winnipeg, Jan. 28.—With fairly large receipts of fuel on both railways the local fuel crisis is not so critical, and if the present shipments are kept up for the next two or three weeks the city will be entirely free from any danger of shortage for the time being.

London Shivers, Coal Costly.

London, Jan. 28.—The cold is severe, and, to increase the sufferings of the very poor, coal has risen to a price higher than has been known since 1880. Indeed, for coal sold in the streets in small quantities of a quarter and half hundredweight, poor people have to pay at the rate of $11.04 a ton.

CUT OFF BY THE FLAMES

Five Operatives of a Dover, New Hampshire, Mill Dead.

Exits of Burning Mill Blocked By Employes and Many Jump From Windows—Four Bodies Charred Beyond All Hope of Identification—Flames Spread Very Rapidly—Fatal and Other Accidents.

Dover, N. H., Jan. 28.—A fire which occurred here Saturday cost the lives of five young mill operatives, and caused a property loss of half a million dollars. The fire destroyed Dover's largest factory building, known as Mill No. 1 of the Cocheco Manufacturing Co.

The bodies of four of the boys, charred beyond all hope of identification, were found in the smoking ruins.

Six operatives were injured. Several of these were hurt while saving their lives by climbing down ropes, one end of which they had tied to machinery.

The fire broke out not long after the 500 or more operatives had assembled for their day's work.

The exits presently became blocked by a struggling mass of mill hands. On the fifth or top floor the operatives were mostly boys. It was there undoubtedly that those whose bodies were found lost their lives.

The flames spread so rapidly that several jumped without hesitation from the windows, and suffered broken limbs.

TWELVE MINERS KILLED.

Cave-In Follows Explosion and Many Others Narrowly Escape.

Weston, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Five American and seven Italian miners are known to be dead as the result of an explosion of fire-damp in the Pennsylvania Co. Mine at Lorentz, W. Va., near Buckhannon, W. Va.

Immediately following the explosion, the mine caved in, almost causing the entombment of all the other miners, estimated at one hundred. The bodies of the 12 dead men have been recovered.

CAR CARRIED A SQUARE.

Struck By Train Running 40 Miles An Hour—One Killed.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 28.—A street car was struck at the Third street crossing late Saturday by the eastbound Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis (Big Four) limited. Before the train could be stopped the car was carried nearly a square. It was demolished.

Miss Lillian Huber was killed and sixteen other passengers seriously hurt, two of whom will probably die. The two probably fatally hurt are Prof. Mercer, assistant principal of public schools of Dayton, and Mrs. Frank Ramby, mother of Assistant Fire Chief Ramby of this city.

The train was running at the rate of forty miles an hour.

FROZEN TO DEATH IN SHACK.

Port Hope Resident Victim of Cold While Intoxicated.

Port Hope, Jan. 28.—A deplorable case was brought to the attention of the authorities Saturday night, when the body of Robert Ferguson, a lifelong resident of Port Hope, about 40 years of age, was discovered frozen to death in his miserable shack.

The unfortunate man was a victim of drink, and evidently retired some time Friday night in an intoxicated condition. The shack was shared by a companion named Hill, who did not discover the body until early in the evening. It was lying partly out of bed, as if the unfortunate fellow had been trying to get up.

Killed While Drunk.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 28.—J. Crozier, an Englishman, an employe of the Starr Coal Co., was killed Saturday night. He knocked off work at noon, got drunk, and in the evening returned to the wharf at which a coal steamer was lying. Shortly after he fell over and struck the ship's fender, 20 feet below. He was only in the water two minutes, but the blow on the fender crushed his skull.

SEES HIS BOY KILLED.

Lorry Upsets and Boy Is Crushed Beneath Packing Case.

St. Catharines, Jan. 28.—A lorry while descending the Western Hill with a heavy load of freight, Saturday afternoon, capsized and a lad named Prince Hallett, about 10 years of age, who was riding on the load, was crushed to death by a packing case which fell upon him.

Howard Phills, the driver, was badly hurt.

Henry Hallett, father of the lad killed, was following with another lorry, and witnessed the accident.

Killed by a Train.

Chatham, Jan. 28.—Early yesterday morning members of a section gang found the mangled body of Joseph Deary, about 40 years of age, beside the Grand Trunk tracks about five miles west of this city. He was a sailor on lake boats, but during this winter lived with a farmer about a half dozen miles from here.

Boy Killed At His Play.

Rodney, Jan. 28.—About 12.30 p.m. Saturday, George, youngest son of George H. Katzenmeir of Rodney was killed while crawling underneath an M. C. R. train which was standing at the station. Being unnoticed by the crew, the train was backed down over him, almost cutting off both his legs. He died almost instantly.

Two Men Suffocated.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—John C. Cromier, coachman, of Amherst, N. S., and William Douglass, stable boy, of Cheshire, England, were smothered to death early yesterday morning from a fire which broke out in the stables of Wm. Cook, 400 Elm avenue, Westmount. Four horses were also suffocated.

DODDER AND CATCHFLY.

Harmful Seed Adulterants Imported by the U. S. From Canada.

Washington, Jan. 28.—With a score of small bottles before him, containing seeds of various grasses, Representative Mann of Illinois made a speech in the House Saturday about "Seed Adulterations."

He said that the Canadian Government permitted the exportation of two of the best known adulterants, dodder and catchfly, and dilated upon their characteristics.

He said that of 352 samples of alfalfa seed purchased in the open market, 160, or nearly one-half, were found to contain dodder seed. Of 521 samples of red clover seed obtained in the same way, 116, or over 22 per cent., contained dodder seed.

Mr. Mann said that two samples of red clover seed, representing about 10,000 pounds, recently imported from Canada, were all practically the seed of catchfly, one of the commonest and worst clover weeds in the Dominion.

He made the direct charge that a large proportion of [illegible] grade seed, containing weed [illegible] ead seed, offered for sale [illegible] States, is imported fro[illegible] Canada. "Canada," he [illegible] strict seed inspectio[illegible] ng the sale in that co[illegible] containing any of a [illegible] ohibited weed seeds. T[illegible] ver, contains a clause [illegible] the exportation of the [illegible] seeds. If a law could [illegible] will prohibit the im[illegible] interstate commer[illegible] aining weed seeds and [illegible] good can be done."

KING DISSOLVES [illegible] ARLIAMENT.

Early Submission of [illegible] Between Church and State.

Madrid, Jan. 28.—King Alfonso Saturday issued a decree suspending the sessions of Parliament, as it had become evident that Senor Maura, the Conservative leader, who found a Cabinet Friday, with himself as Premier, could not command a majority in the chambers.

An early submission of the issue between church and state to the people, through a dissolution of Parliament and new elections, is the only means of clearing up the situation. The Clericals and Reactionists are jubilant, as the mere fact of the Conservatives being in power will give them a great advantage at the polls.

Admits Being Read Out.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—Armand Lavergne, M. P. for Montmagny, confirms the report that he has been read out of the Liberal party, bag and baggage, and that Sir Wilfrid Laurier officiated in person at the ceremony of political excommunication. It is also understood that the patronage will be exercised in future by the local member for the county, Mr. Roy.

Killed His Brother-In-Law.

Port Arthur, Man., Jan. 28.—A man named Vesta has died as a result of a blow on the head, struck by his brother-in-law. The latter, whose name is Frank Vesta, is under arrest.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A PLEASANT, SIMPLE, BUT SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR IT.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs, and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and Fruit Acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but to-day I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation, as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of Stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

FRIENDSHIP OF THE U. S.

Of Especial Value to Great Britain, Says Mr. Bryce.

New British Ambassador to Washington Regards Ottawa Speech of Secretary Root as an Admirable Omen for Future—Would Introduce Radical Reforms in the House of Lords—Irish Problem.

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 28.—James Bryce, the ambassador to the United States, and Mrs. Bryce, were given a farewell dinner at the Reform Club here Saturday evening. A large company was present.

Mr. Bryce, replying to a toast to his health, referred to Great Britain's good relations with all the powers, and added:

"There is one friendship which is of especial value to all of us; I refer to the United States. I am happy to think our relations with that country never have been better. Never, indeed, do I think they have been so good as they are at this moment. The incident fresh in your memory need be referred to only for the sake of saying that the moral of it was 'This is how different things are now, happily, from those times when an incident like that would have been the signal of cries of defiance in the press of both countries.' Fortunately in both countries no one took this matter as any but an occasion wherein we could show our trust in one another."

Root's Visit.

"Even more significant was the recent visit of Secretary Root to Canada. I hope you all read the speech of Mr. Root. I never remember any deliverance of a responsible statesman uttered in a higher or broader spirit, and nothing more calculated by its recognition for good feeling between Canada and the United States, to promote friendship and good will between Canada and the United States, and ourselves and the United States. This speech is an admirable omen for the future. It is an admirable sign of the new spirit of relation of these three peoples, or rather these two peoples, for we and the Canadians are, after all, part of the British people, that such a visit has been paid and such a speech made. There is nothing that ought to be dearer to us than the maintenance of the most friendly and the most intimate relations with the great republic across the Atlantic."

Interrupted With Cheers.

The guests of the evening here interrupted Mr. Bryce with cheers.

"There is no higher task to which anyone can be called," Mr. Bryce continued, "than trying, in however small a degree, to contribute to the drawing closer of these ties, not only of interest, but what is higher and greater, of sympathy, ties that rest in community of language and in the possession of the same literature and the same political institutions and traditions."

At this point Mr. Bryce was again interrupted by cheers.

"I have had the honor of being selected to represent this Government in the United States," the speaker continued, "but not only this Government, but the English people, desire the closest friendship with the United States."

The assembled company here interrupted Mr. Bryce with cheers for the third time.

Reform the Lords.

Mr. Bryce concluded his speech with emphasizing the necessity of introducting radical reforms in the House of Lords. He referred also to Ireland, saying he left that country peaceful and tranquil. He deprecated the publication of false reports concerning disturbances in Ireland when he was administering the country.

Mr. Bryce reminded his hearers that they must bear in mind the past centuries of misgovernment and misunderstanding, the results of which could not be abolished in a few years.

He exhorted those present to remember how much better things had become since Mr. Gladstone's message of peace and friendliness. Mr. Bryce said he was confident the Irish problem would be solved, and that he trusted most of those present would live to see the solution.

Municipal Plant In Operation.

Nelson, B. C., Jan. 28.—Saturday night for the first time the city is supplied with light from the new municipal power and light plant at Bonnington Falls, just completed, at a cost of $200,000. At present the plant is under a thirty days' test, run under the direction of the machinery contractors, and if this proves satisfactory the city will take over and operate it.

Strathcona and Blake Sail.

New York, Jan. 28.—Lord Strathcona, Lord High Commissioner of Canada, sailed Saturday for England on the steamship Campania. Lord Strathcona has been spending several weeks in Canada.

Hon. Edward Blake, member of the British Parliament for South Longford, Ireland, also sailed for home Saturday on the steamship Minneapolis.

Hundreds Die In Mine

Fire Damp Explosion Occurs In A German Colliery.

Terrible Loss of Life Occasions Heartrending Scenes at the Pit's Mouth—Accident Almost Duplicated In France—Over 800 Miners Escape, While Three Are Killed—Rescue Work Will Take a Week.

Saarbrucken, Jan. 29.—A fire-damp explosion occurred yesterday morning in the Bildstock shaft of the Reden Mine at Saint Johann-On-Saar, opposite here.

Yesterday afternoon the bodies of 164 miners had been found, 17 men dangerously injured had been rescued and more than a hundred miners were missing. The number of dead is estimated at 200.

There were about 600 men working in the shaft when the explosion occurred, but half of them were not in the galleries which were wrecked.

Forty Still In the Pit.

The rescue corps was working desperately to reach the entombed men, when the party was driven out by an outbreak of fire. Forty men probably are still in the pit.

The scenes at the pit-mouth, where the families of the miners gathered, were most distressing.

The disaster occurred 2,300 feet under ground and is one and one-quarter miles from the floor shaft. It is the greatest mine catastrophe ever known in the Saar region.

At a late hour last night it was still uncertain how many workmen still were in the mine, the reports being divergent. The entrance to the gallery underground is blocked with dead horses.

Heartrending Scenes.

Heart-rending scenes are witnessed among the thousands of persons, mostly members of the families of the miners, who are gathered about the mouth of the shaft. Most of the bodies brought to the surface are mangled beyond recognition.

The mine inspectors last evening ordered the rescuers to return to their homes, but to hold themselves in readiness for further orders.

Emperor William has ordered that a full report of the disaster be sent to him.

Experts calculate that the rescue work will take one week.

Three Dead In French Explosion.

Lens, France, Jan. 29.—An explosion occurred in a coal mine at Lievin, in the Courrieres district, due to an explosion of fire-damp in one of the pits.

It is believed that the only victims were the chief engineer and his two assistants.

A panic followed the explosion and most of the population of the town rushed to the mouths of the pits, preventing the work of the rescue until the gendarmie restored order.

Of the 812 miners who descended into the pits 680 had been rescued at 2 p. m. and the rest were ascertained to be safe. A declaration to this effect has been posted. The crowd, however, continues to show excitement, and when this poster was read there were cries of "They said the same thing at Courrieres."

THREE FIREMEN KILLED.

Fatal Conflagration In Buffalo and Collapse of Building With 23 Men.

Buffalo, Jan. 29.—Buried under tons of ice-coated debris of the eight-storey Seneca Building, at 101-109 Seneca street, destroyed by fire yesterday, three firemen were last night probably dead, or so badly injured that they will die before aid can reach them.

About twenty firemen, including the three missing men, were on the roof of the Heywood Building, fighting against a spread of the flames when two thick brick walls of the Seneca building collapsed. Tons of debris from the crumbling walls crashed down upon the roof of the lower Heywood building, going through the roof and carrying floor after floor into the basement. Not one of the twenty men escaped without some injury, but half of them were able to fight their way out and to give aid to their less fortunate comrades.

Gangs of men were at once put to work clearing away the wreckage and rescuing the imprisoned firemen. By noon all but three of their number had been released and hurried to hospitals. All of them were painfully injured, and were covered with a thick coating of ice. None of the injured will die.

As night fell electric light wires were strung into the ruins, and last night by the light of arc lamps and reflectors the work of rescue was kept up without a moment's pause.

The dead are: William J. Naughton, a lieutenant; John R. Hinkey, fireman; Stephen J. Meghan, fireman.

The loss is approximately half a million dollars, covered by insurance to the extent of about 90 per cent.

SQUALL HITS HONG KONG.

Sank Over 50 Chinese Craft and Drowned 100 Chinese.

Hong Kong, Jan. 29.—A terrific rain squall broke over Hong Kong yesterday morning, and in the space of ten minutes sank over 50 Chinese craft in the harbor, more than 100 natives being drowned. There were no casualties among the white population. Launches from the shore rescued many occupants of the swamped boats.

The harbor was littered with the wreckage from the sunken junks. During the squall the river steamer Paul Bean broke adrift, but she was brought to anchor without sustaining any damage.

Orders Mixed; Trains Collide.

Dickinson, N. D., Jan. 29.—A mix-up of orders, it is alleged, caused a collision between Northern Pacific passenger train No. 4, eastbound, and No. 5 westbound, four miles east of Dickinson, early yesterday morning.

Both trains were pulled by two locomotives.

Andrew Thomson, a fireman, was killed. Several other trainmen were hurt, none seriously.

JOSEPH ROBERTSON SHOT.

Friend's Gun Went Off and Bullet Passed Through Hand.

St. Catharines, Jan. 29.—A distressing accident occurred on Read's Island, near Port Dalhousie, yesterday afternoon. As a result Joseph Robertson, son of Councillor Robertson of Port Dalhousie, is confined to his home from the effects of a shell of No. 6 rabbit shot discharged into his body from a double-barreled shotgun by a companion, Basil Howe, also a resident of the village.

The young men went on a rabbit shoot, and while Robertson was digging a rabbit out of a hole, the gun accidentally went off. The shot passed through Robertson's right hand and entered his thigh. The young fellow walked home, some two miles away. He will recover.

Adrift At Sea In Open Boat.

New York, Jan. 29.—George Williams of East Boston, a fisherman, was brought here yesterday on a schooner, which picked him up on Jan. 23. He had gone adrift in his lorry and had drifted about for 36 hours without food or water in a severe gale, and with the temperature ten degrees below zero. Both of Williams' hands were badly frozen.

NO MORE HELP NEEDED.

Governor of Jamaica Cables Thanks For Contribution.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—The Dominion Government has received a cablegram from the Governor of Jamaica, thanking Canada for its contribution and stating that no aid is required except for rebuilding.

The Dominion Government is replying that the balance of the money voted will be sent for building material instead.

Refugees From Jamaica.

Boston, Jan. 29.—The steamer Admiral Dewey arrived here yesterday from Jamaica, with 49 passengers, mainly from Kingston. The passengers include Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. Taylor, Toronto; Charles W. and Frank A. Vipond, Montreal.

More Thanks.

Washington, Jan. 29.—In a cablegram received here yesterday Vice-Consul Orrett at Kingston, Ja., advises the State Department that the American Red Cross contribution had been "gratefully received by the Government."

Kept Cool.

Paris, Jan. 29.—In an article on the Swettenham-Davis incident yesterday, the semi-official Temps congratulates Great Britain and the United States on keeping their heads and not allowing the incident to "disturb relations which are so potent for the good of the world."

COSTLY ELECTIONEERING.

Dr. Borden Says It Took $50,000 to Elect Emmerson.

Moncton, N. B., Jan. 29.—Lecturing yesterday before the Men's League, Rev. Dr. Borden, principal of Mount Allison Ladies' College, made the assertion that he believed for last election in this province it took $100,000 to stimulate the patriotism of electors, and that $50,000 had been spent in Westmoreland County, where the Minister of Railways was elected over H. A. Powell, K.C.

The subject of Dr. Borden's lecture was "Dangers of Government by Democracy."

$750,000 Fire Loss.

New York, Jan. 29.—Loss roughly estimated at three quarters of a million dollars resulted from a fire which started just before midnight and burned out the garage of the New York Transportation Co. at Eighth avenue and Ninety-ninth street. Over one hundred automobiles were ruined.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Very few people in Belleville will be found to deny that by the burning of the Hotel Quinte this city suffered a great loss, and the news that there is an excellent prospect of its being rebuilt will be received with pleasure.

• • •

The desire of the gentlemen who may rebuild the Quinte, that they should be granted a fixed assessment for a term of years, is, many people will believe, a reasonable one. To restore the princely Quinte to its former condition will cost a large amount of money, and the fact that the hotel, when again in commission, will employ a large number of well-paid hands, who will spend their wages to the benefit of Belleville merchants, must not be lost sight of.

• • •

Under the circumstances, the request for a fixed assessment seems a reasonable one. As an esteemed correspondent stated a few days ago, "New conditions create new needs." Belleville is growing rapidly, and taking her proper place among the cities of Ontario. She needs the prestige and good advertising which a fine hotel like the Quinte would give. Under the circumstances, The Intelligencer does not see how Belleville people can afford to block the plan which would provide for the fine hotel's rising, phoenix-like, from its ashes.

WINDSOR TABLE SALT won't cake. It is PURE—clean, dry crystals that dissolve instantly. Perfect for the table.

The remarks of Ald. Butler in the Council last night, re conditions at the local post office, were very pertinent. It is the system which is to be condemned, rather than the staff. When the Government, in its wisdom, degraded the Belleville post office, and took away its Civil Service standing, it paved the way for the state of affairs which has existed ever since. The glamor of a Government job "cuts little ice" with a young fellow who sees hardly any chance for promotion, and whose "weakly" salary is likely to remain small. He sees greener pastures afar off, and promptly hies himself away. Then a green hand comes in his place, and the same old tale is told year after year.

• • •

The question is, could not an influential deputation persuade the Government that Belleville has certain rights which, in fairness should be conceded. It is to be hoped the matter will not be allowed to die out before an attempt is made, anyhow.

• • •

In this connection we are informed, that, yesterday morning, the post office clerks waited on the postmaster with a demand for higher wages. Mr. Leavens, it is alleged took the matter under his serious consideration.

McKeown's DRUG STORE

Were These Young Men the Burglars

WHO BROKE INTO THE HURLEY AND ACKERMAN RESIDENCES?

Brockville, Jan. 29. — Yesterday afternoon two young men offered for sale at a King street jewelry store half a dozen valuable silver souvenir spoons. The proprietor refused to entertain the proposition and suspecting something wrong telephoned the police after they left the store. About six o'clock Sergt. Burns was given a tip of the presence of the strangers on Perth street and their arrest soon followed. In the meantime the spoons had been disposed of to A. W. Hayes, jeweler, for 30 cents.

The prisoners gave the names of John Black, Kingston, and Thomas Lithgow, Belleville, both aged 17 years. They were in possession of many articles which are thought to have been stolen and of which they cannot give a satisfactory account. On Lithgow was found a nice pair of forceps, cigar case, pipe, pair of automobile goggles. The souvenir spoons, which Lithgow sold to Mr. Hayes were engraved with the word "Kitty" on the bowl and "K.G." on the handles. An aluminum spoon, a souvenir of the Buffalo Pan-American Exhibition, also had the name "Kitty" engraved on it. The spoons were valued at $7.

On Black was found half a dozen valuable sterling silver spoons, engraved "Kathryn," packed in a box bearing an Oswego jeweler's address, a pair of opera glasses, one mouth organ, 22 calibre revolver, loaded, a ladies' gold chain, silver pencil case engraved "D.G.F," silver match safe and other trinkets. The spoons were valued at $15 per dozen.

The boys said they came to Brockville two days ago and made their headquarters at a King street hotel. Lithgow claimed to have been recently employed in Belleville and while there formed the acquaintance of Black. Together they started out on a little time with no particular place in view. Lithgow states that he stole the spoons from his sister, while Black also says he got the silverware from a sister who was breaking up house keeping.

Black gave his Kingston address and Chief Burke telephoned Chief Baillie to investigate. Lithgow's stepfather Andrew Grey is reported to be living at Chatterton, Ont., and he has been communicated with by letter. In the meantime the prisoners have been remanded to jail for one week.

A burglary was committed at Belleville on the night of the 13th inst., and it is thought some of the articles found on the prisoners are portions of the booty. They are both tough-looking characters, especially Black, who does not seem to worry much about being behind the bars. The other lad appears to feel his position.

"Links in the Literary Chain"

Principal Hutton, of Toronto University, will lecture on the 22nd February, for the Guild.

Port Huron Story Of Bay Quinte Man.

HAD ALTERNATIVE OF JAIL OR WEDDING — CHOSE THE LATTER.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 29.—Given the alternative of marrying the young widow of his brother, or of spending 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction, Fred Rushnell, a farmer residing near Belleville, Ont., chose the former course this afternoon.

Sheriff Davidson was informed of the situation of the woman, who wished to know if a man could be forced to marry a girl whom he had ruined. She told the sheriff a pitiful story of a wrecked life, in which she implicated her brother-in-law. Although only 21 years old, the woman is the mother of a three-year-old child. Shortly after the death of her husband, she began going with her brother-in-law. The girl was afraid to return to her parents.

When Rushnell, who had been enticed to this city by the woman, was confronted with the situation, he broke down and wept like a child. When asked whether he would marry the girl or go to prison, he replied: "Yes, I'll marry her."

The couple were taken over to the parsonage of Rev. Abner Bowling, where the ceremony was performed. They returned to Belleville yesterday afternoon.

Peculiar State Of Affairs In Madoc.

AN ODD LICENSE CASE DECIDED — THE CONSTABLE'S PART.

A question which does not frequently arise was decided by two magistrates at Madoc Village, arising out of a prosecution for selling liquor during prohibited hours on New Year's night. Erwin Hailstone, who was attending a Catholic ball held that night at Madoc, went to the St. Lawrence Hall about 8 o'clock and ordered a bottle of whiskey, saying he would call later that night for it. The bottle was wrapped up and put away for him on the back of the bar, where parcels were usually kept, and at 10 o'clock the barroom was closed.

After that hour Hailstone called and asked for his "parcel," when the bartender opened the bar door, took out the parcel, and handed it to its owner. On his way back to the ball, Hailstone met St. Charles, the village constable, who, getting to know he had a bottle, asked him for a drink, which he gave him. Hence the prosecution. The question for decision was. When the sale took place: whether at the time it was ordered and appropriated to the buyer or when delivered. The magistrates reserved judgment, and, after considering the authorities cited, dismissed the prosecution, holding that the sale took place at the earlier hour.

A peculiar state of affairs came out in the evidence. It is alleged that the constable is prohibited from being supplied with liquor as a person who has the habit of drinking liquor to excess. As St. Charles, he must not linger or loiter in barrooms; as the constable of Madoc it is his duty to enter for the purpose of enforcing the law. Mr. Moore, of Madoc, appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Haverson, K. C., for Cochrane.

Sinclair's WHITEWEAR SALE Sinclair's
Jauuary 30th to February 13th

Make Out Your Whitewear List For Next Summer

Now's the best time of all the year to buy Whitewear. This store has made it so. Naturally you would not associate whitewear with this season of the year, and that is the very reason why we do associate the two. For the natural demand being at low ebb, we can secure terms from the Whitewear factories such as you would scarcely believe. Therefore, we sincerely advise you to lay in a full supply now.

Now one other thing about our Whitewear Sales—Sinclair's Sales gives daintiness as well as low prices, and every garment is cut in a liberal way. No skimping of sizes, nor skamping of workmanship—style. good taste, quality. daintiness and beauty. These are the features about Sinclair's Whitewear Sale that make its low prices distinctive and worth while.

NO MORE DANDRUFF.

Newbro's Herpicide Destroys the Pestiferous Cause of Annoying Dandruff.

Does your head itch? Is your coat or dress full of white flakes after dressing your hair? That's the effect of dandruff. Is your hair thinning? Are you beginning to get bald in spots? Are you already, in fact, rapidly becoming bald? If so, that is the effect of a measly little parasite that burrows in at the root of the hair, and throws up the scalp in dandruff and eats off the hair at the root. Science's latest discovery is a destroyer of that pestiferous germ. That destroyer is contained in no other hair preparation on earth but Newbro's Herpicide. Try it, and be convenienced. A delightful dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

Successful Swindling

HOW GRAFTERS MANAGE.

An astonishing condition of affairs was revealed in an investigation before the Public Accounts Committee, as to the way grafters, who are friends of the Government fill their pockets. It was brought to light that the Department of Marine was attended by a horde of favored ones, who sold supplies, without competition, at prices allowing a rake-off averaging from TWENTY-FIVE per cent. to TWO HUNDRED per cent. after regular profits were taken.

A few illustrations may be given. The light-house department at Ottawa had occasion to buy certain standard articles, the prices of which are known to the trade generally, and must have been familiar to the officers of the department regularly purchasing them. Instead of going to the regular trade, or the manufacturers for engines, pumps, boilers and other machines, and for ordinary hardware, the department bought them from a Mr. Merwin, a United States agent, claiming to represent the New York firm of Brooks & Co. Merwin purchased the goods from a Montreal dealer, the latter passing the order on to Canadian manufacturers who sent the goods direct to the department. As an illustration of how Ministers allow the grafting at the expense of the country, here are some of the prices which the Canadian agent paid to the Montreal firm, and beside them the prices which the Government paid to Mr. Merwin, the agent of the New York firm of F. L. Brooks & Company.

	What Merwin paid	What the Govt paid Merwin.	Per cent profit.
1 pillar shaper......	$105	$800	58
1 steel derrick......	756	1,250	65
1 capstan	390	650	67
1 Sturtevant engine.	265	550	107
1 " " ..	262	550	109
1 " " ..	335	975	187

This is a sample lot. What do the taxpayers think of it. But it is not all. The Government was buying from Mr. Merwin, and others supposed to be representing the same group of contractors, goods to the cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. Most of these were articles, such as buoys, storeholders for gas, signal cables, lighthouse lanterns and other apparatus in which the contractors claim a monopoly. The price paid is in some cases perhaps, two or three times what it ought to be. Enquiry has always brought out the explanation that tenders ARE NOT called for because the favored contractors are the only persons supplying the particular articles required. It is astonishing how the habit has grown with the Department of Marine of purchasing articles that are only supplied by one concern, and how a single group of individuals has obtained a monopoly in nearly all kinds of supplies that the Government wants. So infatuated has the Department become with this group that they bought from them without tender all kinds of articles regularly sold by the trade such as those mentioned in the above table, together with ordinary hardware, cement and other commodities sold in wholesale and retail shops. In the last three years four connected concerns have sold the Government for lighthouse and coast service supplies to the cost of over $1,600,000. So it was stated by the Minister on Monday of last week. On the basis of the facts brought out last session at least $600,000 of this would go to the middleman as rake-off.

HAD SLUGGISH LIVER AND INDIGESTION

BILEANS EFFECTED A COMPLETE CURE.

The liver rules the body. Bileans rule the liver. "A sluggish liver in my case led to constipation and indigestion," says Mrs. Frances Greene, of Earl St., Kingston, Ont. "I felt dull and sleepy, had no energy whatever for work, and every now and again I had a bad attack of biliousness. The food I ate seemed to lie heavy on my stomach and did me no good. I had wind and cramps in the stomach and bowels from the food decomposing. The constipation was so bad that my bowels had to be forced at each passage. All kinds of medicines I tried, but nothing did me any lasting good until I got Bileans. I have never found anything to equal them for constipation and liver and stomach troubles. They soon began to do me good and in the end cured me. Since using them I feel like a different woman. I am bright and buoyant in spirits, not dull and sleepy as I used to be. I have got my energy and activity back, and, in fact, all my ailments have yielded to Bileans."

Bileans are a purely herbal remedy and operate gently on liver and stomach, stimulating those organs to carry out their functions in nature's normal way. Headache, constipation, biliousness, piles, pains in the chest and back, wind pains and dizziness—all these symptoms arise really from derangements of liver and stomach, so that by correcting the root cause of these troubles, Bileans speedily end them all. This is surely better than taking powders for headache, hot drinks for wind pain, and dealing with each symptom piecemeal? All druggists sell Bileans at 50c per box, or obtainable from the Bilean Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50. Write for free sample, which will be mailed you on receipt of a one cent stamp.

The Colborne Colts will play a match here to-morrow evening, with two local rinks.

HOCKEY.

Local Bankers Walloped Trenton.

Last evening the Bankers' hockey team of this city played a match at Trenton with a team of that town. The result was an easy victory for the Bankers, who scored 10 goals to Trenton's 3. Mr. Stroud, of this city, was referee and performed his duties to the satisfaction of both teams. The visitors were entertained after the match. The players were as follows:

Bankers.		Trenton.

SPORTING NOTES.

Manager Arnott has received a communication from the Secretary of the O.H.A., stating that the matches to decide the championship of this district must be played off by the 8th of February. It is expected that home and home games will be arranged between Picton and the local team.

It is said that Whitcroft and Crowley, of Peterboro, are wanted in Kenora, and that they may go west soon.

The Guelph hockey men seem to mean business, and have forwarded to the O.H.A. charges against many prominent hockey players. They have this to say concerning Whitcroft, the Peterboro star:

"A declaration from Whitcroft covering his connections with the Midland team during the season of 1904 and 1905 would certainly put him on the shelf. Did not Whitcroft, like Charlton, leave Midland immediately after their last game with Victoria Harbor? Midland this season also had Schaefer, but the O.H.A. refused him a certificate. I had the pleasure of playing against Midland, in Midland, this same season, and Schaefer and Whitcroft did nothing but play pool the three days I was there, and if I remember rightly, Whitcroft told me himself it was the biggest cinch he ever had, and a declaration from the Peterboro man as to the incident when he wanted his back pay before he would go on the ice at Barrie would show the real standing of the Midland team, of which Eddie Gould, who is now on the executive of the O.H.A., was the centre forward and secretary.

"If Morgan and Crowley were asked to swear to declarations as to their connection with the Newmarket lacrosse team this summer it would surely make them blush, for nobody is simple enough to believe that they come down from Peterboro to Newmarket for every game for the love of the sport."

The Intelligencer was informed that the local Bankers beat Trenton 10—3 last night. A Trenton despatch claims that the Bankers got the short end. Who's right?

The following despatch from Kingston sounds well coming from a place which does not support its own teams. What chance would visitors have:

Kingston, Jan. 28.—It is suggested that Picton and Belleville play off a sudden-death game in this city for the district O.H.A. junior championship. The teams, if they played home and home matches, would each likely win on their own haunts, so the sudden-death game is suggested as a compromise. A fine gate for the match could be secured here.

The O.H.A. executive will, on Thursday night, take action on the charges made by the Guelph club against certain O.H.A. clubs and players. It looks as though the fur will fly.

Caretaker's salary	71.50
Books and periodicals	514.55
Expenses (coal, gas, etc.)	251.74
Rent	135.00
Balance	46.43
	$1509.22

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

Number of books issued for 1906	35,262
Number of books of fiction issued	7,496
Greatest number in any one week	908
Smallest number in any one week	564
Greatest number in any one day	348
Smallest number in any one day	46

During the year over 1000 references were made to the books of reference and the other books of the Library.

An average of 150 persons used the reading room daily during the year.

The reports having been adopted, Mr. F. D. Diamond, who had been elected a Director, resigned on account of his being a civic official, and Col. S. S. Lazier was elected in his stead.

A resolution of thanks to Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., for his continued generosity to the Library, was unanimously carried, and ordered to be sent to Sir Gilbert.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE WAR CORRESPONDENT" TO-NIGHT.

"The War Correspondent," a clever English military musical play in three acts, which comes to the opera house to-night, is one of the brightest and best entertainments of its kind ever staged. It has attached to it a corps of pretty girls that are a wonder to the theatrical profession. For unadorned beauty, symmetry of form, radiance and brilliancy, the girls are without peers. There is a consistency, a delicacy and refinement about the young women that is so often lacking with travelling companies. The principals are also of the highest culture. There is also a wealth of handsome costumes and a carload of special scenic and electrical effects.

"A THOROUGHBRED TRAMP."

Elmer Walters' western comedy drama, "A Thoroughbred Tramp," which appears at the Carman next Friday night, carries a thorough equipment for the presentation of the play. Much pains have been taken to make the original third act natural and picturesque. "A Thoroughbred Tramp" is said to excel all other dramas of this class and certain it is that the comedy element is more hilarious. T. Rush Thompson promises to be one of the most humorous character parts ever conceived, and though but a vagabond, the character carries prestige with the refined theatre-goer. This season the third act shows the ever popular train effect used in the original production, but elaborated with an electrical storm effect, which promises to be sensational in the extreme.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The neatest town in the world is Brock, in Holland. So tidy are the inhabitants that they will not allow horses in the street. It contains a population of 2,700, and the chief industry is the making of Edam cheese.

The "Dopper."

It is not uncommon to find the epithet "dopper" applied to a Boer, as if the terms were synonymous. The name "dopper" is really derived from the Dutch word for an extinguisher, and it is properly applied only to the members of a religious sect which is desirous of extinguishing all theological opinions of a later date than the famous synod of Dort.

Cut this out and take it to R. Templeton & Co.'s drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For biliousness and constipation they are unequalled. They improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels.

A MERE MAN.

(New York Tribune.)

He was a man of middle age,
With manners mild and meek,
Amid the buzzard's bitter rage,
He crept, a roof to seek:
"Alas!" he cried, "I have a home,
'Tis cosy, warm and bright,
And yet without I have to roam,
Unsheltered through the night.

"My wife within the parlor sits,
And works industriously
Upon some most mysterious bits
I'm not allowed to see.
Her mother holds the dining room
Safe from each curious eye,
And threatens with avenging broom
All those who venture nigh,

"One daughter in each bedroom camps:
Cook guards the kitchen o'er,
And my two boys, the little scamps,
Have locked the cellar door,
So I must face the winter air,
In snowdrifts to each knee,
While my fond family prepare
Their Christmas gifts for me."

Then, suddenly, the midnight bell
Tolled slowly through the night
And through the storm I heard a yell
And saw a flash of light.
"Their work is done," my friend, in glee,
Cried out with lifted head.
Then, stiffly, through the snow-drifts he Crept off to seek his bed.

Well put. The Brockville Times, Conservative, in discussing the patronage question says: "The evil influence of party patronage has led a large part of the electorate to think that the main object of helping their party into power is to secure personally some individual favor or some sinecure office. The consequence is that men will expend proportionately a thousand dollars worth of effort to try to obtain six or seven hundred dollars worth of office. As a rule Government offices are not well paid. The salaries are small and the work—if done properly—is hard. Furthermore, the office-holder loses his freedom of action to a great extent, and the able man who takes office usually rues the day he did so. From both points of view, party patronage is a detriment, and we believe that before many years pass by party patronage in Canada will be to a large extent eliminated. It is a breeder of dissension and exerts a demoralizing influence upon either party."

Wife—The Bible says much in favor of women, John. I thought that the Israelites kept their women in the background, but if they did, the Bible, which is their history, doesn't.

Husband—Hump! The Israelites did well by keeping their women in the background, that's where women should be.

Wife—But still the Bible says that—

Husband—Oh, I know there are a few women mentioned in the Bible—there was Jezebel, she was a woman,

Wife—Yes, and there was Ahab, he was a man. And there was—

Husband—It's no use talking, Mary. The Bible is a history of men. Women are mentioned only incidentally, as they had influence on the action of men. The Book says very little about women compared to what it does about men.

Wife (musingly)—You may be right, John, now, when I come to think of it. There is one thing at any rate it says about men that it does not say about women.

Husband (smilingly)—I thought you would come to your senses, Mary. What is it the Book says about men that it does not say about women?

Wife (placidly)—It says all men are liars.

Then the husband arose and put on his hat and went out.

Fast Line to Labrador.

London, Jan. 29.—(C. A. P.)—A Newfoundland correspondent of The Evening Globe says an English promoter has signed contracts for steamers for a proposed fast line between Galway or Berehaven and some point on the east coast of Labrador.

THEY KNOW IT.

Thousands of people know that the ordinary remedies for piles—ointments, suppositories and appliances—will not cure.

The best of them only bring passing relief.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a tablet taken internally that removes the cause of Piles, hence the cure is permanent. Every package sold carries a guarantee with it.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Are Steady—Cattle Lower at the New York Market.

London, Jan. 28.—Liverpool and London cables are slow at 10½c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9½c to 10c per lb.

TORONTO JUNCTION LIVE STOCK.

Toronto Junction, Jan. 28.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards at Toronto Junction were 104 car loads, composed of 2221 cattle, 30 hogs, 141 sheep and 13 calves. Trade was brisk. Prices in all classes were generally firm.

Exporters.

Prices ranged from $5 to $5.25 per cwt., with one or two choice loads at a little more money, the bulk selling at $5 to $5.20 per cwt. Export bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots, and they were scarce, sold at $4.80 to $5 per cwt.; loads of good, $4.40 to $4.80; medium, $4 to $4.20; common mixed, $3.50 to $3.85; cows, from $1.50 to $4 per cwt.; canners, $1 to $1.75 per cwt.

Milch Cows.

Only a limited number of milch cows were offered, which sold at $32 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

A few veal calves sold at $4 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs was not large. Export ewes sold at $5 per cwt.; rams, at $4 to $4.25; lambs, at $6.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

H. P. Kennedy reports hog prices unchanged at $6.60 for selects and $6.35 for lights and fats.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—(Special.)—Cable advices from Liverpool and London were strong, and prices show an advance of ⅜c to 1¼c per lb. for Canadian cattle, with sales at 12⅜c. Exports from Portland and St. John, N.B., last week were 2270 cattle, 1307 sheep. Receipts were 1300 cattle, 100 calves, 25 sheep and lambs and 1000 hogs. The butchers were out strong and trade in cattle was active, but owing to supplies being heavier prices weakened fully ⅛c per lb. Choice beeves sold at 4⅜c to 5c; good at 4¼c to 4½c; fair at 3⅜c to 4c; common at 3c to 3½c, and inferior at 2⅛c to 2⅝c per lb. Sheep and lambs were scarce and firm; lambs brought 5⅜c to 6¼c; sheep, 4c to 4½c per lb., and calves, $3 to $8 each.

The weaker feeling which developed in the hog situation in the middle of last week was the main feature of the market again this morning, and prices scored a further decline of 5c to 15c per 100 lbs. This to some extent was due to the increased supplies, but more so to the fact that buyers were not so keen for supplies, and trade was slow, with sales of selected lots at $7.20 to $7.25 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Foreign advices on Canadian bacon were weak again and noted a decline of 1s to 2s in prices in Liverpool, London and Bristol, but at the same time they stated that there was a steadier feeling in the markets at the reduction and more business was passing.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 5000; active, generally steady; prime steers, $5.50 to $6.15; shipping, $5 to $5.75; butchers', $4.50 to $5.40; heifers, $3.25 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $4.50; bulls, $3 to $4.75; stockers and feeders, $3 to $4.85; stock heifers, $2.50 to $3; fresh cows and springers, $2 to $3 per head lower, $18 to $48.

Veals—Receipts, 1000 head; active, 25c higher, $4.25 to $9.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 14,500 head; active, 5c to 10c higher; heavy, $7.10 to $7.15; mixed, $7.10 to $7.15; yorkers, $7.15 to $7.20; pigs, $7.35 to $7.40; roughs, $6.20 to $6.40; stags, $4.50 to $5.25.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Jan. 28.—Beeves—Receipts, 4665; steers, slow and 10c to 15c lower; bulls, firm to 10c higher; bologna and medium cows, steady to firm; good cows, slow; steers, $5.20 to $6.20; bulls, $3.60 to $4.40; cows, $1.90 to $4.50.

Calves—Receipts, 801; veals, steady, but slow, closing easy; barnyard and western calves, unchanged; Veals, $5 to $9.90. Choice, $9.62½ to $9.75; tops, $10; culls, $4 to $4.75. Western calves, $3.50 to $4.55; barnyard calves, $3 to $3.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 5206; sheep, dull; lambs, very slow and feeling a trifle easier; sheep, $3.50 to $5.25; culls, $3; lambs, $7 to $7.75; one car at $7.90; culls, $5 to $5.50; yearlings, $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 13,700; market, firm; quotations $7.20 to $7.50; pigs, included.

HUMOR

BOBBY ON THE HUMAN BODY

A Juvenile Essay Containing Some Hitherto Unpublished Information.

The human body was first supposed to be made up of 208 bones, but later discoveries have developed the fact that it contains 208 bones and an appendix. An appendix is something which is added on, like a postscript on a woman's letter, and means about as much. Its principal use is to afford a revenue for doctors and surgery specialists. Operations on the human system are the correct thing in polite society. Pa says there is one woman in our town who has nothing left in her but her palate and her tongue, she has been operated on so much. Last Sunday our Sunday school text was, "Praise the Lord, oh, my soul, and all that is within me." I said to pa, "Mrs. So-and-so wouldn't be very strong on that, would she?" And he laughed and said no.

A railroad brakeman is in a class by himself. He doesn't have anywheres near 208 bones in his body. I know a brakeman, chairman of a grievance committee of ten, and when he goes to count the members of the committee on his fingers he can never get a quorum because he hasn't enough fingers left.

It says in my physiology that in the human frame is a network of nerves, a sort of system of fine wires which carry messages to and from the brain. For instance, if you put your finger on a hot stove the nerves of the arm carry a message to your brain that your finger is getting burned, and your brain flashes back instructions to take your finger off the stove. The other night I had my fingers in a can of jam in the pantry when by eardrum sent a message to my brain that ma was coming. My brain answered back to take my fingers out, but the message was delayed in transmission, and I didn't move quick enough. Ma caught me. For a few minutes the wires running up my spine to my brain were crowded with good government messages as to what was going on on the firing line. Now when I go to sit down my brain advises my arms to put a pillow on the chair.—Bobby in Judge.

On the Job.

When the thermometer dropped below zero Mrs. Rodgers was much disturbed by the thought that Huldah, the new kitchen maid, slept in an unheated room.

"Huldah," she said, remembering the good old custom of her girlhood, "it's going to be pretty cold tonight. I think you had better take a flatiron to bed with you."

"Yes, ma'am," assented Huldah without enthusiasm.

Mrs. Rogers, happy in the belief that her maid was comfortable, slept soundly. In the morning she visited the kitchen.

"Well, Huldah, how did you get along with the flatiron?"

Huldah breathed a deep sigh of recollection.

HUMAN; THAT'S ALL.

Don't wonder when some other chap
Does things you'd never do;
Don't marvel at the blunderings
Each morning shall renew;

Don't puzzle over ugly traits
That other folks display;
Don't let yourself be scandalized
But anything they say;

Don't ask for explanations when
You fail to comprehend;
Don't ask them of an enemy;
Don't ask them of a friend;

Don't let yourself be worried—should
We stumble, don't be sore.
We're simply human beings, and
You'll find us nothing more.

With Edged Tools

By HENRY SETON MERRIMAN

Author of "The Sowers," "Roden's Corner," "From One Generation to Another," Etc.

Copyright, 1894, by HARPER & BROTHERS

I suppose he was disappointed. I tried at one time, but I found it was no good. From indifference it turned almost to hatred. He disliked me intensely, and I am afraid I did not care for him very much."

Millicent was listening gravely without interrupting—like a man. She had the gift of adapting herself to her environments in a marked degree.

"And," he added curtly, "no one knows how much I wanted that three thousand a year."

The girl moved uneasily and glanced toward the conservatory.

"It was not the money that tempted me," said Guy very deliberately; "it was you."

She rose from her chair as if to join her aunt and the horticultural old gentleman.

"You must not say that," she said in little more than a whisper, and without looking round she went toward Lady Cantourne. Her eyes were gleaming with a singular suppressed excitement, such as one sees in the eyes of a man fresh from a mad run across country.

Guy Oscard rose also and followed more deliberately. There was nothing for him to do but take his leave.

"But," said Lady Cantourne graciously, "if you are determined to go away, you must at least come and say goodby before you leave."

"Thanks; I should like to do so, if I may."

"We shall be deeply disappointed if you forget," said Millicent, holding out her hand, with a smile full of light heartedness and innocent girlish friendship.

CHAPTER VI.

"CURSE this country! Curse it! Curse it!" The man spoke aloud, but there was no one near to hear. He shook his skinny yellow fist out over the broad river that crept greasily down to the equatorial sea.

All around him the vegetable kingdom had asserted its sovereignty. At his back loomed a dense forest, impenetrable to the foot of man, defying his puny hand armed with ax or saw. The trees were not high, few of them being above twenty feet, but from their branches creepers and parasites hung in tangled profusion, interlaced, joining tree to tree for acres—nay, for miles.

As far as the eye could reach either bank of the slow river was thus covered with rank vegetation—mile after mile without variety, without hope. The glassy surface of the water was broken here and there by certain black forms floating like logs half hidden beneath the wave. These were crocodiles. The river was the Ogowe, and the man who cursed it was Victor Durnovo, employee of the Loango Trading association, whose business it was at that season to travel into the interior of Africa to buy, barter or steal ivory for his masters.

He was a small faced man, with a squarely aquiline nose and a black mustache which hung like a valance over his mouth. From the growth of that curtain-like mustache Victor Durnovo's worldly prosperity might have been said to date. No one seeing his mouth had before that time been prevailed upon to trust him. Nature has a way of hanging out signs and then covering them up so that the casual fail to see. He was a man of medium height, with abnormally long arms and a somewhat truculent way of walking, as if his foot was ever ready to kick anything or any person who might come in his way.

Victor Durnovo had sent his boatmen into the forest to find a few dates, a few handfuls of firewood, and while they were absent he gave vent to that wild unreasoning passion which is inhaled into the white man's lungs with the air of equatoral Africa.

"Curse this country!" he shouted. "Curse it, curse it—river and tree, man and beast!"

Presently a peacefulness seemed to come over him, for his eyes lost their glitter and his heavy lids drooped. His arms were crossed behind his head. Before him lay the river.

Suddenly he sat upright, all eagerness and attention. Not a leaf stirred. It was about 5 o'clock in the evening, the stillest hour of the twenty-four. In such a silence the least sound would travel almost any distance, and there was a sound traveling over the water to him. It was nothing but a thud repeated with singular regularity, but to his practiced ears it conveyed much. He knew that a boat was approaching, as yet hidden by some distant curve in the river. The thud was caused by the contact of six paddles with the gunwale of the canoe as the paddlers withdrew them from the water.

Victor Durnovo rose again and brought from the boat a second rifle, which he laid beside the double barreled Reilly which was never more than a yard away from him, waking or sleeping. Then he waited. He knew that no boat could reach the bank without his full permission, for all the rowers could be killed before they got within a hundred yards of his rifle." He was probably the best rifle shot but one in that country, and the other, the very best, happened to be in the approaching canoe.

After the space of ten minutes the boat came in sight—a long, black form on the still waters. It was too far away for him to distinguish anything beyond the fact that it was a native boat.

"Eight hundred yards," muttered Durnovo over the sight of his rifle.

He looked upon this river as his own, and he knew the native of equatorial Africa. Therefore he dropped a bullet into the water, under the bow of the canoe, at 800 yards.

A moment later there was a sound which can only be written "P-ttt" between his legs, and he had to wipe a shower of dust from his eyes. A puff of blue smoke rose slowly over the boat and a sharp report broke the silence a second time.

Then Victor Durnovo leaped to his feet and waved his hat in the air. From the canoe there was an answering greeting, and the man on the bank went to the water's edge, still carrying the rifle from which he was never parted.

Durnovo was the first to speak when the boat came within hail.

"Very sorry," he shouted. "Thought you were a native boat. Must establish a funk—get in the first shot, you know."

"All right," replied one of the Europeans in the approaching craft, with a courteous wave of the hand, "no harm done."

There were two white men and six blacks in the long and clumsy boat. One of the Europeans lay in the bow while the other was stretched at his ease in the stern, reclining on the canvas of a neatly folded tent. The last named was evidently the leader of the little expedition, while the manner and attitude of the man in the bow suggested the servitude of a disciplined soldier slightly relaxed by abnormal circumstances.

A puff of blue smoke rose slowly over the boat.

"Who fired that shot?" inquired Durnovo, when there was no longer any necessity to shout.

"Joseph," replied the man in the stern of the boat, indicating his companion. "Was it a near thing?"

"About as near as I care about. It threw up the dust between my legs."

The man called Joseph grinned. Nature had given him liberally of the wherewithal for indulgence in that relaxation, and Durnovo smiled rather constrainedly. Joseph was grabbing at the long reedy grass, bringing the canoe to a standstill, and it was some moments before his extensive mouth submitted to control.

"I presume you are Mr. Durnovo?" said the man in the stern of the boat, rising leisurely from his recumbent position and speaking with a courteous savior faire which seemed slightly out of place in the wilds of central Africa.

He was a tall man with a small aristocratic head and a refined face, which somehow suggested an aristocrat of old France.

"Yes," answered Durnovo.

The tall man stepped ashore and held out his hand.

"I am glad we have met you," he said. "I have a letter of introduction to you from Maurice Gordon of Loango."

Victor Durnovo's dark face changed slightly. His eyes—bilious, fever shot, unhealthy—took a new light.

"Ah!" he answered. "Are you a friend of Maurice Gordon's?"

There was another question in this, an unasked one, and Victor Durnovo was watching for the answer. But the face he watched was like a delicately carved piece of brown marble, with a courteous, impenetrable smile.

"I met him again the other day at Loango. He is an old Etonian, like myself."

This conveyed nothing to Durnovo, who belonged to a different world, whose education was, like other things about him, an unknown quantity.

"My name," continued the tall man, "is Meredith—John Meredith—sometimes called Jack."

They were walking up the bank toward the dusky and uninviting tent.

"And the other fellow?" inquired Durnovo, with a backward jerk of the head.

"Oh, he is my servant."

Durnovo raised his eyebrows in somewhat contemptuous amusement and proceeded to open the letter which Meredith had handed him.

"Not many fellows," he said, "on this coast can afford to keep a European servant."

"I understand," answered Meredith, with a half suppressed yawn, "that the country gets finer farther up; more mountainous."

The proprietors of very dark eyes would do well to remember that it is dangerous to glance furtively to one side or the other. The attention of dark eyes is more easily felt than the glances of gray or blue orbs.

Jack Meredith's suspicious were aroused by the suspicious manner of Durnovo.

"There is no white man knows this river as I do, and I do not recommend it. Look at me, on the verge of jaundice; look at this wound on my arm, it began with a scratch and has never healed. All that comes from a month up this cursed river. Take my advice. Try somewhere else."

"I certainly shall," replied Meredith. "We will discuss it after dinner. My chap is a first rate cook. Have you got anything to add to the menu?"

"Not a thing. I've been living on plantains and dried elephant meat for the last fortnight."

"Doesn't sound nourishing. Well, we are pretty well provided, so perhaps you will give me the pleasure of your company to dinner? Come as you are; no ceremony. I think I will wash, though. It is as well to keep up these old customs."

CHAPTER VII.

IN that part of Africa which lies within touch of the equator life is essentially a struggle. There is hunger about, and where hunger is the emotions will be found also. Now, Jack Meredith was a past master in the concealment of these, and, as such, came to Victor Durnovo in the guise of a new creation. He had lived the latter and the larger part of his life among men who said, in action if not in words, I am hungry or I am thirsty; I want this, or I want that; and if you are not strong enough to keep it, I will take it from you.

This man was different, and Victor Durnovo did not know, could not find out, what he wanted.

He had at first been inclined to laugh at him. What struck him most forcibly was Joseph, the servant. The idea of a man swaggering up an African river with a European manservant was so preposterous that it could only be met with ridicule; but the thing seemed so natural to Jack Meredith, he accepted the servitude of Joseph so much as a matter of course that after a time Durnovo accepted him also as part and parcel of Meredith.

Joseph took off his coat, turned up his sleeves and proceeded to cook such a dinner as Durnovo had not tasted for many months. There was wine also, and afterward a cigar of such quality as appealed strongly to Durnovo's West Indian palate.

The night settled down over the land while they sat there, and before them the great yellow equatorial moon rose slowly over the trees. With the darkness came a greater silence, for the myriad insect life was still.

"So," said Durnovo, returning to the subject which had never really left his thoughts, "you have come out here for pleasure?"

"Not exactly. I came chiefly to make money, partly to dispel some of the illusions of my youth, and I am getting on very well. Picture book illusions they were. The man who drew the pictures had never seen Africa."

The evening had turned out so very differently from what he had expected that Durnovo was a little carried off his equilibrium. Things were so sociable and pleasant in comparison with the habitual loneliness of his life. The fire crackled so cheerily, the moon shone down on the river so grandly, the subdued chatter of the boatmen imparted such a feeling of safety and comfort to the scene, that he gave way to that impulse of expansiveness which ever lurks in West Indian blood.

"I say," he said, "when you told me that you wanted to make money, were you in earnest?"

"In the deadliest earnest," replied Jack Meredith in the half mocking tone which he never wholly learned to lay aside.

"Then I think I can put you in the way of it. Oh, I know it seems a bit premature; not known you long enough and all that. But in this country we don't hold much by the formalities. I like you. I liked the look of you when you got out of that boat so cool and self possessed. You're the right sort, Mr. Meredith."

"Possibly for some things. For sitting about and smoking first class cigars and thinking second class thoughts I am exactly the right sort. But for making money, for hard work and steady work, I am afraid, Mr. Durnovo, that I am distinctly the wrong sort."

There was a little pause. Durnovo looked round as if to make sure that Joseph and the boatman were out of ear shot.

"Can you keep a secret?" he asked suddenly.

Jack Meredith turned and looked at the questioner with a smile. His hat had slipped to the back of his head, the light of the great yellow moon fell full upon his clean cut sphinxlike face. The eyes alone seemed living.

"Yes! I can do that."

"I can see you're a gentleman," Durnovo said. "I'll trust you. I want a man to join me in making a fortune. I have got my hand on it at last. But I'm afraid of this country. I'm getting shaky; look at that hand. I've been looking for it too long. I take you into my confidence, the first comer, you'll think. But there are not many men like you in this country, and I'm beastly afraid of dying. I want to get out of this for a bit, but I dare not leave until I set things going."

"Take your time," said Meredith, quietly and soothingly. "Light that cigar again and lie down. There is no hurry."

Durnovo obeyed him meekly.

"Tell me," he said, "have you ever heard of simiacine?"

"I cannot say that I have," replied Jack. "What is it for, brown boots or spasms?"

"It is a drug, the most expensive drug in the market. And they must have it, they cannot do without it, and they cannot find a substitute. It is the leaf of a shrub, and your hatful is worth a thousand pounds."

"Where is it to be found?" asked Jack Meredith. "I should like some in a sack."

"Ah, you may laugh now, but you won't when you hear all about it. The scientific chaps called it simiacine, because of an old African legend which, like all those things, has a grain of truth in it. The legend is that the monkeys first found out the properties of the leaf, and it is because they live on it that they are so strong. Do you know that a gorilla's arm is not half so thick as yours, and yet he would take you and snap your backbone across his knee? He would bend a gun barrel as you would bend a cane, merely by the turn of his wrist. That is simiacine. He can hang on to a tree with one leg and tackle a leopard with his bare hands—that's simiacine. At home they are only just beginning to find out its properties. It seems that it can bring a man back to life when he is more than half dead. There is no knowing what children that are brought up on it may turn out to be. It may double the power of the human brain; some think it will."

Jack Meredith was leaning forward, watching with a certain sense of fascination the wild, disease stricken face, listening to the man's breathless periods. It seemed that the fear of death, which had got hold of him, gave Victor Durnovo no time to pause for breath.

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

"There is practically no limit to the demand that there is for it. At present the only way of obtaining it is through the natives, and you know their manner of trading. They send a little packet down from the interior, and it very often takes two months and more to reach the buyer's hands. The money is sent back the same way and each man who fingers it keeps a little. The natives find the leaf in the forests by the aid of trained monkeys and only in very small quantities. Do you follow me?"

"Yes, I follow you."

Victor Durnovo leaned forward until his face was within three inches of Meredith's, and the dark, wild eyes flashed and glared into the Englishman's steady glance.

"What," he hissed—"what if I know where simiacine grows like a weed? What if I could supply the world with simiacine at my own price? Eh-h-h! What of that, Mr. Meredith?"

He threw himself suddenly back and wiped his dripping face. There was a silence, the great African silence that drives educated men mad and fills the imagination of the poor heathen with wild tales of devils and spirits.

Then Jack Meredith spoke without moving.

"I'm your man," he said, "with a few more details."

Victor Durnovo was lying back at full length on the hard, dry mud, his arms beneath his head. Without altering his position, he gave the details, speaking slowly and much more quietly. It seemed as if he spoke the result of long pent up thought.

"We shall want," he said, "at least £2,000 to start it, for we must have an armed force of our own. We have to penetrate a cannibal country of the fiercest devils in Africa. It is a plateau, a little plateau of two square miles, and the niggers think that it is haunted by an evil spirit. When we get there we shall have to hold it by force of arms, and when we send the stuff down to the coast we must have an escort of picked men. The bushes grow up there as thick as gooseberry bushes in a garden at home. With a little cultivation they will yield twice as much as they do now. We shall want another partner. I know a man, a soldierly fellow, full of fight, who knows the natives and the country. I will undertake to lead you there, but you will have to take great care of me. You will have to have me carried most of the way. I am weak, devilish weak, and I am afraid of dying, but I know the way there, and no other man can say as much. It is in my head here; it is not written down. It is only in my head, and no one can get it out of there."

"No," said Meredith in his quiet, refined voice—"no, no one can get it out. Come, let us turn in. Tomorrow I will go down the river with you. I will turn back, and we can talk it over as we go downstream."

If You Wore Them Last Winter This Is No News to You—

People who wore "Daisy" Rubbers last winter will wear them again this winter, even without reading our ads. For no amount of talk about "Daisy" Rubbers tells so much as a season's wear of the rubbers themselves. The good service they give under the test of every day ruff-scuff hard usage, in all kinds of bad weather,—that's what shows the honesty that backs "Our Daisy" advertising. But even that test doesn't tell why there's double wear in every pair—though it proves there is. It's a simple matter of using toughened honest rubber in the right way, in a factory that's as modern as the idea of honest quality is ancient.

"Klingsole" Made for Men and Women

You'll hardly know you've got rubbers on when you wear the Klingsole,—they are so light in weight. But they will outwear common rubbers that are twice as heavy. Klingsole Rubbers don't heat the feet; they can't slip off until you want them off—and then a touch removes them. Made in the right toe shape for the shoes you wear

FARM AND FIRESIDE

Useful Hints Which Will be Appreciated by the Progressive Farmer and His Housekeeper.

EXPERIMENTS IN FRUIT GROWING.

For a number of years extensive variety tests with fruits have been carried on at the Ontario Agricultural College and the various Fruit Experiment Stations in the province. These tests have given a good idea of what are some of the best varieties for the sections where the tests have been made.

The following list gives the names of a number of these, which are now offered for co-operative testing. One of the objects of this co-operative testing is to distribute those leading varieties more widely that they may be tested in every township of the province and that each grower may select for himself and grow more extensively those which give the best results on his own farm. Over 2,000 experimenters are already engaged in this work and are profiting because of its practical and educational value. The co-operation of all who are interested in fruit growing is invited.

Any resident of the province who wishes to take part in this work may select any one of the experiments in the list, and the plants for the same will be furnished free of cost. All we require is that each applicant must promise that he will try to follow the directions furnished, and will report the results each year on forms which will be furnished for the purpose. The experiment selected should be indicated by giving its number in the list.

Experiment No. 1 Strawberries — Splendid, Fountain, Ruby and Parsons—12 plants of each.

Experiment No. 2, Raspberries — Cuthbert, Golden Queen, Marlboro and Columbian—6 plants of each.

Experiment No. 3, Black Raspberries—Gregg, Kansas, Palmer and Older—6 plants of each.

Experiment No. 4, Blackberries — (Adapted only to *Southern sections of Ontario) Agawam, Eldorado, Kittatinny, and Snyder.— 6 plants of each.

Experiment No. 5, Currants— Fay, Red Cross, Victoria and White Grape—2 plants of each.

Experiment No. 6, Black Currants —Champion, Lees, Naples and Black Victoria—2 plants of each.

Experiment No. 7, Gooseberries — Downing, Pearl, Red Jacket and Whitesmith—2 plants of each.

Experiment No. 8, Grapes — (For *Southern Ontario) Concord, Wilder, Niagara, Lindley, Brighton and Vergennes—1 vine of each.

Experiment No. 9, Grapes — (For *Northern Ontario) Champion, Worden, Winchell, Delaware, Lindley and Moyer—1 vine of each.

Experiment No. 10, Apples — (For *Southern Ontario) Primate, Gravenstein, McIntosh, Blenheim, Rhode Island Greening, and Northern Spy —1 tree of each.

Experiment No. 11, Apples — (For *Northern Ontario) Transparent, Duchess, Wealthy, McIntosh, Scott's Winter and Hyslop Crab—1 tree of each.

THE CARE OF COMB HONEY.

There is probably nothing produced so easily handled as honey and nothing so easily ruined. Well-ripened honey possesses a flavor peculiarly its own, and if intelligently cared for increases in richness and value.

It is a great pity that such a valuable article of general popularity should not be better understood and universally used. It passes through so many hands before reaching the consumer, and is so carelessly housed, that it is often condemned as impure or artificial. It must be positively and definitely understood that such a thing as manufactured honey was never produced, and never can be. There are two awards of $1000 each offered for one section of manufactured honey. This has been done to remove any doubts about comb-honey being manufactured, so if your honey is insipid or sour the fault lies not with the bees or the producer, but with one or more of the dealers who handle it, and possibly it is ruined thoughtlessly by the consumer before reaching his table.

In the first place, the apiarist, after the sections are all nicely filled and capped by the bees, removes the supers to his honey room, carefully cleans and stores his sections in shipping cases commonly seen in grocery stores. There are two methods used to dispose of his product. If the bee-keeper has but ten or twenty colonies his neighbors will gladly purchase his crop, but when the yield is figured by the ton then he must resort to the jobber. Here is where his first trouble begins, and here rests the responsibility for much of the injury done his honey. The first shipments reach the jobber during the height of the fruit season and such perishable goods are the first to be disposed of. The honey may be stacked in the ice box or in some damp corner. As autumn approaches the honey is shipped to different points, some to be exposed to the noonday sun in a grocer's window, the balance stored in the cellar or ice box. Should it have escaped these fatal resting places the good housekeeper may, with best intentions, allow her choice box of honey to remain in the ice box or the cellar for a month.

Never allow your honey to freeze.
Never put it in a damp cellar.
Never store it near the stove.

Any bright, dry room will improve the finest honey produced, while a little neglect will make it candy, turn it sour or watery, while excessive heat will expand the honey, forcing the caps, and leakage, with resulting daubage, is sure to follow.

The beekeeping fraternity realize the obstacles they have to contend with, and many large producers are now selling their honey direct to the consumer. Should any reader of this article hesitate about buying honey because some one is selling it from a wagon instead of over the counter, bear in mind that the chances of securing the choicest article are ten to one in favor of the pedler.

Every family, no matter what the locality, may provide themselves with the choicest nectar at small cost, and be independent of the grocer or pedler. Two swarms of bees will average one hundred pounds of honey. Few, indeed, are the families who would not enjoy a box of honey every third day during the year.

DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

Teats Closed.

Warts on Teats.—Not serious but troublesome; may be removed, and caustic applied to prevent growth, and pure olive oil applied after each milking.

Caesin or calculus may form and become lodged in teat tubs. Inject small quantity of oil, and manipulation will usually force them out. If this fails, use a spring dilator. If you still find it impossible to remove it, an operation is necessary.

Thickening of the membrane and closure of the duct.—This is the result of inflammation extending from without, inward. It may be limited, or extend the full length of the teat; the streams of milk become finer and finer until it ceases altogether, and a firm cord is felt along the course of the duct. A dilator may be used, or a concealed bistoury.

How Much Care?

In a recent dairy article the author gave his method of caring for his herd of dairy cows, presumably the fancy herd of a wealthy owner, who was breeding stock for a pastime, and who had plenty of money to hire all the help necessary to care for his stock in the way mentioned.

His method would keep a man, several men, if the herd was a large one, in the stable from half past four in the morning till six or later at night. It called for grooming and cleaning three times a day, watering twice and feeding hay and grain six times.

A critic might take the ground that so much grooming and extra care was useless, he cannot, perhaps give them the attention received by the herd above mentioned, he can have a system of caring for his stock and can be regular in carrying it out, and this is the main thing. Have a time for doing each part of the work in the barn and do it in its time. If it is necessary to be away at any time during the day and not get back on the exact time by the watch that a certain thing should be done, do it in its regular order as regards other parts of the work.

Dairy cows should be groomed each day; the amount of grooming may depend somewhat on the amount of time the farmer can spare from his other work, but no farmer can afford to wholly neglect it no matter what his other work. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and it is not caring for stock well to neglect to give them at least a slight brushing.

No great amount of time need be spent on them. A man who has never done it will be surprised to see how quickly he can go over a lot of cows with card and brush if done each day, or what an improvement it will be to the stock both in looks and condition.

Two minutes each to a lot of cows will prove beneficial, if the caretaker can give them no more.

Be regular about feeding, watering, grooming and milking, and your stock will look well even if you have other work to demand a good part of your time.

But if one has the stock to require one man most of the time to care for them, it is better to have one man do the work, rather than having two or three do the work up quickly and then all go at something else. A regular man in the barn, with perhaps some help about the milking, is better than two or three part of the time and then no one in the barn through the day.

BREEDERS' NOTES.

A tablespoonful of flaxseed meal added to the grain ration of each weanling colt every night, will have a beneficial effect upon the bowels and give a gloss to the coat. Money spent for flaxseed meal to feed to the youngsters is an investment that will pay a fifty per cent. profit at least.

It is more conducive to the health and hardiness of horse stock to be kept in barns that are well ventilated and not warmed by artificial heat than in close and steam heated stables. Pure air is an essential to pure blood and good health as is pure food.

Don't neglect to cover the icy spots in the yard or paddock with gravel, loam or ashes. Slipping on such spots may cause the ruin of a valuable colt or brood mare.

Keep a good rasp handy and use it judiciously in keeping the feet of the colts level and of proper shape. Don't let the toes become too long.

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. It is also indispensable in order to keep the colts free from worms and lice and their feet free from thrush.

A few dollars spent on each horse consigned to the sales ring in putting him in condition to show to the best advantage will prove a profitable investment. Have the animals well mannered, fat, sleek and well-groomed.

A foot pick is a much more important implement in the colt stable than the curry comb or brush. When the soles of the feet are picked clean and washed every day there is little danger that they will become affected with thrush.

Don't keep the weanlings shut up in stalls and standing on hard floors all the time. They need exercise in the open air and on the earth every day to keep their limbs strong and their feet healthy.—Horse Breeder.

POULTRY DEPARTMENT.

Favrolles as Layers.

Favrolles having some Asiatic blood in them are sometimes referred to as good winter layers; however, my own experience of them is that just like other breeds, a good deal depends on the time they were hatched. Early hatched birds will lay early, while those late hatched rarely produce eggs till the following spring. With the infusion of Brahma and Cochin, writers on the breed usually put them down as fowls that go broody regularly. This is entirely a misconception, for in my own yards of sixteen laying-hens last summer only 3 of them became broody, which, in my case, was a handicap, as sitters of other breeds had to be purchased.

The writer's experience with this breed has been exceptionally good. Each year 60 or 70 were hatched, and, except through accident, all were reared. It is, however, in the matter of growth that they excel many other varieties. If plenty of food is supplied they grow all the time; and, whether attributable to strain or the general character of the breed, they certainly beat most sorts in putting on flesh and weight.

DOMESTIC HINTS.

Potato Souffle.

Mash some potatoes with butter and seasoning. Add the yolks of three raw eggs and some tomatoes which have been boiled, mashed and strained. Whip up the whites of the eggs to a snow; stir lightly into mixture. Put in a souffle pan which has been well greased. Cover with buttered paper. Steam for half an hour. Garnish with olives, slices of tomato and parsley. Serve very hot.

Luncheon Timbales.

Press, says Good Housekeeping, 3-4 of a cup of boiled beans through a colander. Add an equal amount of grated cheese, a pinch of paprika and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Beat the whites and yolks to the bean and cheese mixture with half a cup of milk and beat lightly. Cut in the beaten whites of the eggs and fill well-buttered gem pans three-fourths full. Bake until brown and serve with a drawn butter sauce, to which has been added a little chopped parsley.

Apples in Puff Paste.

A fine dessert for a cool day is made by enclosing each tart apple in a crust of puff paste, baking in a slow oven, and sprinkling with sugar ten or fifteen minutes before taking them out. Serve a sauce of thick cream, sugar, and nutmeg to pour over them, and have a cream cheese to eat with them.

Cabbage Soup.

For cabbage soup of a delicate flavor pull apart and wash the cabbage leaves, let them lie an hour or more in cold water; then put in a saucepan with enough boiling water to cover and a tablespoonful of salt. Cook for 40 minutes, or until tender; drain off the water and chop fine. Put in a saucepan three tablespoonfuls of butter, two of flour, a stalk of celery, a bay leaf and a quart of white stock, or, in its absence, a quart of milk. Cook slowly for 10 minutes, then remove the bay leaf and celery, stirring till smooth; then add the cabbage, season with salt and pepper, cook ten minutes, stirring constantly. If it is desired to have a smooth soup, put through a sieve, otherwise add half a pint of cream and serve.

HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

Cut a small white turnip in half and rub the griddle with it. It causes no smoke, smell, taste or adhesion, and will be found better than butter or grease.

In blowing out a candle hold it aloft and blow upwards. This will prevent scattering of the grease.

Lamp chimneys crack readily in cold weather. The sudden expansion in heating is more than they can stand. To toughen them it is only necessary to boil them a long time after putting them in cold, salted water in a kettle having a false bottom. Even these will not stand the sudden raising of the wick after lighting it, or the pressure of too tight clamps that hold it in place.

Shoes are a whole lot more important to our appearance than a great many otherwise well-dressed people realize. Nothing is worse for shoes than to be thoroughly wet and allowed to dry just any old way. When you come in with wet shoes, don't put them away and let them dry before first providing against their getting stiff.

A piece of bread tied in a bit of muslin and dropped into water in which greens are boiling will absorb the unpleasant odor.

One of the best shampoos for a child's hair, especially when long and thick, consists of a well-beaten egg made into a froth with hot water and rubbed into the roots of the hair. Borax and ammonia — especially the latter—should be sparingly used, ammonia in particular being inclined to damage the color and shimmer of fair hair, while it frequently causes it to become brittle and split at the ends.

Remove the scratches from varnished furniture by going over them carefully with a camel's hair brush that has been dipped in shellac varnish until they disappear. Nothing should touch the places until they are quite dry.

Stole to Get Medical Aid.

A poor man in Vienna found it impossible to gain admission to any of the public hospitals because they were all overcrowded. He stole a pair of shoes to get himself arrested, reasoning that in the jail he would receive medical treatment. He was given the necessary medical attention and when he recovered his health served a brief term for petty larceny.

Leaves as Food.

In England beech, willow and gooseberry leaves have been used for salads, and not so very long ago, when famine invaded northern Italy, the peasants kept themselves alive on boiled chestnut leaves, not the nuts, which are their important crop.

One Mistake Enough.

Among those who handle high explosives there runs this proverb: "In this business a man never makes more than one mistake."

Impure Part of Ice.

The center of a cake of artificial ice is generally opaque, while the part first frozen, the outside, is generally clear. As water freezes slowly, all the impurities are pushed away from the part first freezing. The central opaque part contains all the impurities, even the bacteria which may be in the water.

The Use of "A. D."

The practice of dating letters and legal instruments "A. D." was not introduced into England until the year 680.

A Banking Monopoly.

When the Bank of England was established by charter in 1694 it alone was allowed to do banking business in the kingdom, and it was not until the passing of the banks bill of 1826 that joint stock banks began to be established.

To fry an egg so that it will be particularly tempting to the eye as well as the palate first separate the white from the yolk, then beat the white into a froth, drop it into the pan, make a hole in the center with a spoon and drop the yolk into the hole. It will cook it into a very dainty bit.

Cowhide and Horsehide.

A hide from a horse yields about twenty pounds of leather, while that from a cow gives thirty-five pounds.

Rough on the Unmarried.

The north Frisians are very unmerciful to people who don't marry. One of their legends says that after death old maids are doomed to cut stars out of the sun when it has sunk below the horizon, and the ghosts of the old bachelors must blow them up in the east, running, like lamplighters, all night up and down a ladder.

Putting Out Fires.

In some of the cities of Europe the cost of putting out a fire is made a charge upon the property of the person for whose benefit the fire department is called out.

Ancient Tombstones.

The custom of inscribing upon tombstones was in vogue among the Greeks and Romans. The Greeks only did this, however, in the case of their illustrious men, but when a Roman died he was duly buried near a highway, and on his tombstone was carved a suitable inscription, which in the majority of cases began with "Sta, viator" (stop, traveler).

AUNTIE'S MEMORY.

What She Knew About the Fall of the Roman Empire.

An old colored woman down in Alabama was reported to be of great age and was extremely proud of the distinction. The proprietor of a museum, on hearing of her, sent one of his agents to make an investigation, as she would be a valuable acquisition to his museum. The agent plied her with questions regarding her age. He asked her:

"Auntie, do you remember George Washington?"

"Does I remember George Washington? Laws a-massy, mister, I reckon I does, for I done nussed him when he was a chile."

"Well, I suppose you remember the Revolutionary war?"

"Yes, indeed, I does, honey. I stood dar lots of times an' seen de bullets flyin' round thick as hailstones."

"Well, auntie, how about the fall of the Roman empire? Do you recollect anything about that?"

"De fact is, honey, I was pretty young about dat time, but I does 'member, now you speak ob it, dat I did hear de white folks tell 'bout hearing som'pin' drop 'bout dat time."—Harper's Weekly.

Dog Did the Wrong Trick.

The Irishman wanted to sell the dog, but the prospective buyer was suspicious and finally decided not to buy. The man then told him why he was so anxious to sell. "You see," he said, "I bought the dog and trained him myself. I got him so he'd bark all the time if a person stepped inside the gate, and I thought I was safe from burglars. Then my wife wanted me to train him to carry bundles, and I did. If I put a packet in his mouth the dog would keep it there till some one took it away. Well, one night I woke up and heard some one in the next room. I got up and grabbed my gun. They were there—three of the scoundrels and the dog."

"Didn't he bark?" interrupted the man.

"Sorry a bark; he was too busy."

"Busy? What doing?"

"Carrying a lantern for the burglars."—Dublin Freeman.

An Assessment Of $15,000 Per Annum For Ten Years.

That is What the Council Pledges Itself to Try and Secure For Hotel Quinte, Providing it is Rebuilt In Former Proportions and Mr. J. V. Jenkins Remains Manager--Several Important Matters Came Up At Meeting of City Fathers Last Night--Fine Lot Of Orators In the Council For 1907.

One thing was quite apparent at the City Council meeting last night. In fact it was so plain that, to use an old expression, "a blind man could almost have felt it with a stick" — the Council this year contains as fine a bunch of orators as you'd run across in a day's march, and hardly any of 'em feel like hiding their light under a bushel. When they get their bearings you won't find a faster group of single-handed talkers between Halifax and the north pole. Many matters came up last night; some important, some trivial, but they were all threshed out faithfully and earnestly. Perhaps the most important matter was the Council's placing itself on record as in favor of a fixed assessment of $15,000 per year for 10 years to Hotel Quinte, providing that hostelry is rebuilt.

All hands and the cook were in attendance, and the Council soon got down to business in committee of the whole, with Ald. Starling in the chair.

The reports of the standing committees, as already published, were adopted without discussion.

The grant to the Public Library this year will be $1000, the same as last.

THE G. T. R. CROSSINGS.

A letter was read from Mr. E. Guss Porter, M. P., stating that he had received a letter from Mr. R. S. Logan, of the Grand Trunk, in which the Belleville crossings were discussed. Mr. Logan submitted that the Grand Trunk would probably be able to meet the city's views in regard to the crossings, providing the city was prepared to pay half the cost.

Ald. Panter asked if anything had been done in regard to the resolution passed by last year's Council, which stated, in effect, that the G. T. R. be requested to take steps to safeguard dangerous crossings in this city, or, in default, the Railway commission be asked to come and arrange matters.

Mr. Mikel said nothing definite had been done.

Ald. Green asked in whose behalf Mr. Porter was acting, in his correspondence with the G.T.R.

A client, he was told.

Ald. Green then said he had been told by Mr. Coppin, of the G. T. R., that, if the Council would appoint a committee to meet some representatives of the G.T.R., the latter would meet the committee in a week's time and talk matters over with a view to arranging outstanding differences. He moved that such a committee be appointed, and that it be composed of the Mayor, Ald. Panter, Butler, Starling and Green. The committee will take all grievances under consideration and report.

This was carried, and the City Clerk was instructed to write County Clerk Alyesworth to the effect that the committee of the City Council re G. T. R. matters would like to meet the committee appointed by the County Council for a like purpose.

A TELEPHONE QUESTION.

A letter was read from the Century Telephone Construction Company, of Toronto, which stated that the company would, if agreeable to the Council, send a representative to this city early next month, to talk over matters in regard to telephone affairs.

The City Clerk stated that the contract with the Bell Telephone Co. expired next June, and that it might be well, between now and then, for the Council to post itself in regard to telephone conditions generally.

Ald. Marsh moved that the matter be referred to the Executive committee, and thought that a special committee should be appointed to look into general conditions.

Ald. Panter suggested that the representative of the Century Telephone Co. be invited to come and give the Council information.

Ald. Thompson thought the special committee should first get together and acquire some information, so as to be ready to discuss the matter intelligently with the representative when he came.

The matter was finally referred to the Executive committee, and the following special committee was appointed in regard to it: The Mayor, Ald. Marsh, and Starling.

BOARD OF TRADE RECOMMENDATIONS.

A letter was read from the Board of Trade, which contained two recommendations:

1. That the City Council appoint an official whose duty it would be to see that back yards of business places be kept clear of litter which might easily catch fire, and

2. That the City Council take steps to act with the Board of Trade in requesting the Government to provide a better service in the local post office, and that Belleville be also provided with postal delivery.

The back yards matter was discussed for some time, and was finally left in the hands of the Mayor, who will look into the matter and report.

THE POST OFFICE.

Ald. Burrows thought the post office was all right, and that conditions were not so bad as people made them out to be. Personally he had no fault to find.

The Mayor said the general public made dozens of complaints every day.

Ald. Green said the Board of Trade was very much in earnest in the matter, and were emphatic in the opinion that something must be done. Personally he had little fault to find, but did not think the Council should slight a recommendation of the Board of Trade.

Ald. Marsh did not hear of any complaints, but thought Belleville should have a business delivery, and thought the Council should join the Board of Trade in asking for it.

Ald. Butler said the whole difficulty in the local post office appeared to be that the clerks did not stay long enough. After they had been there long enough to become expert they became ambitious and sought more lucrative positions: then new hands had to be again broken in, and the service suffered. It was a question if some other system of running the office would not give better results. The Government might be memorialized to that effect, though he thought the matter was one which should be dealt with by the Board of Trade. As to free delivery, they were not in a position to lay the necessary facts before the Government to pave the way for it.

After some further discussion the matter was referred to the Executive committee.

THE HOTEL QUINTE TAXES.

There had been a meeting of the Executive committee on Monday afternoon, at which Messrs. H. Corby and J. V. Jenkins were present. The question discussed was: Shall there be a fixed rate of assessment on Hotel Quinte, if the same is rebuilt? The Executive committee arrived at a decision in the matter, which was presented to the Council last night in the form of a recommendation that the Council pledge itself to do its utmost to obtain from the Legislature a private bill fixing the general tax rate of the hotel at $15,000 per year for ten years, providing the hotel is rebuilt as before, and that Mr. J. V. Jenkins remain the manager.

When the report of the Council was presented last night,

Ald. Green said he thought the amount mentioned, $15,000, was too much, and it did not express the views of the citizens of Belleville. The Quinte was badly needed: it had advertised the city very advantageously; its 40 employees would spend their wages here and greatly benefit the merchants. In conclusion Ald. Green thought the assessment should be fixed at $10,000.

Ald. Thompson spoke in favor of Ald. Green's suggestion. One hundred and fifty yachts had come to Belleville last summer, he said, and they were all attracted by Hotel Quinte. The crews of at least 75 of these yachts had patronized Belleville stores. The hotel, when running, through its own business and its employees, spent $40,000 a year, or about $750 a week, in the city. It was a fine advertisement for Belleville, and for the sake of $5,000 in assessment the Council should not, he thought, spoil the chances of the hotel's being rebuilt. The difference was only a matter of $125 a year for 10 years, or $1250 in all. He would like to see the assessment fixed at the same rate as before, $10,000 a year.

Ald. Panter said it seemed a remarkable thing to him that, when the Executive committee disposed of the matter in the afternoon, the members were unanimous on $15,000. The former speakers had apparently changed their views.

Ald. Thompson, with considerable warmth denied this. He had not changed his views. Ald. Panter must come down.

Ald Panter—"Oh! no, I won't."

Ald. Burrows said Ald. Thompson contended he did not vote in the afternoon.

Ald Panter said the Executive committee's first proposal in the afternoon was that the assessment be fixed at $20,000. This was voted down and $15,000 was carried unanimously.

Ald. Green said he understood the proposal was $15,000 "or less."

Ald. Panter, warmly—"No, sir."

The Chairman—"Order, gentlemen."

Ald. Panter then said he would ask Ald. Marsh, chairman of the Executive committee, how the vote stood in the afternoon.

Ald. Marsh first of all pointed out that several of the aldermen had broken the rules by speaking more than twice on the question. However, he would state, as he was on his feet, that, in the afternoon the final motion, fixing the assessment at $15,000, was carried unanimously.

The chairman, Ald. Starling, said he was afraid the whole discussion was out of order. There was no motion before the chair.

The Mayor said that, to make things regular, he would move that the committee's report be adopted.

Ald. Thompson again denied that the motion had been carried unanimously. He had not voted, and had not been asked to vote.

A vote was finally taken and the committee's report adopted by a vote of 8-2, Ald. Green and Thompson voting against it.

OTHER MATTERS.

A communication from John Lowell & Co., re their Gazetteer, was referred to the Printing and Advertising committee.

The Ontario Municipal Association wrote asking the Council to concur in a petition asking that section 606 of the Municipal Act be repealed. The request was concurred in.

The Fire Chief's report was read and referred. It stated that much new equipment was needed, and that the fire losses last year amounted to $12,500.

THE CITY ENGINEER.

Applications for the position of City Engineer, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. James McCurdy, were read from Messrs. S. R. Artis, J. Robbin, H. Rose, H. Demarsh and A. P. Walker.

Ald. Marsh asked if it were absolutely necessary that the position should be filled? Could the office not be abolished altogether?

Ald. McCrodan, chairman of the Fire committee, said he had always understood it was necessary to maintain a city engineer.

Ald. Starling said he knew that, prior to 1901, it was necessary to have such an official. The Underwriters demanded it.

Ald. Marsh thought it would be a good thing to find out if such an official were necessary. He personally did not see the need of a permanent city engineer at all. When such a man was needed he could soon be engaged.

It was resolved that the appointment should not now be made, but that the matter be left in the hands of a committee composed of Ald. McCrodan, Marsh and Starling.

TWO BY-LAWS.

Ald. Marsh introduced two by-laws. The first, to grant $1000 to the Public Library, went through without discussion, and was numbered 1307.

The second by-law granted power to the Mayor and Treasurer to borrow $25,000 from the Bank of Montreal, the same being to cover current expenses till the taxes came in. The rate, it was explained, would be 5 per cent., as usual.

When the first clause had been read,

The Mayor said he believed the city could get a better rate than 5 per cent. There was considerable competition among banks in this city now, and he would suggest that no bank be named in the by-law, but that the city obtain the money where it could get the best rate.

Ald. Starling was surprised that the city had to borrow any money nowadays. He understood that conditions had been so improved that borrowing from banks was done away with.

The City Clerk blandly said that nowadays the city had to borrow money to tide it over till July, when the taxes came in; formerly it had to borrow to tide it over till October.

There was a lot of talk regarding the banking by-law, and finally, at the Mayor's suggestion, the amount was reduced to $10,000, and before that is gone arrangements will be made for the balance at better terms if they can be arranged. The by-law was numbered 1308.

Ald. Thompson was in the chair in committee of the whole on by-laws.

Ald. Butler and McCrodan were appointed as the city's representatives on the Public Library Board.

A committee composed of the Mayor, Ald. Panter, Green, Burrows and Marsh was appointed to confer with Mr. Dolan, with power to act, in regard to a dispute over a sidewalk on Campbell street.

A party who wanted to rent the City Hall for advertising purposes was informed that there would be no reduction in the rental.

Council adjourned at 10.30.

MRS. MILLER ON TRIAL.

Crown Uses Bridant as a Witness Against the Woman.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—Mrs. Lillian Miller was placed on trial yesterday before Justice Clute and a jury in the Assize Court. She is charged with furnishing the drugs and instruments which caused the death of Mrs. Agnes Bridant. The evidence for the prosecution is all in with the exception of that of Dr. Rose, who will be called this morning. The verdict will be reached to-night.

A similar charge against Edward Bridant, the husband of the deceased, was withdrawn, and he was used as a witness for the crown. Mr. Godfrey is defending Mrs. Miller, and Mr. Lynch-Staunton is prosecuting.

Bridant told of visiting with his wife the place supposed to be kept by "Dr. De Voss" and meeting Mrs. Miller there. Mrs. Miller told Mrs. Bridant "if you follow my treatment I can cure you" and handed three boxes of pills, instructing her how to use them. The price was $7. Mrs. Miller asked Mrs. Bridant if she expected confinement, "because," she said, "if you are I cannot do anything for you."

Mrs. Bridant took ill on the following Tuesday at midnight and died Friday morning.

Dr. A. J. Johnston testified that drugs which these pills were composed of were prescribed to women for certain purposes by reputable physicians.

Sergt. Duncon identified a number of letters addressed to "Dr. De Vosa," which were found in the Miller rooms.

The London election trials have been traversed to the May Assizes.

Big Fire In Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 29.—With the thermometer between 30 and 40 below zero, the firemen last night had a most trying task on their hands fighting a fire at 143 Bannatyne street, in a big warehouse owned by Bright & Johnson. Only the charred walls remain. The fire broke out in the flat rented by the Pulford Leonard Drug Co., and their loss is $60,000. J. D. King Co. of Toronto, William Patterson, Sons & Co.; Rattray, Cameron & Co.; Lyon, Taylor & Co., and Copeland-Chatterson Co. of Toronto were the other losers. The total loss will be about $250,000. The building was valued at $40,000.

A Dangerous Lunatic.

North Bay, Jan. 29.—J. McKee, a young man about twenty-five years of age, was arrested as a lunatic yesterday afternoon. While being searched at police headquarters by P. C. Lefebre, a revolver was found concealed in his boot top. One of Lefebre's fingers was shattered by a bullet while wrestling with the prisoner. The latter's hand was also damaged. McKee was taken to Brockville Asylum last night.

Salt Agency Discontinued.

Sarnia, Jan. 29.—The Dominion Salt Agency of London, Ont., which was organized two years ago, will be discontinued. The Dominion Salt Agency has been marketing over 90 per cent. of the salt made annually in Canada. The dissolution is due to the fact that no benefits have been derived by selling through an agency.

Disastrous Fire At Caron.

Caron, Sask., Jan. 29.—A disastrous fire broke out in Stewart and Brown's general store last night. This building and contents, The Enterprise Printing Co., and the building of the Caron Drug and Stationery Co., Limited, and Beresford Sproule, butcher, were burned to the ground. The loss exceeds $20,000.

Million Dollar Fire.

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 29.—The plant of the Phelps Publishing Co. here was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The loss is estimated to approach $1,000,000.

THE CHINESE FAMINE

May Become a Grave Danger by Her Hunger Conditions.

U. S. Officials Confirm Reports of Sufferings of Millions of People—Consul Haynes at Nanking Urges American Aid to Dispel Ill-Feeling of Chinese to Americans — New Year Watched With Uneasiness.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Mail reports from American consular officers in China, which reached the State Department yesterday regarding the famine and the resulting conditions, still further confirm the stories of suffering and hardship among the people in the districts affected.

Consul Haynes at Nanking says that the famine is ten times worse than anything known in that part of the empire for the past 40 years. The Chinese officials, he says, upon information given him by the viceroy, admit their inability to cope with the situation. The Government is trying to help the starving people to keep their cattle, and to this end is taking their oxen and buffaloes in pawn for two taels each, keeping them thus until next spring, when it will return them.

Humane For Quid Pro Quo.

Consul-General Haynes declares that whatever aid may be extended by this Government in the present crisis will certainly do much to dispel the ill-feeling recently aroused by the boycott, the Exclusion Act, etc.

Consul-General Rodgers at Shanghai says an enquiry which he has made through private sources affords the general conclusions that the famine will, by March 1, be regarded as severe and perhaps more so than that of 1878, by which it is thought 10,000,000 lives were lost.

The report of Mr. Rodgers is accompanied by a statement by Dr. Henry M. Woods of the Southern Presbyterian Mission at Hwaianfu, who estimates that 10,000,000 are affected by the famine, four millions of whom are starving. He says that at present more than 500,000 refugees are at Tsingkiangpu huddled in mat sheds, and that the pitiful sight is daily witnessed of parents offering their children for sale at from $2 to $1 each. Brigandage and robbery, he adds, are everywhere rife.

Border On Actual Rebellion.

Mr. Rodgers declares that the influence of the famine conditions upon current affairs can now be plainly seen in the unrest and discontent of the people. From many places, he says, comes news of riots of greater or less degree, while in Ksangsi, a state bordering on actual rebellion, is on. So serious has the situation become that a goodly portion of the available military force is now in the field.

Mr. Rodgers concludes: "My deliberate opinion is that the next few months will see the development of dangerous things in this part of China, and that such conditions and circumstances will have a great effect upon foreign interests, political as well as commercial.

"China's new year, which, luckily, falls late this year, being in the second week of February, is watched with no small degree of uneasiness."

DULUTH SUPPLIES WINNIPEG.

Lots of Coal and Wood From South—Saskatchewan Still Suffers.

Winnipeg, Jan. 29.—The fuel situation, as far as Winnipeg is concerned, seems about over, as yesterday 4,000 tons of coal arrived from the south, while 4,000 cords of wood also reached the city. The shipping of coal from Duluth will, it is hoped, avert actual suffering. At Fort William and Port Arthur there was only 13,000 tons of coal.

The situation in many of the Saskatchewan towns, though, is still desperate. The branch lines of both C. P. R. and C.N.R. are completely tied up, and no trains have been in many points for a week, with the result that fuel and provisions are running short.

Railway men never go out without taking supplies with them sufficient to last for days.

FUNERAL OF MR. BLAIR.

Semi-Private, But a Large Attendance At Last Obsequies.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—The funeral of the late Hon. A. G. Blair took place yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from his residence on O'Connor street, to Beechwood Cemetery.

It was semi-private, but there was a large attendance, including most of the Cabinet Ministers, Premier Tweedie of New Brunswick, James Robinson, ex-M.P. for Northumberland; many members of Parliament, the whole of the staff of the Department of Railways and Canals, and the staff of the Railway Commission.

The chief mourners were: A. G. Blair jr. and Donald Blair, sons; R. F. Randolph, W. C. Clark and Dr. G. S. McCarthy, sons-in-law; Slosson Thompson, brother-in-law; Senator Thompson and W. T. Whitehead, Fredericton.

Mr. Bruneau to the Bench.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Mr. Bruneau, M. P., of Richelieu, left yesterday afternoon for Sorel, to bid good-bye to political life.

Mr. Bruneau will be appointed today justice of the Superior Court of Quebec at Sorel, in place of Justice Charbonneau, who takes the place of Justice Taschereau, who becomes chief justice of the Court of Appeal.

Largest Elevator In the World.

Port Arthur, Jan. 29.—Barnett and McQueen, elevator builders, of this place, have received the contract from the Grand Trunk Pacific for the largest grain elevator in the world. The capacity will be close to 10,000,000 bushels. It will be built of concrete steel, entirely fireproof.

IRELAND AND THE EMBARGO.

Present Policy, If Continued, Will Mean Ruin of the Traders.

London, Jan. 29.—(C. A. P.)—Addressing the committee of the Irish Cattle Traders' Association, William Field, M.P., said he was convinced that a continuation of the present policy meant an elimination of the native meat traders. Under present conditions, Ireland could not hope to cope with the ever-growing foreign competition.

Mr. Field also writes The Freeman's Journal, denying the statement made by Morrison of Liverpool, that 40 per cent. of the imported Irish cattle had tuberculosis. The Journal editorially again discusses the "very grave results that would necessarily accrue from a removal of the restrictions of the importation of Canadian cattle."

NEW ZEALAND MAIL SERVICE.

Canadian Route Should Be Supplemented, Says Writer.

London, Jan. 29.—(C. A. P.)—A Wellington, New Zealand, correspondent, discussing the imperial mail service, says that the "all red" route, via Vancouver and the Dominion, supplemented by a regular connection, with improved federal service via Suez, which will shortly be in operation, is what New Zealand really wants.

The Morning Post editorially says that if Canada and New Zealand can co-operate effectively to stimulate reciprocal trade, they should have no difficulty about the increasing mail subsidy, as may be necessary to secure British service.

Thaw Jurors Now Number Nine.

New York, Jan. 29.—The jury which is to try Harry K. Thaw for the killing of Stanford White is rapidly nearing completion. When court adjourned last evening there were nine men in the jury box, one having been added during the morning session and a second just before the hour of adjournment, 5 o'clock. It is thought that the taking of testimony may be begun Wednesday afternoon.

Brittany Marriage Custom.

In Brittany there is said to prevail a curious marriage custom. On certain fete days the young ladies appear in red petticoats, with white or yellow borders around them. The number of borders denotes the portion the father is willing to give his daughter. Each white band denotes silver—100 francs per annum; each yellow band represents gold—1,000 francs a year.

Teapots.

Teapots are used in China only by the poor. Among the wealthy it is customary to put the tea leaves in each cup and pour water on them.

Demerara.

Demerara, in British Guiana, was at one time a regular pest hole, 700 of the Royal artillery having died there in one season. But, owing to irrigation, drainage and all the latest sanitary improvements, as the advertising gag has it, Demerara is now a health resort.

The Serpent's Sight.

There is a tradition in many parts of Europe that when a serpent's sight grows dim with age he eats fennel and thus regains his vision.

Zion to Move On.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Zion City is to be deserted by Wilbur Glenn Voliva and all those over whom he holds sway. A new Zion City is to be founded, probably on the Pacific coast, and Dr. Dowie and his creditors will be left to fight out the question of supremacy here.

Piles Sufferer

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION BY A HALF BOX OF THE PYRAMID PILE CURE—YOU CAN TRY IT FREE.

"I cannot help writing to you about your wonderful cure for piles. When I wrote to you for a sample I was thinking of going through an operation. But I thought I would give your remedies a trial. I am so happy that I did for I am cured and only used half a box. I write this for humanity's sake. I had piles ever since the year 1891. I wish you would publish my name through the Bulletin paper, for I am well-known in the Marine Corps. Use my name the best way you know how. Thanking you for your good advice. Yours truly, Cleophas Forte, Marine Barracks, U.S.N. Training Station, San Francisco, Cal.

What should induce this United States seaman to write us in this manner if not gratitude for being cured of a disease which had tortured him for fifteen years? Mr. Forte was positively unknown and us until he wrote for the sample of our wonderful remedy.

Possibly you too are driven nearly to madness with piles and have thought an operation the only cure. Let us urge you before going to this expense and suffering and submitting to this humiliation, write us to-day for the free trial package of the Pyramid Pile Cure. Its action is immediate and relief is sure. The reputation of its makers is a guarantee of its freedom from harmful ingredients. There is nothing in it but healing, soothing elements which work upon the fevered tissues, bring new life to the bowel and make its action painless and natural.

The sample we send you contains exactly the same remedy as you buy at any druggists at 50 cts. per box. Send to-day and see what wonderful results this sample will bring. It costs you nothing to try. Pyramid Drug Co., 78 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

CONSTITUTION SACRED

Sir Wilfrid Will Not Accept Maritime Provinces Motion.

Annual Debate On Question of P. E. I.'s Lowered Representation and Discussion On Amendment to Constitution—Legal Argument Not So Strong In Conservative Party As Justice and Generous Treatment of Smaller Provinces.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—The annual debate upon the representation to be accorded the Maritime Provinces took place yesterday in the House, and arose on a resolution by Mr. Hughes (Liberal, P. E. I.), proposing an amendment to the B.N.A. Act providing that the Maritime Provinces of the Dominion, comprising the Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, shall not at any time have fewer representatives in the House of Commons than the number that was assigned to each when it entered the confederation."

Messrs. Hughes and Martin of Prince Edward Island and Messrs. Stockton and Daniels of St. John, N.B., contended that the B.N.A. Act as interpreted by the courts was working a great injustice.

Mr. Aylesworth submitted that it was better to follow the terms of the constitution and rely upon the decisions of the supreme court and of the Privy Council.

E. M. MacDonald (Liberal, Nova Scotia,) urged the claims of the Maritime Provinces.

The New Brunswick members, including Mr. Crockett (Conservative, New Brunswick), did not so strongly insist upon any legal right for Prince Edward Island, as they did upon the moral claim and the historical rights of the province by the sea.

W. F. Maclean (South York) said that Mr. Aylesworth had made a strong legal argument. But should he stand on the strict letter of the law? Should we not, on a question like this, deal from a humane standpoint, and, so far as the small provinces are concerned, from a generous standpoint?

Mr. McLean (Conservative, Prince Edward Island) said this was not a cold legal question. It was a question of justice and fair play. The smaller provinces were entitled to considerate treatment.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier could not consent to the resolution. He considered an amendment to the constitution as an extreme measure.

R. L. Borden criticized Mr. Aylesworth's purely legal argument. Everyone knew without his telling them what the Privy Council had decided. If the Government was willing to amend the B. N. A. Act, in order to change the subsidies, why not amend it as asked by the resolution?

Leighton McCarthy (North Simcoe) moved to the adjournment of the debate. The motion carried; yeas 78, nays 48.

READ A FIRST TIME.

The Very Important Joint Stock Companies Bill Introduced.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—In the House yesterday, Premier Whitney, seconded by Hon. J. J. Foy, moved the first reading of the bill respecting joint stock and other companies, which has already been extensively described.

Premier Whitney said that the Provincial Secretary, who was absent, would in due course make further explanation. "This is a very important bill," he added.

The House was adjourned at 3.30.

The members of the Opposition are discussing the proposal to banquet Hon. G. W. Ross at an early date. The new Senator is to be banquetted in Ottawa to-morrow by the Senators and Ontario members.

Premier Whitney seemed rather surprised to hear of J. P. Downey's resignation of his editorship at Guelph. It was the first he had heard of it, he said yesterday afternoon, and was certainly of no Government significance.

POPE CHANGES ATTITUDE.

Towards Anti-Church Law In France—Possible to Organize Worship.

Paris, Jan. 29.—It is learned that as a result of the advice tendered to the Pope by French prelates, the Pontiff has changed his position towards the church and state separation question in France and will issue new instructions under which it is believed it will be possible to organize public worship under the supplementary church and state separation law introduced by M. Briand, the Minister of Education.

Cardinal Richard, Archbishop of Paris, has sent telegrams to the members of the French episcopate, requesting them to attend another meeting here. A preliminary assemblage of bishops, at which 30 were present, took place yesterday.

Wilful Murder the Verdict.

London, Jan. 29.—A verdict of "wilful murder" was rendered by a coroner's jury yesterday morning against Horace George Raynor, the man who shot and killed William Whitely, the well-known Westbourne Grove merchant, Jan. 24. The motive of the crime remains a mystery unless, as the police assert, it was the failure of an attempt to blackmail the merchant.

The Cockburn Case.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—The G. R. R. Cockburn case was yesterday postponed until to-morrow, when Crown-Attorney Corley expects to put Charles McGill in the box. Frank Arnoldi, K.C., thought it unfair to his client to have so many adjournments.

Committed For Forgery.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Paul Schultz, ex-Dominion policeman, accused of forging a cheque for $62 on the Bank of Montreal, was committed for trial at police court.

Conditions Are Unacceptable.

Briand's Reply to Bishop's Proposal Curt But Expressive.

French Bishops, With the Approval of the Pope, Submitted to the French Government What They Termed a Model Contract for the Solution of the Church and State Conflict With Above Result

Paris, Jan. 30.—The response made yesterday by Minister of Education Briand to the declaration of the bishops was short and unmistakably clear. The Minister said: "The conditions are unacceptable."

The Minister then proceeded to explain his present attitude concerning the decisions of the French episcopal. "The threatening tone and the brutality of the declaration of bishops has struck me as well as you."

Model Contract Presented.

Paris, Jan. 30.—The proposition which the French bishops, with the approval of the Pope, have now submitted to the Government, seems to offer the first real prospect of an adjustment of the conflict between church and state under the separation regime.

While it involves a material modification of the position taken in the last papal encyclical, the proposition put forward has all the appearance of an ultimatum. Whether the Government, in spite of the concessions made and making in the interest of religious peace, will accept a settlement based upon the absolute recognition of the Roman hierarchy, remains to be seen.

The model contract which the bishops have submitted provides for the virtual lease of the churhes in perpetuity to the parish priests by the mayors, the leases being for 18 years, and renewable by their successors. The leases, which carry a stipulation engaging the communal, municipal and state authorities not to interfere with the administration of the church and parish, are invalid without the express ratification of the bishop, and become null and void the moment the parish priest loses the bishop's authorization. The bishops must act together to ensure the acceptance of the contracts everywhere or nowhere.

The propositions made by the bishops make it clear that no rent is to be paid, and that the contracts must cover all the religious edifices in France or none.

It developed yesterday that the report that Cardinal Richard, the Archbishop of Paris, had summoned another meeting of the episcopate was not correct.

MRS. MILLER GUILTY.

Jury Finds That She Furnished Mrs. Bridant With Noxious Drugs—Doctor Is Fined $25.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Mrs. Lillian Miller, "Dr. De Voss," who has been on trial for two days in the Assize Court, was found guilty last night on the charge of furnishing noxious drugs to Mrs. Agnes Bridant. On the charge of administering the drugs, she was acquitted. The jury was 8 to 4 for conviction. Mr. Godfrey, her counsel, asked for a reserve case. Justice Clute will give his decision on Friday.

Mrs. Miller is liable to imprisonment for two years.

The first witness called yesterday morning was Dr. Rose. He did not answer, but wandered in 20 minutes later. That one-third of an hour just cost him $25. That was the fine imposed by Justice Clute.

The crown questioned Dr. Rose as to Mrs. Bridant's condition when he was called in to see her. That closed the case for the prosecution.

Mrs. Miller was the only witness for her defence. She was not at all nervous, while in the box, but the lines in her face showed she had been worrying.

Fraud Is Alleged.

Hamilton, Jan. 30.—A writ charging Col. J. M. Gibson, W. C. Hawkins, J. Sutherland, John Dickenson, ex-M.P.P.; J. W. Nesbitt, K.C.; John G. Gauld and J. R. Moodie, directors of the Hamilton, Grimsby & Beamsville Railway, with fraud will be issued at once, so the representatives of the minority shareholders declared yesterday. They will seek to have the new issue of $200,000 stock set aside, claiming that the allotment of the stock to the majority shareholders was illegal.

May Have Been Murdered.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—J. P. Jones, until this year sessional messenger of the House of Commons, has disappeared. He is known to have had $500 in his possession, and foul play is suspected. Only recently he was laid up for a month in the hospital owing to injuries sustained at the hands of roughs in Hull. He had his right arm broken and was injured seriously about the legs and body. He is 60 years of age, and has no relatives nearer than Nova Scotia.

FOR MR. ROSS' PLACE.

Conservatives Choose G. A. Stewart to Contest West Middlesex.

Mt. Brydges, Jan. 30.—The Conservatives of West Middlesex, in convention yesterday, placed George A. Stewart of Strathroy in nomination for the bye-election made necessary by the resignation of Hon. G. W. Ross.

Three candidates went to the convention, but the fight was between Samuel J. McGreery of Glencoe and Mr. Stewart, strong men in their respective districts. The honor fell to Mr. Stewart by a close vote, chiefly upon the ground that he had carried the party standard in previous contests.

The outlook is regarded as very promising, the Conservatives being united and determined to make a strong bid for the constituency, which only once in its history has returned a Conservative.

Hon. Mr. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, and Hon. Adam Beck delivered addresses.

COMBINE AGAINST SOCIALISTS.

All German Political Parties Except Radicals Unite.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—All the political parties except the Extreme Radicals are combining against the Socialists in the reballots which are to take place in the electoral districts where none of the candidates for the Reichstag succeeded in obtaining a majority.

The Centre party leaders have decided not to support any of the Socialist representatives, and representatives of the Conservative party from all the states of the empire determined last night to unite with the other parties against the Socialists.

The delegates of the National Liberals and two Radical groups met yesterday to devise a plan of cooperation for the remainder of the campaign.

SERIOUS REVOLT IN JAVA.

Natives Take Up Arms, Killing Many Dutch Officials.

Amsterdam, Holland, Jan. 30.—A serious revolt has broken out in the Province of Kadiri, Island of Java, Dutch East Indies, according to a Batavia despatch.

It is stated that 300 natives have taken up arms, and that many of the Dutch officials and their adherents have been killed or wounded.

The vice-governor of the province is said to be among the wounded, and the chief of police is reported to have been killed. Troops have been despatched to the scene of the outbreak.

Land Slide Blocks Railway.

London, Jan. 30.—Thousands of tons of earth, covering an area several blocks in extent and 60 feet high, crashed down about three-quarters of a mile from Hyde Park, on the north track of the Grand Trunk, about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The big slip was entirely unexpected, and fortunately the trains were all past, and no workmen were in the vicinity.

Best Shot Badges.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—A militia order issued yesterday gives Staff-Sergt. G. Creighton, Q.O.R., and Staff-Sergt. W. T. Rigglesford, 88 B.G., as winners of best shot badges.

Missionary's Death.

London, Jan. 30.—(C. A. P.)—Rev. R. C. Whiteway, sometime missionary in British Columbia, died yesterday at Brighton.

Senator King Bereaved.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 30.—Mrs. King, wife of Senator King, died last night from heart failure, aged 63 years. She took sick some days ago. The Senator was summoned from Ottawa and has been at the bedside ever since.

Year For Stealing Letters.

Kingston, Jan. 30.—Bugler Popay, married two weeks ago, will spend a year in the Central prison for stealing letters from the mail box at the Royal Military College. He came here from Halifax garrison two months ago.

C. P. R. Station At Calgary.

Montreal, Jan. 30.—The management of the C. P. R. announce their intention of building a $200,000 station at Calgary.

Is the voluminous reporting of the Thaw murder trial one of the signs of the times? If so it is a mighty poor sign. The most trivial details are inserted to pad out the reports, which would be laughable did one not remember that, in the case, one life has already been sacrificed and another may be. In the meantime the millionaire murderer has the centre of the stage, and morbid readers all over the country are waiting eagerly for details which will show up the evils said to be rampant in many fashionable families in Uncle Sam's domains. It is a sad commentary on the social aspect across the line. "O tempora, O mores," as our friend the professor would say.

Ottawa has an outspoken priest in the person of Father Whelan, who on Sunday last commented on the small number of marriages solemnized in the parish of St. Patrick's during the past year. "Marriages are made in Heaven, it is said," continued the pastor, "but it might be better if the young people of this parish would make a few on earth." The comments caused a little stir in the parish, a despatch says.

It is pleasing to speak a good word for the man who keeps square with the world and cheerfully pays his bills. The Tottenham Sentinel says: We want to say a good word for the man who meets his small obligations promptly. They are not as plentiful as they should be, and the man needs encouraging. Most men will pay, but fewer will pay promptly. Almost any firm will testify that, counting the time postage, booking and the like it costs all some accounts are worth to collect them, and still the man owing them is perfectly sound in a financial way. It very often happens that the worst sinner in this particular is the man best able to pay.

An exchange rather gets the laugh on some of its business men who are continually counselling their customers to trade at home, and do no trading with the large departmental stores of the cities, to find that some of them send away their orders for printing bill-heads, letter-heads, statements, envelopes, &c., to some of the city printing offices, and in this way help to sustain the local printing offices. There should be consistency in the agitation, at least.

"The Messiah."

PROF. HUNT WRITES A TIMELY LETTER IN REGARD TO THE COMING PRODUCTION.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Mr. Editor,—I was greatly pleased to notice your suggestion regarding the coming Philharmonic concert, viz., that our citizens who have means could not do better than purchase tickets and distribute to friends and others who cannot so well afford the ticket, but who would greatly enjoy this great work. And I am glad to know that this has already been done by several of our citizens, and I hope that a large number will act upon your suggestion before Friday night. The Philharmonic is doing a great work and deserves all the support possible, and in bringing the oratorio of "The Messiah" to a successful rendering they will, I am sure, crown all their previous efforts. The soloists engaged are all artists, the chorus have worked faithfully and enthusiastically and have had no easy task, so we hope not a seat will be empty, but that as many as possible will hear this immortal work. Handel himself said that when he was composing this work he felt at times as though his dear Saviour and all His angels were singing to him, and it is certain that he produced something that, as Ben Jonson said of Shakespeare, "was not for an age, but for all time." Thanking you for this space, I am,

Yours very truly,
V. P. HUNT.

TRIAL COURT.

Before Britton, J.

Latta v. Fargey. — Judgment (H) in action tried with a jury at Belleville. The action was brought by plaintiff for words charged as defamatory, and alleged to have been spoken by defendant of plaintiff in his business of cheesemaker. The jury disagreed. Held, that the occasion upon which the words were spoken was privileged, and that there was no evidence of malice proper to be submitted to a jury. Action dismissed with costs. Thirty days' stay. E. G. Porter, Belleville, for plaintiff. W. S. Morden, Belleville, for defendant.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Local Talent Abroad

Last evening an entertainment was held at Roblin's Mills, being under the auspices of the Agricultural Society of Ameliasburg township. It proved to be a most successful affair, the hall being filled. Amongst those who took part in the programme were Messrs. E. T. Austin, H. Wrightmyer, G. Jones, G. Dulmage and J. Pickford, of this city.

Minister Buried By His Brethren.

The funeral of the late Rev. Thos. P. Steele was a most fitting tribute of fraternal and respectful memory. At the home of mourning many kind friends as well as immediate relatives had gathered. The pastor, Rev. R. H. Leitch, offered prayer.

The bearers were Rev. D. Balfour, of Stirling; Rev. Jos. Barnes, of Ameliasburg; Rev. G. Rorke, of Cannifton; Rev. F. H. Howard, of Rednersville; Rev. R. Bamforth, of Trenton, and Mr. Brenton, of Corbyville.

The honorary bearers were: Revs. Geo. Brown, R. N. Adams, A. Martin, W. H. Peake, Prof. Doxsee and Tobias Meyers.

The funeral cortege proceeded to Holloway St. Church, where the large company participated in a most impressive service.

The Rev. J. J. Rae, of Picton, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, offered the invocation; Revs. J. P. Wilson and Geo. Brown read the Scriptures, and Rev. Dr. Dyer led in prayer.

The choir sang appropriately. "It is well with my soul."

The pastor made an apology for the absence of Rev. Benj. Greatrix, of Port Perry, and read his message of sympathy and eulogy.

Rev. Messrs. Balfour, J. J. Ray, and the pastor gave touching tributes to the worth of a most devoted, useful and honored life for 28 years in the Methodist ministry, and of a trustful and triumphant departure to be "Forever with the Lord."

The fourth form of Albert College sent a beautiful floral pillow, bearing the words, "At Rest."

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

"THE WAR CORRESPONDENT"

A musical play in three acts, entitled "The War Correspondent," was presented at the opera house last evening to a fair audience. The play gave general satisfaction. Vincent McCarthy, as the war correspondent, was good; also Leo Kendall. The leading lady, Mabel McCane, as Princess Kalonay, an Egyptian, was fine. The musical numbers were rather weak for such a good company. The stage settings were fine.

"A THOROUGHBRED TRAMP."

Elmer Walters' western play, "A Thoroughbred Tramp," is said to be a very artistically staged show this season, and the play, according to reports, is meeting with unusual success. The story of the play is one that appeals to the masses and the funny comedy situations create much laughter. The play is laid in a little mining camp in Colorado and affords much entertainment to theatre-goers who enjoy melodramatic comedy. At the Carman on Friday evening.

Sinclair's WHITEWEAR SALE Sinclair's
Jauuary 30th to February 13th

Make Out Your Whitewear List For Next Summer

Now's the best time of all the year to buy Whitewear. This store has made it so. Naturally you would not associate whitewear with this season of the year, and that is the very reason why we do associate the two. For the natural demand being at low ebb, we can secure terms from the Whitewear factories such as you would scarcely believe. Therefore, we sincerely advise you to lay in a full supply now.

Now one other thing about our Whitewear Sales—Sinclair's Sales gives you daintiness as well as low prices, and every garment is cut in a liberal way. No skimping of sizes, nor skamping of workmanship—style, good taste, quality, daintiness and beauty. These are the features about Sinclair's Whitewear Sale that make its low prices distinctive and worth while.

The County Council.

SATURDAY MORNING.

The session was chiefly taken up in passing the report of the Superintendent of Roads and Bridges and a few accounts in the Ways and Means Committee.

A discussion took place in reference to paying for the removal of snow where it was found necessary. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Moved by Mr. Vermilyea, seconded by Mr. Farley, that the chairman of Roads Committee is hereby authorized to order payment of all accounts certified to by the Reeve or Deputy Reeve in cases where they find that the men regularly in the employ of the county cannot with sufficient expedition remove the snow drifts from the county roads.

Council adjourned until the second Tuesday in June, at 2 p.m.

Daily Intelligencer.

The Western Fuel Problem.

Westerners are certainly having a trying time, experiencing the unpleasant combination of severe weather and a shortage of fuel. In some sections real suffering is reported amongst the people as a result of no coal, and latest despatches from Alberta say that with ice on the ranges the condition of cattle is worse than ever. It is thought that about 25 per cent. of the cattle in the country will perish. A favorable change now could probably bring the balance through. Horse breeders report no losses and anticipate none, as the horses can paw their way to the food, while horned stock can only use their muzzles. The various bands of horses are reported to be in fine condition. Sheep are suffering to a certain extent, but the losses are being averted by the ancient method of levelling the snow on their feeding grounds with drags so that they can get at the herbage.

For the shortage of coal condemnation has been distributed freely upon the coal companies and the railways. It seems opposed to all our ideas of human nature to say that coal companies are not willing to sell coal. It is their dearest wish to get a statement into the stock columns of the daily newspaper that last year the output of the Rock-Seam Coal Mines increased one hundred and twenty-three thousand tons. As to the railways, the charge seems equally unreasonable. The C.P.R. and the C. N.R. exist for the purpose of carrying freight in the West. Every ton of freight they refuse means a loss of possible revenue.

In seeking to ascertain the reason for the unfortunate shortage of fuel in the West, probably the answer must be sought in the unprecedented conditions which are at present governing in the West. There we find hundreds of new villages have sprung up and this means hundreds of new coal dealers and hundreds of new coal sheds for storage purposes. It would appear that the villagers and the farmer have outstripped the retail coal merchant. Everybody has been so busy making money out of land and wheat that he neglected to look far enough ahead in the fuel situation. The proper time for the Westerner to lay in his coal supply is in the spring and mid-summer when cars are available; in the fall, he demands that every engine and every car shall be put upon the job of drawing wheat to the Great Lakes, so that he may get cash for his harvest. The Westerner must do some thinking and be reasonable in this matter.

Cut this out and take it to R. Templeton & Co.'s drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For biliousness and constipation they are unequalled. They improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels.

OBSTINATE FACE SORES

REFUSED TO CLOSE FOR FOUR YEARS.

ZAM-BUK HEALED THEM INSIDE TWO WEEKS.

Have you some eruption, or sore, or ulcer, or wound, on any part of your body which has hitherto refused to close, no matter how treated? If so, that is a case for Zam-Buk, the great herbal balm. The herbal saps and essences in this balm are so powerful that they can heal the worst cases of chronic sores, ulcers, blood poison and skin diseases. Here are proofs of this:

Mrs. W. H. Taylor, of North Bay, Ont., says: "I had a scaly spot as big as a ten cent piece on my face. I had it for four years, and hardly a night during that time went by but what I applied cold cream, or some ointment or other, but it would always be there. I recently applied Zam-Buk, and in about a week's time the spot had disappeared completely. I cannot thank you enough for your remedy, and I tell everyone to be sure and keep Zam-Buk in their house."

Mrs. S. J. Holden, of 343 West Hannah St., Hamilton, says: "My little girl had a running sore on her leg, which defied all treatment. I applied Zam-Buk, and in about a week's time the wound was closed. I have found Zam-Buk just as good for other skin troubles and injuries."

Mr. J. H. Hamilton, of Thornbury, says: "The first Zam-Buk I obtained was for a friend who had an obstinate sore on her temple. It had been treated once or twice by a doctor, and would heal up for a short time, but would break out again. Zam-Buk healed it permanently, and it shows no sign whatever of returning."

Similar grateful testimony is to hand from men and women in all parts of Canada. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for all skin diseases and injuries, such as cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, psoriasis, ulcers, scalp sores, cold sores, chapped hands, itch, rashes, tetter, face sores, etc. It is also an unequalled embrocation, and rubbed well on to parts affected cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, colds on chest, etc. All druggists sell at 50c a box, or may be obtained post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes for $2.50.

Crown Officers Seized Goods On Sunday.

LABORER HELD IN JAIL FOR MONTHS FOR DEFENDING HIS PROPERTY.

Toronto, Jan. 30. — Application has been made to the courts to quash the conviction of John Watson, a laborer, of Monteagle Township, County of Hastings, who was sentenced to six months in jail by Magistrate George J. Jarman last September for obstructing two peace officers and pointing a loaded rifle at them. At the same time Watson's lawyers are asking for his liberation under a habeas corpus.

The case is a peculiar one. According to affidavits sworn to by Watson he had been fined $5 for using abusive language, and not having paid his fine, a distress warrant was issued against his property. Two officers were deputed to serve this, and they chose a Sunday on which to make the seizure. When they arrived at Watson's place they concealed the fact that they were constables, and endeavored to gain admittance on some pretext which aroused the man's suspicions that their designs were not right. Afterwards they declared who they were, but he refused to believe them, and ordered them off the premises at the point of the rifle.

The affidavits go on to say that the officers subsequently took possession of his goods and then arrested him, and had him convicted on the charge of obstructing and pointing the weapon at them.

Watson's lawyers claim that it was illegal to attempt to serve the warrant on Sunday, and that he was justified under the circumstances in defending his property. They say, moreover, that six months is a preposterous sentence for the offence, if there were any offence, and they hold that his imprisonment has been clearly against the law.

An Apple Case.

Picton Gazette: A dispute between Mr. H W. Fielding, agent for an English firm of apple dealers, and Capt. Jarvis, has been engaging the attention of three arbitrators — Dr. McKenna, Messrs. H. H. Post and M. R. Allison—for several days during the past week. Mr. John Wright appears on behalf of Mr. Fielding, and Mr. E. M Young, for Capt. Jarvis. The dispute arises out of an apple deal. Capt. Jarvis sold his apple crop to Fielding last fall, and also engaged to purchase several hundred barrels at a set price, which he (Jarvis) claims he was unable to do owing to an advance in price on the market. Fielding also claims that the fruit supplied him by Jarvis was worthless on the English market, owing to the character of the fruit, and also claims damages for non-fulfillment of contract. Fielding claims Jarvis owes him over $1,000; while Jarvis claims Fielding owes him about $350.00. The further hearing of the case will engage the arbitrators again on Friday.

SPORTING NOTES.

Several Peterboro players have been practically charged with professionalism by the manager of the Guelph Hockey club, and the Peterboro Review discusses the matter in the following guarded way: "The Peterboro team are not worrying much about the matter. Every man on the local's line-up is a homebrew. There is not an imported player in the outfit, and their amateur standing has never been challenged. The outcome of the O.H.A. executive on Thursday night is awaited with interest." No doubt!

A despatch from Picton in a Kingston paper says the Picton Hockey club are thinking of protesting one of the Belleville C. H A. juniors on the ground that he is over the age limit. It is also said that Picton people have been in this city trying to secure information which would substantiate their charge. The Picton people have found a mare's nest. The Belleville boys are all bona fide juniors, and The Intelligencer is informed on excellent authority that the eldest member of the local team, "Jimmy" Connolly, the clever cover point, will not 20 years of age till next March. The Pea Canners are evidently suffering with cold feet already. They would like to win on a protest, but there's nothing doing.

It seems altogether likely that Picton will beat Brockville to-morrow night. The eastern lads will go to Picton and play the match as scheduled, in spite of the rumors that they would default. It would be quite a joke if Brockville beat Picton, but that will hardly happen.

Toronto Telegram: Spangenberg, the Belleville bank clerk, moved to Toronto early this winter and after a two weeks' stay, taken back to Belleville, is again in Toronto in his bank and his club is asking whether he may play with Belleville as he began. His home is in Belleville, and he offers to pay his own expenses.

Ottawa Citizen: "Which would you rather receive, a blow over the head or a swipe across the ankles or on the shins?"

One of Ottawa's most prominent athletes was recently asked the foregoing question. He is a hockeyist of the strongest type, and replied that he would prefer a rap on the head.

"When a man is struck on the sky-piece,' replied the athlete. "Perhaps he falls unconscious, perhaps he is dazed for the time-being; but the pain only lasts a few minutes. Even if stitches are required the injured player doesn't suffer a minute after the doctor has attended him. But the man whose ankles, knees or shins are made targets for an opponent's cracks generally feels the effects of the fouls for weeks or months. People sometimes stand up in their seats and hoot when a player, struck across the head, throws up his hands and falls, but do they know the pain a player suffers when kicked or struck on the arms or legs?

The very light attendance at recent Eastern League games in Montreal last week, furnishes the other clubs with another cause of irritation against the Wanderers, who drew so much money in the Stanley cup games that the league series suffered. The alliance between the Wanderers and Ottawas has had its foundation in the knowledge of the Wanderers that they are disliked by the other teams.

Peterboro and Kingston seniors play in the latter place to-night, and the match should be a corker. With Van Horne on, Kingston should win.

A WINNER.

My brother Johnny needs some clothes.
He wants some right away.
But father says the boy is wrong.
"Your suit's all right," he'll say.
But Johnny won't need clothing long;
He'll have a new suit soon,
For mother is to play some bridge
Tomorrow afternoon.

And little Mary wants a slate;
She's started in at school.
But pa says, "Make the old one do."
He's stubborn as a mule.
But 'twon't be long till Mary has
Her slate—you wait and see—
For mother is to play some bridge
Tomorrow about three.

There's lots of things we need at home,
But father laughs at us.
He says we're too extravagant;
It does no good to fuss.
But we most always get such things—
You bet your life we do—
For mother plays bridge now and then;
She understands it too.

WHEN FATHER HAS THE GRIP.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Poor mother wears a worried look,
And sister wears a frown:
And if I venture up the stairs
They send me straightway down.
I'm going to the drug store now,
Upon a hurried trip,
To get some other kind of dope,
For father has the grip.

I heard him groaning in the night,
He said his head would split:
And when he thought his back would break;
In just a little bit,
He told us that his legs were sore,
And soon it was his hip;
It seems that everything is sick,
When father has the grip.

The doctor came to-day and left
Some capsules, and he said,
To take one each three hours until
The pain has really fled.
Says pa, "That means twelve hours before
I give this pain the slip;
I'll bet he'd find a faster dope
If he had got the grip."

And then he told me that he thought
That he was going to die:
An' ma says no, that isn't so,
A' gave the reason why
Then pa got mad and told her that
He didn't want her lip:
Oh! there's no comfort in our flat
When father has the grip.

Some rather remarkable figures have been published concerning the number of empty houses in Edinburgh. The burg assessor's books show that in May last, there were 4,170 tenantless houses—a record for that city. Nearly four-fifths are houses under £20 rent, and, therefore, for the most part, working class houses. The total valuation of unoccupied houses is £121,251, against a total valuation for the city of £3,191,803. On all hands it is agreed that the chief causes of the large amount of property standing empty are overbuilding and want of employment.

A Paris special says that the Hindoo Ramana, who was among the most energetic seekers for the body of the missing Abbe Delarue when excitement over that mysterious disappearance was at its height, has brought out an almanac of prophecies and wise sayings after the fashion of the French fortune tellers. According to Ramana the month of August will be the one during which the greatest care must be exercised as to what one does. He says: "Do not undertake anything new between the 3rd and 20th of August, but from the 1st to the 3rd, and from the 20th to the end of the month new enterprises may be entered upon with safety."

Referring to the improvements made or to be made by the Government to render the navigation of the St. Lawrence safer, "Canada Illustrated" says: "While these improvements are most necessary and useful, a thorough reorganization of the St. Lawrence pilot service is absolutely essential if insurance rates are ever to be reduced to a minimum. The pilot service of the Hoogley should be taken as a model, and high salaries should be paid in order to get the very best type of men into the service. The additional cost entailed would be insignificant compared with the immense benefit to the ports of Quebec and Montreal and to Canadian shipping interests in general.

The Kansas City Journal says:—"Never in the history of education was there such a frenzy among 'educators' to add courses of study in the public schools as to-day. That has had the natural effect of physical and mental injury to childhood which it is now the desire to overcome. Children instinctively resort to the kind of physical exercise best suited to them if they are allowed to play out in the open air. This is the very best bodily training they can have. If the modern educators would not require so much home study of the children, the latter would not need physical culture during school hours."

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

Constantinople, Jan. 30.—Fehmi Pasha, chief of the secret police of the palace, and a great confident and favorite of the Sultan, has come in serious conflict with the German embassy owing to his action in causing the seizure recently of a ship's cargo destined for Hamburg.

The Sultan tried to pacify the embassy officials by immediately ordering the release of the cargo, but Germany, in a forcible note to the porte, now demands the punishment of Fehmi Pasha, pointing out that in the step taken he was guilty of an infraction of the penal code, rendering him liable to life imprisonment.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Are Steady—Cattle Steady; Hogs 5c Lower at Chicago.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—Receipts of live stock at the city market, as reported by the railways, were 67 car loads, composed of 1064 cattle, 373 hogs, 342 sheep and lambs and 52 calves.

Exporters.

Not many shipping cattle were on sale, not a single straight load of good exporters being on the market. Two or three of the export dealers were in need of 5 or 6 cattle each to complete shipments and they had to cull from amongst the butchers to get cattle enough to fill out their loads. This being the case 15 cattle sold at $5.30 per cwt., but they were sold for more than they were worth and this sale is no criterion to go by.

Butchers.

A few of the best lots were reported at $4.80 to $5 per cwt. One dealer told The World that he wanted to get a load of good butchers, but that he did not see a straight load of good butchers on the market. Loads of the best cattle sold at $4.50 to $4.75; medium loads sold at $4.15 to $4.40; common, $3.50 to $3.90; cows from $2.75 to $3.75; canners at $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

Harry Murby bought 1 load of light feeders, 800 lbs each, at $3.15 per cwt., and this sale constituted the market for feeders and stockers.

Milch Cows.

About 40 milkers and springers, amongst which there were none of choice quality, sold at $30 to $46 each.

Veal Calves.

About 50 veal calves sold at $3.50 to $6.50 per cwt. for the general run, but $7 per cwt. was paid for some few new milk-fed calves.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export ewes sold at $4.50 to $5 per cwt.; rams at $3.75 to $4 per cwt; lambs sold at $6 to $6.50 per cwt., and a few picked lots at $7; common lambs, $4.50 to $5.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

The run of hogs was light, but prices were reported as being unchanged. Selects sold at $6.60 and lights and fats at $6.35 per cwt.

EAST BUFFALO CATTLE MARKET.

East Buffalo, Jan. 29.—Cattle—Receipts, 600 head; slow and barely steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts 150 head; active and steady; $4.25 to $9.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 4300 head; active; Yorkers and pigs steady; others 5c higher; heavy, mixed and Yorkers, $7.35 to $7.40; roughs, $6.25 to $6.45½; stags, $4.25 to $5.25.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 11,000 head; sheep active and steady; lambs slow and 5c lower; lambs, $5 to $7.70.

NEW YORK LIVE STOCK.

New York, Jan. 29.—Beeves—Receipts, 989; no trading; feeling weak for all grades; exports to-day, 920 cattle, 1250 sheep and 2200 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 669; veals steady; barnyard calves and westerns slow and unchanged; common to prime veals sold at $5 to $9.50; a bunch of choice do. at $10; barnyard calves, $3.25 to $3.50; no sale of westerns.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 5201; sheep dull and lambs a shade lower; common to fair sheep sold at $3.50 to $4.50 per 100 lbs.; ordinary to prime lambs, $6.75 to $7.70.

Hogs—Receipts, 6941; feeling steady; state and Pennsylvania hogs quoted at $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 lbs. for heavy to light weights.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Cattle—Receipts, 8500 head; market steady, but slow; common to prime steers, $4 to $7.50; cows, $2.75 to $4.75; heifers, $2.60 to $5; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $2.75 to $8; stockers and feeders, $2.75 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, about 35,000; 5c to 10 lower; choice shipping hogs, $6.92½ to $7; packing, $6.85 to $6.92; choice butchers' weights, $6.92½ to $6.95; pigs, $6.30 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $6.85 to $6.95.

Sheep—Receipts, 20,000; market steady; sheep, $3 to $6; yearlings, $4.60 to $6.50; lambs, $5.75 to $7.75.

CHAPTER VIII.

WHAT Meredith proposed to do was to enter into a partnership with Victor Durnovo, and when the purpose of it was accomplished to let each man go his way. A month later Victor Durnovo was in London. He left behind him in Africa Jack Meredith, whose capacities for organization were developing very quickly.

There was plenty of work for each to do. In Africa Meredith had undertaken to get together men and boats, while Durnovo went home to Europe for a threefold purpose. First, a visit to Europe was absolutely necessary for his health, shattered as it was by too long a sojourn in the fever ridden river beds of the west coast. Secondly, there were rifles, ammunition and stores to be purchased and packed in suitable cases. And, lastly, he was to find and enlist the third man, "the soldierly fellow, full of fight," who knew the natives and the country.

This, indeed, was his first care on reaching London, and before his eyes and brain were accustomed to the roar of the street life he took a cab to Russell square, giving the number affixed to the door of a gloomy house in the least frequented corner of the stately quadrangle.

"Is Mr. Guy Oscard at home?" he inquired of the grave manservant.

"He is, sir," replied the butler, stepping aside.

Oscard came forward and shook hands. His manner was not exactly effusive. The truth was that their acquaintanceship in Africa had been of the slightest, dating from some trivial services which Durnovo had been able and very eager to render to the sportsman.

"I'm all right, thanks," replied Durnovo. "I only landed at Liverpool yesterday. I'm home on business. I'm buying rifles and stores."

Guy Oscard's honest face lighted up at once—the curse of Ishmael was on him in its full force. He was destined to be a wanderer on God's earth, and all things appertaining to the wild life of the forests were music in his ears.

Durnovo was no mean diplomatist. He had learned to know man within a white or colored skin. The effect of his words was patent to him.

"You remember the simiacine?" he said abruptly.

"Yes."

"I've found it."

"The deuce you have! Sit down."

Durnovo took the chair indicated.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I've got it. I've laid my hand on it at last. I've always been on its track. That has been my little game all the time. I did not tell you when we met out there, because I was afraid I should never find it and because I wanted to keep quiet about it."

"Yes," said the Englishman, "yes, go on."

Guy Oscard was looking out of the window across to the dull houses and chimneys that formed his horizon, and in his eyes there was the longing for a vaster horizon, a larger life.

"I have got a partner," continued Durnovo, "a good man, Jack Meredith, son of Sir John Meredith. You have, perhaps, met him."

"No," answered Oscard, "but I have heard his name, and I have met Sir John, the father, once or twice."

"He is out there," went on Durnovo, "getting things together quietly. I have come home to buy rifles, ammunition and stores."

He paused, watching the eager, simple face.

"We want to know," he said quietly, "if you will organize and lead the fighting men."

Guy Oscard drew a deep breath.

"Then there is to be fighting?"

"Yes," said Durnovo; "there will be fighting. We must fight our way there and we must hold it when we get there. But so far as the world is concerned, we are only a private expedition exploring the source of the Ogowe."

"The Ogowe?" and again Guy Oscard's eyes lighted up.

"Yes. I do not mind telling you that much. To begin with, I trust you. Secondly, no one could get there without me to lead the way."

"How long will it take?" asked Guy.

Durnovo tugged at his strange, curtain-like mustache. His mouth was hidden. It was quite impossible to divine his thoughts.

"Three months to get there," he answered at length, "one month to pick the leaf, and then you can bring the first crop down to the coast and home, while Meredith and I stay on at the plateau."

"I could be home again in eight months?"

"Certainly. We thought that you might work the sale of the stuff in London, and in a couple of years or so, when the thing is in swing, Meredith will come home. We can safely leave the cultivation in native hands when once we have established ourselves up there and made ourselves respected among the tribes."

"I suppose," Guy said after a pause, "that there is the question of money?"

"Yes; Meredith and I have talked that over. The plan we fixed upon was that you and he each put a thousand pounds into it; I put five hundred. For the first two years we share the profits equally. After that we must come to some fresh arrangement should you or Meredith wish to give up an active part in the affair. I presume you would not object to coming up at the end of the year with a handy squad of men to bring down the crop under escort?"

"No," responded Oscard after a moment's reflection. "I should be able to do that."

"I reckon," continued the other, "that the journey down could be accomplished in two months, and each time you do the trip you will reduce your time."

"Yes."

"Of course," Durnovo went on, with the details which he knew were music in Oscard's ears—"of course we shall be a clumsy party going up. We shall have heavy loads of provisions, ammunition and seeds for cultivating the land up there."

"Yes," replied Guy Oscard absently. In his ears there rang already the steady plash of the paddle, the weird melancholy song of the boatman, the music of the wind amid the forest trees.

Durnovo rose briskly.

"Then," he said, "you will join us? I may telegraph out to Meredith that you will join us?"

"Yes," replied Oscard simply. "You may do that."

"There is no time to be lost," Durnovo went on. "Every moment wasted adds to the risk of our being superseded. I sail for Loango in a fortnight. Will you come with me?"

"Yes."

When Durnovo had gone Guy sat down and wrote to Lady Cantourne accepting her invitation to spend a few days at Cantourne Place, on the Solent. He explained that his visit would be in the nature of a farewell, as he was about to leave for Africa for a little big game hunting.

• • • • • • • •

Miss Millicent Chyne was walking on the sea wall at the end of the garden with Guy Oscard. One of the necessary acquirements of a modern educational outfit is the power of looking perfectly at home in a score of different costumes during the year, and, needless to say, Miss Chyne was perfectly finished in this art. The manner in which she wore her sailor hat, her blue serge and her neat brown shoes conveyed to the onlooker, and especially the male of that species (we cannot in conscience call them observers), the impression that she was a yachtswoman born and bred. Her delicate complexion was enhanced by the faintest suspicion of sunburn and a few exceedingly becoming freckles. There was a freedom in her movements which had not been observed in London drawing rooms. This was Diana-like and in perfect keeping with the dainty sailor outfit; moreover, nine men out of ten would fail to attribute the difference to sundry cunning strings within the (London) skirt.

"It is sad," Millicent was saying, "to think that we shall have no more chances of sailing. The wind has quite dropped, that horrid tide is running, and this is your last day."

She ended with a little laugh, knowing full well that there was little sentiment in the big man by her side.

"Really," she went on, "I think I should be able to manage a boat in time, don't you think so? Please encourage me. I am sure I have tried to learn."

"I do not know if you have learned much," he answered; "but I have."

"What have you learned?" she asked in a low voice, half fascinated by the danger into which she knew that she was running.

"That I love you," he answered, standing squarely in front of her and announcing the fact with a deliberate honesty which was rather startling. "I was not sure of it before, so I stayed away from you for three weeks; but now I know for certain."

"Oh, you mustn't say that!"

She rose hastily and turned away from him. There was in her heart a sudden feeling of regret. It was the feeling that the keenest sportsman sometimes has when some majestic monarch of the forest falls before his merciless rifle—a sudden passing desire that it might be undone.

"Why not?" he asked. He was desperately in earnest, and that which made him a good sportsman—an unmatched big game hunter, calm and self possessed in any strait—gave him a strange deliberation now, which Millicent Chyne could not understand. "Why not?"

"I do not know—because you mustn't."

And in her heart she wanted him to say it again.

"I am not ashamed of it," he said, "and I do not see why I should not say it to you—or to any one else, so far as that goes."

"No, never!" she cried, really frightened. "To me it does not matter so much. But to no one else—no, never! Aunt Marian must not know it—nor Sir John."

"I cannot see that it is any business of Sir John's. Of course, Lady Cantourne would have liked you to marry a title; but if you cared for me she would be ready to listen to reason."

In which judgment of the good lady he was no doubt right, especially if reason spoke with the voice of £3,000 per annum.

"Do you care for me?" he asked, coming a little closer.

There was a whole world of gratified vanity and ungratified curiosity for her in the presence of this strong man at her elbow. It was one of the supreme triumphs of her life, because he was different from the rest. He was for her what his first tiger had been for him. The danger that he might come still nearer had for her a sense of keen pleasure. She was thoroughly enjoying herself, and the nearest approach that men can experience to the joy that was hers is the joy of battle.

"I cannot answer that—not now."

And the little half shrinking glance over her shoulder was a low minded, unmaidenly invitation. But he was in earnest, and he was, above all, a gentleman. He stood his ground a yard away from her.

"Then when," he asked, "when will you answer me?"

She stood with her back turned toward him, looking out over the smooth waters of the Solent, where one or two yachts and a heavy black schooner were creeping up on the tide before the morning breeze. She drummed reflectively with her fingers on the low stone wall. Beneath them a few gulls whirled and screamed over a shoal of little fish. One of the birds had a singular cry, as if it were laughing to itself.

A CRAZY MAN

FOUND EATING AN EGG, SHELL AND ALL.

Rational people thought it was awful as the shell had no food value, and was, of course, indigestible and injurious.

It is just as crazy for rational people to swallow a lot of cod liver oil to get the medicinal curatives from it, as it was for the crazy man to eat the egg, shell and all.

Modern science has proved that the oil, or greasy part of cod liver oil has no value whatever, and only upsets the stomach and retards recovery. It is the medicinal elements which are enveloped in the cod liver oil, of which there are about fifty, that represent all the tonic and curative power of the famous old remedy.

A preparation containing all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but entirely free from oil or grease, must, therefore, be the very best tonic reconstructor possible. Such is Vinol. It positively does contain every one of the fifty odd medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, fresh and sweet, just as the egg shell contains the nutritious food, and we throw away the useless, indigestible oil, just as you throw away the egg shell.

Knowing its wonderful medicinal and curative power, we guarantee to restore health and strength to the following or refund their money without question:

Run down, debilitated, tired, overworked people; old people, weak women, nursing mothers, puny, ailing children, convalescents, or to people suffering with hard colds, hacking coughs, incipient consumption and bronchitis. Vinol never fails to make rich, red blood and give strength to the weak and health to the sick. Try it on our guarantee. If it don't do you any good it won't cost you a cent. J. S. McKeown.

"You said just now," Millicent answered at length, "that you were not sure yourself—not at first—and therefore you cannot expect me to know all at once."

"You should know at once," he argued gravely, "if it were going to be 'no.' If you do not say 'no' now, I can only think that it may be 'yes' some day. And"—he came closer; he took the hand that hung at her side, conveniently near—"and I don't want you to say 'no' now. Don't say 'no!' I will wait as long as you like for 'yes.' Millicent, I would rather go on waiting and thinking that it is going to be 'yes,' even if it is 'no' after all."

She said nothing, but she left her hand in his.

"May I go on thinking that it will be 'yes' until I come back?"

"I cannot prevent your thinking, can I?" she whispered, with a tender look in her eyes.

"May I write to you?"

She shook her head.

"Well—I—I— Now and then," he pleaded. "Not often. Just to remind you of my existence."

She gave a little laugh, which he liked exceedingly and remembered afterward.

"If you like," she answered.

At this moment Lady Cantourne's voice was heard in the distance calling them.

"There!" exclaimed Millicent. "We must go at once. And no one—no one, mind—must know of this."

"No one shall know of it," he answered.

CHAPTER IX.

THOSE who for their sins have been to Loango will scarcely care to have its beauties recalled to memory. And to such as have not visited the spot one can only earnestly recommend a careful avoidance.

Suffice it to say, therefore, that there is such a place, and the curious may find it marked in larger type than it deserves on the map of Africa, on the west coast of that country and within an inch or so of the equator.

"This is not cheery," Jack Meredith observed to his servant as they found themselves deposited on the beach within a stone's throw of the French factory.

"No, sir, not cheery, sir," replied Joseph. He was very busy attending to the landing of their personal effects and had only time to be respectful. It was Joseph's way to do only one thing at a time, on the principle no doubt that enough for the moment is the evil thereof. His manner implied that when those colored gentlemen had got the baggage safely conveyed out of the boats on to the beach it would be time enough to think about Loango.

It had been arranged by letter that Jack Meredith should put up, as his host expressed it, at the small bungalow occupied by Maurice Gordon and his sister. Gordon was the local head of a large trading association somewhat after the style of the old East India company, and his duties partook more of the glory of a governor than of the routine of a trader.

Of Maurice Gordon's past Meredith knew nothing beyond the fact that they were schoolfellows strangely brought together again on the deck of a coasting steamer. Maurice Gordon was not a reserved person, and it was rather from a lack of opportunity than from an excess of caution that he allowed his new found friend to go up the Ogowe river knowing so little of himself—Maurice Gordon of Loango.

On reaching the bungalow Meredith was pleasantly surprised. It was pretty and homelike, surrounded by a garden wherein grew a strange profusion of homely English vegetables and tropical flowers.

Joseph happened to be in front, and as he neared the veranda he suddenly stopped at the salute; moreover, he began to wonder in which trunk he had packed his master's dress clothes.

An English lady was coming out of the drawing room window to meet the travelers. She nodded in answer to the servant's salutation and passed on to greet the master.

"My brother has been called away suddenly," she said. "One of his subagents has been getting into trouble with the natives. Of course you are Mr. Meredith?"

"I am," replied Jack, taking the hand she held out; it was a small white hand—small without being frail or diaphanous. "And you are Miss Gordon, I suppose? I am sorry Gordon is away, but no doubt we shall be able to find somewhere to put up."

"You need not do that," she said quietly. "This is Africa, you know. You can quite well stay with us, although Maurice is away until tomorrow."

She was tall and fair, with a certain stateliness of carriage which harmonized wonderfully with a thoughtful and pale face. She was not exactly pretty, but gracious and womanly, with honest blue eyes that looked on men and women alike. She was probably twenty-eight years of age; her manner was that of a woman rather than that of a girl—of one who was in life and not on the outskirts.

"We rather pride ourselves," she said, leading the way into the drawing room, "upon having the best house in Loango. You will, I think, be more comfortable here than anywhere."

"I see you have all the new books."

"Yes we have books and magazines; but, of course, we live quite out of the world."

She paused, leaving the conversation with him as in the hands of one who knows his business.

"I," he said, filling up the pause, "have hitherto lived in the world—right in it. There is a lot of dust and commotion; the dust gets into people's eyes and blinds them; the commotion wears them out; and perhaps, after all, Loango is better!"

"I once met a Sir John Meredith," she said suddenly.

"My father."

He paused, drawing in his legs and apparently studying his neat brown boots.

"Should you meet him again," he went on, "it would not be advisable to mention my name. He might not care to hear it. We have had a slight difference of opinion. With me it is different. I am always glad to hear about him. I have an immense respect for him."

She listened gravely, with a sympathy that did not attempt to express itself in words. On such a short acquaintance she had not learned to expect a certain lightness of conversational touch which he always assumed when speaking of himself, as if his own thoughts and feelings were matters for ridicule.

"Of course," he went on, "I was in the wrong. I know that. But it sometimes happens that a man is not in a position to admit that he is in the wrong—when, for instance, another person would suffer by such an admission."

"Yes," answered Jocelyn, "I understand."

At this moment a servant came in with lamps and proceeded to close the windows. She was quite an old woman—an Englishwoman—and as she placed the lamps upon the table she scrutinized the guest after the manner of a privileged servitor. When she had departed Jack Meredith continued his narrative with a sort of deliberation which was explained later on.

"And," he said, "that is why I came to Africa—that is why I want to make money. I do not mind confessing to a low greed of gain, because I think I have the best motive that a man can have for wanting to make money."

He said this meaningly and watched her face all the while.

"A motive which any lady ought to approve of."

She smiled sympathetically.

"I approve and I admire your spirit."

She rose as she spoke and moved toward a side table, where two lighted candles had been placed.

"My motive for talking so barefacedly about myself," he said as they moved toward the door together, "was to let you know exactly who I am and why I am here. It was only due to you on accepting your hospitality. I might have been a criminal or an escaped embezzler. There were two on board the steamer coming out and several other shady characters."

"Yes," said the girl; "I saw your motive."

They were now in the hall, and the aged servant was waiting to show him his room.

• • • • • • • •

"No one knows," Victor Durnovo was in the habit of saying, "what is going on in the middle of Africa."

And on this principle he acted.

"Ten miles above the camping ground where we first met," he had told Meredith, "you will find a village where I have my headquarters. There is quite a respectable house there, with—a—a—woman to look after your wants. When you have fixed things up at Loango and have arranged for the dhows to meet my steamer, take up all your men to this village—Msala is the name—and send the boats back. Wait there till we come."

In due time the telegram came, via St. Paul de Loand, announcing the fact that Oscard had agreed to join the expedition and that Durnovo and he might be expected at Msala in one month from that time. It was not without a vague feeling of regret that Jack Meredith read this telegram. To be at Msala in a month with forty men and a vast load of provisions meant leaving Loango almost at once. And, strange though it may seem, he had become somewhat attached to the dreary west African town. The singular cosmopolitan society was entirely new to him; the life, taken as a life, almost unique. He knew that he had not outstayed his welcome. Maurice Gordon had taken care to assure him of that in his boisterous, hearty manner, savoring more of Harrow than of Eton, every morning at breakfast.

Jack took a seat on the porch and began to search for his cigar in the pocket of his jacket. Jocelyn went to the front of the veranda and watched her brother mount his horse. When she came to the back of the veranda a little later she was thinking about her brother Maurice, and it never suggested itself to her that she should not speak her thoughts to Meredith, whom she had not seen until three weeks ago. She had never spoken of Maurice behind his back to any man before.

"Does it ever strike you," she said to Jack, "that Maurice is the sort of man to be led astray by evil influence?"

"Yes, or be led straight by a good influence, such as yours."

He did not meet her thoughtful gaze. He was apparently watching the retreating form of the horse through the tangle of flower and leaf and tendril.

"I am afraid," said the girl, "that my influence is not of much account."

"Do you really believe that?" asked Meredith, turning upon her with a half cynical smile.

"Yes," she answered simply.

Before speaking again he took a pull at his cigar.

"Your influence," he said, "appears to me to be the making of Maurice Gordon. I frequently see serious flaws in the policy of Providence, but I suppose there is wisdom in making the strongest influence that which is unconscious of its power."

"I am glad you think I have some power over him," said Jocelyn, "but at the same time it makes me uneasy, because it only confirms my conviction that he is very easily led. And suppose my influence, such as it is, was withdrawn; suppose that I were to die, or, what appears to be more likely, suppose that he should marry."

"Then let us hope that he will marry the right person. People sometimes do, you know."

She smiled with a strange little flicker of the eyelids. They had grown wonderfully accustomed to each other during the last three weeks. Here, it would appear, was one of those friendships between man and woman that occasionally set the world agog with curiosity and skepticism. But there seemed to be no doubt about it. He was over thirty, she verging on that prosaic age. Both had lived and moved in the world. To both life was an open book, and they had probably discovered, as most of us do, that the larger number of the leaves are blank. He had almost told her that he was engaged to be married, and she had quite understood. There could not possibly be any misapprehension; there was no room for one of those little mistakes about which people write novels and fondly hope that some youthful reader may be carried away by a very faint resemblance to that which they hold to be life. Moreover, at thirty one leaves the first romance of youth behind.

"I might have been a criminal or an escaped embezzler."

There was something in her smile that suggested that she did not quite believe in his cynicism.

"Also," she said gravely, "some stronger influence might appear—an influence which I could not counteract."

Jack Meredith turned in his long chair and looked at her searchingly.

"I have a vague idea," he said, "that you are thinking of Durnovo."

"I am," she admitted, with some surprise. "I wonder how you knew? I am afraid of him."

"I can reassure you on that score," said Meredith. "For the next two years or so Durnovo will be in daily intercourse with me. He will be under my immediate eye. I did not anticipate much pleasure from his society, but now I do."

"Why?" she asked, rather mystified.

"Because I shall have the daily satisfaction of knowing that I am relieving you of an anxiety."

"It is very kind of you to put it in that way," said Jocelyn. "But I should not like you to sacrifice yourself to what may be a foolish prejudice on my part."

"It is not a foolish prejudice. Durnovo is not a gentleman, either by birth or inclination. He is not fit to associate with you."

To this Jocelyn answered nothing. Victor Durnovo was one of her brother's closest friends; a friend of his own choosing.

"Miss Gordon," said Meredith suddenly, with a gravity that was rare, "will you do me a favor?"

"I think I should like to."

"You admit that you are afraid of Durnovo now; if at any time you have reason to be more afraid, will you make use of me? Will you write or come to me and ask my help?"

"Thank you," she said hesitatingly.

"You see," he went on in a lighter tone, "I am not afraid of Durnovo. I have met Durnovo before. You may have observed that my locks no longer resemble the raven's wing. There is a little gray, just here, above the temple. I am getting on in life, and I know how to deal with Durnovos."

"Do you know," she said, after a little silence, "that I was actually thinking of warning you against Mr. Durnovo? Now I stand aghast at my own presumption."

"It was kind of you to give the matter any thought whatever."

He rose and threw away the end of his cigar. Joseph was already before the door, leading the horse which Maurice Gordon had placed at his visitor's disposal.

THREE EPOCHS IN A WOMAN'S LIFE

MRS. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS MRS. GEORGE WALTERS

There are three critical stages in a woman's life which leave their mark in her career. The first of these stages is womanhood, or the change from a care free girl to budding womanhood. The second is motherhood, and the third is Change of Life.

Perils surround each of these stages, and most of the misery that comes to women through ill health dates from one or another of these important crises.

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs has carried thousands of young girls over the critical period of puberty, has prepared mothers for childbirth, and in later years carried them safely through the change of life more successfully than any other remedy in the world. Thousands of testimonials from grateful persons, two of which are here published, substantiate this fact beyond contradiction.

Mrs. George Walters of Woodlawn, Ill. writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me in preparing for childbirth. After suffering and losing my children a friend advised me to try your valuable medicine, and the result was that I had very little inconvenience, a quick recovery and as healthy a child as can be found anywhere. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a blessing to all expectant mothers."

Mrs. Elva Barber Edwards, of Cathlamet, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to tell you how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life without any trouble whatever, also cured me of a very severe female weakness. I cannot say enough in praise of what your medicine has done for me."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Edwards it will do for other women in their condition. Every suffering woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Invitation to Women.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of her vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Her advice is free and helpful.

During its long record of more than thirty years its long list of actual cures, entitles Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to the respect and confidence of every fair minded person.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me, guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kergan, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through my nerves. I was cured mentally, physically and sexually. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

SELECTIONS

MIDDIES IN THE MAKING.

Our Naval Cadets Learn to Splice Ropes, Furl Sails, Etc.

It is probably not generally known how the United States government trains the youth upon whose shoulders will rest the responsibility of maintaining the high standard of the navy. His apprenticeship, according to Leslie's Weekly, is not unlike that of any other young man learning a trade, the fundamental principle being the proper kind of tools and when and how to use them.

A midshipman's tools, so to speak, are ships, thus rendering a thorough knowledge of seamanship an essential part of the training. This begins with lessons in splicing hemp and wire rope, after which the young men are given practice in handling sails on the indoor mast in the seamanship building, which is an exact counterpart of the mizzenmast of the training ship Severn and is seventy-two feet in height.

The midshipmen go aloft, furl, reef and set sails, etc.—in fact, go through the entire seamanship drill. A net is spread at the foot of the mast for protection, as a fall on the concrete floor would be far more serious than on the deck of a ship. Accidents, however, are infrequent.

Drills on the Severn begin early in the spring and continue throughout the cruise, which lasts from June until September. The midshipman thus becomes accustomed to ship life. The work is hard and the discipline severe during these drills. There is little tendency to shirk duty, and the future admirals do everything on shipboard, on deck and aloft, even to clearing up the deck and stowing away the ropes.

From a picturesque point of view seamanship practice on the Severn surpasses all other similar exercises. It seems that on shipboard the sense of the reality of the thing is ever present, and one accustomed to witnessing these drills notices that on the deck of the old Severn the middies are more active, more in earnest, and the manner in which they climb and swing around the rigging does credit to an old sailor.

Each man starts in with a practical seaman's duties and as he continues his course is advanced to the duties of the petty officers and later to those of the junior commissioned officers.

Our Bigness.

Bigness is said to be a quality which appeals especially to Americans. However that may be, a purely scientific interest justifies the spreading of information contained in a recent bulletin of the United States geological survey about the size of the United States. The area of the United States proper, exclusive of Alaska, island dependencies and the Panama strip, is given as 3,020,789 square miles. The absence hitherto of an official standard resulted in a discrepancy between the computations of the census bureau and the general land office. A conference was called between these departments and the geological survey, and the bulletin of the geological survey is the result.—Youth's Companion.

The Table Top Cold.

"You have, madam," said the physician, "what I call a table top cold."

"What is a table top cold?" the lady asked.

"It is a cold brought on by marble tops in the late fall and winter. You ladies always wear short sleeves, and you always lean your bare arms on the icy surface of marble tables. This contact sends a chill all through you—a chill that you disregard. But in the morning you awake with a heavy cold.

"Marble table tops in the winter should be covered with a cloth if they are going to be leaned on. Then the table top cold would disappear."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Real Estate In Korea.

One of the most astonishing regulations has been made regarding the transfer of real estate in Korea. No one is to be allowed to sell or buy real estate except by permission of the governor. This is apparently a move on the part of the Japanese to prevent the selling of any land in Korea except to people that they approve, for the governors are, of course, under the Japanese advisers. It makes no difference that foreigners have as good a right to buy land as the Japanese. The matter will have to be tested in the courts before the powers will allow their citizens to be curtailed in their privileges in the peninsula.—Korea News.

A Plague of Malaria.

The excessive prevalence of malaria in Greece is engaging the attention of English physicists. It is said to be checking the development of rural life and is a very serious thing for the nation. Out of a population of 2,500,000 there were 250,000 cases of malaria annually, and the deaths were about 1,700. Last year the number of cases increased to 960,000 and the deaths to 5,916. Professor Savas of the University of Athens and physician to King George is initiating a movement to deal with the plague.

A Mechanical Man.

Frederick Ireland, a German inventor, has produced a mechanical man, made of wheels and springs, which enable it to walk, write and ride a bicycle. A writer in L'Illustration (Paris) gives a description of the remarkable invention and says "all that it lacks is speech and hearing." The inventor has named his androide enigmarelle.

Come Join Me In This Honest Way To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity—man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in, all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once, if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better; I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

anxious to make the wonderful possibilities of the proper application of these lenses more widely known and one way he takes of doing this is publishing and distributing this little paper, which he trusts may bring hope to some who, like others, have consulted him after having almost abandoned hope, having been treated by some of the leading oculists of Canada and the United States without any permanent improvement, but are now completely restored to health and happiness. Mr. Ray cannot find time to leave his office practice but will be pleased to make engagements with those who may wish to learn more of this System.

We also make a specialty of children's and students' eyes, as we have found in many instances, in case of children where they were puny and delicate and called stupid at school, that when fitted with the proper glasses that relieved the eye-strain, it made a great difference in their health as well as in their capacity for study. We have had similar results with more advanced adult students. In cases where they were unable to think clearly or grasp the subject easily it seemed very hard work for them to study. After we had fitted them with glasses they could think clearly, and study became a pleasure.

FAREWELL BANQUET TO MR. MERTON C. GORDON.

INTERESTING AND PLEASANT FUNCTION AT THE RITCHIE CO.'S STORE LAST NIGHT — MR. GORDON WAS PRESENTED WITH AN ADDRESS AND DIAMOND STICKPIN.

One of the most pleasing social functions ever held in this city was the "At Home" given last night by the Ritchie Company, to their employees, in honor of Mr. Merton C. Gordon, for many years an employee of the firm, and who leaves shortly, with his charming wife, for the west. The function took the form of a banquet, served in the company's store, there being, in addition to the staff, many invited guests present.

The tables were laid in the mantle department, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. An unique feature of the banquet was that the ladies of the firm attended, as well as the men. It did not take one long to see that the proceeding was a success. A jollier party than that which laughed, joked and enjoyed themselves last night could hardly be found in Canada. The tasteful costumes of the ladies were charmingly set off by the sober evening dress of the gentlemen, and the scene was an inspiring one, indeed. Both employees and employed have reason to pat themselves on the back to-day, for a better conceived or better carried out function, in every respect, it would be hard to imagine.

Mr. James Wallace did the catering in his best style, and the toothsome viands, served by deft and winsome waitresses, were deeply appreciated, for the ladies, bless 'em, chic and charming as they looked, of course, had their appetites with them just the same.

Mr. C. M. Reid was chairman, the vice-chairmen being Messrs. James Coulson and Frank Thompson.

At the table of honor were seated the chairman, of course, and on his right Mr. Merton C. Gordon and Mrs. Thos. Ritchie; on his left Miss Ritchie and Rev. J. P. Wilson.

Following is a list of those present:

Ladies.—Mrs. M. C. Gordon, Mrs. F. Thompson, Mrs. Birchard, Miss Sutherland, Miss Baker, Miss Phillips, Mrs. Bull, Mrs. Dafoe, Miss Wallis, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Harry, Miss McCrodan, Miss Beaton, Mrs. Nicholson, Miss M. Ruttan, Miss L. Ruttan, Mrs. McLean, Mrs. Coulson, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Ritchie, Mrs. Ritchie, Miss Burrows, Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Mrs. Holton, Mrs. Pringle, Miss Reid, Miss Wilson.

Gentlemen.—M. C. Gordon, G. R. Pearse, F. Thompson, A. E. Birchard, Mr. Bryant, Mark Jackson, W. C Dafoe, S. Berkley, E. G. Lougheed, Ernest Berkley, Harry Wilder, Gordon Reid, H. Bryant, F. Armstrong, J. Harry, F. Millard, H. McElrath, W. Wooten, H. Post, J. Coulson, C. M Reid, J. W. Johnson, F. E. O'Flynn, Rev. J. P. Wilson, S. Burrows, sr., Wm. Johnson, C. P. Holton, H. Pringle, J. D Ford, R. Davison (Picton), R. S. Bell.

THE TOAST LIST.

Before the chairman had a chance to announce the first toast he was surprised by three stentorian cheers proposed for him by Mr. Wm. Johnson, and given with a will. Mr. Reid returned his thanks and welcomed their guests. He called forth applause by saying he had that day received a telegram of greeting from Mr. W H. Gordon, father of the guest of the evening.

"HIS MAJESTY THE KING."

"The King" was the first toast, proposed in impassioned words by Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, who voiced a popular truth when he said people hardly ever thought of King Edward without thinking of his revered mother. The company sang "God Save the King," with splendid volume and heartiness.

"OUR HONORED GUEST."

"Our Honored Guest," was the next toast, and the chairman said it brought to them all a feeling of sadness. Mr. Gordon was leaving very much against the firm's wishes, and nothing too good could be said about him. He had worked his way up, and had been prepared for promotion when it came his way. The most important thing for any young man was preparation. Mr. Gordon had made a study of the business and had taken advantage of the splendid lessons to be learned from his father. (Cheers.) No man of purer ideals than Mr. W. H. Gordon was ever in Belleville. The firm wanted to do something to recognize Mr. M C. Gordon publicly, the speaker said, so took the present means of doing it.

THE PRESENTATION.

At this point two young ladies, Misses Sutherland and Beaton, advanced to where Mr. Gordon was standing, and the former lady read the following address:

To Mr. M. C. Gordon:

Dear Mr. Gordon. — We, the employees of the Ritchie Company, Limited, learn with deep regret that you have decided to separate from us after so many years of pleasant associations. We cannot let this occasion pass without expressing to you the high esteem in which you are held by all your fellow workers and the sorrow we feel that yourself and your good wife are parting from us.

We have seen your life both in the store and outside of business, and it is a pleasure for us to testify to the sterling worth of your character as well as your business ability. We have always been able to point to you as a man of high ideals, and as a model to the young men of this city. Your going away from us will be a loss not only to the business with which you have been connected, but to many outside institutions that stand for what is highest and best in this life.

We are pleased to know that it is your intention to remain in the land of your birth (a better land than which the sun never shone upon) and in the Great West where you have decided to make your home, we predict for you a brilliant future.

We ask to you wear this diamond pin as a small token of the respect and esteem in which we hold you, and hope that in the days to come it may suggest to you pleasant memories of the many happy days we have spent together.

At the conclusion of the address, Miss Beaton, on behalf of the staff, presented Mr. Gordon with a diamond stickpin.

The toast was then drunk with musical honors.

It was evident that Mr. Gordon was deeply affected when he began to reply. He wished at one time, he said, that somebody else had to make his speech, and yet he would not change places with anybody in the world to-night. (Laughter and cheers.) Mr. Gordon than made a very happy little effort, indeed. What little success he had achieved, he modestly said, was owing to the fact that the Ritchie Company, and Mr. Reid, had given him the chance. Mr. Reid had been kinder to him than even his own father. He hoped and believed that his advancement had been due to merit, for there was no favoritism in the Ritchie Company. He was glad he could go and feel that everyone had his respect and good wishes, and hoped he had never done anything to forfeit the respect and esteem of those he was leaving. He would never forget Belleville and the Ritchie Company. No better or more loyal staff could be found anywhere. He was sorry to leave Belleville, and had not the western fever, as had been jocularly said, but his parents and Mrs. Gordon's relatives were in the west, and they felt it their duty to go. Again he thanked them all and wished the firm and everybody connected with it all success in the future.

Another ovation followed Mr. Gordon to his seat, and Mr. Burrows sang that singularly appropriate ballad, "When There's Love at Home."

"THE LADIES OF OUR STAFF."

The above toast was proposed in a racy and characteristic way by Mr. William Johnson, who complimented the Ritchie staff on the good fellowship which existed between them, and said he knew of no staff anywhere where so many matches had been made as in the Ritchie staff. Mr. Johnson said he had known the Ritchie store for over 40 years, and it had always had a high standing, and to-day no business in Canada stood so high as that of the Ritchie Company. In glowing words, then, Mr. Johnson asked the company to drink the toast, which they did in an exceedingly hearty way, singing "They are Jolly Good Fellows."

Mrs. Nicholson delivered an exceedingly graceful speech, in reply to the toast. They all had the interest of the company at heart. They would miss Mr. Gordon, but gloried in his courage in going to the west. The speaker thanked the firm for its care for their comfort. The firm stood for what was just, honorable and upright. The eloquent lady closed with a fitting poetic peroration.

"CANADA."

The toast of "Canada" was proposed in his own splendid way by Rev. Mr. Wilson, who complimented the Ritchie staff on being a very happy family, and said that, if out of a job he would try and get in the Ritchie store himself.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, who was in his best form, made an eloquent reply to the toast. He paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late George Ritchie, a man of honored career and distinguished position. Mr. Johnson evoked much applause by saying that no man in Belleville was more honored and popular than Mr. Thos. Ritchie. Canada's resources and splendid possibilities were fittingly touched on.

Mr. O'Flynn sang "The Maple Leaf," the company joining in the chorus.

"MR. THOMAS RITCHIE."

"Our President, Mr. Thomas Ritchie," was proposed by Mr. C. P. Holton, who paid a high compliment to Mr. Ritchie as a public-spirited citizen. Every good scheme, the speaker said, had his endorsation. Mr. Holton said he was sorry Mr. Ritchie was not present to enjoy the occasion.

The toast was enthusiastically drunk with musical honors.

"BELLEVILLE'S BIG ENTERPRISE.

Mr. Henry Pringle proposed the above toast, saying many nice things about the Ritchie Company. He was delighted with Mr. Gordon's speech, which showed there was a sterling character back of it. Belleville people parted with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon with deep regret. The history of Belleville, the speaker said, was identified with the Ritchie Company, and, taking into consideration the population of the city in which it was established, the Ritchie Company was the greatest enterprise in Canada. For fifty years it had paid 100 cents on the dollar, and was founded on integrity and righteousness.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon then sang, in splendid style, "Life's Dream is O'er."

The toast proposed by Mr. Pringle was replied to briefly and gracefully by Messrs. James Coulson, F. Thompson, A. E. Birchard, F. Millard, H. Post, E. G. Lougheed, I. J. Armstrong, G. R. Pearse, John Harry and S. Barkley, the humorous address of the latter orator fairly bringing down the house. His topical illusions and rich Irish brogue evoked roars of laughter.

Mrs. John Harry, in excellent voice, sang "Forgetting" in a very charming way.

"OLD BOYS AND GIRLS."

"Our Old Boys and Girls" was then proposed by the chairman, who said that many former employees of the Ritchie Company were now holding positions throughout Canada and the United States. He gave the young men of the company much advice, and said the best thing for any young man was to improve his opportunities and live within his income. Mr. Reid attributed much of his own business success to the training he had received at Ontario Business College, of which institution his former associate-manager, Mr. W. H. Gordon, was also a graduate.

The toast was appropriately replied to by Mrs. F. Thompson and Mr. Harry Bryant.

"THE CHAIRMAN."

Mr. Burrows proposed the toast of "The Chairman," which was drunk with acclaim, and gracefully responded to, after which Mr. Reid, in a few well-chosen words, proposed

"OUR GUESTS."

Mr. Davison, of the Bristol Company, Picton, responded. He was sorry the Bristol staff had not been present to-night, he said, for they would have learned much. The speaker paid a high compliment to the fair ladies of the Ritchie staff, also to Mr. C. M. Reid, and predicted the success of Mr. Gordon and his wife in the west.

Some other timely remarks were made, and "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem brought a delightful occasion to a close.

Mrs. M. C. Gordon was the very efficient accompanist of the evening.

Stolen Goods Cannot Yet Be Identified.

BUT THE BROCKVILLE SUSPECTS ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN CONCERNED IN ROBBERY IN THIS CITY.

Brockville, Jan. 29. — The Chief Constable of Owen Sound has written Chief Burke giving a description of certain jewelry stolen from that place recently, including two watches, a gold locket, etc. He also has a letter from Chief Newton, of Belleville relating to the two boys arrested here Friday evening and being held for having stolen silverware, etc., in their possession. The chief's letter confirms the story of the boys having been employed in Belleville where they left with the intention of going to Picton. They are thought to have had some connection with the burglary committed in Belleville on the 13th inst., but the list of articles found in their possession cannot be identified.

DEAD-LOCKED COURTS

Come In For Scoring In the House by R. L. Borden.

Grand Jury Discharged Because There Was No Available Judge—Ten Months' Vacancy Should Be Filled At Once—Mr. Aylesworth Says His Expert Power Bill Is Not to Prohibit.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—R. L. Borden moved the adjournment of the House yesterday, in order to discuss the vacancy on the supreme court of Nova Scotia. This vacancy was, he said, interfering with the administration of justice. Quite recently at Halifax the grand jury had to be discharged because there was no available judge to hold the assizes. This judgeship had been vacant for ten months. There were numerous complaints from members of the bar; cases were sometimes not heard for lack of judges.

Hon. Mr. Aylesworth said that the administration of justice in any province was committed to the Attorney-General. No complaint had come from that officer.

Dr. Stockton (Conservative, N. B.) suggested that if the Attorney-General kept quiet, and no doubt he would if requested, the vacancy would never be filled.

R. L. Borden said that the courts were fairly dead-locked in Nova Scotia; it was very important that the vacancy be filled at once.

Wants U. S. to Benefit.

Niagara power occupied the House from 4 o'clock till adjournment yesterday.

Mr. Aylesworth's bill respecting the export of power was up, and the discussion was confined, with one brief exception, to members from Ontario. That the bill is designed rather to facilitate than to prohibit export seems tolerably clear. W. F. Maclean (South York) took the stand that the exportation of Niagara power should be entirely prohibited. So did Mr. Lancaster. The bill was sharply assailed by Mr. Bristol (Centre Toronto), Mr. Clare (South Waterloo), Haughton Lennox and W. F. Cockshutt. Mr. Conmee (Thunder Bay and Rainy River) helped the Minister of Justice, and so did Mr. Wright of Renfrew. The bill is not out of committee, and the Ontario Government may yet be heard from.

Mr. Aylesworth submitted that Mr. Maclean merely opposed the bill because it was introduced by the Laurier Government.

Mr. Aylesworth further said: "The object of this bill is not to prohibit export. It would be a dog-in-the-manger policy. We are not going to be stampeded by a silly newspaper campaign into keeping this power in Canada, when there is a good market for it, or for what will be our surplus portion of it."

R. L. Borden suggested that it might be best to refer this bill to the Government of Ontario.

Mr. Aylesworth thought that there was no objection to this.

Mr. Aylesworth asked that the committee go through the bill section by section, which was done.

Correspondence was presented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier showing that, although no agreement has yet been concluded between Canada and Australia for the establishment of a reciprocal preferential trade, some progress has already been made in the consideration of this question.

McINTOSH BROS.

EIGHTH SEAL CLOSED

Mr. Graham Supplements Mr. Ross' Seven Seals of the Past.

New Liberal Leader In Ontario Declares He Won't See the Past at All—Will Ride on the Front of the Engine — Brief Summary of His Policy, Which He Amplified In His Speech In the House.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—"The Liberal party is not going to ride with its back to the engine, only seeing what is past," said Mr. G. P. Graham in the Legislature yesterday afternoon at the close of a speech of an hour and a quarter's duration in the debate on the address to the throne.

The New Leader.

The orders of the day having been disposed of, Mr. Graham rose amid Liberal applause. It would not be considered out of place he thought to acknowledge the kindness extended to him by the Premier and by all the members on both sides of the House.

There was one feeling that crowded in upon him very heavily, the absence of several faces familiar in the House. There were particularly two, Senator Ross and the late Mr. Carscallen. Senator Ross had been thrown on his own resources early in life. He was possessed of more than ordinary ability and capacity, he was a master in debate, and the best after dinner speaker in Canada. He possessed a bright optimism, and clouds to him had always a silver lining. They would all join in wishing him success in his new sphere.

Mr. Carscallen, he said, was one of the most intimate friends Mr. Graham had had in the Legislature. He was a big, broadminded and kindly man, three characteristics that go to make up a real man. The City of Hamilton had lost a good representative and the citizenship of the province would long mourn him.

Mr. Graham's Policy.

Mr. Graham then paid a compliment to the mover and seconder of the address, and turning to the speech itself, delivered his policy, which he briefly summarized, as follows:

We stand for a practical and progressive forestry policy now and for the future.

We stand for the abolition of contract labor at the Central Prison on any terms.

For fair play to legitimate investments, but not one cent for watered stock.

For rational capitalization and limitations of the powers of such corporations as the Standard Oil and other companies that are endeavoring to take money out of Canada.

Absolute and unassailable titles by the Government.

Free school-books as part of the equipment of the public and separate schools.

Stands for Cheap Power.

Cheap power for the municipalities and the people.

Economical management of the provincial business, notwithstanding the buoyancy of the revenue.

Absolute control by municipalities of their own streets, and every encouragement to the ownership and operation of their own utilities.

Management of the public school system by a head experienced in and conversant with that system.

Mr. Graham also advocated an increase of the succession duties; a fixed and adequate income for the university; development of the iron ore resources of the province; the establishment of smelting industries; the publication of monthly reports showing the actual work done in all mines, and the extension of the T. & N. O. Railway to a Georgian Bay port.

The Premier Replies.

Premier Whitney complimented Mr. Graham on his speech, as not only studiously moderate in tone, but absolutely in endorsement of the Government in all but two points, and in those he admitted the Government intended to do right. Mr. Graham, he believed, now began to see verily and far off what the verdict against him and his associates meant two years ago.

With regard to Mr. Carscallen he expressed with all seriousness and earnestness their sense of the loss which was felt. With regard to Senator Ross the time was not opportune and he had an aversion from criticizing any gentleman in his absence.

Premier Whitney made some comment upon Mr. Graham's remarks, but did not dwell on any point at length.

The Liberal surplus had been in several commodities, but not in cash, like Hon. Mr. Matheson's. He found fault with the late Government for failure to press the provincial claims on the Dominion Government.

As time went on the Government would try to get the mind of the people on all subjects upon which they legislated. He did not understand Mr. Graham's remark about the trouble over the education bill. There was no trouble. No question had received such attention during the campaign of 1904 than that of education. They had promised to take it up first thing. They had so taken it up. (Applause.) It was unworthy of the hon. gentleman to speak of want of sympathy for the public schools. The Deputy Minister had gone through every school in the province until he attained to the university, and the superintendent of education had done the same, and had also been a public school teacher. (Applause.)

Mr. Whitney declared that school-books would be furnished so cheaply that people would not know the difference between free books and the low prices. They would also observe that the school-book ring fostered by the late Government had been broken and scattered.

He hoped some of the iniquities and enormities of the mining bill spoken of in the newspapers would be brought forward in the House, so that he might meet them. He desired to express the sense the Government had of the advantages of the distinguished services of the gentleman in control of the Department of Mines, whose integrity and capacity had never been surpassed on the Treasury benches.

"Try for a moment to imagine what would have been the condition of this country if the late Government had remained to deal with Cobalt?" was a final problem submitted by the Premier. He would not attempt to describe the result himself.

The Labor Leader.

Allan Studholme, the new member for East Hamilton, begged for the indulgence of the House while he echoed the tribute already paid by the two leaders to the late Henry Carscallen, his predecessor in East Hamilton. He thanked them for what they had said of his old friend "Cass." He had worked with him for 30 years, and in all that time he had always been "Cass." Not for a minute must they think there was anything disrespectful in the name by which he had always been near and dear to the people of Hamilton. They would always on such occasions remember the many acts of kindness and try to forget any little faults of their friends. The people had desired him to take his place for a short time. He would take that place as a workingman and was as free as the air so far as party affiliation was concerned. He approved of the Premier's declaration that the Government were the servants of the people. Anything they proposed that was fair and square to labor would get a fair and square deal from him, and any like measure from the Opposition he would similarly support. It was not for party, but for principle that he came there. Mr. Studholme's maiden effort was greeted with generous and general applause from both sides of the House.

Committees were appointed to assist the Speaker in the case of the library, and for the expenditure of sums devoted to the art decoration of the House.

Catarrh of the Stomach

A PLEASANT, SIMPLE, BUT SAFE AND EFFECTUAL CURE FOR IT.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs, and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and Fruit Acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not being a patent medicine can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

Mr. R. S. Workman, Chicago, Ill., writes: "Catarrh is a local condition resulting from a neglected cold in the head, whereby the lining membrane of the nose becomes inflamed and the poisonous discharge therefrom passing backward into the throat, reaches the stomach, thus producing catarrh of the stomach. Medical authorities prescribed for me for three years for catarrh of stomach without cure, but to-day I am the happiest of men after using only one box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I cannot find appropriate words to express my good feeling. I have found flesh, appetite and sound rest from their use."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation, as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, Catarrh of Stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

THREE SCORE DEAD.

Explosion of Dust In the Stewart Mine In South Carolina Had Most Harrowing Results.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 30.—There are at least 50 or 60 persons known dead as the result of an explosion in the Stewart mine, near Fayetteville, Fayette County last night, and it is said the number will reach 25 more.

The explosion was caused by dust in the mine. Every effort is being made to get to the men who are entombed, but there is little hope that any of them are alive.

At the time of the explosion there were about 200 men in the shaft. The shaft is 528 feet deep.

Seven Drown.

Brisbane, Queensland, Jan. 30.—The Government schooner Pilot was wrecked during a recent cyclone off Cooktown. Seven persons, including Mr. Hargreaves, a member of the Queensland Legislature, were drowned.

Cars Rolled Down Hill.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 30.—The maritime express from Montreal, which was due here at 5 p.m., met with a bad accident at Windsor Junction, ten miles from Halifax.

The train was 45 minutes late, and was running thirty-five miles per hour when the five passenger cars left the track, and after plowing up the track for some 100 yards broke away from the engine and the two rolled down an embankment, one car turning completely over.

There were thirty passengers on the train, but all escaped serious injury, although twelve received minor cuts and bruises. The colonist car was badly smashed up.

DEATH LIST 148.

Fire In Saarbreucken Mine Now Under Control.

Saarbreucken, Jan. 30.—It is announced that the death list in the mine disaster at St. Johann-On-Saar Monday, probably will reach 148.

The fire in the mine is under control, and rescue work has recommenced.

The injured are terribly mutilated. Scenes at the pit mouth are harrowing.

A Railway Fatality.

Montreal, Jan. 30.—As one of Dawes' teams at Lachine was crossing the Grand Trunk track last evening it was struck by a train and the driver, Victor Lamothe, was killed, while S. Mair had both legs broken.

Five Die In Collision.

Deerfield, Mass., Jan. 30.—Five persons were killed and several others injured in a collision between an express train and a special freight on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, near South River, yesterday. The killed were all employes of the railroad.

SCHOOLBOY'S FATAL FALL.

12-Year-Old Boy Slips From Roof and Fractures His Skull.

Glencoe, Jan. 30.—Russell Gilbert was instantly killed about 1 o'clock yesterday by falling from the roof of the public school.

He, together with a number of other boys, were climbing towards the belfry when Russell slipped and fell to the frozen ground, fracturing his skull.

He was about 12 years of age, and the only son of James Gilbert.

Target Marker Shot.

Brockville, Jan. 30.—A. Christopher Carleton was the victim of a shooting accident at the armory yesterday afternoon, where the corps were having target practice. While marking, he gave instructions to cease firing. He was not heard, and, stepping before the range, received two bullets, one in the thigh and the other in the ankle. Both went through the limb without shattering the bone. He will recover.

Boarders Have Narrow Escape.

Quebec, Jan. 30.—During a fire in a boarding house yesterday morning, several of the boarders had narrow escapes. Mrs. Beaudoin of St. Evariste, Beauce, was frightfully burned on the face and right hand and arm, but will recover. Louis Lemieux, of Ste. Lambert, Levis, fell down a ladder and broke a leg and two ribs. Other boarders were nearly asphyxiated.

Woman Frozen to Death.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30.—Lying on the floor of the front room at her home, 397 Logan avenue, with her head propped up against the bed and fully dressed, Mrs. Mary Throughton, aged nearly 70 years, was discovered shortly before noon yesterday, frozen to death. Judging from the surroundings, the old lady had come home under the influence of liquor and, lying on the floor, had succumbed to the intense cold.

Several Houses Burn.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 30.—Fire broke out in the Village of St. Eustache last evening and destroyed a number of houses. Damage $8,000.

Million Dollars Loss By Fire.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 30.—Fire, which started with the explosion in the paintshop, destroyed one section of the big Baldwin Locomotive Works last night, entailing a loss of $1,000,000; covered by insurance.

British Cabinet Changes.

London, Jan. 30.—These ministerial appointments are announced:

Walter Runciman, Parliamentary Secretary to the local Government Board, becomes Financial Secretary of the Treasury.

Charles F. Hobhouse, Liberal member of Parliament, for Bristol, Under Secretary of State for India.

Thomas J. MacNamara, Radical member of Parliament for Camberwell, Parliamentary Secretary of the local Government Board.

None of these appointments involves a bye-election.

Baggageman Goes to "Pen."

London, Jan. 30.—John Currie, the Glencoe baggageman, who confessed to stealing approximately $800 worth of jewelry and merchandise from the baggage passing through his hands in his position on the Grand Trunk, was yesterday morning sentenced by Judge Macbeth to serve two years and six months in the Kingston Penitentiary.

Church And State War.

Attitude of the Episcopate Embarrasses French Moderates.

Nevertheless, There is Hope of Compromise Yet—Pope Makes His Last Sacrifice in the Model Contract, and If Proposal Is Not Accepted the Abandonment of Churches in France is Thought Likely.

Paris, Jan. 31.—The French Cabinet has hardly recovered from its surprise at the proposition which the bishops, with the approval of the Pope, submitted to the Government for a modus vivendi on the basis of a virtual lease of the churches in perpetuity to the parish priests by the mayors, and apparently some confusion exists as to what course to adopt.

While the offhand remarks of Minister of Education Briand in the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday night, in which he said that the conditions proposed in behalf of the episcopate were unacceptable, does not necessarily exclude the possibility of a compromise, the attitude of the extreme Radicals, who are incensed at the peremptory tone of the communication, and the despatches from Rome representing the Vatican as being determined, unless the bishops' proposition is immediately and unanimously accepted, to order the parish priests to leave their churches and suspend public worship, greatly embarrasses the Moderates. The latter believe that the Government, having accomplished the separation of church and state, can afford to accept any definite solution of the difficulties in the interest of peace.

Pope's Last Sacrifice.

Rome, Jan. 31.—It was asserted in well-informed quarters Tuesday night that the Pope has made his last sacrifices in the matter of the conflict with France. The Vatican insists that not only must the parish priests and the mayors sign the leases, but that the bishops and the prefects countersign them. If the proposal of the bishops is not accepted, the abandonment of the churches in France is considered likely.

MUTUAL FAILS IN SUIT.

Held Former Manager Not Liable for Transfer of Policies.

London, Jan. 31.—Justice Sir Charles Swinfen Eady yesterday pronounced judgment in favor of D. C. Haldeman, former London manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York and the North British & Mercantile Insurance Co., in the suit of the Mutual Co., asking for an injunction and indemnities. Justice Eady said the plaintiff's case had wholly failed against both defendants, and it was therefore dismissed with costs against the Mutual Co.

Justice Eady added that he was satisfied that Mr. Haldeman had not done anything inconsistent with his duty. The circular alleged to have been sent out by Mr. Haldeman was really sent by the committee of the policyholders.

It was alleged that on the day of the termination of his engagement with the Mutual, Mr. Haldeman sent out a circular to all the British policyholders, inviting them to surrender their policies in the Mutual and transfer them to the North British. It was further contended by the Mutual that Mr. Haldeman wrongfully used information which he obtained as London manager for the Mutual.

Mail Robbery.

Brockville, Jan. 31.—An amount of $500 is involved in the robbery of the Upton, Que., mail, and the police are after Daigle, the mail courier at Upton, who is suspected of having cut open the mail bag and abstracted the packages. It was directed from Upton to headquarters of the department at Ottawa.

Broker Sent to Jail.

Toronto, Jan. 31.—Thirty days in jail, with hard labor, was the sentence meted William J. Chambers, a stock broker, who pleaded guilty to theft of a certificate of 100 mining shares in a paying silver mine, and having forged the signature to the certificate.

Only One Thaw Juror to Get.

New York, Jan. 31.—There was but a single vacant chair in the jury box for the Thaw trial when court adjourned yesterday, and it is believed that by this afternoon at the latest District Attorney Jerome will begin his opening address to a complete jury.

$9,000,000 For Furnishings.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—A resolution calling for an investigation of the expenditure of $9,000,000 for furnishing and decorating the new state capital, which passed the House Monday night, was adopted by the Senate yesterday and signed by the governor.

Evidence for Van Zant.

Toronto, Jan. 31.—After evidence favorable to Governor Van Zant of the Toronto jail had been heard yesterday, Commissioner Judd granted an adjournment till Feb. 12, to give the defence time to prepare argument.

True Bill Against Savignac.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The grand jury has found a true bill against Dr. Savignac, charged with injuring with intent to murder his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mitchell, and his wife.

Child Burned to Death.

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 31.—The five-year-old daughter of James Greenwell, a miner at Sydney Mines, was burned to death. Her clothes caught fire from an open grate.

Dies From Injuries.

Toronto, Jan. 31.—James Stephens, who fell from a ladder, died from his injuries a few hours later. Coroner Graham will hold an inquest.

$5,000,000 FOR CHARITY.

Wm. Whitely, Who Was Killed On Jan. 24, Is Generous—Thousands At Funeral.

London, Jan. 31.—Unusual public interest in the tragic death of William Whitely, who was shot and killed in his great department store Jan. 24 by Horace George Rayner, was shown by the scenes at the funeral of the merchant yesterday morning.

Long before the hour for the ceremony thousands of persons gathered about the Whitely residence and dense masses lined the streets leading to the church. Most of the shops in the Westbourne Grove district kept their shutters up and over a hundred carriages followed the hearse to the cemetery. Four of these were laden with floral wreaths.

According to the newspapers, Mr. Whitely bequeathed $5,000,000 to provide almshouses and homes for the aged and deserving poor.

Would Rather Lose License.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 31.—Last week a delegation appeared before the agriculture committee of the Legislature and asked that amendments be made to the charter of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Yesterday morning a Grain Exchange deputation appeared before the committee, objecting to any changes, and Frank O. Fowler, secretary of the exchange, in the course of a long speech in defence of their methods, declared that sooner than submit to any amendments in its rules and regulations, it would rather have its license cancelled.

Farmer Badly Injured.

Lindsay, Jan. 31.—A well-to-do farmer of Downeyville, named Flynn, was almost killed in a runaway here yesterday afternoon. Flynn was returning home from the mill with a load of grain when his team became frightened and ran away, upsetting the sleigh and catching the occupant underneath. Flynn was dragged nearly three blocks. He is at present in the Ross Hospital.

Drank Spirits and Died.

Port Arthur, Jan. 31.—A double tragedy occurred at Point Phophry lighthouse, Lake Superior, on Tuesday, when Thomas Dick and his wife met death. They had procured some methylated spirits from lighthouse supplies. Mrs. Dick took a drink and then handed its contents to her husband, who took a large dose. She died in six hours and he next day. No inquest.

Death After Amputation.

Windsor, Jan. 31.—John Rodd, a retired lumberman and farmer of Gesto, North Colchester Township, died at Harper Hospital, Detroit, yesterday, as the result of the amputation of his left leg on Monday. He was suffering from gangrene. Mr. Rodd was 83 years of age. He was the father of County Crown Attorney Rodd of Windsor.

Fund for Firemen's Families.

Buffalo, Jan. 31.—A fund has been started by popular subscription for the benefit of the families of the dead firemen. Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, who is filling an engagement at a local theatre, gave $100.

Outwitted by Pretender.

Madrid, Jan. 31.—The authorities here have learned that in spite of all their precautions Don Jaime, son of the Spanish Pretender, Don Carlos, recently paid a surreptitious visit to the Carlist leaders at Barcelona.

Glass Works Burned.

Montreal, Jan. 31.—The Canadian Glass Co.'s works, at Point St. Charles were destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The loss is estimated at $25,000, and 250 employes are thrown temporarily out of employment.

Daily Intelligencer.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The threatened cold wave got side-tracked somewhere, but we're not doing any very vigorous kicking.

* * *

Good-by January. You had too many cold waves to suit most people.

* * *

In another column will be found an article from Hansard, which shows that Mr. E. Guss Porter, M. P., is keeping after the Government trying to obtain a betterment of conditions in the local post office. It is Mr. Porter's intention to try to have the Civil Service status of the Belleville office restored, as it was under the Conservative regime.

* * *

It seems almost incredible that the Post Office department should be able to report that, during the past two years, no complaints have reached the department in regard to conditions at the local post office. That there have been a plethora of local complaints nearly everyone knows.

* * *

The Intelligencer was told yesterday of a case in which a lady is alleged to have received no less than twenty-one letters in a batch. She had, it is said, been calling at the wicket every day, but could get no mail, though convinced that letters were there for her. At last, in desperation, she wrote and posted a letter directed to herself. She called several times for the letter, but was told there was nothing for her. Then she stated that she had written this letter to herself and demanded that a search be made for it. The search was made, with the result, it is alleged, that no less than twenty-one letters were handed to the lady in a bunch.

* * *

It is the intention of Mr. Porter, as above stated, to try to have the Belleville post office placed in the same class as other city post offices. Then, and then only, it is likely the service will be bettered. It may fairly be asked, is it fair to Each tiny grain of WINDSOR TABLE SALT is a perfect crystal —pure and dry. That is why it never cakes.

Belleville citizens, whose post office has a revenue of over $18,000 to be compelled to put up with an inefficient service which costs slightly over $4,000? There can be only one answer to this question from any fair-minded man.

* * *

Mr. Porter, we are sure, is entitled to and will receive the thanks of all unprejudiced people in his efforts to make the local post office what it should be. In the meantime, he would like any citizens of Belleville who have complaints to make, or to whom the present service has been unsatisfactory, to write him at once, pointing out wherever it has been unsatisfactory, and any inconvenience or loss that has arisen to them in consequence. This should be done at once to strengthen his hands, as he expects the matter to be taken up shortly.

* * *

The Thaw trial is going on quietly, but one of these days the prisoner will put on a new necktie, and then the New York yellows will all have extras.

* * *

Kingston News: There is a man in Kingston who says that our boasted Christian civilization is merely pagan and he is able to put his case so that he would be a strong preacher who could down him.

Christian civilization in Kingston must be in a bad way.

* * *

A Guelph young lady has been presented with a medal for saving the life of a boy who was drowning. Guelph girls want to be right in the swim.

* * *

No one in Belleville who knew him but will sincerely regret the death of Rev. Canon Burke, formerly and for many years the beloved rector of St. Thomas' Church in this city. High-souled and benignant, polished and urbane, gentle and gracious, but unyielding to even the appearance of evil, where on God's footstool could one hope to find a man more worthy of the Master's "Well done" than the white-haired and pure-minded scholar and gentleman who for so many years presided over Belleville's premier Anglican Church! His presence was a benediction to all gatherings which he attended. Who will ever forget his glowing words when "the boys" left to fight the Empire's battles in South Africa: "As the son of a Waterloo officer," he said, "it would ill become me did I not add my word of encouragement and blessing to these young men. May the God of battles watch over them, help them to do their duty, and bring them safely back to the loved ones at home!"

The old order changeth, men may come and men may go, but it will be many a long year before the men and women of this city forget the gracious, gentle, scholarly and kindly Christian gentleman who for so many years had the "cure of souls" in St. Thomas' parish. May he rest in peace!

"One of the Crowd's" letter cannot be published unless his own name is signed to it.

Don't forget that chorus of 100 in "The Messiah" to-morrow night. Soloists are splendid, of course, but it takes one of those big choruses to make thrills of pleasure run up and down one's back. Don't miss "The Messiah."

Kingston Whig: Kingston has rivalled Belleville this year, in the enthusiasm shown by lady attendants at the hockey games. Teams visiting Belleville have often heard weird screams as the puck struck a player, but never until this year have Kingstonians noticed this fact.

AS SEEN IN PETERBORO.

(Peterboro Review.)

Since the palatial hotel, the Quinte was burned down in Belleville, that city realizes that it has sustained a severe loss, and active steps are being taken to encourage the rebuilding of what was probably the finest hotel between Toronto and Montreal. The City Council is to the fore in the movement of having the building restored to its former proportions and has placed itself on record as in favor of a fixed assessment of $15,000 per year for a period of ten years, in case the Quinte is rebuilt.

Make Out Your Whitewear List For Next Summer

Now's the best time of all the year to buy Whitewear. This store has made it so. Naturally you would not associate whitewear with this season of the year, and that is the very reason why we do associate the two. For the natural demand being at low ebb, we can secure terms from the Whitewear factories such as you would scarcely believe. Therefore, we sincerely advise you to lay in a full supply now.

Now one other thing about our Whitewear Sales—Sinclair's Sales gives you daintiness as well as low prices, and every garment is cut in a liberal way. No skimping of sizes, nor skamping of workmanship—style, good taste, quality, daintiness and beauty. These are the features about Sinclair's Whitewear Sale that make its low prices distinctive and worth while.

Queen City Loses A Merchant Prince

MR. TIMOTHY EATON DIED THIS MORNING — INFLUENZA HASTENED END.

Toronto, January 31. — (Special). Timothy Eaton, one of Canada's merchant princes, and president of the Eaton Co., Ltd., died at 10.20 this morning.

He had been ill about two weeks with influenza, but at 2 o'clock this morning was taken with a sudden collapse which terminated fatally.

Mr. Eaton was born in Clogher, Ireland. He entered mercantile life in 1846, when he was apprenticed to a draper. In 1857 he came to Canada, and, after conducting general stores at Kirkton, in Huron Co., and then at St. Mary's, came to Toronto in 1869 and established the business that has since become known from one end of the country to the other.

A widow, two sons and two daughters survive.

PERSONAL ……AND…… SOCIAL.

Mr. D. Cunningham, Yeomans St., is dangerously ill.

Mr. Joseph Powell, of St. Anselm, P. Q., is visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bambridge, of Griswold, Manitoba, have returned home after a visit with friends here. Mrs. Bambridge, whose maiden name was Miss Allie Wood, was at one time a school teacher in this city.

Mr. W. R. Taylor, for many years superintendent of the distillery at Corbyville, with Mrs. Taylor and Miss Taylor, left to-day for Hamilton where they will reside. Before he left Corbyville the employees of the company, with whom he recently severed his connection, presented Mr. Taylor with an address and a handsome bookcase and secretary.

Corby Company Loses A Valued Employee.

A host of people in this district will regret to learn that Mr. W. R. Taylor, for 30 years manager of the distillery at Corbyville, has severed his connection with the Corby Co, and will go to Hamilton to reside. During his residence in this district Mr. Taylor built up an enviable reputation for probity and respectability, and will take with him, to his new home, the best wishes of all. The severance of his relations with the Corby Company, we learn, was brought about at Mr. Taylor's own request. The company, and Mr. Corby in particular, parted from him with regret, and have nothing but best wishes for a faithful old employee.

A Hen Coop Thief.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuall, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '99, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2nd he writes, "And to-day my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. J. S. McKeown, special agent.

Daily Intelligencer.

Emmerson a Monumental Stretcher.

"A campaign of slander has been carried on against the Government, and not one of the charges of wrong doing or graft made against the Government last session had been verified."

Such was the utterance of the Hon. Mr. Emmerson, Minister of Railways and Canals, that pink of political purity existing in the ranks of "latter day" Liberal politicians, at a political gathering in the city of St. John, N. B., on the last Friday of the old year.

On reading that sweeping declaration, one who had kept abreast of passing events, would naturally ask where is St. John, N. B.? If it has an existence, do the people ever read? Or are they so blinded by partyism and party grafting, as it exists today, that they are prepared to accept such a bold declaration, without even a murmur of dissent? Such it is feared is the state of political morality in the ranks of Liberalism in this the 20th century; otherwise, the man who could so boldly declare true, that which he and every one listening to him, knew to be untrue, would have been hooted off the platform, so palpable untrue was the assertion.

Let us examine the record, and see how far Mr. Emmerson was justified in his arrogant assumption of Grit-Rouge political purity. Here are a few of the charges which were made in the House of Commons, and in Committee, and proven, and but a few out of the many;

The North Atlantic Trading Company,
The Merwin Contracts.
The Arundel Printing Deal,
The Preston-Leopold Transactions.
The Montcalm's Outfit.
The Purchase of Files for the Marine Department.
The Moncton Land Scandal,
The Cunningham Scandal,

Other transactions which prove themselves to be corrupt from their nature include the following:

The Saskatchewan Land Deal.
The Timber Limits Transactions,
Grazing Lease Scandals.
Bronson and Ray Concession,

Now for a few particulars;

There was the Wagner case in Alberta in which an election heeler who had been twice in jail for swindling his Galician fellow-countrymen and stealing their hard savings, was after these events reappointed to office at double his former salary, continuing as an public official to round up the foreign voters and purchase their support with cash and beer for the Oliver Grit party,

• • •

There was the case of Joseph Nixon, who had been shown to have kept false records in his office making short returns of public money. He was also appointed to a better office at a higher salary.

• • •

There was the "thin red line scandal." By forgeries and frauds nine thousand qualified electors were disfranchised in Manitoba, which act was followed almost immediately by the appointment of the chief operator to a high and responsible public position.

• • •

There was the Prince Albert Election Fraud, perpetuated by men whom the Government had appointed to office, and have since protected. These criminals, ordered to hold a poll in the far North, went off to a camp more than a hundred miles from the polling place, forged a whole voters' list, voted every man in it, and returned with sworn statements that they had held a poll and recorded some 150 votes all for the Government candidate, though not a single elector had cast a ballot. One of these rascals has also been provided for in another department at the public expense,

• • •

There was the Jackson scandal. In this case a barrister was proven in an election court to have attempted to procure perjury and false evidence by cash payments, to unseat a Conservative in the County of Oxford, and, who after the trial judge had pronounced him a man of "the lowest possible character" he, too, was immediately appointed by the Government as the representative of Canada in the great English city of Leeds at a salary of $3,000 and travelling expenses.

• • •

Then we have the now famous Preston case. This man was declared to be unworthy of belief by his own uncle the late John Rochester, M.P., in a Court of Justice, and by a fellow-officer who served under him in England before a Committee of the House of Commons, and also by Lord Strathcona, who compelled the Government to remove him from the emigration department in London; he, too, instead of being dismissed, was promoted to a higher and more responsible office in South Africa, at a higher salary.

• • •

As evidence that swindling was carried on under the North Atlantic contract, which was to a great extent under the management and control of Preston, the Government cancelled the contract, but promoted Preston and dismissed the clerk in the London office who gave the information which convicted Preston. The dismissal was so flagrantly unjustifiable that the Government was compelled subsequently to reappoint him. In addition to all the other iniquities in connection with this North Atlantic Emigration swindle, there was the printing contract fraud which enabled the favored ones to pocket thousands of dollars never earned, and which had to be cancelled. A nice state of affairs. The country robbed, and the guilty ones promoted.

• • •

So flagrant was the conduct of Preston, as developed before the Parliamentary Committee that Mr. Oliver, Minister of the Interior, was forced by his own indignant supporters in the Commons to promise investigation into the Preston charges, which promise, so far as the public knows, seems to have been violated. Another solemnly declared promise was that the man who took the lead in the Prince Albert election crime would draw no more pay from his Department, though the individual has since been in Government employ, but in another department.

• • •

Political villainy seems to be a rapid and sure qualification for promotion, with the present Government,

• • •

The Public Accounts Committee also brought to light a system of 'grafting' by merchants, from whom purchases for the public service were made without tender. The prices paid for silverware for the steamer Montcalm were of so astounding a character, and the quantity so much beyond the actual requirements of the vessel, that the "grafter" was compelled to disgorge and make a refund of the overcharges.

• • •

It was also shown by the Opposition that an official had demanded and been paid excessive charges for travelling expenses which he was obliged to refund. Have these "grafters" or any of them been struck off the patronage list, and the dishonest official dismissed from office? may well be asked by the suffering taxpayer. Not a bit of it, they still bask in the sunshine of Ministerial favor,

• • •

Enough of Emmerson for one day. More anon!

The Evils Of Constipation.

SPECIALIST SAYS WOMEN IN PARTICULAR ARE SUFFERERS.

Why Bileans Prove So Beneficial.

A medical specialist states that eight out of ten cases of headache, dizziness, sallow complexion and various ailments peculiar to women for which he is consulted have their origin in constipation. Although this ailment is very common amongst both sexes, women appear to be the greater sufferers. Bileans cure constipation by stimulating the liver and regulating the bile flow, Bile is the natural purgative of the body. Bileans regulate its secretion.

Mrs. S. E. Baldwin, of 38 St. Paul St., Toronto, says: "I have taken Bileans for constipation and dizziness and found most satisfactory results. Bileans do not cause any griping, and not only cure constipation but also improve the general health."

Mr. A. Monaghan, of Berlin, recently proved this vegetable remedy in a similar way. He says: "For many years I suffered from both constipation and piles. Nothing I have ever tried is to be compared for beneficial result to Bileans. They have made me a different man, and if any sufferer would like to ask me any question on their operation and their value I will be glad to give all the information I can."

Such is the result of exhaustive tests of Bileans. This great vegetable remedy is invaluable also for sallow complexions (due to bile in the blood), pimples, greasy, sallow skin, and blood impurities generally. Bileans also cure indigestion, debility, rheumatism, anaemia, female ailments and irregularities "run-down feelings," liver and kidney complaint, headache sleeplessness, wind spasms, palpitation, etc. All druggists sell at 50c a box, or obtainable post free from the Bilean Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. 6 boxes sold for $2.50.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

SPORTING NOTES.

Our esteemed neighbors over in Picton, it would appear, are suffering with a severe attack of frigid pedal extremities, otherwise known as "cold feet." Everybody knows, of course, that the chances are Belleville and Picton will be tied for the championship of this group in the junior O.H.A. series, and the supposition—a natural one, too,—was that home and home games would be played.

Last night Manager Arnott, of this city, was called up on the telephone by a Mr. Carter, of Picton, who, it seems, is president of the Picton Hockey Club. The Picton party coolly informed Mr. Arnott that the Picton club had held a meeting and had decided to play home and home games with Belleville, providing the latter club agreed to two conditions, namely, that the first game should be played in Belleville and the second in Picton, and that "Chaucer" Elliott should referee both matches.

This proposed arrangement hardly suited Mr. Arnott. "Not exactly for mine, dear boy," he said, "but I'll tell you what I will do: I'll meet you in Trenton and we'll toss up to see where the first game shall be played." No, that would not suit Picton, and Mr. Carter said that if Belleville would not agree to their terms it would have to be a "sudden death" game on neutral ice.

"Count us in on that," said Mr. Arnott, "you can't lose us, dear boy, as long as there's an even break in sight."

"Then," said Mr. Carter, "we'll play a sudden death game in Port Hope."

"No, we won't," said Mr. Arnott, "we'll play a sudden death game in Cobourg."

"What's the matter with Port Hope?" said Mr. Carter.

"What's the matter with Cobourg?" said Mr. Arnott.

"Well, how about Kingston, then?" came from the Picton gentleman.

"Why not Peterboro?" said the local man.

"Well," said the Picton party, after a few more verbal exchanges, "I guess we'd better let the O.H.A. settle it."

"That suits us," said Mr. Arnott, but before hanging up the receiver he made it plain that he would not, under any circumstances, stand for "Chaucer" Elliott for referee, now that Picton was so anxious for him.

The local club's proposition, and it looks like a fair one, is to play home and home games, with toss for choice of first game, the referee to be an appointee of the O.H.A. If that is not agreeable, they will play a sudden death game on the Mutual St. rink, Toronto. But they absolutely and firmly decline to let the Picton club fix the dates and places for the matches and name the referee, too. And we don't think any fair-minded sporting man will blame them.

Another thing the Picton man demanded was that wire netting be put all around the local rink, this possibly being an insinuation that a Belleville crowd might do bodily injury to the Picton players. This was childish and uncalled for. Nowhere in this district does a visiting team get fairer treatment than in this city. Then, again, the local rink fills all O.H.A. requirements; why should the "dead" sports of Picton kick on it?

The fact of the matter appears to be that Picton is suffering with chicken-heartedness. Their finish is in sight, and they know it. A man or club looking for something better than an even break is as good as licked before the referee starts the music playing.

It was reported around town this morning that Spangenberg had been refused permission to play with the local team any more this season, but inasmuch as the O.H.A. executive does not meet till to-night, the report seems rather premature.

The printers have been challenged to a game of hockey with the gas works men, and hereby cheerfully accept. The typos think they can trim the gasbags to a finish, even though the latter have the chairman of Gas between the poles.

Hockey results last night: Kingston 4, Peterboro 2; St. Georges 4, Stratford 3; Port Hope 6, Cobourg 3; Shamrocks 5, Montreal 3.

Alf. Smith and Charles Spittal, of the Ottawas, have been committed for trial for assault on two of the Wanderers' players in a recent match. The cases will come up at the Court of King's Bench in March.

Cut this out and take it to R. Templeton & Co.'s drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For biliousness and constipation they are unequalled. They improve the appetite, strengthen the digestion and regulate the liver and bowels.

Boils.

A person suffering with boils should eschew pastry, gravies and every kind of meat excepting lean mutton. The boils may be brought to a head by using a warm poultice of camomile flowers or boiled white lily root, by fermentation with hot water or by stimulating plasters.

Odd Books.

In the British museum are books written on oyster shells, bricks, tiles, bones, ivory, lead, iron, copper, sheepskin, wood and palm leaves.

Tenpins.

The regulation tenpin is fifteen inches high and fifteen inches in circumference at the largest part and two and one-fourth inches in diameter at the base. Pins are sometimes made shorter and sometimes longer and bigger for family alleys, so that they may be knocked down more easily, but fifteen inches is the regulation height.

"Chamois" Skin.

What is known in the market as chamois skin is really oil tanned sheepskin linings. The supply of real chamois skin is very limited, and all there is in the world would not supply the United States for a single day.

Australian Rabbits.

The feet of some Australian rabbits show a gradual adaptation to a new mode of locomotion. The rabbits are becoming climbers and often ascend trees in search of food. Their feet in consequence are said to be growing slighter, and the claws longer and sharper.

Power In Ancient Arrows.

At 200 feet only the best Spanish armor could resist the English arrow. Many museums have steel corselets pierced through by an arrow.

Mexican Burials.

The Mexicans have a queer way of burying the dead. The corpse is tightly wrapped in century plant matting and placed in a coffin hired for about a shilling. One or two natives, as the case may be, place the coffin on their heads and go at a trot to the grove, where the body is interred, and the coffin is then returned.

The Cross of St. Andrew.

Russia's cross of St. Andrew has a remarkable peculiarity attaching to it. All who are decorated with it have the right once to demand a pardon for a Russian subject condemned to death.

It's healthful, wholesome. It's good for one as the other. The more you take the better you sleep and eat. Makes people happy. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea does. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. — D. M. Waters.

TIMELY TOPICS.

WHEN REUBEN CAME TO BABYLON.

(Atlanta Journal.)

When Deacon Hiram journeyed from
His little town of Tyre,
He found the price of things at Thebes
Was just a trifle higher.
They left his whiskernes to him
And bless his dear old soul!
If Reuben went to Babylon
I'll bet they got his roll.

The world's not greatly changed, you know:
'Twas really much the same
When Adam took the pippin and Made Eve take all the blame.
'Twas just as tricky in the days
When Egypt beat the Jews,
Or when Delilah dropped the dope
In Mister Samson's booze.

And when the Tower of Babel rose
To greet the mocking skies,
The chief contractor's sudden wealth
Produced profound surprise:
When Cartagena's wandering boys
Got rather flushed with wine,
The bar-keeps gave them wooden change
In dear old Palestine.

When Egypt's daughter plausibly
Found Moses on the strand,
The sewing circle straightway raised
A question in that land;
When Pharaoh boosted Joseph to
A job exceeding high,
Some Lincoln Steffens hollered "Graft!"
And "Graft!" is still the cry.

And when the Tuscan shepherd lads
"Excursioned" down to Rome
On Circus Day, they found some crooks
They'd never seen at home:
When Jason from the rowdy west
Came romping back to Greece,
Some Athens broker sold him stocks
And got Jay's golden fleece.

When Uncle Hiram journeyed from
His county seat at Tyre,
The gold-brick men of Nineveh
Would meet the dear old squire,
And fill his dear old carpet-bag
And bless his dear old soul!—
When Reuben went to Babylon
He always dropped his roll.

The Cobalt speculation craze has assumed enormous proportions. So far, the mining companies incorporated in Ontario have a capital of $270,000,000, and the amount is being weekly increased. There is no doubt of the richness of the Cobalt region, but nothing to justify exploitation to this extent. Canadians never seem to tire of putting their money into mining schemes.

The story of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company seeking a port in Maine is again revived. This is in consequence of an effort of the Somerset Railway to extend its line from its present junction with the Canadian Pacific road to the Quebec boundary. The story is that the C.P.R. is to take possession of the Somerset and the Wiscasset, Waterville and Farmington roads, and eventually reach Wiscasset harbor, where it may build a terminus to rival the Grand Trunk's terminus at Portland. Perhaps, says a Quebec exchange, if Sir Thomas Shaughnessy were asked about this he would enquire where is Wiscasset? as Sir William Van Horne is reported to have done when some one asked about L'Etang.

THE POSTAGE STAMP LANGUAGE.

The following is the stamp language. The stamp in the usual place, that is, on the top right-hand corner of the envelope, means, when upright, 'I desire your friendship'; across, 'Do you love me?' upside down, "Don't write to me again;" aslant, "Write to me at once." When the stamp is at the bottom corner of the right hand it means, if upright, "I love you;" across "My heart is another's," upside down, "Good-day, my darling." When on the bottom left-hand corner, if upright "Fidelity will be rewarded;" across, "Do not leave me alone in my sorrow;" upside down, "You have withstood all trials." When on the same line as the surname of the address upright, "Accept my love;" across, "I long to see you;" upside down, "I am engaged."—Toronto Star.

Unionist M. P. Dies.

London, Jan. 31.—Sir Michael Foster, Unionist member of Parliament from London University since 1900, died suddenly Monday. He had been in ill-health for some time. Sir Michael Foster was born in 1836, and was professor of physiology at Cambridge University from 1883 to 1903, and in 1899 he was president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

The Roman swords before Cannae, B. C. 236, were pointless and sharp on only one side. After Cannae the short Spanish sword for cutting and thrusting was adopted.

The Discovery of Iron.

According to the traditions of the Greeks, the first discovery of iron by the human race was made on Mount Ida by a tribe called Dactyles. It is said that the forest was set on fire by lightning, and so intense was the heat of the great masses of fallen trees that the bed of iron beneath was melted and trickled in small streams down into the valley.

The first use of Niagara's power was made in 1725, a primitive sawmill being operated.

Maid and Widow.

By the old Saxon law a maiden and a widow were of different value. The latter could be bought for one-half the sum which the guardian of the maid was entitled to demand. A man, therefore, who could not afford to buy a maiden might perhaps be able to purchase a widow.

"Book of Sentences."

The first ecclesiastical anthology was the "Book of Sentences," by Pierre Lombard. It was a compilation of the leading arguments of the fathers upon points of divinity, arranged and digested under heads. It is said 244 commentators have written annotations on this book, among others Thomas Aquinas, Guillaume Durand and St. Bonaventure.

That the sun is slowly but surely being consumed by its own fires there is but little doubt. No one can tell, however, to a certainty whether it is or not. PRISON GOVERNOR SHOT.

Boy of 18 Assassinates a Russian Official On Street.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—M. Guidema, Governor of the political prison on Vasili Ostroff (Basilisland), a suburb of this city, was shot in the main street of the island yesterday, and died almost immediately.

The assassin, who was a youth of 18, dressed as a workman, emerged from a tea house as M. Guidema was passing on his way home, and shot him twice in the stomach. The terrorist also shot and mortally wounded a prison warden who accompanied M. Guidema, and who pursued the assassin. The latter disappeared and the police have been unable to find any trace of him.

Died of Want and Exposure.

St. Catharines, Jan. 31.—John Wilson, a laborer aged about 63 years, was found dead on Monday evening in his room, in a house on Vine street, Grantham Township, by Mrs. McKenna, wife of the tenant who rents the farm from the owner, Purcell. Coroner W. H. Merritt on investigation decided that he had died of want and exposure. The McKenna family is also suffering from the same cause. Wilson was a Scotchman who came to this country in November last. Letters from a sister in Glasgow, Scotland, were found in his pockets.

LIBERAL LOVE FEAST.

Banquet Tendered to Hon. G. W. Ross by His Parliamentary Friends.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The banquet tendered by his friends in Parliament to Hon. George W. Ross last night was a great Liberal love-feast. There were a number of excellent speeches, but the guest of honor easily carried off the palm for polished oratory. No important announcement was made, but the best of good feeling prevailed. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was absent because of indisposition. All the other Ministers spoke except Mr. Templeman.

Mr. Ross was greeted with a chorus of cheers, and his speech was punctuated by generous and prolonged applause.

CHAPTER X.

THE short equatorial twilight was drawing to an end, and all nature stood in silence, while night crept up to claim the land where her reign is more autocratic than elsewhere on earth. There was a black night above the trees, and a blacker beneath.

A sportsman was abroad. He was creeping up the right hand bank of a stream, his only chance lying in the noise of the waters which might serve to deaden the sound of broken twig or rustling leaf.

This sportsman was Jack Meredith, and it was evident that he was bringing to bear upon the matter in hand that intelligence and keenness of perception which had made him a person of some prominence in other scenes where nature has a less assured place.

Since sunset he had been crawling, scrambling, stumbling up the bank of this stream in relentless pursuit of some large animal which persistently kept hidden in the tangle across the bed of the river. The strange part of it was that when he stopped to peep through the branches the animal stopped, too, and he found no way of discovering its whereabouts.

Once Meredith was able to decide approximately the whereabouts of his prey by the momentary shaking of a twig. He raised his rifle and covered that twig steadily; his forefinger played tentatively on the trigger, but on second thought he refrained. He was keenly conscious of the fact that the beast was doing its work with skill superior to his own. In comparison to his, its movements were almost noiseless.

It was terrifically hot and all the while night was stalking westward on the summits of the trees with stealthy tread.

At last he came to an open space made by a slip of the land into the bed of the river. When Jack Meredith came to this he stepped out of the thicket and stood in the open awaiting the approach of his stealthy prey. The sound of its footfall was just perceptible, slowly diminishing the distance that divided them. Then the trees were parted and a tall, fair man stepped forward on to the opposite bank.

Jack Meredith bowed gravely, and the other sportsman, seeing the absurdity of the situation, burst into hearty laughter. In a moment or two he had leaped from rock to rock and come to Meredith.

"It seems," he said, "that we have been wasting a considerable amount of time."

"I very nearly wasted powder and shot," replied Jack, significantly indicating his rifle.

"I saw you twice and raised my rifle. Your breeches are just the color of a young doe. Are you Meredith? My name is Oscard."

"Ah! Yes, I am Meredith. I am glad to see you."

They shook hands. There was a twinkle in Jack Meredith's eyes, but Oscard was quite grave. His sense of humor was not very keen, and he was before all things a sportsman.

"I left the canoes a mile below Msala and landed to shoot a deer we saw drinking, but I never saw him afterward. Then I heard you, and I have been stalking you ever since."

"But I never expected you so soon. You were not due till—look!" Jack whispered suddenly.

Oscard turned on his heel, and the next instant their two rifles rang out through the forest stillness in one sharp crack. Across the stream, ten yards behind the spot where Oscard had emerged from the brush, a leopard sprang into the air five feet from the ground, with head thrown back and paws clawing at the thinness of space with grand free sweeps. The beast fell with a thud and lay still, dead.

The two men clambered across the rocks again, side by side. While they stood over the prostrate form of the leopard, beautiful, incomparably graceful and sleek even in death, Guy Oscard stole a sidelong glance at his companion. He was a modest man, and yet he knew that he was reckoned among the big game hunters of the age. This man had fired as quickly as himself, and there were two small trickling holes in the animal's head.

While he was being quietly scrutinized Jack Meredith stooped down and, taking the leopard beneath the shoulders, lifted it bodily back from the pool of blood.

"Pity to spoil the skin," he explained as he put a fresh cartridge into his rifle.

Oscard nodded in an approving way. He knew the weight of a full grown leopard, all muscle and bone," said he was one of those old fashioned persons mentioned in the Scriptures as taking a delight in a man's legs—or his arms, so long as they were strong.

"I suppose," he said quietly, "we had better skin him here."

"Yes."

They laid the skin out on the trampled maidenhair and contemplated it with silent satisfaction. In the course of their inspection they both arrived at the head at the same moment. The two holes in the hide, just above the eyes, came under their notice at the same moment, and they turned and smiled gravely at each other, thinking the same thought—the sort of thought that Englishmen rarely put into intelligible English.

Two rifles rang out through the forest stillness.

"I'm glad we did that," said Guy Oscard at length; suddenly. "Whatever comes of this expedition of ours—if we fight, as we probably shall, before it is finished—if we hate each other ever afterward, that skin ought to remind us that we are much of a muchness."

By 9 o'clock they reached the camp at Msala. Victor Durnovo was still at work superintending the discharge of the baggage and stores from the large trading canoes. They heard the shouting and chattering before coming in sight of the camp, and one voice raised angrily above the others.

"Is that Durnovo's voice?" asked Meredith.

"Yes," answered his companion curtly.

It was a new voice, which Meredith had not heard before. When they shouted to announce their arrival it was suddenly hushed, and presently Durnovo came forward to greet them.

Meredith hardly knew him, he was so much stronger and healthier in appearance. Durnovo shook hands heartily.

"No need to introduce you two," he said, looking from one to the other.

"No; after one mistake we discovered each other's identity in the forest," answered Meredith.

Durnovo smiled, but there was something behind the smile. He did not seem to approve of their meeting without his intervention.

The three men walked up toward the house together. It was a fair sized house, with a heavy thatched roof that overhung the walls like the crown of a mushroom. The walls were only mud, and the thatching was nothing else than banana leaves, but there was evidence of European taste in the garden surrounding the structure and in the glazed windows and wooden door.

As they approached the open doorway three little children, clad in very little more than their native modesty, ran gleefully out and proceeded to engage seats on Jack Meredith's boots, looking upon him as a mere public conveyance. They took hardly any notice of him, but chattered and quarreled among themselves, sometimes in baby English, sometimes in dialect unknown to Oscard and Meredith.

"These," said the latter, when they were seated and clinging with their little dusky arms round his legs, "are the very rummest little kids I ever came across."

Durnovo gave an impatient laugh and went on toward the house. But Guy Oscard stopped and walked more slowly beside Meredith as he labored along heavy footed.

"They are the jolliest little souls imaginable," continued Jack Meredith. "There," he said to them when they had reached the doorstep, "run away to you mother—very fine ride—no, no more tonight! I'm aweary, you understand, aweary!"

"Aweary, awe-e-e-ary!" repeated the little things, standing before him in infantile nude rotundity, looking up with bright eyes.

"Aweary, that is it. Good night, Epaminondas; good night, Xantippe! Give ye good hap, most stout Nestorius!"

He stooped and gravely shook hands with each one in turn, and, after forcing a like ceremonial upon Guy Oscard, they reluctantly withdrew.

"They have not joined us, I suppose?" said Oscard as he followed his companion into the house.

"Not yet. They live in this place. Nestorious, I understand, takes care of his mother, who in her turn takes care of this house. He is one and a half."

Guy Oscard seemed to have inherited the mind inquisitive from his learned father. He asked another question later on.

"Who is that woman?" he said during dinner, with a little nod toward the doorway through which the object of his curiosity had passed with some plates.

"That is the mother of the stout Nestorius," answered Jack—"Durnovo's housekeeper."

He spoke quietly, looking straight in front of him; and Joseph, who was drawing a cork at the back of the room, was watching his face.

There was a little pause, during which Durnovo drank slowly. Then Guy Oscard spoke again.

"If she cooked the dinner," he said, "she knows her business."

"Yes," answered Durnovo, "she is a good cook, if she is nothing else."

It did not sound as if further inquiries would be welcome, and so the subject was dropped with a silent tribute to the culinary powers of Durnovo's housekeeper at the Msala station.

The woman had only appeared for a moment, bringing in some dishes for Joseph—a tall, stately woman, with great dark eyes, in which the patience of motherhood had succeeded to the soft fire of West Indian love and youth. She had the graceful slow carriage of the creole, although her skin was darker than that of those dangerous sirens.

"They call me," she had said to Jack Meredith in her soft, mumbled English a fortnight earlier, "they call me Marie."

The children he had named after his own fantasy, and when she had once seen him with them there was a notable change in her manner. Her eyes rested on him with a sort of wondering attention, and when she cooked his meals or touched anything that was his there was something in her attitude that denoted special care.

Joseph called her "missis," with a sort of friendliness in his voice which never rose to badinage nor descended to familiarity.

The man who had found the simiacine was eager, restless, full of suspicion. To the others the scheme obviously presented itself in a different light. Jack Meredith was dilettante, light hearted and unsatisfactory. It was impossible to arouse any enthusiasm in him, to make him take it seriously. Guy Oscard was gravely indifferent. He wanted to get rid of a certain space of time, and the African forest, containing as it did the only excitement that his large heart knew, was as good a place as any. The simiacine was, in his mind, relegated to a distant place behind weeks of sport and adventure such as his soul loved.

"You men," said Durnovo eagerly, "don't seem to take the thing seriously."

"I," answered Meredith, "intend, at all events, to take the profits very seriously. When they begin to come in, J. Meredith will be at the above address, and trusts by a careful attention to business to merit a continuance of your kind patronage."

Durnovo laughed somewhat nervously. Oscard did not seem to hear.

"It is all very well for you," said the half caste in a lower voice. "You have not so much at stake. It is likely that the happiness of my whole life depends upon this venture."

A curious smile passed across Jack Meredith's face. Without turning his head he glanced sideways into Durnovo's face through the gloom. But he said nothing, and it was Oscard who broke the silence by saying simply:

"The same may possibly apply to me."

There was a little pause, during which he lighted his pipe.

It did not seem to occur to any of them that the only person whose individuality was still veiled happened to be Jack Meredith. He alone had said nothing. He it was who spoke first, after a proper period of silence.

"It seems to me," he said, "that we have all the technicalities arranged now. So far as the working of the expedition is concerned we know our places, and the difficulties will be met as they present themselves. But there is one thing which I think we should set in order now. I have been thinking about it while I have been waiting here alone."

The glow of Victor Durnovo's cigar died away as if in his attention he was forgetting to smoke; but he said nothing.

"It seems to me," Jack went on, "that before we leave here we should draw up and sign a sort of deed of partnership. Of course we trust each other perfectly—there is no question of that. But life is an uncertain thing, as some earlier philosopher said before me; and one never knows what may happen. I have drawn up a paper in triplicate. If you have a match I will read it to you."

Oscard produced a match and, striking it on his boot, sheltered it with the hollow of his hand while Jack read:

"We, the undersigned, hereby enter into partnership to search for and sell to our mutual profit the herb known as simiacine, the profits to be divided into three equal portions, after the deduction of one-hundredth part, to be handed to the servant, Joseph Atkinson. Any further expenses that may be incurred to be borne in the same proportion as the original expense of fitting out the expedition—namely, two-fifths to be paid by Guy Cravener Oscard, two-fifths by John Meredith, one-fifth by Victor Durnovo.

"The sum of £50 per month to be paid to Victor Durnovo, wherewith he may pay the thirty special men taken from his estate and headquarters at Msala to cultivate the simiacine, and such corn and vegetables as may be required for the sustenance of the expedition; these men to act as porters until the plateau be reached.

"The opinion of two of the three leaders against one to be accepted unconditionally in all questions where controversy may arise. In case of death each of us undertakes hereby to hand over to the executor of the dead partner or partners such moneys as shall belong to him or them."

At this juncture there was a little pause while Guy Oscard lighted a second match.

"And," continued Jack, "we hereby undertake severally on oath to hold the secret of the whereabouts of the simiacine a strict secret, which secret may not be revealed by any one of us, to whomsoever it may be, without the sanction, in writing, of the other two partners."

"There," concluded Jack Meredith, "I am rather pleased with that literary production. It is forcible and yet devoid of violence. I feel that in me the commerce of the century has lost an ornament. Moreover, I am ready to swear to the terms of the agreement."

There was a little pause. Guy Oscard took his pipe from his mouth, and while he knocked the ashes out against the leg of his chair he mumbled, "I swear to hold to that agreement."

Victor Durnovo took off his hat with a sweep and a flourish, and, raising his bared brow to the stars, he said: "I swear to hold to that agreement. If I fail, may God strike me dead!"

CHAPTER XI.

THE next morning Jack Meredith was awakened by his servant Joseph before it was fully light.

"Woke you before yer time, sir," he said. "There's something wrong among these 'ere darky fellers, sir."

"Not rebellion?" he said curtly, looking toward his firearms.

"No, sir, not that. It's some mortual sickness. I don't know what it is. I've been up half the night with them. It's spreadin' too."

"Sickness! What does it seem like? Just give me that jacket. Not that sleeping sickness?"

"No, sir. It's not that. Missis Marie was tellin' me about that—awful scourge that, sir. No, the poor chaps are wide awake enough—groanin', and off their heads, too, mostly."

"Call Mr. Durnovo."

"Met Mr. Durnovo, sir, goin' out as I came in."

In a few minutes Jack joined Durnovo and Oscard, who were talking together on the terrace in front of the house. Guy Oscard was still in his pajamas, which he had tucked into topboots. He also wore a sun helmet, which added a finish to his costume. They got quite accustomed to this getup during the next three days, for he never had time to change it, and somehow it ceased to be humorous long before the end of that time.

"Oh, it's nothing," Durnovo was saying, with a singular eagerness. "I know these chaps. They have been paid in advance. They are probably shamming, and if they are not they are only suffering from the effects of a farewell glorification. They want to delay our start. That is their little game. It will give them a better chance of deserting."

"At any rate we had better go and see them," suggested Jack.

"No, don't!" cried Durnovo eagerly, detaining him with both hands. "Take my advice and don't. Just have breakfast in the ordinary way and pretend there is nothing wrong. Then afterward you can lounge casually into the camp."

"All right," said Jack rather unwillingly.

"AVOID FOOLISH QUESTIONS"

Hairbreadth Differences in Creeds and Ceremonies of No Consequence In Contradistinction to the Simple Gospel Faith That Makes Men Wise Unto Salvation—Strife Over Minor Differences of No Benefit.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—In this sermon the preacher shows us how greatly it would conduce to the benefit of the world at large and to human happiness here and hereafter if men would cease to strive and quarrel over Biblical interpretations and hairbreadth differences in creeds and ceremonies and with simple Christian faith unite in fraternal efforts for the common good. The text is Titus iii, 9, "But avoid foolish questions."

Have you a fathom line? Then drop it into the seas. Have you a telescope? Then cleanse its lens and focus it upon the stars. Have you a crowbar? Then with it pry open the hermetically sealed doors of the geological libraries and finger the leaves of rock and read the geneaological histories of the species. Have you a microscope? Then with the bacteriologists roam through the corridors of the infinitesimal and find an aquarium in a drop of water and exquisite beauty in the end of a fly's wing. God would not have placed the wonders of the heavens above us and the wonders of the deep beneath us and the wonders of the land about us if he had not meant us to explore them and to try to make the works of his fingers part of our lives.

You never yet met an intelligent man or woman who was not continually asking questions and striving to understand the unknown. The indisposition to investigate and the unwillingness to attempt the solution of the problems of life about us are always the signs of an intellectual weakling. In the spiritual life, as well as in the political and the mechanical and the philosophical world, the one word which should be most often spoken by the human lips is "Why?" We should be continually asking "Why this?" and "Why that?" and "Why the other thing?" The human mind and soul cannot mark time. The mind must either broaden out or shrivel up. The interrogation point is a golden key with which we should try to unlock the manifold mysteries of the universe.

But there is an intelligent way of pushing that word "Why?" and a very foolish way. There is a way of asking "Why?" which proves to the world that you are sincerely desirous to obtain knowledge. Then there is a way of asking "Why?" which proves to the world that you do not wish to learn, but are moved by curiosity only or by a desire to unsettle fundamental questions. There never was a foreigner who came to America who asked more questions than Li Hung Chang. But the questions which he asked were generally frivolous and to our ideas impertinent. He would ask aged maiden ladies why they never married and how old they were. He would ask people why they wore false teeth. He would ask this question and that and the other question until he made every one around him uncomfortable. Thus some people push that word "Why?" in a most ridiculous way. By the Socratic method they try to argue God and Christ and the Bible out of the minds and hearts of their friends. With the interrogation point they would advertise to the world their transcendental reasoning powers when they are only advertising their transcendental curiosity.

Paul in his epistle to young Titus advises him to beware of such frivolous curiosity. When he tells him to avoid foolish questions he is not circumscribing the intellect of this young man by telling him not to think and not to investigate. He is laying down the broad principle which you and I would do well to heed when he said, "Avoid foolish questions and genealogies and contentions and strivings about the law, for they are unprofitable and vain." In other words, avoid those foolish questions and contentions which have nothing to do with pressing home the great purposes of the gospel. Live only for those divine truths and self evident facts which will draw us nearer and nearer to the cross of Jesus Christ.

Paul is saying, "Titus, my son, study the spirit of the Scripture instead of the letter of the law." We should not be among those Bible students who are spiritually nearsighted and hold their eyes so close to the sacred pages that they can only see a sentence or a word at a time, and they do not realize that some of the passages of Scripture had special and exclusive reference to the times in which they were written and to the geographical conditions of the writers. That would be a very inadequate description of the beauties of Shadyside, which was limited to an architect's specification of the details of the home of the father of American letters. It might be absolutely correct and its measurements unimpeachable, but we should miss the spirit and the tender associations of the place that would make us feel that we saw it as Irving saw it. And yet some men seem to school themselves against studying the spirit of the Bible. They read merely the letter of the book. By reading the letter only they lose the true purposes for which the Bible was given as a guide to us through this world to the other.

This fact was conspicuously illustrated in the persecution of the physicist and astronomer, Galilei. You are familiar with the story of his life. He was not the first inventor of the telescope, but he was without doubt the first intelligent user of it. He focused his eyes upon the heavens and began to follow the movements of the heavenly bodies. He went on in his investigations until at last he found out that the earth moved around the sun. "Absurd! Absurd!" cried the Church of Rome. "The earth does not move about the sun; the sun moves around the earth. Does not the Bible tell us that Joshua halted the sun above Gideon and the moon in the valley of Ajalon? Away with the heretic! Away, away!" Then the so called literalist priests placed the heavy hand of the law upon Galilei and would have tortured him to death had he not signed this humiliating recantation: "With a sincere heart and unfeigned faith I abjure, curse and detest the said errors and heresies (viz, that the earth moves, etc.). I swear that I will never in the future say or assert anything verbally or in writing which may give rise to a similar suspicion against me. I, Galilei, have abjured as above with my own hand."

The same bigoted stupidity of the mediaeval church we can find in the church of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The scientists went on in their investigations, and they proved that this old planet was not created 5,000 or 6,000 years ago. It has been developing during thousands upon thousands and hundreds of thousands of years. The Bible, by the way, does not fix a date for the creation. It merely says, "In the beginning." (The dates on the margin are those of Archbishop Ussher, who lived in the sixteenth century A. D.) The geologists went on in their investigations and found eras and epochs and ages, perhaps a million years apart. Not only did science prove the immense age of the earth, but that the development was a slow process of ages. They brought these facts to the church and said, "Come and see and study." The church threw up its hands in horror. "What will become of our Bibles if you prove those statements true?" they exclaimed. "Does not the Bible declare that God made the earth and the heavens in six days? No more and no less." "But," said the scientific theologians, "perhaps the 'day' of God's creation meant an era, not a day of twenty-four hours." "Absurd!" cried the church. "Absurd! A day means a day of twenty-four hours and nothing else." So the church fought the investigations of science. They fought them on and fought them on. The theologians said to the church members, "If you believe this heresy you are not a Christian." The result was the church continued to read the first chapter of Genesis as literal history until it made itself absolutely ridiculous. They overlooked the essential fact that the "day" of the creation is not a day of twenty-four hours. "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day" (II Peter iii, 8).

Now, there is the same disposition to-day as there was in the mediaeval church and in the church of the nineteenth century. Some church members to-day are trying to stir up internal strife by reading the letter of the Bible instead of the spirit of the Bible. They are trying to take certain Bible passages and twist them out of all semblance of their true meaning. They do this with the assumed air of great spiritual erudition and gospel sanctity. When they quote these passages, they look at us in a very condescending way, as much as to say: "Have you not forgotten such and such a passage? Do you not wish you knew as much about the Bible as I do?"

We should read the spirit of the Bible. More than that, we should never try to solve the unsolvable mysteries of God and his work, which can never be solved this side of the grave. Now, it is a wise man who is willing to recognize the fact that there are certain limitations to his mental and spiritual faculties. It is a wise man who is willing to confess that there are certain things he does not know and never will be able to know this side of heaven. When you and I come to that glorious condition of mind and soul, we shall open our minds and hearts to the full enjoyment of the gospel life. And, my brother, I never want you to sit at the feet of any religious teacher unless he is first willing to confess that in his gospel investigations there are certain mysteries so high that he can never scale them, so deep that he can never fathom them, so wide that he can never cross them.

We come to our pastors and friends and ask just the same kind of foolish questions that the disciples asked Christ of old. We come to Christ, for instance, and ask: "Jesus, here is a man who has been married two or three times on earth. When he gets to heaven, is that man going to be a Mormon and have two or three wives?" Then we begin to make flippant remarks about how a man is going to get along in heaven with two or three wives. You know this is the question which the Sadducees propounded to Jesus himself. Or we begin to try to solve the resurrection of the physical body, or we go into a long and elaborate study of where Christ spent his time between the crucifixion and the resurrection, or we try to solve the mystery of the Trinity. And instead of going ahead in a brave, noble Christian way, doing the work which God gives us to do and accepting the atonement of the cross, we fritter away our gospel peace and usefulness by asking impossible questions and in trying to solve impossible mysteries. Now, my friend, why cannot you follow the advice of Paul? Why do you not concentrate all your faith on Jesus Christ? Why not accept him at his word and go forth and work in God's vineyard? Is there today any doubt or mystery in your mind which can outweigh the infinite fact that Jesus was born the Son of God, that he died to save you and me, that he will pardon all our sins and that in him we may have everlasting life?

But, if the great mysteries of the Bible should not separate us from the love of God, why should the great divine mysteries keep one Christian church from working in gospel fellowship with other Christian churches? Because one Christian church puts special emphasis upon one of God's attributes in its creed or practice is that any reason why other Christian churches which lay stress on another of God's attributes should not affiliate with that body of Christians or cooperate with it? Because one gospel church loves to sing the old psalms and another loves to use a liturgy and another church loves to put emphasis upon immersion and another church makes the sermon the chief part of its service is it any reason why all these Christian churches should not be united in working for the same master and for salvation by the same divine blood?

When you look over the ecclesiastical history of the world you will notice one striking fact—the church is apt to degenerate when it becomes prosperous. After the crucifixion came the dark days of persecution. But the growls of the wild beasts, while crunching the bloody bones of the Christians in the Roman coliseum, only welded that Christian church closer together. The fires of persecution only purified it. The Christian church began to grow. Its foundations became stronger. As the early church grew it was not only able to resist and drive back its persecutors, but it became stronger and stronger until at last it was able to lay claim upon the temporal as well as the spiritual life of the nations. Then the Catholic pope became the acknowledged spiritual ruler of the world. Then what happened? As the Roman Catholic church financially prospered did it spiritually prosper? Nay. The Vatican became a cesspool of sin. The Bible was a closed book. The torture chamber was the holy of holies. Flagrant sin was everywhere in the church. Then came the divine mission of a new church.

The reformation came to its birth. Martin Luther led the fight in Germany, John Knox in Scotland and John Wyclif in England. The grasp of the pope was shaken off, but soon in the English church came laxity and indifference. Another reformation was needed, and John Wesley and George Whitefield began to preach, and Methodism and Congregationalism began their mighty work. Still later William Booth has stirred the stagnant waters with his Salvation Army. So as the need has arisen God has unfailingly raised up men to do his work.

Wherever the churches, growing in numbers and in financial strength and power have drifted from God and turned their Master's temples into places of merchandise, wherever their preachers have become unlike the humble Nazarene, then there have come a spiritual rebirth and a new church. And to this new church, this humble church, has fallen the task of spiritually leavening the old churches of the world. And, my friends, if you do not believe that what I say is true I would like you to answer me one question. If Jesus Christ were to come upon earth to-day, where do you believe the lowly Nazarene would prefer to preach—in the gorgeous Vatican of a pope, with his spotless robes, in the chancel of a great cathedral and be paid the $75,000 a year as its archbishop, or in some fashionable Protestant church whose wealthy members sometimes sit stolidly indifferent to the great sufferings of mankind? Or do you believe Jesus would feel most at home as a street preacher, working with the humblest workers in the slums? There can be but one answer. There is but one self evident reply.

Thus I have tried to show you that you have only one spiritual duty in life. You are here and now to grasp the great doctrine of Jesus' love. Cease from sectarian differences, stop frittering away your time and go to work in his dear name. We can all be one in unity for the cross. I remember many years ago, when in our seminary we were discussing the sacraments, I said to our professor: "Doctor, you say that we must use wine and bread at the Lord's supper. Suppose I were on an Arctic expedition. Supposing we were caught amid the icebergs and in all probability were about to die; supposing I wanted to have the communion of the Lord's supper with the men of the ship, and supposing the only food we had left was some hard tack and some soup, could I use the soup for the wine and the hard tack for the bread?" The professor looked at me a moment in surprise. Then he said: "Under such a condition the soup would be as acceptable to God as the wine and the hard tack as the bread. It is not the wine and the bread that we lift to the lips which make us consecrated to the Saviour, but the spirit of the yielding of our own hearts to his divine will."

The old professor was right. It is not by ecclesiastical formulas that you and I are going to come to the cross, but only by consecrating our lives to Christ's will. Friends, you may have been quibbling in the past. You may have been switching yourself off from the main spiritual issue. Do you believe that Jesus is divine? Do you believe that he died to save you? Will you accept his offer of salvation? Will you here and now consecrate your life to save men and women by Christ's blood from sin and death and hell? "Yea, yea!" you answer. Then pledge yourselves to him. Having given yourselves to him and his cause, join with brethren of any name in work for him and, following the apostle's advice, preach Christ crucified and avoid "foolish questions."

The King's Kind Words.

Few testimonials could be more worthy of treasuring than the following letter which Sir William Treloar, Lord Mayor of London, has just received from King Edward VII.:

"My dear Lord Mayor,—I am commanded by the King and Queen to let you know with what interest their Majesties have read the appeal you are making to the public on behalf of the poor crippled children of the metropolis, and to assure you that their Majesties most heartily and sincerely wish all success to your philanthropic endeavor to relieve these poor, suffering children.

"I have now the pleasure to enclose two cheques for one hundred guineas each as donations from their Majesties towards the fund being raised for this most worthy object. Their Majesties authorize me to say they cannot conceive any method better calculated to assist in "rescuing from crippledom" a large portion of these poor little sufferers than the establishment on a firm and sound basis of such an institution as is contemplated in the scheme which you have laid before the British public."

THE SERVICE OF THE MEDICAL MISSIONARY.

The first medical mission is said to have been conducted by a Dutch physician in the East Indias from 1624 to 1638. The growth of the movement was very slow and it was not till the latter part of the nineteenth century that it became important. Livingstone's many years of gentle ministration to the sick, and Arnot's journey over half of tropical Africa with nothing to pay his way excepting his box of medicines, did much to call attention to the value of medical practice as a beneficent feature of missionary service. For 30 years this new phase of the work has grown by leaps and bounds till it is found in every corner of the earth covered by the mission field.

The latest statistics of the evangelical societies show that there are now 400 hospitals, besides many dispensaries, with nearly 800 medical missionaries, of whom 250 are women; and in the hospitals, dispensaries, polyclinics, and native houses an average of about 2,300,000 patients are annually treated. This does not include the Roman Catholics, who make a large feature of medical missions.

No words could exaggerate the usefulness and success of this work. The missionary physician is eagerly welcomed in every land. His influence is far-reaching, for he carries the best gifts of medical science to neglected, he revolutionizes native practice, and he supplants the terrors of the barbarous quack. It is, under the law, a misdemeanor to practice the arts of the fetich doctor in the Congo Free State and Rhodesia, but the medical missionary is doing more than the law to destroy baleful superstitions that have held millions in degrading bondage.

Even in advanced countries like India, where there are many native physicians schooled in western therapeutics, the medical service is woefully inadequate to the need. The most competent Indian doctors and surgeons have more work than they can do at high rates. The poor must suffer; but everywhere the widest blessings of the medical missions fall upon the poor. The latest Africa book, "Uganda to Kartoum," has a photograph of about a hundred patients waiting their turn as a single physician treats their cases. There is need for good surgeons as well as good doctors, and women physicians are especially important. In India there are 50,000,000 women who are practically cut off from the outside world, and the women practitioners who may go among them are still too few. They are training hundreds of native women nurses every year, but the need far exceeds the supply.

The missionary finds everywhere that his medical service greatly promotes all phases of his work. It gives him the best of opportunities for his special calling; and a cured patient often brings not only his family, but also his whole village to the mission.—From "The Civilizing Work of Modern Christian Missions," by Cyrus C. Adams, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

Come Join Me In This Honest Way To Make a Mine

A startling fair proposition--
A square and open offer--
A plan by which we can all make money
Be sure to read this line by line.

I have a unique proposition to make to every investor in mining shares, an offer—to which no one, not even the severest critic of mining ventures as a legitimate investment—can find a solitary objection. In sum and substance to state my offer briefly and explain later at length the details. My offer is as follows:

I have some splendid mining properties in a virgin territory, with a proven history. It is filled with precious metals. I did not take these properties up upon hearsay evidence or the ebulent optimism of "tenderfeet," but I dug into my pocket to pay the best known mining experts to hit the trail and give me a complete and exhaustive report on exactly just what they found, and I want to say in all sincerity—man to man—that if I had $200,000 in cash to-day, I would, without hesitation, put it into my properties, for I know as far as human judgment can tell a good property from a bad—that I have something, when it is developed into a mine, that it will pay much more than $200,000 a month in dividends—and I have enough acreage to make a dozen such mines if Nature has been as generous in distributing from her treasure trove of precious metals her wealth to all my ground, as she has given visible indication on the claims I am now going to develop. It has taken all my ready money to secure these claims, to do the legal assessment work, to satisfy myself through expert mining knowledge I own something very, very valuable, but I need money now to promote the sale of stock enough to equip the mines with machinery, to dig out the ore and block out the dimensions of mineral wealth, so that it merely becomes a simple process of bookkeeping to figure just what wealth can be counted on and to do the things necessary to successful promotion and operation in the usual and regular way to the ultimate end of creating a great and profitable mine. Unlike the average promoter, I am not going to ask the investor to take all the risk, but to join me on a basis of an honest mining promoter, who will share fairly the profits that arise from such a lucky strike as I feel confident I have made. It is going to cost me about $125,000 to equip the properties and to properly develop the ground. To raise this money among you mining investors, I am going to make you a proposition that was never made before to mining stock investors. With this end in view, I am going to sell my stock at $1.00 a share, the par value, but will only ask you to pay one-fourth of this amount and to give me an agreement to pay the balance the moment the first dividend check is received or as soon as such dividends amount to the deferred payment. But in the meantime, there will be many opportunities to sell your contracts for this stock will be listed on stock exchanges as soon as stock enough to complete development is sold. And among those on the ground at Goldfield there will be large enough demand for the stock as soon as it leaks out what valuable ore bodies we own. But if you will take my advice you will hang on to your stock—it may go to $8.00 and $10.00 a share, for investors in Goldfield have the chronic habit of buying stocks when they are at the lowest and not at the highest price. The stock of the Mohawk mine went from $1.00 to $21.00 on the Goldfield stock exchange in five months in 1906. The money that you invest, mind you, does not go to purchase properties, but to put a valuable property on a producing basis. It does not go into waste and speculation, but into machinery, management and facilities to grind out dividends for you. How else, might I ask in all candidness, can I place my proposition before you in such a square and attractive way.

Any one of you who has $1,000 it will pay you immensely to jump on the first train for Goldfield. I will take you to the properties. You can bring your own mining expert. You will go back filled with desire to get all your friends into this great money-making mining opportunity. I am not a philanthropist, but I need outside capital and I am going about it in the most quick and honest way to get it. To make my stake of a few millions, I am willing to let those who join me make theirs with me. I also want to tell you with perfect frankness that I would not take $200,000 cash for the property as it stands to-day. I have been long enough in Nevada to know I would be making the biggest mistake of my life in doing so. Now I want to tell you something very interesting about the virgin territory, with its centuries of stored wealth, where my property is located and why it has not been opened up before.

My properties are in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation, which only a few weeks ago was opened by President Roosevelt's proclamation to the white man for mineral location. We all in Goldfield were aware of the rich mineral wealth of this territory and it was only a question who got on the ground first. My men, able prospectors and mining engineers, alert and watchful, were most fortunate and sequestered for me the richest claims in the entire territory. While Southern Nevada has astounded the world with the vast richness of its mineral wealth, it is only the beginning of its history. My properties and others in the Walker Lake Indian Reservation will add another chapter to the immense riches that Nevada will add to the nation's store house of wealth. And many a man in middle circumstances who has now the courage to risk a few hundred or a few thousand, will lay the ground work to a life of opulence later on, and not so far away at that—as it takes months in Nevada to put a mine on a paying basis, where it takes years in Cripple Creek and other well-known mining camps.

The Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Co. is incorporated for 1,000,000 shares, $1,000,000 par value, with 500,000 shares in company's treasury. The stock is full paid and forever non-assessable without personal liability of any kind.

ENGINEER'S REPORT ON THE PROPERTY.

The property of the Walker Lake Indian Reservation Mining Company consists of three quartz mining claims, known respectively as the "Bullfrog Dutchman," "Rhyolite Dutchman," and "Comstock Dutchman," together with 160 acres of placer land known as the "Nome Beach Group," with which is held a Nome Beach water right, all located on October 29th, 1906, the day of opening the Walker Lake Indian Reservation.

The three quartz claims referred to are situated about two miles west from the shore of Walker Lake and undoubtedly form an extension of the famous Dutchman mine, being in the same mineral belt and extending in a direct line therefrom. Two of them, the Bullfrog Dutchman and the Comstock Dutchman, are located upon an immense dyke, heavily mineralized, giving small assays in gold and silver and showing abundant evidences of the existence of copper in great amounts. Specimens of copper ore taken from this dyke will yield from ten to twenty per cent. copper, and this but a few feet below the surface, and that development to depth will demonstrate the existence of large bodies of rich copper ore, is the belief of competent mining men who are acquainted with the property.

The Rhyolite Dutchman crosses the centre of the Bullfrog Dutchman at almost a right angle and on this claim is found a quartz vein of at least fifty feet in width, which upon the surface yields pannings of free gold, indicating belief that with development it shall prove a profitable milling proposition for gold.

In general it may be said that these claims are located on the contact between porphyry and granite and of the permanence and continuity of the veins there can be no doubt.

Timber for mining purposes is abundantly supplied by the dense growth of pinon, which covers not alone these three claims, but the entire mountain sides for miles in all directionns. Water for mining purposes, as well as domestic use, will be supplied by the Nome Beach water right controlled by this company.

Transportation for ores from the mines to the millsites will be provided first by pack trains, later by aerial tramways leading from the mine to the shores of Lake Walker.

In fact, here, there seems to be every advantage and facility for economical driving.

The Nome Beach Group of Placer Claims consists of one hundred and sixty acres, situated upon the west shore of Walker Lake, at the mouth of Nome Canyon, immediately below the mine and distant about one mile south from Dutch Creek. Sufficient placer gold has been found on this group to warrant the opinion that portions of it can be profitably mined by ground sluicing or hydraulic methods, other portions of this group are ideal for townsites and as the location of the property is admirably situated with reference to the largest known mines of the Walker Lake District, it seems reasonable to presume that a town of considerable proportions will soon be built here. That this locality will be in demand for millsites and reduction works for handling of ores from the various mines in Dutch Creek, seems assured for the reason that transportation from the mines to this point is easier than would be the case anywhere else. Another advantage is the fact that the Nome Beach water right, located about a mile and a half up Nome Canyon will supply a great deal of power as well as pure drinking water, because a pipe line can be easily constructed leading from the springs down the mountains to the Lake Shores and there utilized to operate pumps or electrical machinery by means of which the power for all purposes can be generated.

CHAS. M. TAYLOR, Mining Engineer.

Now don't ponder—don't hesitate—don't think I am going to sell you a goldbrick—for I am merely asking you if you want to make money in mining to join me and do it on a basis as every successful miner does. By that is by raising just enough money to get out the first ore and then leave it to the ore reserves to supply the money to run the mine and pay the profits. Just as soon as the first car load of ore is shipped, and even before when it becomes known that we have a valuable property, an eager demand for this stock will arise on all the mining exchanges which will carry this stock way beyond a dollar a share and enable you, who now pay 25 cents a share, to be able to sell your options at a big profit even over the 75 cents a share you agree to pay upon receipt of your first dividend—all profit in itself—as you do not have to pay another cent should you want to cash in your profit.

As I do not need all the money at once, if it is more convenient to you, split it up in four equal monthly instalments. Man to man, I want to tell you in conclusion that I am interesting my friends and relatives in this enterprise, and they are coming in on no different terms than you yourself are getting.

I want you to write me at once just how much you are able to invest, or better; I urgently suggest you make your reservations by wire at my expense for as many shares as you can take. I will withdraw this offer as soon as the necessary money is subscribed.

20 per cent. Discount On All Winter Overcoats

The Quick & Robertson principle: "Every dollar's worth of goods must be sold during the season for which it was bought." It means heroic methods, extraordinary sacrifices, especially when stocks are unusually large, but we never flinch from the emergency, the principle is never departed from.

20 per cent. off Winter Overcoats

Every garment in the collection is a masterpiece of clothescraft, every style, every fabric and weave so new and staple that they will be found the best of good form next season, and in spite of the fact that the most of the winter is yet to come, they go at this remarkable sacrifice of value, simply because we never "carry over."

Lithgow and Black Wanted In Watertown

AND WERE TAKEN TO THAT PLACE YESTERDAY, CHARGED WITH ROBBERY — THEY ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN IMPLICATED IN THE BURGLARIES HERE.

Chief Newton received a communication this morning conveying the information that Black and Lithgow, the two young men lately arrested in Brockville, had been taken to Watertown, N. Y.

The pair, in company with two other companions, were in this city at the time the Hurley and Ackerman residences were burglarized. It has been learned that they left here on Tuesday, the 15th inst., which was two days after the burglaries. Upon one of the parties was found a handkerchief with the letter "H." stamped upon it. Mr. Ackerman had handkerchiefs with such an initial stamp upon them, and it seems probable that the handkerchief is his property, although it would appear to be somewhat difficult to prove. This is owing to the fact that initial handkerchiefs are quite common.

The general opinion is that Black and Lithgow, if they were not the parties who committed the burglaries here, were companions of those who did commit the act. Everything possible is being done to find the missing articles and to bring home their guilt to the offenders.

The Brockville Times has this to say about Messrs. Black and Lithgow;

"The two boys, John Black and Thos. Lithgow, of Belleville, arrested here last Friday evening with a quantity of silverware, opera glasses, etc., in their possession, were turned over to-day to Sergt. Alfred S. Wood, of the Watertown, N. Y. police force, who came here last evening after reading a description of the loot published in last Saturday's Brockville Times.

"The boys, it will be remembered, disposed of half a dozen silver souvenir spoons to A. W. Hayes, the Perth street jeweller, previous to their arrest and upon being searched other valuables were found in their possession. Chief Burke since learned that the prisoners made their headquarters at the Commercial Hotel, where they were alloted a room in which a trunk belonging to W. H. Mosher was placed. Mosher happened to be away from town and upon returning yesterday discovered that his trunk had been broken into and two pairs of socks and a pair of gold cuff links stolen. These were found on the prisoners. Upon being arraigned in the police court this morning they pleaded guilty to these charges and were allowed to go on suspended sentence. Black was also charged with carrying a loaded revolver and fined $10 and costs, payment being suspended. This action was taken in order that the Watertown officer might have the custody of the prisoners. It appears that on Jan. 18th, the residences of Chas. Strong and D. G. Foster of that city were burglarized and a quantity of jewellery, silverware, etc., stolen. A nail fyle, bearing the initials "D.G.F.," and a spoon with the name "Kathryn," inscribed, found on Black and Lithgow, were identified by Wood as a portion of the booty, showing that the boys had paid a visit to the Garland City before coming to Brockville. They waived extradition proceedings and crossed at noon to Morriston with Sergt. Wood."

Conditions At the Local Post Office.

MR. PORTER, M. P., ASKS SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO IT — ANSWERS ARE ASTONISHING.

"Hansard" of the 24th inst. contained the following in regard to the local post office:

Mr. Porter asked,

1. Have any complaints been made to or received by the Post Office Department as to the service of the Belleville post office? If so, what was the nature of such complaints, and when were they made?

2. Had any inquiry been made, and if so, when, by the Post Office Department to ascertain the state of the service of Belleville post office, and with what result?

3. Has the rank of Belleville post office been reduced? If so, what was the reason therefor, and does the same reason continue?

4. If the status of the said post office has been reduced, has the department considered the advisability of reinstating it to its former status? If so, with what result?

5. What is the revenue of this office, and what is the cost of maintenance of the same?

6. Does the department require any, and if so, what qualification for clerks employed in this office?

7. How many persons are employed in this office, in addition to the postmaster, and what are their names, ages, and salaries?

8. Is the postmaster expected to do any, and if so, what part of the work of the office, or simply to act in the capacity of superintendent?

9. Have any, and if so, how many, registered letters been reported as gone astray, lost, or delivered to the wrong person in this office?

10. How many letters from this office have been returned to the Dead Letter Department within the last two years, for the causes 'not called for,' 'address not known,' 'removed' or 'insufficient address?'

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux (Postmaster General);

1 and 2. No complaints of any kind affecting the management of the Belleville post office have been made during the last two years. Several cases of delay in the delivery of correspondence were reported to the department, but the explanations in the majority of them were satisfactory. In two of the cases, however, certain employees were found to have been careless and fines were imposed.

3. There has been no change in the status of this office since 1897.

4. The department has not considered the advisability of restoring the office to its former status.

5. Revenue, $18,324.99. Cost of maintenance, $4,255.78.

6. Yes, clerks on appointment must be under 30 years of age and well enough educated to perform such duties as may be required of them.

7. There are in addition to the postmaster seven persons employed in the office. Their names, ages and salaries are as follows;

Name.	Age.	Salary.
A. Gillen	45	$800
J. V. Trulasch	26	560
E. A. LaRoche	23	450
F. B. Vermilyea	56	365
C. M. Stork	18	300
E. Lang	27	300
K. Denike, Not yet reported		300
G. Foucher, Not yet reported		300

8. The postmaster is expected to exercise a general supervision over the work of the office and take such part in the duties as may be necessary with due regard to the satisfactory performance of the work. A circular was issued by the department some time ago insisting on these points being observed by the postmasters.

9. There are no records in the department that any registered letters have gone astray, been lost or misdelivered in the Belleville post office in the last two years.

10. 6,056 letters have been sent in to the Dead Letter Office from the Belleville post office within the last two years for these causes.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE ODDFELLOWS' CONCERT.

If, as the old saying has it, "a good laugh is better than medicine," those who attended the Oddfellows' concert in the opera house last night must be feeling pretty well to-day, for assuredly there were laughs galore at the entertainment in question. Four "funny" men, all stars, and one of the best string players in America—the Oddfellows certainly tried to give their patrons the best there was going. And they succeeded to the King's taste. Some people, truth to tell, thought there was rather too much comedy; a few sentimental lyrics mixed in, they thought, would have balanced things up a little better, but, be that as it may, the programme provided seemed to please the very large majority of those present "right down to the ground." The house was packed. All last night's performers have been seen in this city several times before, and every man of them added to his laurels last night. They sang songs and told stories in their own inimitable way, and were quite generous with encores. Our former local favorite, Mr. Geo. E. Fax, on his first appearance, got an exceedingly warm welcome. Nobody suits Belleville better than he. C. Leroy Kenney was as good as ever in his songs, monologue and sketch work. J. H. Cameron sings and tells funny stories in the same old way that has made him famous all over Ontario, and Bert Harvey showed that it is possible for comic singers to have good voices. In that respect he has the start of many of his contemporaries. Mr. Smedley played the banjo and kindred instruments in a way which showed him to be a master; especially enjoyable was his banjo solo. Miss Lulu Chalaupka showed herself to be a princess among accompanists. The I.O.O.F. band opened the programme with a selection. Taken altogether, the entertainment was a huge success, and, as it was announced as an annual affair, people will surely be eagerly looking forward to it next season.

"A THOROUGHBRED TRAMP" TO-MORROW NIGHT.

One of the features in Elmer Walters' Colorado play, "A Thoroughbred Tramp," and it is said to have many this season, is the great railroad scene, coupled with the wonderful storm effect shown during the action of the third act when streaks of lightning, roaring thunder and a wind storm help to excite the audience as the express train dashes past apparently in danger of encountering a land slide in the mountains. The scenic feature of "A Thoroughbred Tramp" have been so embellished this season as to almost make the play new to theatre-goers. At the Carman to-morrow night.

MARKS BROS. COMING.

The Daily Forum of Jan. 23 of Malone, N.Y., has the following to say of Marks Bros., who open a week's engagement here on Monday next: Marks Bros.' No. A-1 Company opened a week's engagement at the opera house Monday evening with the four act drama, "The Ragged Princess." The play was a good one and held the attention of as large an audience as ever was in the opera house from the rising of the first curtain to the falling of the last. The company is made up of many clever artists, and the specialties are also good, especially the sacred pictures, and the work of Jesse and Beatrice Sours, contortionists.

Caniffton Lady Is Safe In Jamaica.

MISS MAUD WATTS IS NOW CAMPING WITH FRIENDS ON THE RACE COURSE AT KINGSTON, HER DWELLING PLACE HAVING BEEN DESTROYED.

Mrs. Watts, of Caniffton, received a letter to-day from her daughter, Miss Maud Watts, who has been in Kingston, Jamaica, as book-keeper with a wholesale provision firm for some two years. The letter was written since the earthquake, and states that she is safe and well. The place of business and the house in which she boarded were both destroyed, and Miss Watts is now camping with friends on the race course.

Former Rector Of St. Thomas' Dead

REV. CANON BURKE PASSED AWAY AT CARLETON PLACE LAST NIGHT.

Regret was expressed on every hand this morning when it became known that Rev. Joseph W. Burke, Canon of the Diocese of Ontario, and for many years rector of Belleville, had died last night in Carleton Place, where he had been living with his daughter and son-in-law, Rev, Archibald Elliott.

The cause of death was jaundice.

The deceased gentleman was in his 83rd year. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, and was a graduate in arts of famous Trinity College, Dublin.

He was for 28 years rector of St. Thomas' Church, this city, and in the early part of 1902 retired from that position. The present incumbent, Rev. Rural Dean Beamish, assumed the office on the first Sunday in August of the same year.

Rev. Canon Burke was beloved by all who knew him, no matter to what communion they owed allegiance, and his memory will always be cherished in this city.

After resigning from the rectorship of St. Thomas' the deceased gentleman took up his residence at Carleton Place with his daughter and son-in-law.

The remains will arrive in this city to-morrow at 5 p.m., and will be taken to St. Thomas' Church, where they will lie till 2 o'clock the next afternoon, when services will be held and the funeral take place. There will also be communion service at 8 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Whilst in this city Rev. Canon Burke took an active interest in educational matters. In the year 1875 he was appointed by the City Council a High School Trustee. He remained a member of the Board until June, 1902, when he resigned owing to removal from the city. In the year 1899 he was chairman of the Board and if he had desired could have had the position for a longer period. In 1879 he was chairman of the Committee on High and Public Schools. Whilst a member of the Board the Rev. gentleman took a deep interest in all matters appertaining to the welfare of the children and was always a most welcome visitor to the schools. The Board accepted his resignation with deep regret and placed upon the record its appreciation of his valued services.

FOR A TWO-CENT RATE

Mr. Borden Seeks Information by Resolution in Commons.

Many Members Support the Declaration That the Country Is Demanding Lower Rates On the Railways —An Important Letter From the Chairman of the Railway Commissioners to the Premier Read In the House.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—In the House yesterday a resolution was offered by R. L. Borden to the effect that the railroad board should at once investigate and report upon the advisability of reducing railroad passenger fares to two cents a mile.

W. F. Maclean (South York) said that as a matter of principle and universal practice it must be conceded that the fixing of a maximum passenger rate for the country was a legislative matter—a question of policy—to be determined by Parliament.

Mr. Emmerson, on behalf of the Government, refused to accept Mr. Borden's resolution.

Mr. Borden summed up for and against the Maclean two-cent bill. Personally he would not attempt to decide. His resolution was one of enquiry.

Mr. Emmerson, on behalf of the Government, claimed that the railway commission were considering the question of railway fares, and read a very lengthy letter from Judge Killam chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, to the Premier, as follows:

Judge Killam On Railway Rates.

"It has always been my idea, since I joined the board and became conversant with the system and circumstances, that as soon as possible the board should make full enquiry for the purpose of enabling it to judge whether the maximum rates thus arrived at are too high. The subject is a very difficult one. No principle has yet been established for the determination of such a question. In parts of the United States it has been attempted to be solved by a valuation of the railway property, based upon an estimate of the cost of reproduction, and by an estimate of the reasonable returns to be allowed, over and above the cost of operation and maintenance and other necessary expenses. The board of railway commissioners for Kentucky have recently established a set of rates for traffic within the state upon that basis. In the State of Washington they now have a valuation made of the railway property for a similar purpose, and an eminent engineer has been employed on high salary to do the work.

"It is one which, up to the present time, the board staff has not been able to undertake. The work involved in the proposed investigation of the affairs of telephone and express companies will be considerable; but it will be very little as compared with a similar work in regard to railway companies and their properties.

C. P. R. and C. N. R. Modify Rates.

"Recently, applications were made to the board by the C. P. R. Co. and the Canadian Northern Railway Co. for approval of standard passenger tariffs for new lines in the Province of Ontario at rates of three and one-third cents per mile, and in respect of these the board laid down the principle that it would not approve of such tariffs at higher rates than three cents per mile in the well-settled portions of Eastern Canada, and these tariffs have been modified accordingly.

"The C. P. R. Co. has also recently applied to the board for the approval of standard tariffs for some of its branch lines in the northwest provinces at rates of four cents per mile, but the board refused to approve of higher rates than three and one-half cents per mile for those lines, announcing as its opinion that the time had not yet come when it could properly insist upon the rates in the northwest being reduced to the level of those in Eastern Canada.

C. P. R. Reduces Rates.

"The result has been that, after some conference between the traffic officer of the board and the traffic officials of the C. P. R. Co., the company has agreed to reduce all its standard passenger tariffs on the Calgary & Edmonton Railway, and lines east thereof in the Province of Alberta, to the rate of three and one-half cents per mile after Dec. 1 next, and the board has approved of the rate of four cents per mile only until that date.

"The interval has been allowed for completing the necessary details. The board has not felt that without careful enquiry it was warranted in going farther than this. It appears to me that the question of extensive reductions in passenger rates cannot well be taken up by itself.

A Difficult Task.

"If it be ascertained that railway companies are charging rates which afford them greater profits than they should reasonably be allowed to receive, it will be important to determine whether the reduction should be made upon passenger traffic or upon freight traffic, or upon both. If they are not receiving greater profits than they should have, then any reduction in their net earnings from passenger traffic should be made up by the allowance of an increase in such earnings from freight traffic.

"The members of the board have not now at their command such information as would enable them reasonably to determine whether railway earnings are greater than they should be, or if they are, from what portions of their traffic reductions in rates should be made.

Official Overworked.

"The traffic officer of the board is the official upon whom the board relies for procuring the necessary information, and for advising it upon all questions of rates. That official is now overworked.

"The addition of telephone and express companies to the jurisdiction of the board has already added considerably to the work of his department, and particularly with the work with which he has personally to deal. Upon him the board has had to rely for the settling of details necessary for the new system. I have suggested to him that he should endeavor to ascertain whether a reliable assistant for himself can be obtained. He informs me that the demand for men of a high class in the railway companies' traffic departments is so great that it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to obtain the services of such an assistant at the present time.

Report On Two-Cent Fares.

"It appears to be probable that Parliament or the railway commission of the House of Commons will be asked to require the board to report upon the question of reducing standard passenger tariff rates to two cents per mile. I desire to urge that the board should not be required to report upon this question within any limited time, or during the present session of Parliament.

"We will soon have to decide upon the telephone and express companies' tariffs. We have many important questions, which will, according to our program, be taken into consideration in the near future. We have much pressing current business. I do not think that it would be possible for us to decide in a brief period of time, with satisfaction either to ourselves or to Parliament or to the country, upon the important question of the reduction of passenger tolls generally.

What Railways Claim.

"Our traffic officer has already, on his own responsibility, and without the instructions of the board, suggested to the general passenger agents of the C. P. R. Co. and the G. T. R. Co. that they should lower to the rate of three cents per mile all the passenger tariffs in Eastern Canada which provide for higher rate, but they object to this, claiming that their average rates at the present time are about two cents per mile, and at the request of the officer, they have promised to submit statements in support of their contention.

"If left to consider the matter in our own way, it is not unlikely that we will see our way to procuring the reductions to two cents per mile.

Asks For Time.

"I would therefore respectfully urge that the Government should not at the present time countenance the proposal to refer to the board the question of reducing the limits, as proposed by Mr. Maclean's bill, but that the whole matter should be left at large, at least until the next session of Parliament, and the board left, in the meantime, to exercise its discretion, unfettered by any order or reference."

A spirited debate, in which many members participated, many supporting the resolution, but the vote was not reached as under the new rule the House automatically adjourned at 6 o'clock.

IN THE SENATE.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The Deputy Governor, Justice Girouard, attended at the Senate Chamber yesterday and gave assent to the following acts: A certain treaty between Canada and Japan, to amend the Naturalization Act, to amend the acts respecting commercial treaties affecting Canada, respecting the revised statutes of 1906.

Senator McMullen moved the following resolution: "In the evidence given by Mr. Eldridge in Mutual Reserve Life investigation, recently held in New York, he stated that it had cost the company $29,977.66 to get the investigation through the Senate and Commons of Canada in 1904. I shall move that the company be required to furnish names and detailed statements of the amount paid, if any, to Senators or members of Parliament in Canada, or to the respective firms to which they belong, in connection with the said investigation, and copies of all cheques and receipts given therefor."

The debate on the resolution was not concluded.

Pullman Co. Indicted.

McINTOSH BROS.

VOTE ON FEB. 20.

Date of the West Middlesex Bye-Election Set—Mr. Hoyle Gets Order For an Important Return.

Toronto, Jan. 31.—W. H. Hoyle, M. P. P., got an order of the Legislature yesterday for a return giving certain information about the Toronto Electric Light Co., Ltd.

West Middlesex Election.

Feb 13 is the date for nominations in West Middlesex and Feb. 20 for the election, Stephen Blackwood is the returning officer. This was announced after the adjournment of the House, in which a resolution was adopted declaring the seat vacant and ordering a writ to issue forthwith.

Mr. Speaker read a notification he had received based on an announcement in The Canada Gazette of 19th inst., that Hon. G. W. Ross had gone to another place, and that the seat he had occupied was vacant.

Hon. Mr. Foy explained that the statute in section 6 referred to members of the Legislature becoming members of the House of Commons, but no provision was made for the translation of Senators. The motion might not be necessary, but was expedient.

Mr. Harcourt Demurred.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt, who had demurred at first, on this explanation admitted that it could do no harm and suggested that the commission consolidating the statutes should rectify the omission.

Premier Whitney said it was only when their attention was called by circumstances that such omissions became evident. He thought it astonishing that the Senators had not been thought of.

Replying to the question by T. H. Preston (Brant) Hon. Frank Cochrane said it was not the intention of the Government to permit persons who have made locations under the Veteran Lands Grant Act, to surrender the same and obtain the cash equivalent of $50.

Redistribution.

Premier Whitney, replying to Mr. Preston, stated that the Government had not yet considered the question of redistribution of seats in the local House.

Hon. Frank Cochrane got a first reading for a bill to amend the Veterans' Land Grant Act by an extension of six months in the time for making applications.

True Bill Against O'Gorman.

Toronto, Jan. 31.—The grand jury yesterday brought down an amended "true" bill against O'Gorman et al., on the conspiracy charges in connection with the London election cases. The indictment is practically the same as the others.

Five-Year Marine Contract.

Kingston, Jan. 31.—The Montreal Transportation Co. has made a five years' contract with the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. to carry rails from Sydney, C. B., to Port Arthur.

Got An Injunction.

Jersey City, Jan. 31.—The street car company yesterday secured a temporary injunction restraining the city from enforcing its "No seat, no fare" ordinance.

Beresford Coming.

London, Jan. 31.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford left Southampton last night for New York on board the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II.

The Belgian Consul.

New York, Jan. 31.—M. Kotels, the new Belgian consul-general to Ottawa, Canada, arrived yesterday on the steamer Kroonland.

State of Siege.

Madrid, Jan. 31.—A state of siege has been declared at Valencia, owing to the labor agitation there.

Piles Sufferer

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION BY A HALF BOX OF THE PYRAMID PILE CURE—YOU CAN TRY IT FREE.

"I cannot help writing to you about your wonderful cure for piles. When I wrote to you for a sample I was thinking of going through an operation. But I thought I would give your remedies a trial. I am so happy that I did for I am cured and only used half a box. I write this for humanity's sake. I had piles ever since the year 1891. I wish you would publish my name through the Bulletin paper, for I am well-known in the Marine Corps. Use my name the best way you know how. Thanking you for your good advice. Yours truly, Cleophas Forte, Marine Barracks, U.S.N. Training Station, San Francisco, Cal.

What should induce this United States seaman to write us in this manner if not gratitude for being cured of a disease which had tortured him for fifteen years? Mr. Forte was positively unknown and us until he wrote for the sample of our wonderful remedy.

Possibly you too are driven nearly to madness with piles and have thought an operation the only cure. Let us urge you before going to this expense and suffering and submitting to this humiliation, write us to-day for the free trial package of the Pyramid Pile Cure. Its action is immediate and relief is sure. The reputation of its makers is a guarantee of its freedom from harmful ingredients. There is nothing in it but healing, soothing elements which work upon the fevered tissues, bring new life to the bowel and make its action painless and natural.

The sample we send you contains exactly the same remedy as you buy at any druggists at 50 cts. per box. Send to-day and see what wonderful results this sample will bring. It costs you nothing to try. Pyramid Drug Co., 78 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FOREIGN OFFICE DUMB

Acceptance of Swettenham's Resignation Not Announced.

Reticence of Foreign Office About the Matter Due to Desire to Complete Arrangements for a Successor to the Post — Jamaicans, Discussing Rebuilding, Score Governor — Pillaging Due to Inability.

London, Jan. 31.—There is reason to believe that the resignation of Sir Alexander Swettenham as governor of Jamaica has been accepted, though the officials of the Foreign Office are mystifyingly silent and refuse all information on the subject.

This official reticence is attributed to a desire to complete the arrangements for a successor to the post before announcing Swettenham's retirement. It is expected that the latter will leave the island as soon as details can be completed for handing over the affairs of the office.

Jamaicans Discuss Rebuilding.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 31.—A large meeting of representative citizens was held in Victoria market Tuesday to discuss plans for rebuilding the city.

A resolution was adopted by acclamation deploring the enormous loss caused to the entire community, and more particularly the mercantile community, by the wholesale pillaging of shops and stores. "Such pillaging being entirely due to lack of organization on the part of the Government, the Government not calling citizens to its aid, and its refusal of valuable succor offered by the navy of the United States, which would have prevented much of the loss that has occurred."

The meeting also with deep regret "desired to place upon record its conviction that the chief executive officers of the Government have been and are still out of touch with the community generally, and that this attitude on the part of the officers would appear to render them incapable of coping with the situation in the only way practical, namely, that of concerted action on the part of all the persons concerned."

TRAIN WRECK AT RENFREW.

Miraculous Escape of Imperial Limited Passengers—Two of Crew Hurt.

Renfrew, Jan. 31.—The west-bound imperial limited on the C.P.R. crashed into a standing train at the depot here at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and that many lives were not lost seems almost miraculous. As it was the casualties were confined to John Ryan, engineer of the standing train, badly scalded, and Fireman McKnight, of the west bound train, broken leg.

The east-bound train had taken the siding and was waiting for the west-bound train to pass. A brakeman is blamed for leaving the switch open, and when the train for Winnipeg arrived under a good head of steam it was locked with the standing train before it could be stopped.

Both engines are badly wrecked. The mail coaches on both trains were splintered to kindling wood. The express car on the standing train was also wrecked.

The fireman on the standing train jumped in time to get clear of the wreck.

Engineer Wilson of the west-bound train and McKnight, the fireman, whose leg was broken, stuck to their posts and applied the emergency brakes, which probably accounts for the fact that no lives were lost.

None of the passengers were injured, and were able to continue their journey by 8 o'clock.

Car Rolls Down 60-Foot Bank.

St. Catharines, Jan. 31.—A serious accident occurred on the Port Dalhousie branch of the N. St. Catharines and T. Railway, about a mile from St. Catharines, yesterday afternoon, when a freight car ran off the track and rolled down a 60-foot embankment, and was only stopped from going into the canal by some trees. The trucks ran across the canal on the ice. Brakemen Reid and Carey, who were on the car, were thrown off and severely, but not fatally, injured.

The "Golspie" Inquest.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 31.—The verdict of the jury in the Golspie case last night was that Sydney Neill came to his death from frost caused by exposure and that this exposure was due directly to Capt. Boult, who drove Neill from shelter when he might have protected him. They also thought that Mate McLeod should be severely censured for not sending prompt assistance on his arrival at the mission.

Java Revolt Suppressed.

Amsterdam, Holland, Jan. 31.—A brief encounter with the troops sent to the scene of the native revolt in the Island of Java, Dutch East Indies, sufficed to suppress the rebels, whose ringleader and 15 of his followers were killed and many wounded.

Carrie Nation Didn't Get In.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Carrie Nation called at the White House yesterday. She was denied admission and harangued the crowd regarding the treatment offered her. After speaking about a minute she voluntarily retired.

Fell Three Storeys.

Hamilton, Jan. 31.—George Swick, 193 North Wentworth street, fell three storeys down an elevator shaft in the McClary factory last night, and was very seriously injured.

Killed Lying on Track.

Maniwaki, Que., Jan. 31.—An Indian named John McDougall was run over and instantly killed by the regular train Tuesday night. He was lying on the track.
